Glances at the World.

A bill is before the Louisiana Legislature for the protection of song birds. The Times Democrat earnestly favors the bill, and is doing what it can to get it passed. It is said that the bill meets with no opposition among the legislators. But what is strange, the committee to which it was referred, while favoring the measure, has submitted it to bird dealers and fanciers, in order to obtain their views. They have not yet spoken; neither have the milliners, who are also interested. The Times-Democrat says: "The dealers are interested in the capture and shipment of young mocking birds and other songsters, and ship, it is said, some 20,000, or more, to Europe yearly, and one can form some idea of how long it will take to extinguish the mocking birds under these conditions. It is scarcely to be expected that they will approve a measure that will interfere with their business; and if the committee waits for an indorsement from the bird dealers before they report the bill, they will wait until long after the session is over. In a matter of this kind, it seems to us that the Judiciary Committee might well report the bill without waiting for approval of the bird catchers and shippers. It should be able to tell whether the measure is a good one or not, or it can write to some of the other States that have already passed this law, and find out. At any rate, it is only fair to the public that the measure should be brought before the Legislature and the members given a chance to express their opinions, whether or not it is wise and advisable to exterminate the song birds in Louisiana." If any of our readers have strong convictions on this subject, and would like to see their native birds protected, they might, with propriety, write to their representatives and express their opinions.

Efforts are being made in the far West to "organize the farmers in harmony with the American Labor Union"—in other words, as the matter is understood, to bring the farmers into a new political movement. One of the leading political papers vigorously opposes any such movement, and offers the following reasons: "Record-making prices for farm products of every kind during the last two years have been the rule. There is nothing the farmer raises now which is not in demand at prices which might be called fancy. Farm labor never before commanded either the wages or the consideration that it is getting now; therefore, it would seem that this is a most inopportune time to attempt to organize the farmers for political contests. They have no grievance, unless it be that the soil is unable to produce fast enough to meet the phenomenal demand. But this grievance would be imaginary rather than real, since it is the excess of the demand over the supply that makes the farmer master of the situation. There never was a time in the history of the country when the American agriculturist was called upon to devote more brain work and muscle work to his own business, and when he could less afford to waste his energies upon political experiments."

The crime of lynching is apparent to every intelligent and law-abiding citizen, even when the victim is fully identified, or confesses to the crime charged. It is doubly so when the mob comes to learn, as is sometimes the case, that the victim was an innocent individual. And we dare say the mob always feels relieved when an intended victim is rescued and lodged in a place of safety by a courageous and wise officer. The shedding of blood has been averted. Time and again it has come to light that an innocent person suffered death at the hands of a blind and furious mob. Only a few days since a respectable lady in Mississippi was assaulted by a negro. She gave a description of her assailant. Promptly a negro answering to the description was arrested. It was forthwith determined to lynch him, but the infuriated people were outwitted by the officer, and somewhat pacified by the assurance of a speedy trial. A few days afterwards another negro, answering the description, was arrested on another charge, and being questioned closely, confessed that he had committed the assault for which the other negro was in jail. Before the news could spread the sheriff had his prisoner out of the way, and he was soon safe in jail. Thus both the guilty and the innocent escaped death. The law will be allowed to take its course.

The matter of Sunday closing of the great "World's Fair," to be held in St. Louis in 1904, has been settled. Congress voted $5,000,000 to the fair, on condition that the doors be closed on Sunday. The managers were required to execute a contract to that effect. They were rather slow in complying with the condition, and last week they received notice from the Secretary of the Treasury that, until the contract was entered into as the law directed, none of the fund voted would be available, or paid out for any service whatever. The managers fixed up the papers and signed them immediately. The government authorities were evidently afraid that the St. Louis managers would follow the example of the Chicago directors a few years ago. Uncle Sam is seldom caught twice in the same trap.

A short time since the sheriff of Hinds county, Miss., raided the "clubs" of Jackson, and got possession of the stock of liquors on hand. Of course, there was a suit to test the right of the sheriff to interfere in any such manner with the "personal liberty" of social clubs. The matter came to trial, and resulted in giving the clubs a set-back. The press dispatches of June 13 say: "In the cases of the liquors taken by Sheriff Harding from the clubs in the recent raid, Justice Fitzgerald this morning held that the affidavits of the claimants for the goods found in the Elks' Club and the Columbia Club were insufficient, and the court ordered that the liquors be destroyed as the law directs. The attorneys against the clubs served notice on the claimants to produce their Federal revenue licenses, books and invoices, and all correspondence in relation to the liquors, and the transactions by which it is obtained and dispensed. The court, however, did not act upon the notice to produce the papers." A Federal permit does not give even social clubs a right to violate State laws.

FOREST DISTRICT.

To the Preachers in Charge, Supplies, Local Preachers and Other Officials, and Other Members of the M. E Church, South, Forest District, Mississippi Annual Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: Our second round of Quarterly Conferences has ended, and the third will have begun ere this letter appears in the ADVOCATE. I regret that I had not the time to write you an open letter at the end of the first round. Some of you may regret that I take the time at the end of the second round. Some things need to be said or written, and now seems to be the time.

Thanks are due to Rev. Jno. W. Crisler and Rev. W. W. Morse for holding their own Quarterly Conferences in the absence of the presiding elder, and also to Rev. M. L. White for holding the Edinburg Quarterly Conference as well as that for the Carthage circuit; to Rev. L. E. Alford for holding the Indian Mission Conference as well as that for his own pastoral charge—Neshoba circuit; and to Rev. W. J. Dawson for holding the Lake circuit (his own) Conference, and those for Walnut Grove and Decatur circuits. Thanks, brethren beloved.

At Carthage the Rev. M. L. White reports a gracious revival under the lead of the Rev. R. A. Breland, L. E., who also helped the Rev. J. W. Thompson at Clarksburg, Scott circuit; while from Hickory comes cheering tidings of a revival in which Rev. Jno. W. Crisler was aided by the Rev. W. M. McIntosh, who is now at Ellisville with Bro. Norsworthy. There were 8 accessions at Carthage, 7 at Clarksburg, and 18 at Hickory. The greatest number of accessions in any charge so far reported to me is 48 at Main Street Church, Laurel, of which 2 only were by profession of faith. There have been some accessions reported in every pastoral charge, except one or two. And a number of infants have been reported baptized.

The assessment on the district for the support of the presiding elder for 1902 is $1,400, and for the preachers in charge and for the supplies is $11,430, against $1,350 for the one last year and $10,185 for the other, and against $1,300 for the one in 1900 and $8,310 for the other. While the assessment for the presiding elder has increased $100 in the two years, the assessments for the preachers in charge, etc., have increased $3,120 in the same time. The lowest assessment in the district for the pastor's support is on the Edinburg circuit—$200—and the highest is on Laurel, Main Street—$825. The Morton and Pelahatchie charge and the Newton and Hickory charge have each allowed $700 for the pastor's support; Walnut Grove, $640; Vossburg and Heidelberg, $605; Ellisville station, Neshoba, Forest, Lake, and Rose Hill circuits, each $600. All others are below these figures, and some of them shamefully so. The Neshoba circuit is a little below the assessment for last year, and the Walnut Grove, Montrose, and Newton and Hickory charges show greater reductions from salaries already too small. The allowances were increased on Shiloh, Decatur, Raleigh, Enentta, and Taylorville circuits, and Laurel, Main Street, station.

As to new houses of worship, Bro. Corley expects to finish Boyls Chapel, Wayne county, begun last year, at an early date. Bro. R. C. Dickson, L. E., supplying Laurel Fifth Avenue and Kingston—has two unfinished buildings ready for present occupancy. He hopes to finish them and be ready for dedication in the early Fall. Bro. J. W. Thompson expects to ceil and paint Independence Church, Scott circuit, before a great while. Philadelphia Church, Neshoba circuit and county, will soon be ready for occupancy. Bro. Dawson is busy raising money to pay balance of debt due on High Hill Church, Lake circuit. Bro. W. W. Morse has, with the co-operation of the brethren, had Clear Creek Church painted and John's repainted. Bro. G. S. Harmon, Morton, will soon rejoice in a parsonage remodeled, renovated, and made comfortable. Bro. W. H. Lane is planning to build a neat house of worship at Alice, in the bounds of the Edinburg circuit, and also to procure a parsonage. Bro. J. W. Thompson is suspected of planning to make a parsonage a necessity on the Scott circuit, and with no malice aforethought. Bro. M. L. White, Carthage; Bro. R. D. Norsworthy, Ellisville, and Bro. Jno. W. Crisler are wrestling with debts on church-buildings which were made under other pastors. May success crown their efforts! Bro. Linfield is providing ways and means to turn and enlarge and paint and otherwise improve our Laurel, Main Street, Church. At Taylorville the brethren have begun, or are ready to begin, to build a church in that, the chief railroad town of Smith county. How glad I shall be if it be my privilege to preach therein this year! Another necessity there is a parsonage, which would soon be provided if willingness were only in proportion to ability. The presiding elder hopes, by the co-operation of the pastors and others, to procure the means to make some sadly needed repairs and improvement on the district parsonage, and leave it a inuch more desirable place than it ever has been.

At some points the stewards are diligent, and the quarterage is in excess of the same time last year; but not one charge has paid in full to date. (How greatly is it needed! Let stewards and members follow the Discipline in this matter.) The preachers who are making earnest efforts to collect the assessments report that they are meeting with far less difficulty than ever before. One brother writes that he never had so easy a time as he now has in getting up his collections. The first charge, not only in Forest district, but also in the Annual Conference, to pay the assessment for Conference claimants in full this year is the Eucutta circuit—J. M. Corley, P. C.; and the first in the district and in the Conference to pay domestic missions in full is Ellisville circuit—Geo. W. Shearer, supply. W. M. Thornton, treasurer Joint Board of Finance, reports the following receipts from this district on the Conference Claimants' Fund: Eucutta, $24 (in full); Rose Hill, $15; Shiloh, $61 (in full); Walnut Grove, $5; Vossburg and Heidelberg, $70 (in full); Montrose, $45 (in full); Edinburg, $4.80; Lake, $25; Trenton, $20; Harperville, $33 (in full); Morton and Pelahatchie, $43 (in full); Carthage, $16.65; making $362.45 on the assessment of $950. And so many have made no remittance! Treasurer Conference Board of Missions, W. L. Linfield, reports following payments on foreign and domestic missions:

	For. Miss.	Dom Miss.
Taylorville	$ 6 50	$ 1 75
Rose Hill	18 00	11 00
Carthage	5 00	.....
Trenton	10 00	.....
Enentta	16 00	.....
Vossburg and H.	54 00	34 00
Raleigh	25 00	.....
Lake	15 00	8 00
Montrose	25 00	10 00
Ellisville circuit	.....	7 00
Total	$170 50	$71 75

And these small amounts on assessments, $650 for foreign missions and $1,200 for domestic missions; and every mission field at home and abroad calling for help! Half of the Conference year gone, forever gone! Some of the brethren who reported collections made at the first and second Quarterly Conferences had not remitted a cent up to June 1. Don't wait longer, brethren, but remit to Bro. Linfield whatever you may have collected, be it much or little. Keep in mind our watchword with which we began the year, "A thousand souls for Christ, and all collections in full."

Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN, P. E.

Eternity alone will reveal the great results of the revival of 1800. The revival originated about that year, but continued with unabated power for many years afterwards. There never has been anything like it in modern times. Camp meetings originated then. The manifestations of power were so great, and the interest so widespread, that people came from a hundred miles distant, and more, with their bedding, cooking vessels and provisions, and remained for days at a time. The jerks, and other phenomena attending the services, were peculiar to that period. The writer's father was born in 1796, and grew up and was converted in that revival, and was an eye-witness to many of the strange sights that were often seen. He said that at the services of the great awakening curiosity seekers and scoffers would flock around, and giggle, and look the most eagerly for the "cutting up," as they called it. All of a sudden one, or more, would be seized with the jerks. They would be drawn almost double. Their heads would jerk back and forth, the ladies' hair would jerk loose and pop like a whip. The victims were powerless. They jerked in spite of themselves, and it would continue until the strength was exhausted and pride entirely crushed. Then the victim would weep and pray, and the jerking would cease. I have often wished for the jerks at meetings that I have held.

The Rev. William Barnett, the subject of this sketch, was converted in this wonderful revival period, and his faith and courage and spirituality throughout his ministerial life were of the character of the revival in which he was converted. He was a bold, zealous layman from the first, and when quite young was set apart to the ministry. He was above the ordinary height, well proportioned, very strong, and very prepossessing in appearance. He had a commanding look, and would attract attention in any crowd. His complexion was sallow, his hair black and bushy, and his eyes dark and lustrous. He was a good English scholar, and after he entered the ministry he utilized everything that he thought would aid him in his life-work, and he became a workman that "needeth not to be ashamed." He was an exegete of the Scriptures, and his sermons were remarkably lucid. Dr. Barnett's preaching was like Nehemiah's reading of the law. The people understood it, and when they heard it, they wept. His public prayers were wonderful in effect. When on his knees, he seemed to be lost in God, and oblivious of all around. He talked and reasoned and plead with God as friend pleads, talks and reasons with friend. Ere his prayers closed, as a rule, there was a loud intermingling of weeping and shouting, and he seemed not to hear it. Preaching seemed to be superfluous at the close of one of his prayers. Under his preaching the slain of the Lord were many, and like wounded birds seeking a safe retreat, penitents came flocking to the altar.

Dr. Barnett knew not the fear of man; neither did he seem to doubt God in the least under any circumstances. At a great camp meeting under a brush arbor in 1852 the meeting of a number of days was about to close with the Lord's Supper. It was between one and two o'clock P. M., when everything was ready for the sacrament. It seemed impossible to partake of it, as a heavy storm was approaching. The clouds were heavy and dark, the claps of thunder frightful, and the flashes of lightning blinding. A light breeze and a few heavy drops of rain had come. The great preacher raised his hands reverentially, and, looking up, prayed, "O Lord, thou God of Abraham, and our God, for thy Son's sake stay the storm, until thy people commemorate thy death and sufferings." Whether in answer to prayer or not, the clouds began to scatter immediately, the thunder and lightning ceased, and the sun shone out in all his beauty. It was generally believed by the 2,000 persons then present that "Uncle Billy Barnett" turned that cloud.

Miscellaneous Notes.

The managers of the World's Fair, to be held in St. Louis in 1904, will erect a building for the exhibition of the world's religious progress. The late General Conference at Dallas by resolution expressed sympathy with the enterprise, and our church will be properly represented.

Rev. R. W. Browder, of Kentucky, writing to the Central Methodist, says: "Altogether, the church is well officered and well equipped for work, and if all of us should do our utmost, . . . we ought to come to the next General Conference with two million members and at least one million dollars collected for foreign missions per annum."

At the recent meeting of the trustees of Millsaps College, President Murrah was authorized to raise $2,500 to furnish the Campbell College property, purchased not long since for a dormitory. One thousand dollars was contributed on the spot by Mr. I. C. Enochs, a liberal-hearted citizen of Jackson. Dr. Murrah thinks it will be an easy matter to raise the remainder of the amount needed.

The funeral sermon of the late Dr. Andrew Hunter, who spent sixty-six years in the itinerant ministry in Arkansas, was preached by Bishop Hoss. The funeral was largely attended by the citizens of Little Rock and by preachers from many sections of the State. The sermon was clear and strong. The Arkansas Methodist says Dr. Hunter's "simple, sincere, brave and massive character was drawn by a master hand."

The new Book Committee met in Nashville on June 11. Dr. Collins Denny was re-elected chairman, and W. C. Dibrell, secretary. The salaries of all connectional officers elected by the General Conference, and under the supervision of the committee, were fixed at $3,000. Ample provision was made for editorial assistance, purchase of literary matter, etc. The matter of uniting our publishing interests in China with the M. E. Church was considered, and Bishop Wilson, Drs. Collins Denny and Paul Whitehead were appointed to confer with a like committee from the M. E. Church, and to take steps to carry out the plan.

BY AN ITINERANT.—

SECTION III.

We shall now consider the Jewish dispensation, with its sign and seal, in relation to the Christian dispensation, with its sign and seal.

Of the Abrahamic covenant, in its spiritual as well as in its temporal provisions, circumcision was most certainly the sacrament—that is, the "sign" and "seal," for St. Paul thus explains the case, "And he received the 'sign' of circumcision, a 'seal' of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised." (Rom. iv, 11.)

We emphasize that circumcision was the "sign" and "seal" of this covenant in both its parts—that is, the temporal and spiritual. The spiritual promises of the covenant were not limited to a special part of Abraham's descendants, but extended to all, whether Isaac or Ishmael, Esau or Jacob. We find that circumcision was practiced among them all by virtue of its Divine institution, and was extended to their foreign servants, and to proselytes, as well as to their children. And wherever the sign of the covenant of grace was by Divine appointment, there it was a "seal" of that covenant to all who believingly used it. But of the temporal branch of the covenant, and the external religious privileges arising out of it, God restricted to Isaac, Jacob, and their lineal descendants. With these lineal descendants God entered into special covenant by the ministry of Moses. The temporal blessings and external privileges comprised in the covenant with Abraham were explained and enlarged under that of Moses, while the spiritual blessings remained unrestricted as before. To explain and enlarge the temporal import of circumcision is evidently the reason why it was re-enacted under Moses. But this re-enactment did not affect the spiritual side, for our Lord expressly said, "Moses, therefore, gave unto you circumcision, not because it is of Moses, but of the fathers." (John vii, 22.) Circumcision is of "the fathers;" hence its spiritual phase is of perpetual duration and perpetual obligation. However, its temporal, external phase has vanished. Isaac, Jacob, and their lineal descendants are no longer considered ethnically, or with race distinctions. This is plainly seen in the worship of the Jews to-day. Save the shadow of the ethnic import of circumcision and the Passover, all their rites, ceremonies and sacrifices peculiar to themselves have vanished, and unbelieving Israel is but a symbol of faded glory. Only the spiritual import of circumcision and the Passover, designed for all nations, is all that keeps these rites alive among them. When the promised seed, Christ, came—the culmination of that holy faith of father Abraham—Israel hung her harps on the willow trees forever, for now, "There is neither Jew nor Greek, ... for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."

I now present two propositions:

1. Children were included in the covenant made with Abraham, and received circumcision as the "sign" and "seal" of that covenant relation.

2. That as this covenant has never been abrogated or changed, therefore, children are still included in it, and have a right to its Christian "sign" and "seal."

1. Upon the first proposition there can be but little, if any, controversy. God said to Abraham, "I will establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee, in their generations, for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee, and thy seed after thee." (Gen. xvii, 7.) That the infant offspring of Abraham received the "sign" and "seal" of the covenant, see verse 12, "And he that is eight days old shall be circumcised among you:" also chapter xxi, verse 4, "And Abraham circumcised his son Isaac, being eight days old, as God had commanded him."

This sign, we find, was continued in the Jewish Church up to the time of John the Baptist and Christ. John was circumcised on the eight day: "And it came to pass, that on the eighth day they came to circumcise the child." (Luke i, 59.) Christ was circumcised on the eighth day also: "And when eight days were accomplished for circumcising the child, his name was called Jesus." (Luke ii, 21.)

It is worthy of remark that in both of these cases names were given to the children; one was called "John," and the other was called "Jesus"! The naming of the child, when initiated into the church by the ceremonial rite, has been continued from its beginning to the present time.

Now, I have shown that children were included in the covenant made with Abraham, and received its "sign" and "seal;" so we notice the second proposition:

2. We shall let the reader refer to it, and not repeat it here. I established in the first division, beyond all question, the identity of the church under both dispensations. The foundation of the church is the covenant made with Abraham. I have also shown that children were included in that covenant, and received by special command of God the "sign" and "seal" of that covenant. This is proof positive that children are still included in the covenant, and are, therefore, entitled to its Christian "sign" and "seal."

But some one slow of understanding objects. Then let the objector show when, where, and by whom was this positive law of God, recorded in Gen. xvii, 7–12, abrogated or repealed. I challenge any objector to show one sentence of an express repeal of this express law. Such repeal must be given to dispose of the law, as every sensible person knows. Until this is done, my second proposition stands.

But I shall add more positive proof. St. Paul says: "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ. And if ye are Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."

Infants are not excluded here, but are directly included. The "promise" was to Abraham's "seed" (children). (Gen. xvii, 7.) His "seed" received the sign and seal of that promise in infancy. (Verse 12.) This made them heirs of the promise. Without it, God said, "That soul shall be cut off from his people; he hath broken my covenant." (Verse 14.) (It requires an expressed repeal to abrogate this fearful passage. You, who set it aside at will, had better consider well.) Paul says, "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ . . . . are Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Thus, we see, he makes baptism now the "sign" and "seal" of the covenant of promise. Consequently, infants are entitled to this sign and seal, and thereby become Abraham's spiritual seed, and heirs according to the promise.

As ordinances of initiation into the church of God, circumcision and baptism answer to each other. In this baptism takes the place of circumcision. Circumcision was the sign and seal of the covenant in both its parts; therefore, we do not claim that baptism is the same as circumcision in every particular. If so, there would have been no need of the change from one to the other. Circumcision was the initiatory ordinance into the Jewish Church, while baptism is the initiatory ordinance into the Christian Church. In this they agree.

Under the Abrahamic and Mosaic dispensations God, for a wise purpose, did see proper to make a distinction between males and females in visible church membership. Even at this time women are not members of the Jewish Church—only the males are. But under the Christian dispensation there is no distinction made between the sexes. Paul expressly says, "There is neither male nor female, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." For this reason also, to be applicable to both sexes, the ordinance was changed from circumcision to baptism.

To show that circumcision and baptism have the same spiritual import, we have only to examine the Word of God. Moses says, "And the Lord thy God will circumcise thine heart, and the heart of thy seed, to love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live." (Deut. xxx, 6.) Circumcision here indicates spiritual cleansing. Paul utters almost the words of Moses when he says, "For he is not a Jew which is one outwardly; neither is that circumcision which is outward in the flesh; but he is a Jew which is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the Spirit, and not in the letter; whose praise is not of men, but of God." (Rom. ii, 28, 29.) Baptism, also, is the symbol of purification. It perfectly typifies, by sprinkling or pouring, the pouring out of the Holy Spirit, who baptizes or circumcises the heart, cleansing it of all the filth of the flesh. "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit." (I. Cor. xii, 13.) John the Baptist said, "I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance; but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am unworthy to bear; he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire." (Matt. iii, 11.) "There can be no doubt that spiritual circumcision and spiritual baptism are the same gracious work accomplished in the human soul. Under former dispensations this work was symbolized by circumcision in the flesh, and was called circumcision of the heart. Under the present dispensation this work is symbolized by baptism with water, and is called the baptism of the Holy Ghost." Can any doubt that in its spiritual import baptism has taken the place of circumcision?

There is no question that the Lord's Supper was instituted in the room of the Passover, for Paul says, "For even Christ, our Passover, is sacrificed for us." (I. Cor. v, 7.) The Passover was appointed of God (Ex. xii, 3–28), and so was the Lord's Supper. (Matt. xxvi, 27.) The Passover was a memorial of deliverance from temporal bondage (Ex. xviii, 8), and the Lord's Supper is a memorial of deliverance from spiritual bondage. (Luke xxii, 19.) The Passover prefigured the death of Christ before it took place, and the Lord's Supper represents that death now past. As no person could partake of the Passover before he was circumcised, so no one should come to the Lord's Supper before he has received baptism. The Jewish covenant was signified by two rites—circumcision and the Passover. Christianity also has two—baptism and the Lord's Supper. And as it is expressly stated that the Lord's Supper is substituted for the Passover, nothing but an express denial in the Scriptures can avoid the conclusion that baptism is substituted for circumcision.

We have made out our case. It has been shown that children were included in the covenant made with Abraham, and received circumcision, the sign and seal of that covenant, by positive command of God; that baptism, to be applicable to both sexes, as females are now admitted by express authority of God to visible church membership, has been substituted for circumcision as the Christian sign and seal of the covenant.

Now, let the opposers of infant baptism show that the law entitling infants to the initiatory ordinance of the church has been repealed. Till this is done there is no avoiding the conclusion that infants are entitled to baptism under the present dispensation, just as they were under former dispensations. Inference will not do. Express law must continue in full force till repealed by express law. But such repeal can nowhere be found in the sacred writings.

THE PASTOR AND HIS LEAGUE.

BY REV. B. P. JACO.

What is the relation of the League to the pastor, and the pastor to the League? The M. E. Church, South, is the universal that contains the two particulars named in this proposition. Then the way to discuss the question is with the conception of a great institution set to do its share in saving the world before our minds; and as we look upon this great institution, see two of its principal parts as they stand related to each other. Their relations are both formal and by blood. They both exist by the will of the church, and are co-laborers together for the good of the church, and, as such, their duties are defined as they grow out of their relations. But the question narrows down to the League and pastor as they are associated in local work. We have, therefore, to consider their relations in a smaller sphere than even as institutions. We are to enter the home life and study them in their every-day employ. We are to see them in their working clothes. As such, we find that the local League is the creature of the pastor, who, by the direction of the church as given through the parent institution, has, by counsel and literature, led the young people into a formal organization. In its origin it is dependent upon him in a large measure always, and sometimes wholly dependent. This being the case, the local League, to a great extent, bears the likeness of the pastor, and in its work and life will long reflect his peculiar talents, or defects, or both. Then the law puts the League under the care and control of the pastor, so that its training must come through his direction. Its council has the pastor at its head. His voice is heard as that of the chief counselor in all matters of administration. But this relation might seem voluntary, which is not true. It is not for the pastor to elect whether he shall cause to be organized an Epworth League, since there is only one condition previously required, and that is, that there shall be in his charge suitable material for a League. The young people in his charge thus appear in the relation of wards to him, and he to them as a guardian for whose souls he must give an account.

We have thus named some particulars of relation of the pastor to the League, and these are clearly to be seen as growing out of his sphere. We may likewise find relations of League to pastor, and by inference we have already presented them. But aside from being the created, the disciplined, the advised, the ward, the League becomes of necessity, and is in design, the pastor's helper. Thus by law and by necessity they are to live together in all these earlier and minor relations, that they may come to the higher relation of co-laborers for the good of the church and for the glory of Christ. But we hold some such ideas as that our duties in life grow out of the relations we sustain to other things and persons, believing which, we feel disposed to discuss at least some of the duties of the League and pastor to each other. We begin at a suggestion already given, and say that it is not optional with either the pastor or the young people in our church whether they will, or will not, have a League where the material exists for one. This belief is based on the vows taken when we become members of the church, wherein we pledge ourselves to support the institutions of the church and to be subject to its discipline. No pastor may neglect his young people, or neglect to labor to organize them into a League, without violating sacred vows. And none of our young church members may neglect to obey and labor together with the pastor toward this end without violating the most sacred obligations. And where such organization exists, it is the bounden duty of every pastor to study and work to perfect and perpetuate the same. We believe he should make himself competent, and then counsel the leaders and members of the League in all matters where needed; should understand the literature, and grasp the intention and scope of its use, and so direct its use as to secure the desired benefits. Let him see that the Leaguers are thus well trained. But where is the use or sense in training a trotting horse or setter dog, unless you use them? Harness one and drive, or call the other into the field and take game, is the sensible thing, the practical thing. So ought the pastor to give his Leaguers actual church work to do. Give them work according to their training and natural ability. Do not give them some fictitious or frivolous work, but the real work of the church. Here is where many pastors have failed, and charged their failure either to the folly of the church, or of the young people when they were the parties failing. A child will gladly be fed, will submit to being taught, but the energy generated by the food, and the aptitude secured in training, must be utilized, or its over-accumulation will cause the subject to break away from your hand and employ himself. We must not undertake to do all teaching. When a boy learns that there are roaring cataracts, precipitous mountains, and rolling seas, he wants to go see them. Teach him the nature and properties of air and water, and he wants to fly a kite; or seeing the lid of a tea kettle rise and fall as the heated particles of water escape by the energy communicated through heat, he must go and build an engine, or smother the genius and abuse intellect. You can not retain the respect of young people if you attempt to abuse them by trifling with their powers in make-like employment. They will rebel. A boy will chase a butterfly an hour, walk a half day in the snow after rabbits, or walk five miles to catch an opossum, and never complain; but he will not mark time ten minutes without objection. Yes, let's give the young people some real church work to do. They will do it, and do it well. They will do it like you tell them to do it. They can do more than any other class of church members you have.

But lest we be too abundant in our advice to the pastor, we must say that our Leaguers can afford to be guided by the pastor and be subject to the church. The League is not an independent institution. It is an element in the church, and when any of its work or methods causes inharmony or friction in the church, or tends to make a breach between the young people and the church, if in any way our polity or doctrines are hindered, right then we must stop and correct ourselves. Let all our Leaguers understand that it is loyalty to the church and Christ that we seek. But more: Our young folks must lay hold of the work of the church; must become co-laborers with the pastor and Official Board to accomplish the necessary work of the church. None of us may neglect the Sunday-school, the prayer meeting, or preaching service, because we attend all the League services. No interest of the church should escape the bright eyes, or fail to feel the lively touch, or lose the enthusiastic zeal of our young people.

Personally, we have never found any relation more enjoyable in our church life than that of pastor to Epworth Leaguers, and naught but a deep sense of bereavement is felt when I have no League. When I have a good League of devoted young church members, I know they will stand by me in any conflict. Others often criticise and sometimes forsake, but my Leaguers always remain steadfast. If I should appeal to any class of persons that I have associated with me in my pastorate of twelve years, I would call on my Leaguers. Some have entered our Conference, some the local ranks, and many of them occupy official positions in the church, and all of them rejoice with me in success and sympathize with me in any reverse.

SCOTCHING THE WAGON.

I was driving one day over the mountain roads up in New Hampshire, when I overtook a man who was heavily loaded, and though he had a big team of four large horses, he was having all he could do to get up the hill. They never would have made it if he had not been a good driver. But the horses knew their driver, and he knew them, and he knew just where to speak the word of encouragement or rebuke to make each horse do his best. But that took up all his time and attention, and every once in a while they had to rest, so as to get their wind.

The driver had his little boy along, who followed with a stone as big as he could carry easily. When the time came to stop, the father indicated it to the boy, who stuck the stone under the hind wheel at the right moment.

He was a bright little fellow, the driver's boy, and I said to him, "You are quite a teamster, young man." He smiled and blushed a little with embarrassment as he replied, "I am not big enough to drive, but I can scotch."

He was evidently very much pleased that, though he could not do the thing which seemed to him the top-notch of human privilege—drive a team of horses—he was still able to scotch.

I drove on in my buggy, meditating on the little boy's remark. It was a beautiful thing, the spirit that had caused him to make that remark. I have known so many people who would not do anything unless they could drive. If they could be at the head of the committee, or in the position of most show or power, they were willing to work; but if somebody else was going to be chairman, and drive, they were sure to sulk, and not do anything. But, again, I have known others—and "may their tribe increase!"—whom you could always depend on to "scotch," even though somebody else was given the whip and the reins. Such people are always valuable, and, in the end, always beloved.—Epworth Herald.

With sorrow for our loss, yet with full understanding of the great gain to her, we would lay before you our tribute to the memory of one of our most valued members, Mrs. Hallie H. Christian.

Like an electric wave there ran through our city that Saturday afternoon the message, "Mrs. Christian has been called home to God." A message bearing sorrow to our hearts, making a vacancy in our numbers, yet leaving a loving and lovely memory of a pure white life, full of kindly deeds, of Christian charity, in thought, in word, and in act.

In her going away the poor, the distressed and the erring have lost a friend, for, ever foremost in every good work, no sorrower, no sufferer ever went uncomforted, unrelieved away from her helpful heart; finding ready access to her consecrated store of worldly goods, as well as to her uplifting words of sympathy and love, for, with her the kindly hand was the ready helper to the loving heart. From the church she will be missed in the various branches of work which enjoyed her support. Her voice will no longer be heard in our missionary meetings or in Sunday-school, where she so long and worthily labored to lead her pupils to the Christ and his service; but how sweet will be the welcome when they, too, go home, and they together sing redeeming love!

To the loved ones so suddenly left desolate we would tender a heartfelt, sympathetic prayer, and with them bow in sweet submission to our Father's will. Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight.

Lovingly submitted on behalf of the W. F. M. Society of Central Church, Meridian, Miss.

Committee: (Mrs.) Mary Mayers Green, (Mrs.) Sallie Woodward, (Mrs.) Mollie R. McQueen.

Healthy Mothers Make Happy Homes

"His warm but simple home he enjoys
With her who shares his pleasures and his heart.
"Tis sweet to know there is an eye will mark
Our coming, and look brighter when we come."

It is the healthy wife who is cheerful, contented, hopeful, smiling and happy. She it is who can make home the dearest spot on earth, the rallying place of the affections, the sphere of harmony and peace, the sacred refuge of life. The woman who is harrassed, worn and wearied with the irritations and miseries of female ailments, being herself distressed and unhappy, is apt to lose her ability to make home what it should be for those she loves. Women who are blessed with perfect health are a constant source of joy to themselves and others. To secure womanly health there is no measure equal to the judicious use of G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea.

"I had suffered for a year and three bottles has restored my health entirely. Physicians and the many female remedies used had no effect on me whatever, but to G. F. P. I owe my life. You have my permission to publish this letter that other suffering women may know of this wonderful remedy and be cured."—Mrs. Carrie Richardson, Grace, Miss.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

Fearful Arraignment of the Liquor Traffic

A SERMON ON

TEMPERANCE,

By the Rev. George R. Stuart,

CLEVELAND, TENN.

Coworker with the Rev. Sam P. Jones.

The author has had numerous calls from all over the country for this sermon. In order to meet this demand he had it published in pamphlet form. He proposes to use the profits of the sale in the interest of the cause for which the sermon was preached.

It is sold by the single copy for 10 cents; by the 100, at 7 cents per copy; by the 1,000, at 6 cents per copy.

Chautauqua.

The Louisiana State Chautauqua and Peabody Summer School opened at Ruston on the ninth, and will continue in session four weeks. There are excellent platform attractions each day. Ex-Governor Taylor, of Tennessee; Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, and Rev. Sam Jones, are among the speakers. This is an excellent place to spend a short vacation. We thank the management for courtesies. For further information address J. B. Aswell, Gen'l Mgr., Ruston, La.

Missionary Institute. Corinth District.

The Corinth District Missionary Institute was held in the Methodist Church at Corinth, Miss., May 28 and 29, 1902, with Rev. W. M. Young, P. E., in the chair. There was a good attendance of the preachers and laymen of the district. Rev. W. I. Smith was chosen secretary. The opening address by the presiding elder, setting forth the object and importance of the Institute, was both pleasing and instructive, and set things right for the good work which followed. The programme, which displayed wisdom and tact in its arrangement, was taken up, and those present who had been appointed to take part in the proceedings had their papers, addresses and sermons well prepared.

Questions of vital interest and importance to the church at the present time were ably and enthusiastically discussed by thinkers and readers, much good and useful information was obtained, and new life and interest created in mission work in the district. After debating at some length the questions: 1. "Should Mission Circuits That Do Not Become Self-supporting Ever Be Abandoned?" 2. "Is There Any Difference in the Importance of Home and Foreign Missions?" 3. "When Shall the Entire Mission Assessments for the Corinth District Be Paid? Plans and Methods to Accomplish It"—the following resolutions were offered and adopted:

"1. Resolved, That it is the sense of this Missionary Institute that our church should not abandon missions that do not become self-supporting.

"2. Resolved, That we believe that the responsibility of the church to evangelize the world makes all fields equally important.

"3. Resolved, By each of us, that the collections for missions should, and shall, if possible, be raised in full this year in the district."

Rev. J. A. Greening, of the Memphis Conference, was present during the session, and preached a very entertaining sermon.

The meeting closed the night of the second day with a rousing missionary rally, and the Institute was a pronounced success. The pastors returned to their several charges determined to place more literature in the homes of the people, preach more and better sermons than ever before, and, if possible, raise every dollar assessed for missions this year.

May the Great Head of the church direct us in our planning, help us in our preaching, and open up the hearts of his people to give as he has prospered them.

NOTES.

The Corinthians entertained the Epworth League Institute the twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh, and the Missionary Institute the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth, and they did it well. We must have made a good impression, as they have since unanimously asked to entertain us again during the District Conference, a little later on. We gladly accept their kind hospitality, and will look forward to the time with a great deal of pleasure.

Rev. S. B. Myers has a fine hold on his people at Corinth, and is doing a great work in that old town. He and his good people brought the whole Institute under many obligations to them for their thoughtful care and kind treatment during the four days' sojourn among them. Bro. Myers is a capital man, a strong preacher, and made a fine speech on the "Value of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Work to the Pastor and the Church."

Rev. W. M. Young is an ideal presiding elder. He has the preaching ability, is a fine presiding officer, keeps in close touch with every interest of the church in his district, knows how and when to strike to bring up the weak points, and does it. He is deeply religious, preaches with power and unction, the people hear him gladly, and rejoice under his ministry. His district is booming, and he hopes to report every dollar of the assessments for missions in full this year.

Rev. B. P. Jaco fills the bill as District Missionary Secretary. He is doing the work, and no man could do it better. His papers and sermons read and preached during the Institute were up to high-water mark. He knows, and knows how to tell what he does know. He is in fine favor with his people at Booneville, and is making great progress in the erection of a fine brick church and a good parsonage.

It was our pleasure to lodge in the home of the mother of Rev. W. D. Bass. We shall not soon forget the kind treatment of Mother Bass and the family. Bro. Bass attended the Institute, and made several splendid speeches. As an evangelist, or pastor's helper, he is doing a great work.

Miss Willie Young's recitation on "The Pre-eminence of Jesus" came last on the programme; was exceeding fine, made a deep and abiding impression on the congregation, and was one of the richest treats of the occasion. Miss Willie is the daughter of our presiding elder, accomplished, and was elected third vice-president of the District League during the League Institute.

All the preachers and laymen present enjoyed the Institute, and took an active part in its work.

The real value of our District Missionary Institutes is incalculable. No matter how religious, or well informed, or pressed with work, or scanty the purse, a preacher or layman can not very well afford to deny himself the advantages and inspiration they offer.

The Vicksburg District Conference.

It is very necessary that we should have the postoffice address of all the lay delegates elect and local preachers who are members of and expect to attend the Vicksburg District Conference at Phœnix, Yazoo county, Miss., July 16-20. If the pastors will give these facts promptly, it will aid us very much. Delegates can come via Jackson to Bentonia, and take hack-line, or via Vicksburg, and take boat, Tuesday, at 5 P. M., and get off at Satartia, and thence to Phœnix by buggy. Trains arrive at Bentonia at 8 A. M. and 4 P. M. Those living in thirty miles of Phœnix, who have horse and buggy, can come through. Roads are good, and horses will be cared for. Those coming to Bentonia and Satartia must let us know, so we can inform hack-line owners.

THOS. A. HOLLOMAN.

The closing exercises of the Orphans' Home school took place at the chapel of the Home last Thursday night. The concert by the children was interesting and entertaining to a high degree. The advancement made by the little ones deserves the most favorable comment. Mr. B. K. Alexander, who has had charge of the school, is a good teacher and disciplinarian, and has done efficient work among these bright and happy children. It was a delightful evening to the visitors who witnessed the entertainment.—Water Valley Itemizer.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

From Dr. Hamill.

DEAR BROTHER: I address this letter to you as editor of one of our church papers, and if you approve it, for the sake of the great work recently committed to me by appointment for the quadrennium by our Sunday-school Board, based upon the recent action of the General Conference, I will be glad if you will make editorial notice of the facts, and send me a marked copy of your paper. The facts are as follows:

1. The teacher-training and institute movement, and my appointment in charge, was begun ad interim a year ago by the Board, but with the avowed purpose of laying it before the General Conference, and asking that it be permanently embodied in the law of the church as a department of the Sunday-school work.

2. The Board and the Sunday-school Committee of the Conference at Dallas unanimously asked this of the Conference, and it was at once heartily granted, and both office and movement will be given a place in the chapter of the new Discipline devoted to the Sunday-schools.

3. The Board and Committee asked that the office I hold be appointive rather than elective, wishing to confine the office to one esteemed by them as a specialist. (I simply give the substance of their views.)

4. The Board has appointed me to the office under the Discipline for the next quadrennium.

You will see from this statement the relation the movement now bears to the church. Indeed, the Conference went further than I have stated above, and asked all pastors to see that Bible Teachers' Study Circles are organized in their charges. But, as you know, comparatively few of our church took the Daily Advocate, and have learned that the work, heretofore tentative, has been made permanent, and in a sense authoritative. Our Sunday-school workers should know the facts, and the movement will be greatly aided by this general knowledge of the action of Conference and Board. For the work's sake, and without reference whatever to myself personally, I should be very glad if you would set the facts before the church, and make kindly note of the movement. Connectional elections, departments and work are not likely to pass unnoted during and after a General Conference; but a special movement like that committed to me needs publicity, such as our church papers can give to it. I trust that you will see that this letter is prompted only by loyalty to the work of the church, and concern for the success of what I believe to be a great and fruitful movement. Your brother,

H. M. HAMILL.

The first necessity of athletics is a sound stomach. Food is the source of all physical strength, but to extract and assimilate the strength from food requires that the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition should be in a condition of good health. What is true of the athlete is true of every man and woman; physical health and vigor depend upon the digestion and assimilation of food.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, builds the body up with solid flesh and muscle.

"I used ten bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and several vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets' a year ago this spring; and have had no trouble with indigestion since," writes Mr. W. T. Thompson, of Townsend, Broadwater County, Montana. "Words fail to tell how thankful I am for the relief, as I had suffered so much and it seemed that the doctors could do me no good. I got down in weight to 125 pounds, and was not able to work at all. Now I weigh nearly 160 and can do a day's work on the farm. I have recommended your medicine to several, and shall always have a good word to say for Dr. Pierce and his medicines."

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1902.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE.

We print all communications of an official character, whether sent in by our brethren or sisters, at the earliest date possible. This is our rule, for such matter has precedence over everything else. When matter reaches us we know exactly where it belongs, and, unless we are much crowded, we know when it can be printed. Half of the paper (pages 2, 3, 6 and 7) is ready for the press on Friday evening. The other half (pages 1, 4, 5 and 8) is ready Tuesday evening. Nothing, except very short notices, that reach us on Tuesday, can get in the ADVOCATE until the next week. And we do not like for a brother—or sister either, for that matter—to insinuate that we are careless. Accidents do occasionally happen. When they do, we apologize and bear the blame.

In the General Minutes for 1901 the names of four hundred and twenty-six local preachers are given who were employed to take charge of circuits and stations and missions. Besides these, others are employed whose names are not given, the North Mississippi Conference showing six and the Louisiana six. If this proportion is kept up in all the Conferences, the aggregate will show that in our church not less than six hundred and fifty local preachers are engaged as supplies. In other words, we are just that number short of itinerant preachers. And though there was an increase of sixty-six traveling preachers over the year before, we had to employ fourteen more local preachers in 1901 than we did in 1900. To the brother who desires to "thin out the local preachers to a stand," there is something in these figures to think about.

A preacher who regards any character of church work too insignificant to employ his time and talents after he has reached the dignity of a D. D., has not, by any means, changed his notions or his attitude. He is only more pronounced in his distaste for anything like drudgery, and bolder in manifesting his natural weakness. Were he an humble and thoroughly consecrated man, he would see more clearly, as he grows older and wiser, and more honored in the church, that none of the Lord's work is to be despised.

We will give any brother of any denomination, or local church, one dollar for the copy of a Southern Methodist paper whose editor says the late General Conference at Dallas authorized deaconesses to be uniformed in gowns, hoods, etc., after the style of Roman Catholic nuns. We must have a whole copy of the paper—not a clipping. We are anxious to find out who is the most ignorant or most malicious editor in Southern Methodism.

THE WORTH OF THE CHURCH.

The worth of the church may be expressed in a single sentence: The church has, directly or indirectly, accomplished everything that has ever been done for the salvation of men. Giving due credit for the good work of individuals who have, now and then, seen fit to labor on independent lines, it would be easy to show that, without the strong, conservative power and influence of the church, they never would have been blessed with an opportunity to try their hands at reforming the world.

What we mean by the church is not any particular sect, to the exclusion of all others. To do that, we would be necessarily compelled to admit that the claim of one or another of the sects which assumes to be the church is valid; else be forced to make the same claim for the denomination to which we belong. We can never do either. We prefer to accept the idea that God has one church in the world, and that the various sects who "preach the pure Word of God, and duly administer the sacraments," are branches of the one church. This leaves us free to assert our own claims, and to recognize all others who believe in "one Lord, one faith, one baptism." This one church is divinely appointed.

It is through this one church that God has so far accomplished his purposes in the world. He proposes to complete the work begun, and to do it through the same instrumentality ordained at the beginning, and by the same method. So we learn from the New Testament.

First of all, the Lord called and ordained men to the ministry. The history says, "A great multitude from Galilee followed him, and from Judea, and from Jerusalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond Jordan; and they about Tyre and Sidon, a great multitude, when they had heard what great things he did, came unto him." In this multitude were many disciples. From these disciples he separated a select number — twelve — and ordained them, "that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach." (Luke vii, 14.) These men were not selected as a commission to exercise their function as preachers temporarily. Their duties as such were not to cease by authority of any statute of limitation. These particular individuals would cease to preach because they would cease to live, but their office as preachers would be transmitted to "faithful men," who would keep up the work to the end of time. The ministry is to be perpetual: "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, . . . and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

The ordained method of saving men is preaching. Preachers are to stand face to face with men as God's ambassadors, and proclaim the gospel. This is not only the most natural and convenient method, but the most effective. It is the surest method of reaching the greatest number —the only method of reaching a whole community at the same time. Nothing can supersede this plan, and carry out the purposes that Jesus had in view when he instituted the ministry. People may be enlightened, and possibly some saved, by house to-house visitation, but to follow such a plan would never reach and save the world. House-to-house visitation is a good way to secure a personal hearing, and to direct attention of individuals and families to religion, but the preacher who expects to have a great awakening, and to bring multitudes to Christ, calls the people together and preaches. Such has been the method from the beginning, our Lord himself setting the example. As a result, multitudes of men of all ages and rank have been brought into the kingdom, subjected themselves to its laws, and make up what we call the church—"the light of the world, and the salt of the earth."

In carrying out the purposes of the gospel, the people co-operate with the ministry. Otherwise the ministry itself would be useless. The people are not sought and called in, and brought under solemn vows, merely to furnish the preachers a living while they are at work. The preacher who thus seeks the sheep for the sake of the fleece is unworthy of a place in the ministry. He is a hireling, pure and simple. The people are to be workers together with the ministry in advancing the spiritual and temporal interests of the church. They have a part in the management of its great concerns, and help, by their prayers, their advice, and their means, to make the church what it is—the only power for good in the world.

But the church's mission is not ended with the preaching of the Word and saving sinners. The work is to be fostered and extended. Every available agency must be laid hold of and employed to the best advantage. So the church has utilized the printing press, and scattered religious literature wherever possible to reach a human being. Education is accepted as an auxiliary, and schools and colleges are maintained in which morality and religion are constantly impressed on the minds and hearts of the young. Asylums and charitable institutions of various kinds are erected for the care of the unfortunate, and through these God's poor are cared for and made happy. The very existence of the church would be imperiled if these various agencies were not employed. In addition to all these, the church keeps a watchful eye over all her members. She guards them zealously, throwing around them her strong arms of protection, and makes them feel safe. She requires of them obedience to God, and to the rules enacted for their government. But these very requirements serve as a safeguard against temptation and the snares of the devil. All that we have and are as a people, we owe, under God, to good men who have worked through the authority of the church. The gospel could no more live and thrive and carry on its work without the divinely organized church than could civilization and good order and the protection of life and property be assured without the strong arm of civil government. Anarchy in the realm of the moral world would be as destructive to religion as anarchy in the civil world would be to the peace and safety of society. An anarchist in the one is no more to be tolerated than in the other. A disorganizer of the church, whatever may be his personal honesty and devotion, is an unconscious rebel against God. We endorse the words of Dr. Godbey, of the Arkansas Methodist, who says: "One who claims to be religious, but undervalues the churches, discounts the agency which has delivered all the religions influence upon his life that he has known anything about, and is like a child who despises the family in which he was born. One who claims to be engaged in the cause of Christ, but ignores the churches, is only a subject of ridicule or pity in the eyes of intelligent Christians."

After an outing of about ten days, Dr. F. N. Parker is again at his post, where he will remain during the Summer, save the time between Sundays he will spend at Seashore Camp Meeting.

THE BAPTIST DENOMINATION.

There is no such thing as the Baptist denomination. There are thousands of Baptist Churches, but these are separate organizations, wholly independent, and self-governing. Among many Baptists this is a matter of boast, believing, as they do, that they are following the original order of things.

But if we are to believe what some of their leaders say, this fact is proving to be a hindrance rather than a help in the great movements of the day, and some of them are asking: Is it not better to form a denomination? Possibly we may have misread, but we certainly gathered the idea from an article by Dr. J. B. Gambrell, in a recent issue of the Texas Baptist Standard, in which he quotes from the Central Baptist part of an editorial, which says, among other things, "An ambition has arisen among some of our brethren to have one organization which can be rightly and popularly known as the Baptist denomination." It does not appear that either Dr. Gambrell or the Central Baptist favors the idea, but others do, and the matter is of such importance as to command attention. Those who favor the move are impressed with the idea that consolidation, or unification of churches, would be helpful to the great benevolences now fostered, not by local churches, but by associations, conventions, etc.

No doubt the majority of Baptists believe in co-operation. They see the necessity for it, and have combined in associations and conventions for the purpose of advancing their missionary, educational, and Sunday-school enterprises; but it is a fact that their Boards and Secretaries, through whom the conventions do their work, meet with violent opposition. Hundreds of Baptist Churches hold aloof from the convention, and give the Boards no aid. This would not be the case if the churches were connectional instead of independent. So some Baptists argue.

We doubt whether the organization of the churches into one body is seriously contemplated. If so, it is confined to but few. It could not be done—at least, not in the South. The brethren hold too tenaciously to the tradition of the fathers. They would never surrender the land-marks. But we do truly sympathize with the earnest, wide-awake and zealous brethren who are trying to bring the indifferent churches into line, and secure their co-operation in the great work of the church. We fear Dr. Gambrell, who was appointed one of a committee to see what could be done to secure the assistance of non-affiliating churches, has found the work impossible. If it can be accomplished by organizing the churches into a denomination, we will bid God-speed to the undertaking.

We respectfully request secretaries, reporters and authors of long essays, and other heavy matter, to pay postage in full. Several times recently we have been compelled to pay double postage before we could get the matter out of the postoffice, and once the stuff was not worth the envelope in which it was enclosed. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

UNFAIR METHOD OF COMPARISON.

Now and then enthusiastic supporters of our foreign mission work seek to stimulate collections by comparing the success in the foreign field with that of the success in the home field. And it is generally done by giving the percentage of increase instead of the actual figures. This method of comparison is not fair, as anyone can see who will take pains to inquire. A net gain of ten members in a church in the foreign field may represent a per cent. of gain anywhere from fifty to two hundred and fifty, while a net gain of one hundred in some home churches would represent ten per cent., or less. A church in the foreign field that began the year with ten members, and shows twenty at the close, has gained one hundred per cent., while in the home field a church with one thousand members that has gained one hundred shows an increase of only ten per cent. A per cent. of gain in our church in the United States last year equal to the per cent. of gain in our foreign missions, would have swelled our membership to nearly 1,700,000. As a matter of fact, both fields yielded an increase of just 34,721—a gain of about two and one half per cent. Our four leading foreign fields — Brazil, China, Mexico, and Japan — began the year with 7,421 members, and closed with 8,228—a net gain of 807, or something over 10 per cent.

The above figures, if correct, indicate that, though the rate per cent. of increase in the foreign fields which we have named was four times as large as in the home field, the actual increase in the home field was little more than forty times as great as it was in the foreign fields. Comparisons do not always compare.

DEATH OF DR. W. C. JOHNSON.

Dr. William C. Johnson, one of the oldest members of the Memphis Conference, and widely known throughout the church, died at his home near Memphis on Saturday, June 14. No notice of any illness had been given, though he had been feeble for many years, and we presume his death was sudden. For a long time he had been the Memphis Conference correspondent of the Christian Advocate, Nashville. He kept up this correspondence to the last, his weekly letter appearing in the Advocate, of June 12. He was a great and good man, a fine scholar, a fine writer, and an excellent preacher, his sermons, in his active days, being, when delivered, ready for the press. He was conscientious and painstaking in all his work, ready for any business, and as a Conference secretary, hardly had an equal. He was for many years editor of the Western Methodist at Memphis, and in this capacity he was best known to the church at large. He excelled in his knowledge of church law, and his ability and tact to apply it at the right time and place.

It was the privilege of this writer, when yet a boy, to know Dr. Johnson. He helped to guide our course when but a fledgeling in the ministry. We venerated him then, and as we grew in years and experience, we learned to love him. Twice during an acquaintance of more than forty years there arose difference of opinion between us, but our differences never separated and estranged us. Through all this long period we esteemed him the high-toned gentleman and Christian that he was. We know nothing of the particulars of his last illness, but we feel assured that his end was peace, and that he has entered upon his great reward, and enjoys the smile of his Lord. We mingle our tears with the bereaved family, but rejoice with them in the hope of seeing the loved one again.

A Methodist Hospital for Mississippi.

The Woman's Home Mission Society of the North Mississippi Conference has determined to establish a hospital. The need of such an institution is evident, and we undertake the enterprise, believing that in the providence of God the time for it has come, and believing that the hearts of our people will respond to the call. The hospital will be located within the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference, but a central, accessible location will be chosen. It will be free to all, with pay-wards attached. We ask the people of Mississippi, especially the Methodists, to give the money to carry forward this enterprise.

Mrs. Ella T. Phillips, of Winona, treasurer of the society, is authorized to receive money and subscriptions. Inquiries should be addressed to the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Somerville, Greenville.

PERSONAL.

Rev. W. M. McIntosh has been engaged for several days with Rev. R. D. Norsworthy in a meeting at Ellisville, Miss. Rev. J. T. Norsworthy led the singing.

Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan informs us that the Sardis District Conference, to be held at Popes, will embrace July 9-11 — not July 2-4, as was printed in our issue of June 5. The brethren will please take notice.

Rev. H. C. Edmondson, writing from Chester, Miss., says, "Please hold up notice of South Union Camp Meeting till you hear further." We did not receive this request until the ADVOCATE containing notice was printed and mailed.

The Mansfield Female College commencement exercises were held last week. Rev. J. M. Henry, presiding elder of the Monroe district, preached the annual sermon, and Dr. W. T. Bolling delivered the baccalaureate address.

Brother J. R. Bingham, of Carrollton, Miss., in a private note, says: "Bishop Candler will hold the Winona District Conference at Carrollton, June 26-29. We are praying for a great meeting." We thank Brother Bingham for an invitation to attend.

Dr. H. M. DuBose delivered the annual address to the graduating class of Whitworth College at the recent commencement. It goes without saying that his hearers were delighted. He is one of the most brilliant and entertaining speakers in our church.

Rev. Thos. Carter, of Tulane University, started on Monday last to New York. He goes on a mission which, when accomplished, will make two hearts happy. As far as we know, his own will remain untouched, save as he will be moved by the happiness of others.

Dr. S. S. Keener, vice-president of the Board of Trustees of Centenary College, authorizes us to announce that the Executive Committee has elected Rev. H. B. Carre to the presidency of the college, in place of Dr. I. W. Cooper, resigned. Brother Carre has accepted the position.

Mrs. L. J. Mosley, mother-in-law of Rev. J. R. D. King, of Tunica, Miss., and daughter of Mrs. Sallie Barnes, of Cooksville, Miss., died, June 2, at her granddaughter's, Mrs. Sallie King Arnold, of Bellefountaine, Miss., and was buried in North Union Graveyard, near Bellefountaine, on the third instant.

At the meeting of the Book Committee in Nashville, on the eleventh, the Rev. S. M. Godbey, of the Southwest Missouri Conference, and preacher-in-charge of Elwood circuit, was elected assistant editor of the Christian Advocate, our connectional organ. He is a brother-in-law of the editor, Dr. G. B. Winton.

Dr. R. J. Bigham entered last week upon his duties as Book Agent. The business will be new to him, but he will readily grasp the situation, and quickly master the details of the office. We predict for him a successful career. He is already well known to the church, having served as Secretary of the Board of Education.

Dr. A. F. Watkins, president of Whitworth College, and Rev. M. L. Barton, vice-president, have resigned. The trustees immediately elected Dr. I. W. Cooper, president, and Rev. H. G. Hawkins, vice-president. This news, which we find in the dispatches of the eleventh instant, is quite surprising. We had no intimation of anything of the kind.

Bishop Galloway will sail from Vancouver, July 28, for Japan, on the "Empress of India." He will leave Jackson, Miss., on July 15. Until that date he will be constantly engaged filling appointments, and getting ready for a long absence from home. No further engagements for preaching, addresses, etc., can be made. We hope the friends of the Bishop will bear this in mind, and make no further requests for service.

Draughon's Business College.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found an advertisement of Draughon's Practical Business Colleges. Prof. Draughon is proprietor of eight business colleges, located at Nashville, Atlanta, St. Louis, Montgomery, Shreveport, Ft. Worth, Galveston, and Little Rock. These colleges give superior course of instruction, and have special facilities for securing positions. They are now offering special Summer rates to all who enter soon. For catalogue, address Draughon's Business Colleges, either place.

North Mississippi Conference Notes.

One-half of the Conference year has passed, and it is an appropriate time to consider what we have done and what remains to be done.

As to my own work I am glad to be able to report progress. The circulation of the books and papers is quite gratifying. Specially have our song books been in demand; and hundreds of the Standard Hymn Books and Young People's Hymnals should be put into use during the protracted-meeting season.

I have recently attended revival meetings at Sardis, Tohula and Durant, where the preachers were assisted by fellow-pastors. This is as it should be in most places. There may not be the great crowds and parade that the professional evangelist, with his tent and singers, may create, but there is apt to be more abiding results for good to the church.

It was my pleasure last week to attend the Woman's Foreign Missionary Conference at Grenada, and this week the Woman's Home Mission Conference at Pickens. The good sisters accorded to myself and other visiting preachers all courtesies that could be asked, and we are glad of any opportunity at any time to "help those women that labor with us in the gospel." It is inspiring to be in their meetings, to behold their order and their zeal for the work in which they are engaged. May the Lord multiply their numbers more and more, and give them abundant success in both departments of the work.

Good reports are coming to us of Children's Day observances in many places. We hope for good reports from every pastoral charge.

The Bible Teachers' Study Circle work has progressed very well, but there remains much to be done in order to the best results. There are many Sunday-schools that have not yet commenced with it. They should begin soon. At least every pastor and superintendent should procure and read the books. Will each pastor, who has not already done so, try to send me right soon an order for himself and each superintendent in his charge?

I am glad to give notice that the American Bible Society has generously made a grant of Bibles to our Sunday-school work, and placed the books in my hands for use. These are to be furnished to our schools and to individual scholars therein at actual cost. Bibles at 15, 20, 25, 30 and 35 cents each for the purposes named, and Testaments at 5, 10, and 15 cents. Help us to supply our Sunday-schools and Sunday-school pupils with the Word.

Owing to the fact that eight District Conferences will be held within two weeks' time, I shall be deprived of the opportunity to attend most of them. This I regret, but can not help it. I hope, however, that my enforced absence from the meetings will not prevent brethren from sending orders for books and remitting on accounts due.

Every preacher should get, as early as convenient, Kern's "The Way of The Preacher," $1.25; and Tillet's "Personal Salvation," $1.50. The usual discount given.

Cancer of Fifteen Years' Standing Absorbed by Soothing, Balmy Oils

RURAL ROUTE NO. 3.
DALLAS, TEXAS, March 20, 1902.

Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Dallas, Texas:

DEAR SIRS—I wish to say to you, for the information of all cancerous sufferers, that I had something on the right side of my face, close to my right eye, in the form and appearance of a cancer. It made its appearance some fifteen years ago. I got several physicians to examine it, and they all advised me to just let it alone, and not to apply anything whatever to it. But it kept spreading and itching, and I finally concluded to try your remedy, and I am proud to inform you and all others interested, that your remedy has so completely removed the cancer that there is scarcely a mark of its existence left. I am yours, with all possible gratitude.

REV. ELI RATTLIFF.

Many old men and women bless Dr. D. M. Bye for the great good done them with the Combination Oil Cure, for cancers and other malignant diseases. Thousands have been cured within the last few years, many seventy to one hundred years old. Do not submit to the knife, the burning plaster or injection. The Oils are mild and safe and the results are certain. Illustrated books and papers will be sent to those interested. Call on or address DR. D. M. BYE CO. 171 Main street, Dallas, Tex. P. O Box 462. (The originator of the Oil Cure.)

Notices.

To the Preachers of the Seashore District—

DEAR BRETHREN: For the purpose of advancing the missionary interests, and to help bring the assessments up and quicken our church to greater activity in the Seashore district, it is divided into the following sections, with a chairman for each, who will give assistance in planning raillee in each charge and see that literature is distributed. Let the chairmen see to it that each pastoral charge pays in full all claims. Let your reports be made to Rev. W. M Sullivan, Hattiesburg, Miss., who is designated secretary.

Section II.—Mt Olive, Mt. Carmel, Williamsburg; Rev. B. S. Rayner, chairman.

Section VI.—Mississippi City, Biloxi, Ocean Springs, and S. and Moss Point; Rev. J. G. Galloway, chairman.

Please make monthly reports to secretary. J. M. MORSE, P. E.

To the Presiding Elders of the North Mississippi Conference:

The Board of Missions request that a man be appointed to represent the cause of missions, and that special attention be given this work at each of their District Conferences.

The Board of Missions are anxious to pay the assessments for both foreign and domestic missions. By a faithful and persistent effort this can be done. W. S. LAGRONE.

Corinth District Epworth League Institute.

On May 26 and 27, 1902, there was held at Corinth, Miss., what promises to be a very successful District Epworth League Institute.

Rev. W. M. Young presided, and Miss Sally H. Kilpatrick was the secretary. The attendance was only fairly good. The subjects were well chosen by Miss Sally H. Kilpatrick, and ably discussed by all who took a part in the programme. There were representatives present from points in the district where Leagues were organized for the first time only a few weeks since, and others returned home to organize right away.

Before the Institute adjourned the District Epworth League was organized, and the following officers were elected: President, M. T. Bynum, Corinth; first vice-president, Miss May Bell Williams, Inka; second vice-president, Miss Annie Kimmons, Kossuth; third vice-president, Miss Willie A. Young, Booneville; secretary and treasurer, Miss Sally H. Kilpatrick, Corinth.

A committee, appointed to do so, drafted the Constitution and By-Laws for the District League, to be ratified at the first meeting, which will be held in connection with the District Conference some time this Summer.

By request, Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Tupelo, Miss., was present and took an active part in the proceedings. He has a fine store of League knowledge, and his presence and excellent suggestions were encouraging and helpful. He preached a powerful sermon at eleven o'clock, the second day, which will be helpful and remembered by the people for days to come.

Rev. B. P. Jaco, of Booneville, Miss., preached a most appropriate and thoughtful sermon at eleven o'clock, the first day, to the delight of all who heard him.

The Constitution provides for two delegates from each local League in the district to represent said local League in the annual meetings of the District League. The district officers are well up and enthusiastic in League work, and will, no doubt, soon work up one of the largest and livest District Leagues in the State.

The Institute meeting was timely and a very pleasant and profitable occasion. It is only to be regretted that more of our Leaguers were not present to lend their aid and catch the fire and enthusiasm of the meeting. LEONARD W. CAIN.

GRIM FIGURES PROVE the death-rate among children in Summer, an anxious time for mothers because bowel trouble are rampant. What a mercy it is that we have Perry Davis' Painkiller to save our little ones.

Jackson District Conference.

The Jackson District Conference will convene in the town of Flora, Wednesday, July 2 The Conference will be called to order at 4 P. M. for organization.

Friday of the session will be given to the discussion of missions. Brethren who participated in the County Institutes will hold themselves in readiness for the day. Reports on collections for missions will be called.

We will be glad for all the brethren to remain over Sunday.

All trains coming into Jackson, except the local passenger from the North on the I. C. R. R., arrive in time to make connection with the 3 P. M over the Y. and M. V. for Flora.

Let prayer be made by all that this may be a great spiritual feast to all.

Money Made in a Day.

I have never made less than nine dollars a day selling Martha Baird Flavoring Creams. These creams are used to flavor and color ice creams, custards, pies, desserts, icings, candies, etc. The coloring is strictly vegetable. These flavoring creams are made from the purest concentrates, and are true to the fruits which they represent. I sell from one to ten different flavors at every house, hotel, boarding-house, drug store, etc. With a little cake icing I demonstrate the mixing, which takes less than a minute. Wherever once introduced, you gain a permanent customer. Bakers claim one pound will go as far as a gallon of the liquid extract. Will keep perfectly pure for years. This is not a powder, but is put up in the form of a very thick cream. Mrs. Martha Baird, Dept. 29, 107 Beatty St., Pittsburg, Pa., will mail you a sample and particulars free. She guarantees satisfaction, or money refunded. This is how I first got my start. E. A. C.

31ST ANNUAL CAMP MEETING

Seashore Camp Grounds.

WILL OPEN (D. V.)

On Wednesday, July 9, next, and Continue for 8 or 10 Days.

The Grounds are opened April 1, and closed Nov. 1, for occupying cottages and reception of visitors. Modern and ample accommodations have been provided. The wharves and bath houses which were destroyed by last Summer's storms are being rebuilt, and other improvements made for the comfort and convenience of the large crowds which annually visit this refreshing and delightfully cool and bracing place of rest, free from malaria and contagious diseases.

The sea bathing is unsurpassed by any resort on the Mississippi Sound, while the supply of pure, sparkling drinking water is furnished by one of the finest of artesian wells, whose waters possess rare virtues.

The exhilarating sea breezes refresh the fatigued, and act as a tonic to the debilitated visitors from our smoke-enveloped and dust-stifling cities and towns. Boats for sailing and fishing always on hand. The drives along the seashore present magnificent views, and are over ten miles in length. Visitors are not expected to arrive or depart on the Sabbath day.

The L. and N. R. R. Company will place on sale the reduced rate of fare during the season, from all points on their lines, and secure a corresponding rate from all connecting lines. Tickets will be placed on sale July 5 to 17, inclusive, and be good to return on until Aug 31. Two daily mail trains stop at the Camp Grounds, besides the accommodation and excursion trains, during the entire Summer season. A fine hotel with a frontage of 175 feet, equipped with electric lights and all modern conveniences, has been erected.

All itinerant preachers of the Southern Methodist Church will be admitted into the grounds and provided with lodging accommodations in Wesley Hall free of charge.

The fourth Annual Tri State Epworth League Conference will be held on the Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 23, and continuing through Sunday, August 3. Reduced rates have also been obtained from the Louisville and Nashville railroad and connecting lines to this Conference. Tickets will be on sale from Monday, July 21, to Saturday, August 2, good to return until August 31. These Epworth League Conferences are growing in interest every year. All Leaguers and those interested in this work are earnestly invited to be present at the next Conference, which will no doubt be largely attended.

The usual entrance fee will be in force this season. No charge will be exacted for entrance on the Sunday of the Camp Meeting. A cordial invitation is extended to all who desire to attend the Camp Meeting and spend a while on the Camp Ground.

Persons wishing to secure accommodations before and during Camp Meeting, or rent cottages for the season, will please communicate with Rev. J. L. Jordan, Keeper Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or any of the following officers:

J. B. LEFTWICH, President, Mobile, Ala.
DR. E. L McGEHEE, Vice-President, New Orleans, La.
W. B. THOMSON, Treasurer, New Orleans, La.
S. HAMEYER, Financial Secretary, New Orleans, La.

The Missionary and the Tiger.

The missionary has many curious and interesting experiences, but some of them are a decidedly dangerous kind. Dr. Chamberlain, in his entertaining story of "The Cobra's Den," tells of an experience which the reader will scarcely envy. He says:

It was just one hour before sundown of a cloudy, drizzly afternoon. I had my double umbrella, black inside and white outside, for fending off both sun and rain, but I had closed it over my hand, without clasping it, to go through a narrow opening in the bushes. I had crossed a little open grass plot of a few rods, and was just entering a narrow footpath through the mountain jungle, that would take me down to the east foot of the mountain, where I was to meet my pony.

Suddenly a spotted tiger sprang into the path between the bushes, and disputed the passage. I saw at once what he wanted; only great hunger impels these tigers to come out during the day; he had eaten no breakfast, and wanted missionary meat for supper. I did not wish him to have it; besides I had an appointment for that evening with the people of three villages, and wished to keep it. He stood in the only path through that dense mountain jungle glaring at me. I eyed him equally intently, and, gaining his eye, held it while I formed my plan.

It is always best, if a scrimmage is to take place, to be the attacking party. My old grandmother used to teach me that everything would come in use within seven years, if you only kept it. When I was a boy I had gone out among an Indian tribe in Michigan, and learned their warwhoop. I had kept it for thrice seven years, but it proved trebly serviceable then. When my plan of attack was formed, springing forward toward the tiger, I raised this warwhoop, and at the same time suddenly opened my double umbrella.

What it was that could so suddenly change a perpendicular dark figure into a circular white object, and at the same time emit such an unearthly yell, the tiger did not know. He stood his ground, however, until I dashed forward, and, suddenly shutting my umbrella, raised it to strike him over the head. It seemed instantly to occur to him that I was the most dangerous animal of the two, and that one of us had better run; as I did not, he did. Springing aside, over a bush, into the open ground, he made for the crest of the hill which I had just passed. The crest consisted of granite slabs and masses, thrown up perpendicularly by some convulsion of nature. From a crevice of these there had grown a banyan tree, whose branches spread out over their tops. Between the leaves and rocks, in one place I could see the sky in a circle as large as a bicycle wheel.

For this the tiger made. His spring was the neatest specimen of animal motion I had ever seen. His forepaws were stretched straightout, and he had his nose between them. His hind feet were stretched equally straight, and between them his tail. Straight as an arrow he went through that opening. I knew that about twenty feet down on the other side he would strike a grassy ground, and that that slope led down to a little stream, which my path again crossed less than a quarter of a mile below. Wishing to make the subjugation complete, I scrambled up to this open place, and, looking through the leaves at the side of the opening, I saw the tiger trotting down the slope, but looking around every now and then, evidently wondering whether he had done a wise thing in running away.

Putting my head, with its big, white sun-hat into the opening, I once more raised the warwhoop. Down he dashed again with impetuosity. Withdrawing my head until he slackened his pace I repeated the operation, and on he dashed, and so continued, until I had seen him cross the stream, and go up into the woods on the opposite side of the valley. Then, feeling sure I would see no more of him that day, I turned and wended my way down three miles to the foot of the hill, mounted my pony, and kept my appointment.

I am thankful to say that such incidents are not common in our preaching tours. I have never known of a missionary being seriously injured by ravenous beasts or venomous reptiles. But such an incident forcibly reminds us of the protection promised us in the last few verses of the Gospels of Matthew and Mark, in connection with the giving of the great commission, and that promise is wonderfully fulfilled.

The Worm That Went to Sleep.

One day, when Manette was visiting her grandpa, she found a great worm lying in the path. It was as long as her grandpa's forefinger, and was as big round as his thumb. It was a light green color, with queer, bright-colored knobs or bumps all over it. It was so ugly that Manette was afraid of it; but her grandpa lifted it between two sticks and put it into a pasteboard box, with a piece of glass for cover. He then carried it into an upper room which was not much used. His little granddaughter wondered and asked questions.

"The worm is sleepy, and so I have made it a bed, and by and by it will make itself a blanket," grandpa said.

"Oh, grandpa! can it really? How can a worm make a blanket?"

"It weaves it, dearie, something as a spider weaves its web. It will take a good while; you must watch and be patient."

Manette went every day to look at the worm, and after what seemed to her a long time, one day she saw some fine threads from the form to the glass. Every day there were more threads, until at last Manette could not see the worm at all.

"He has covered himself all up, grandpa. Is the blanket finished now?" she asked.

"Yes, and now the worm will sleep all Winter, and when he wakes in the Spring I don't believe you will recognize him."

When Manette's visit was over, her grandpa gave her the box, carefully done up in paper, and told her to lift the cover off when she reached home. So she did, and found the worm snugly wrapped up in its odd bed-clothes fastened tight to the glass. Her Mama leaned the glass against the wall above the mantel in the library, and there it stayed all Winter, and Manette often forgot all about it.

But one day in the early Spring a very wonderful thing happened. Manette was playing in the yard when her Mama called her. She ran into the library, and there on the edge of the mantel was the most beautiful, gorgeous golden yellow butterfly!

"Oh, Mama," she whispered, "did it fly through the window, do you think?"

"No, dear; it crept out of its Winter blanket."

And then her Mama showed her the cocoon, as she called the blanket which the worm had made. There was a hole at one end, and out of that the ugly green worm, now changed into a fairy-like insect, had crept to spend its second Summer floating in the air and sipping sweets from flowers.

"It's just as grandpa told me," Manette said. "I never would have known it."—Child Garden.

Making Fire.

We have all read of savages making fire by rubbing sticks together. They have several ways of doing it, or, rather, different savages have different ways. One of the simplest is to rub one stick in a groove in another, rubbing briskly and bearing on hard. There is a bit of soft pine board that I tried the experiment with the other day, writes George B. Griffith, in the Michigan Advocate. That is it. "See!" said I to my students in child-study, "when I plow this stick up and down in the groove, the fine wood that gathers at the bottom begins to smoke a little and turn black. By working long enough and fast enough I should set the dust on fire, but it is too tiresome when a match will do as well, and one can buy a whole bunch of matches for a penny. We get our fire by rubbing, too; only we use something that kindles quicker than wood, so that a single scratch on some rough surface develops heat enough to light it."

"What is it?" asked one of our young students.

"Phosphorous," I answer. "I have some of it in this bottle. You rub this metal button, Tommy, while I take some of it out on the point of my knife. Now touch it with the button. See! It is hot enough to set the phosphorous afire. We might kindle our fires this way, but we find it more convenient to put the phosphorous on the end of a stick and mix it with something to keep it from lighting too easily. Then all we have to do is to rub the phosphorous point against anything rough, the friction heats it, it takes fire, and our light is ready."

A match is a small thing, but you couldn't believe the American people paid out more than $27,000,000 for matches last year, would you? It looks big, but it is a fact.

Did you ever hear of the traveler who was stopped by some barbarous people who knew nothing of matches? They would not let him go through their country, and, while they were debating whether to kill him or send him back, he grew tired of waiting and thought he would take a smoke. So he filled his pipe, and taking a match from his pocket struck it against his boot, lighted his pipe, and thought no more about it. To his surprise the people who were watching him suddenly ran off, and directly there was a great commotion in the village. After a while the chief came back very humbly, bringing him loads of presents, and begged him to go his way in peace. What was the reason? They had seen him draw fire from his foot, as they thought, and were afraid that such a conjurer might burn them all up if they offended him. That was a lucky match for the traveler.

The first lucifer match was made in 1789.—Michigan Advocate.

An Irreligious Pastor.

On a tour of President McKinley in the South, Mr. Andrew Carnegie was a member of the party. On one occasion he accompanied the President and some others to service in a colored church in Thomasville, Ga.

It is said that whenever a bill came in the services, the deacons took up a collection, but, through hospitable motives, avoided passing the box to the white visitors. The old pastor arose at last and preached a sermon that was at the same time eloquent, earnest and ridiculous, preaching right at the white folks, and his description of the poverty of the church was so impressive that when the deacons passed the contribution boxes around for the third time, Mr. Carnegie intercepted one and dropped a fifty-dollar bill into the box.

The old preacher counted their contents. When he had finished he placed a handful of small change on one side and a crisp greenback on the other. Clearing his throat, he said:

"Breddern, we has been greatly blessed by dis yer contebution. We has heah fo' dollahs an' fo'ty cents dat is good; an' if de fifty-dollah bill put in by de white genuman wid de gray whiskers is also good, we is blessed a whole lot moah," and he looked suspiciously at the giver of libraries and campaign funds.—Des Moines Leader.

We must go in contemplation out of life ere we can see how its troubles subside and are lost, like evanescent waves, in the deeps of eternity and the immensity of God.—James Martineau.

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

A Model Household.

I do not wonder that God made implicit obedience the foundation law of his creation. Where this rule perfectly obtains, there can be no disorder. All things working according to the divine will must exhibit only grace and beauty.

In a charming circle amid the Alleghany hills, where it is my privilege to spend the Autumn months, I have seen the principle of filial obedience most fully developed. It is a rare experience in these modern times, when parental authority is so generally ignored or resisted, and the children are left to their own evil inclinations or careless propensities.

There is but one all-powerful motor to the smoothly running machinery in this Pennsylvania home. The love of God prevails. Father and mother are actuated by this holy influence, and the young people catch the heavenly grace and are happy to be governed by it.

I hear no word of objection to any request or command. Each child is ready on the instant to execute whatever the parents may ask. I see no clouded brow, no pouting lip—signs that, alas! are but too common in many ill-regulated families. It is blessed to note the brightness in face and manner, and the sweet accord between parents and children.

Each morning brings a sunshine that is unobscured. Each mealtime seems an "agape" or love-feast, so happy is the communion and fellowship around the common board. There is nothing stern nor arbitrary in the parental rule. Firmness, combined with gentleness, is the perfection of family government, and insures the comfort and joy of all concerned.

For those to whom God has committed the treasure of immortal souls I write this true sketch. If there were more families like this on earth, there would be more families in heaven.—Christian Intelligencer.

MRS. EUGENIA FAIRFIELD, wife of George W. Fairfield, and daughter of John and Lou Hoover, was born July 4, 1865; was married to G. W. Fairfield, Oct. 14, 1886, at Hattiesburg, and died at Gulfport, May 24, 1902. Sister Fairfield gave her heart to God and her life to the church when in her seventeenth year. Her young life was sprightly and hopeful. As a child, she was obedient, dutiful, and lovable, and ever sought to be a blessing and comfort to her parents. How tenderly the mother clung to her in her last illness, feeling that she was a staff upon whom she could lean. As a wife, she was devoted, tender, thoughtful, lavishing the wealth of her affections upon him to whom she had given her heart in the days of her youth. As a friend and neighbor, she was so kind and considerate. The morning she died one had the children to gather some vegetables and carry them to a neighbor. Only one child was born to them, which died in infancy. From that day to her death she had been a great sufferer, yet she was patient, and bore her suffering with Christian fortitude, and did the best she could. She was not afraid to die; said she would like to live for her loved ones, but if it was the Lord's will, she was ready to go. She has gone to the fair fields of Eden to be happy forever. It was most touching at the grave to see the grief of the old colored servant, with his eyes streaming with tears. He said, "Good-bye, Mrs. Fairfield; you have been my best friend, and never spoke cross to me once." May God bless the bereaved and comfort them in their distress! W. D. DOMINICK.

OWEN, infant son of John and Mattie Griffeth, was born Feb. 16, 1901, and died May 24, 1902. Sadness fills the hearts of these parents, for little Owen was the joy of the household and the bright morning star of the home. The dealings of Providence to us are truly dark, this being the fourth child these parents have lost (all they had), all of whom have died in infancy. Just as this sweet boy had entwined himself around the hearts of his parents he was called away to be with the angels. It is comforting to these bereaved ones to know that dear little Owen now enjoys the blessings of Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." This little flower only budded to bloom again in a brighter clime. He was a bright and beautiful boy. God has called him to that world where no blight shall mar his beauty, nor sorrow dim his joy. "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." IRVIN MILLER, P. C.

NANCY ISABELLA SIMMONS, daughter of Dr. W. H. and S. J. Barnes, was born in Nashoba county, Miss., Aug. 21, 1872; converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, when eleven years old, at High Hill, Scott county, Miss., under the ministry of Rev. I. L. Peebles; married John Thomas Simmons, Jan. 1, 1888, in Scott county, Miss., and departed this life at her father's home in Homewood, Scott county, Miss., May 29, 1902, in the thirtieth year of her age. She leaves a husband, two precious little daughters, father, mother, and many relatives and friends, to mourn her departure. She was kind to every person a loving wife, mother, obedient daughter, and kind, loving sister; was never known to speak evil of any person; was known only to be loved as a genuine Christian woman. She preached by her daily walk with Christ. She is gone from us now, but her example will reproach to us as we walk and are sad, while she basks in the smiles of her Savior. We are on this side of the river, but we will cross by and by, there to rejoin her and all our loved ones. She was buried in Homewood Cemetery, May 31, 1902 at 11 A. M., by the writer. Rest, dear one, until resurrection morn; then we will meet thee again in holy triumph.

R. A. SIBLEY, SR.

MRS. NETTIE STAINBACK, the subject of this memoir, went home to heaven from her mother's home, Minter City, Miss., on the night of May 13, 1902, after suffering unrelenting agonies for several months with cancer of the tongue. She was of an excellent family of Christian people, and herself one of the finest Christian characters this writer ever knew; Christ incarnate. She leaves four bright children, two brothers, a sister and mother, besides a host of admiring friends, to mourn her sad departure. But hope is predominant, as she said at the last moment, "The boatman has come; I am going home," and wished all could go with her. Her father, husband and eldest son preceded her. She was tenderly placed in the family cemetery to await the resurrection of the just. May divine grace, which sustained her in life and death, be the strength of the bereaved!

A tribute from her pastor,

W. L. ANDERSON.

PINCKNEY JOHN SWANN, youngest son of Rev. P. A. and Mrs. Cordelia Swann, was born Sept. 15, 1896, and was baptized by Rev. V. D. Skipper, presiding elder, on April 30, 1897, and died after but a few short hours' sickness on Sept. 8, 1901. Death came so sudden it was the more shocking, and was a crushing blow to loving hearts which are bowed in humble submission and resignation to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

JOHN G. SLOANE.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

In looking at the stars through a great telescope, it is necessary, first, to put out every light until you are left in total darkness. Every light sets the air in motion, and disturbs the focus, and blurs the vision of the stars. How often our vision of God is blurred and dimmed by the flames of self-consciousness and sordidness that float around us! How many times we have put out the light of self-seeking, earthly ambition and false pride of position, in order to look upward, and in the clear, still air to know whither God's lights are leading us, and what God will have us to do!—Rev. W. H. Faunce.

The manna was so pure and delicate that it could not bear contact with earth. It fell upon the dew, and had to be gathered ere the sun was up. Each one, therefore, had to rise early and seek his daily portion. So it is with the people of God now. The heavenly manna must be gathered fresh every morning. Yesterday's manna will not do for to-day, or to-day's for to-morrow. We must feed upon Christ every day with fresh energy of the spirit, else we shall cease to grow. Moreover, we must make Christ our primary object. We must seek him "early." Selected.

MISS ROSE OWENS,

No. 720 Seventeenth St., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Miss Rose Owens.

"If every suffering woman has the same experience with Wine of Cardui that I had, your medicine will be most popular. About a year ago I began to have a worn out tired feeling with lassitude, pains in the back and head which kept increasing every month. I felt that I needed something, but to get the right medicine was the trouble. I finally decided on your Wine of Cardui and only needed to take three bottles when I was fully recovered."

WHEN Miss Rose Owens, who has a responsible position in the Government service at Washington, D. C., decided to try Wine of Cardui, she made a wise choice. Over a million women have been relieved of female weakness by this same Wine of Cardui. It is not a strong medicine but may be taken every day in the year by any woman with benefit. It does not force results, but corrects derangements of the menstrual organs. It strengthens the nervous system, gives tone to the bodily functions, acts directly on the genital organs, and is the finest tonic for women known to the science of medicine.

If you are a suffering woman we would say to you that Wine of Cardui seldom fails to completely cure any case of female ills. We say emphatically, it never fails to benefit. Every day hundreds of sufferers are writing to our Ladies' Advisory Department. The letters are opened by persons competent to give advice. Mrs. Jones was cured by following the advice which was freely given her by the Ladies' Advisory Department. Miss Owens was cured without advice by just buying a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from her druggist and taking this great medicine in the privacy of her home. No doctor's examination, treatment or advice is necessary. You have read what these two cured women have written. Is this not enough to lead you to determine to be rid of suffering?

August 13, 1900, Mrs. W. H. Jones, of Cameron, Mo., writes:

"I suffered terribly at monthly periods for three years. I would sometimes go for seven months with no flow at all. Now I have my health back again and am expecting to be confined in January. I cannot praise your medicine enough."

WINE of CARDUI

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant-morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

Patent Thumb Index, 35 cents extra.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I have been taking R.I.P.A.N.S Tabules. They aid digestion, regulate the bowels and are the best thing I know of after a night's sport. A great many golfers are using them.

At druggists.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

Ladies, for natural and thorough organic regulation take Lemon Elixir.
50 cents and $1.00 a bottle at druggists.

Gratitude.

Dr. H. Mozley—Dear Sir: Since using your Lemon Elixir I have never had another attack of those fearful sick headaches, and thank God that I have at last found a medicine that will cure those awful spells.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

Notice.

To the Members of the Examining Committees and the Undergraduates of the Mississippi Conference, and Others Interested—

DEAR BRETHREN: For several reasons the committee composed of the Rev. Dr. W. L. C. Hunniontt, the Rev. L. Carley and T. L. Mellen, appointed by the various Examining Committees at the last session of our Annual Conference, deem it advisable to postpone the holding of the "Normal Institute" till next year, when the new committees to be appointed at the next session of our Conference can organize and take such steps as are authorized by the recent action of the General Conference. Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN.

Rev. R. M Standifer, of the North Mississippi Conference, will please take due notice hereby, and govern himself accordingly.

A Change of Date.

The Arcadia District Epworth League Conference, which was to have been held at Arizona, June 25-29, has been postponed till later in the Summer.

H. R. SINGLETON.

Important Notice.

CHANGE OF TIME.

For reasons which are satisfactory, the time for the Crowley District Conference has been postponed one week. The place is Abbeville; the time July 8.

C. W. CARTER, P. E.

Summer Tourist Tickets

To all Summer resorts reached by the Queen and Crescent Route will be sold, commencing June 1, at low rates for the round trip, and carrying return limit of Sept. 30, 1902.

The Summer schedules are nearly all now in operation, a few additional facilities to be added by connecting lines on June 1 and June 8, when Summer travel will be in full swing.

The Asheville service, including sleeper from Birmingham, which is attached to train leaving New Orleans at 7:30 P. M., will run daily, commencing June 8.

The dining-car service of the Queen and Crescent Route is maintaining its reputation for excellence, and no effort is spared to make the Summer trip via this splendidly equipped line a thoroughly enjoyable journey.

Brook Trout Fishing.

The trout fishing in the stocked streams of the Sapphire Country of North Carolina is at its best.

The splendid new hotels of the Toxaway Company afford accommodations which are thoroughly up to date.

Summer tourist tickets to Brevard and Toxaway, N. C., on sale at all principal stations on the Queen and Crescent System.

If the label on your paper is wrong let us know, and we will correct. If it is right, and shows that you owe us, please send the amount due. We need the money.

Very many of our subscribers are behind in payment, and the time of many more is just expiring. Please send what is due. If you can not send the whole, send part. We need the money. Please do not wait another week!

Knoxville Summer School.

All persons interested in the advancement of educational matters must be interested in the great Summer School at Knoxville, Tenn.

The Queen and Crescent Route, desiring to do all in its power to further the project, as well as to give the people along its lines an opportunity to visit the resort region of Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia at very low cost, announces rate of one fare for the round trip for tickets to be sold June 16, 17, 18, 28, 29 and 30, and July 11, 12 and 13, with return limit of Aug. 15, 1902, which may be extended to include Sept. 30, 1902, by depositing the tickets with the Joint Agent, No. 600 Gay street, Knoxville, Tenn., on or before Aug. 15, 1902.

This is the most liberal excursion arrangement ever offered to the people of this section to visit the many attractive mountain resorts referred to, and at the same time get the advantage of this great educational movement.

Glances at the World.

As a matter of information we here present the main features of the Senate bill designed for the government of the Philippines. We quote from the Chicago Inter-Ocean: "The bill vests the executive and legislative authority for the islands in the present commissioners and their successors. It vests the judicial authority in the insular Supreme Court. Both the commissioners and the Supreme Justices are to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The Philippine Legislature, or commission, is given authority to construct public works, to grant franchises for adequate compensation to public-service corporations and to regulate their charges, to sell public lands and to make rules for the quieting of land titles, to permit municipalities to issue bonds for public improvements, and to establish a mint and issue a silver dollar and minor coins. Timber lands, except for mill sites, are not to be sold or leased, but the commission may issue licenses to cut timber. The wise policy has been adopted of keeping for the people the ownership of the Philippine forests. Nor are mineral lands to be sold except to those who actually discover and work mines. It will not be possible for speculators to buy up in the Philippines vast tracts of either forest or mineral lands. The commission is also authorized to acquire by purchase or condemnation what are known as 'the friars' estates,' and to divide and sell them to the natives, giving preference to actual occupants. The tenants of the friars will thus be converted into proprietors. It is believed that the breaking up of their estates will go far to settle the vexed 'friar question.'"

The Presbyterian, writing of the British triumph over the Boers in South Africa, speaks in high terms of the treatment accorded the fallen foe, and especially the venerable President, Paul Krueger, who, old and decrepit, "passes out of power a broken-hearted and solitary chieftain." "It is to the credit and honor of Great Britain that she heaps no indignity upon the defeated President of the former Boer Republic. She exacts of him no hard demands, but extends him special privileges. He is not required to sign humiliating documents, nor is he to be kept in exile, but is exempted from the operation of the second article of the terms of surrender which permits the return of all burghers who acknowledge allegiance to King Edward VII. as sovereign. He can hence return to his home and property without accepting the position of a British subject. This is exceptional and honorable treatment, worthy of all praise and commendation. It will have a good effect upon all who have been forced to lay down their arms under the pressure of necessity. It will have a reconciling influence, and will help to pave the way for a happier adjustment of affairs in the days to come. Such magnanimity is rare, and furnishes one of the highest laurels in present-day British administration."

The treatment of colored people in some sections of the North is quite as bad as in some sections of the South. It would not do to say that all Northern people are arrayed against the negro. Such an assertion would not be true of the South. The simple truth is, human nature is the same in both sections, and on occasions, whether there is provocation or not, shows itself in the same way. In all parts of the South industrious, self-supporting and well-behaved negroes are not only tolerated, but welcome. There are a few spots where they are not found, but we seriously doubt whether any community in all the South would rise up as one man and drive away a whole colony of negroes simply because they are unwelcome. It is not so in some sections of the North, if reports are true. Opportunity for employment is denied them, even when they earnestly seek it; and their desire for educational and social advancement is not always gratified. Just a few days ago, in Saline county, Ill., the white people drove from their midst more than one hundred colored people, "against whose character there has never been a complaint." They were compelled to sell their homes, abandon their crops, leave their jobs, and get away. Their public school was closed and their church partly wrecked. The cause of the outbreak was the establishment of a negro normal and other schools that drew many negroes to the town. State and county authorities, it is said, are at work to bring the guilty parties to justice. It is to be hoped that they will succeed.

The Pope of Rome was much disappointed when he received the official papers of the United States Government setting forth the exact nature of Gov. Taft's mission to the Vatican. He thought, it appears, that his long-cherished hope of establishing diplomatic relations with the United States was about to be realized. This hope vanished when informed that the governor's mission was purely of a business character. Even that was too great a concession for our government to make, for, granting the Pope's word is law as regards the disposition of the friars in the Philippines and the purchase of their lands, the business at last is to be transacted with a committee appointed by the Pope, and there was no reason in the nature of things for the pomp and parade and court formalities necessary to an audience with "His Holiness." This mission, considering all the circumstances, though denied to be of a diplomatic character, will only embolden Roman Catholic authorities, and they will try harder, when another occasion arises, to secure an ambassador at the court of Rome.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

MR. EDITOR: I am just back from Jackson, Miss., where I went to meet the Board of Trustees of Millsaps College, of which body I have the honor to be a member. Of course, I also attended the commencement exercises which were in progress. The commencement sermon was preached by Dr. I. S. Hopkins, of Chattanooga, whose profound scholarship and evangelical spirit admirably fitted him for the task. His theme, "The Nature of God," was handled in a masterly manner; and while Millsaps had been served on similar occasions by some of the most eminent preachers in the South, it was the general verdict that Dr. Hopkins' sermon was fully equal to any ever heard in the college chapel. The annual address, which he also delivered, was of the same high order.

Rev. Richard Wilkinson preached before the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday night, and fully met the expectations of his friends.

The declamations and addresses of the students were, almost without exception, of superior merit. Our boys have made a reputation for oratory that extends throughout the entire South. For three consecutive years they have won in the State oratorical contest, and twice in succession they have borne off the honors at Monteagle, where the picked men of every Southern State meet yearly upon the platform.

The graduating class this year numbered twenty-nine—fourteen in the literary department and fifteen in the law department. Among those receiving the A. B. degree was Miss Mary Holloman, of Jackson, Miss., who enjoys the proud distinction of being the first young lady to be graduated from the institution.

The outlook for the college is very bright. The past session was in every particular the best in its history. The enrollment was larger than ever before, the work done was more satisfactory, and from the first day to the last the utmost harmony prevailed. Indeed, it seems to me that our college has been fortunate beyond any other in the South. It has had to manage its finances from the time of its foundation Major R. W. Millsaps, than whom there is not a more competent financier anywhere. It has had from the beginning as the president of its Board of Trustees, Bishop Chas. B. Galloway, whose field of observation in educational matters covers the whole republic, and who is concededly the most astute and far-seeing leader in Southern Methodism. It has had at its head since the day of its establishment Dr. W. B. Murrah, whose ripe scholarship, splendid poise and superior administrative abilities make him almost an ideal college president. The growth of the institution has been phenomenal. Its endowment has now gone considerably beyond $100,000; its buildings and grounds are worth that much, or more, and its library and museum are being constantly enriched by generous contributions. The James Observatory is now completely fitted up, and is one of the best in the South. The acquisition, through the munificence of Major Millsaps, of the Jackson College property has given us ample dormitory facilities for many years to come, and supplied us with several other valuable buildings, thus making our college plant one of the most desirable in the Gulf States. The institution has everything to commend it—a splendid equipment, an able faculty of trained specialists, the most advantageous location of any college in Mississippi, and a pure and wholesome moral atmosphere. But while all this is true, the needs of the college were never more pressing and imperative. The new dormitory is to be furnished throughout, the increasing number of students calls for additional teaching force, and as our buildings multiply, the expense of keeping them in repair necessarily augments. By some means our endowment must be increased; otherwise we shall find ourselves in a position of embarrassment in the not far future. Let the Methodists of the State rally to the support of the institution, thereby making certain its further advancement and enlargement, and in return the college will give back to them cultured and efficient ministers and laymen, fully capable of making the Methodism of the future more glorious than the Methodism of the present and the past. The hope of our church in Mississippi lies largely in Millsaps College. Fraternally,

R. A. MEEK.

Twentieth Century Fund.

TOTAL SUBSCRIPTIONS AND CASH FROM MAY, 1898, TO MAY, 1902.

At the General Conference of 1898 a plan was adopted for raising a Twentieth Century Thank-offering for education. The General Board of Education was charged with the duty of conducting the campaign, and the president of the Board, Bishop C. B. Galloway, was appointed General Manager. The amount asked for was a sum equal to the minimum offering of one dollar per member, aggregating in round numbers $1,500,000. It will be seen by the following report how well the church has responded to this call on behalf of her educational work. Most of what remains unpaid will, doubtless, be paid. Much of it is in the shape of notes payable in installments.

Church Extension.

The following report from the Committee on Church Extension (Report No. 2) was made to the General Conference, but owing to the amount of matter on the calendar, it was not reached in the order of business, and, of course, was not acted on. As it contains matter of general importance, we print it.

"1. The degree of success that has been achieved through this agency of the church during this quadrennium is cause for gratitude. We are pleased to note a steady increase in the annual collections to this fund from $55,247.26 in 1898 to $72,096.02 in 1902, and a total increase of $37,187.90 during the quadrennium; also, that the net increase of the loan funds is $46,944.61. During this quadrennium donations made amount to $15,304.90 more than during any other quadrennium in the history of the Board, and the loans made to churches exceed those of any other quadrennium by $94,445.

"2. We most cordially commend the judicious and conservative manner in which the affairs of the Board have been administered, and by which its usefulness is being steadily increased.

"3. Our Bishops well say in their address, 'The field for usefulness open to this department of our work is constantly widening.' To meet this widening opportunity, we need to seek enlarged liberality on the part of our people toward this department of our work. With 3,206 societies without houses of worship, with applications from 180 congregations on file at the recent annual meeting of the Board, asking donations to the amount of $92,809.22, only about one-third of which the Board had the means to grant, the question of our corresponding secretary, 'How may these funds be so increased as to provide adequately for the needs of the church?' surely is one that should arrest the thought and enlist the prayers and efforts of our entire Zion."

Point Well Taken.

MR. EDITOR: I rise to a point of order. It is this: Since the late General Conference, after serious and prayerful consideration, has settled the much-agitated Publishing House War Claim, it is out of order for any loyal Methodist to renew the discussion now. It has given us trouble enough, and we do hope the brethren will let it forever rest. Nothing that can be said now will do anything but stir up strife. It is not the rule, even in a cock-pit, to allow the victor to pull out the last feather of his whipped brother. There is an exhortation by an inspired apostle which says, "Keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace;" "Be at peace among yourselves." To agitate now this question is contrary to the teachings of the thirteenth chapter of I. Corinthians. Let it forever be buried and forgotten among us. We be brethren.

W. S. LAGRONE.

A Common-Sense View of the League.

From the time of its introduction to the church to this good moment we have felt that there existed many mistaken notions concerning the purpose and use of the Epworth League. It has all along been a most serious part of our official work to correct these impressions. In the first place, many young people, and not a few pastors, have stumbled at its plans, some regarding them as trivial, because of their simplicity, while others, strangely enough, have believed them complicated. For one or the other of these reasons, as is known to us, some pastors have declined to take up the work. The same considerations have, in some cases, deterred the younger workers from espousing it. Let these notions be abandoned by all. The League is a wise and straightforward means well adapted to the end of real evangelization.

Let this be understood: The first and foremost need of the young people of the church is to be taught reverence, prayerfulness, and respect for the doctrines of Christianity and the institutions of the religious family to which they belong. There is only one way to accomplish this, and that is to bring them under the immediate direction and instruction of their pastors in such a way as will make the instruction effective. Means also must be devised for the pastor's use in leading and teaching. Before the Sunday-school and the League came into existence each pastor was left to his own resources to provide these means. Such as were not resourceful or experienced saw the work suffer and the greater number of their young people go unreached. The League simply supposes that the young people are brought together once or twice a week in a body. These occasions become, first, a prayer meeting; secondly, they afford the opportunity for class instruction. As the pastor can not always be present, and as self-instruction is an important element in development, lessons and directions are laid down whereby the young Leaguers may become teachers to each other. After prayer and song—the age-approved manner of worship—they read the portions of Scripture assigned them, and then a study follows. The League lessons afford examples of how this may be done. Nothing is simpler, and yet the revelation itself knows no wiser plan. Confession and communion are necessary, and so the League meeting gives an opportunity for the service of testimony. The old-time class meeting survives in the League chapter room.

Good works are the Christ-approved method of growth in grace. The pastor has in the Epworth League Charity and Help Committee a means of exercising the willing amongst the young disciples in this branch of service. The one embassy of mercy which a young soul may have opportunity to go upon stamps it with tenderness and a growing willingness for all its years. The vision also which comes of it may displace the multiplied possibilities of selfishness through a whole lifetime. The idea is neither trivial nor complex, but is natural and Christ-like.

All young people have possibilities of intellectual culture. The best culture comes of the cultivation of the social instincts. The school is at the bottom of learning. The gregarious nature of young people makes the prosecution of the social methods of instruction easy. The League, in standing as a center of young church life, becomes a choice opportunity for a thoughtful, cultured pastor to become a sort of Socrates to the young men and women of his charge. Only indolence or a high-mighty indifference can blind him to it. A wise man will need little of the plans of others to do all this. The League has not many plans; of right and common-sense, it ought not to have. It consists in doing, rather than in theorizing. It is a call rather than a parley. It is the sublimated common sense of the present-day church of the once earthly-busy Christ; therefore, some have stumbled at it. —Epworth Era.

Miscellaneous Notes.

Prof. Henry N. Snyder, born and reared in Nashville, and educated at Vanderbilt, has been elected president of Wofford College, South Carolina, in place of the venerable Dr. J. H. Carlisle, resigned.

A fire at Alexander City, Ala., last week, destroyed every business house in the place, and many other houses, among them our church and parsonage. The pastor, Rev. R. W. Anderson, lost all his books and furniture.

At the recent meeting of the Book Committee, Mr. W. C. Everett, manager of our branch Publishing House, Dallas, Texas, made a report to the committee, showing a satisfactory condition of the branch. Brother Everett is a first-class business man.

A layman (name not given) of Alabama has built and furnished a house at Montevallo at a cost of $2,500, with garden spot and orchard planted, and given it to one of the worthy superannuates of the North Alabama Conference for life. That was a noble deed.

Nearly one-seventh of the membership of the Methodist Church, South, lives in Texas. This is a wonderful showing, considering the State is only about seventy years old. Besides Southern Methodists, there are members of the M. E. Church, and colored Methodists numbering many thousands. Great is Texas!

Our Carrollton Avenue Church (New Orleans) was struck by lightning one day last week, and was damaged to the amount of eleven dollars. The house is fully protected, and the insurance company will promptly pay the loss. This shows the importance of keeping our houses of worship and parsonages insured.

BY AN ITINERANT.

APPENDIX TO SECTION III.

We think it proper and right for us to notice some of the inconsistencies of the Anti-Pedobaptist themselves, since many, if not all of them, think us heretics for practicing infant baptism without an express "thus saith the Lord," when the authority to do so is so clear that no such specific command is necessary, while they are guilty of the same and worse things. "Consistency, thou art a jewel!"

There is no express "thus saith the Lord" for female communion at the Lord's table; notwithstanding we know they are entitled to do so. But the evidence admitting them is no stronger, and, perhaps, not so strong, as that entitling infants to baptism. And yet, the Anti-Pedobaptist scruple not to do the former. There is no positive command from the Lord to be found in the New Testament to this effect; then why do they do it? Let us look into their pretensions.

1. To say that women are "disciples," and, therefore, eligible, is no more positive command than the declaration that "whole families were baptized." The word "disciples" does not necessarily suggest women, for in the Jewish Church, as women were not members, this term was not applied to them. But the word "family" naturally suggests infant children. Admit, however, that "disciples" naturally suggests women, here we have the two arguments equal.

2. To say, on the Day of Pentecost, that the women included in the original hundred and twenty, and the three thousand new converts, whatever sex they may have been, male and female, we have a right to suppose (including children), "continued steadfastly in breaking of bread," etc. (Acts ii, 42), is not to the point. This passage has no reference whatever to the Lord's Supper, but to the social or brotherly meals, the "Agapæ," or love-feasts, such as is recorded by this same writer, Luke, in his gospel, chapter xxiv, and verses 29, 30, and 35. He says there: "But they constrained him (Christ), saying, Abide with us: for it is toward evening, and the day is far spent. And he went in to tarry with them. And it came to pass, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, and blessed it, and brake, and gave to them. . . . And they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread." No one will say this has reference to the Lord's Supper, to say nothing of being the thing itself. Many of the best commentators assert that this passage does not mean the Lord's Supper, but the common meals, among them being Grotius and Wolfius — perhaps the best prepared to know. Besides this, there is no mention whatever made of the wine. Bread doesn't mean wine. The word "family" is far more suggestive of infants than is the word "bread" suggestive of wine. And yet this is the Baptist "thus saith the Lord" for female fellowship at the Lord's table. If they had any other better "thus saith the Lord," it was lost during their long "burial" between John the Baptist and 1641.

Baptists teach that "immersion, by a Baptist preacher, is an indispensable prerequisite to fellowship at the Lord's table." Let us examine into this "thus saith the Lord."

1. In April, 1837, the Baptists, led by the Rev. S. H. Cone, D. D., drew off their patronage from the American Bible Society, and formed the American and Foreign Bible Society, for the purpose of translating "baptizo" by "immerse," instead of "baptize," in the Bibles for the foreign work. This gave rise to the American Bible Union, whose object was to translate the common English version the same way. This could not be done, and make good sense throughout the Bible. The book is a mess, and Baptists still use the Authorized Version. The word "immerse" is not in the Bible. About ninety five per cent. of the Christian world (Milner) and the best scholars differ from them in the meaning of "baptizo" in New Testament Greek. The Holy Ghost nowhere translates "baptizo" by "immerse" or "dip," but everywhere by "affusion," as, "come upon," "pour out upon," "fell on," "shed forth," etc. (Compare Matt. iii, 2; Luke iii, 16; Acts i, 5, and Acts i, 8; ii, 18, 33; x, 44, 45.) And yet this is the Baptist "thus saith the Lord" for "immersion as a prerequisite to the Lord's table."

2. All Pedobaptist historians ascribe the rise of the Baptist Church to about 1633. But Dr. W. H. Whitsitt, the Baptist historian, endorsed by other historians of that denomination, says the English Baptists (the mother of the American Baptists) never practiced immersion prior to 1641 (worse and worse, and more of it); hence the beginning of that church and their succession from John the Baptist. Not one word does the Bible say of the Baptist Church. And this is their "thus saith the Lord" for making "immersion by a Baptist preacher a prerequisite to the Lord's table."

3. There is no "thus saith the Lord" that the apostles were ever baptized. The commission was given by Christ forty days after the Supper was instituted. If the apostles were baptized at all before the instituting of the Supper, they had only John's baptism, certainly not Christian baptism. There is no positive proof they had any. The commission did not go into effect until ten days after it was given, which was on Pentecost, for the apostles were commanded to "tarry at Jerusalem" for "the promise," and begin there. So Christian baptism was instituted fifty days after the Supper. Christ nor his apostles anywhere say that baptism must precede the partaking of the Supper. The Baptists have no authority whatever for their practice; yet they make it essential.

"But," they retort, "do not Methodists hold baptism to be a prerequisite to the taking of the Lord's Supper?" We may answer that we do; but in so doing we have express authority. God said to Moses, "No uncircumcised person shall eat of the Passover" (Ex. xii, 4, 8); and as baptism and the Lord's Supper are substituted, with changes already noted, for circumcision and the Passover, we make it a prerequisite. Baptists can not take this position without admitting infants to baptism. So they are content to make essential an unwarranted thing, and then excuse themselves for excluding all other Christians from what they are pleased to call the Lord's table on the plea of "close baptism." And all this is their "thus saith the Lord" for making "immersion by a Baptist preacher a prerequisite to fellowship at the Lord's table."

The Baptists charge us with forbidding our baptized infants the Lord's Supper. The charge is without foundation. We do no such thing. Every child old enough to "examine himself" may eat and drink the "broken body" and "shed blood" of its Lord. We forbid none of them. Christ likens the church to a sheepfold. Both old and young are admitted into the fold. When the sheep are fed, the lambs that are able to do so may eat. None are driven off. Likewise our infants are admitted into the church. We do not keep them out any more than does the shepherd keep the lambs out of the fold. When the Lord's table is spread, all who are able may come and partake. We refuse none of them: neither do we force them to eat any more than did the apostle.

(These articles are written for the people, and not for the few and the critics. This explains my methods. I desire to be plain, and at the same time depart, if necessary, from the main argument, to remove every obstacle that might be in the way of a just, clear, and satisfactory conception of the teachings of the Bible on this subject; to give no vantage ground to the opposition by permitting them to charge us with man made doctrines, when they practice and teach dogmas with even less show of authority than do we. I think this legitimate.)

A "RARA AVIS."

We are reliably informed there is a prominent layman of the Baptist Church near here who keeps his church in a stir by opposing the admission of women to the church, on the grounds that he finds no "thus saith the Lord" that women will "go to heaven." Nor does it seem that the brethren and sisters can satisfy him on the subject by pointing to the passage, although they all believe it. He is, indeed, a "rare bird," but is properly flocked, there being a small difference only in the frill of the feathers.

SOME RANDOM SHOTS.

When an immersionist attempts to define baptism, to explain its use and design, his definition is very much like the definition Dr. Johnson gives of net-work. Says he, "Net-work is anything reticulated or decussated at equal distances, with intersticcs between the intersections."

It is not the peculiar views which Baptists entertain with reference to the mode of baptism and infant baptism, as they claim, that accounts for their success, but their missionary spirit. The Hardshells, which are older than the Missionary Baptists, and are anti-missionary, practice immersion and eschew infant baptism, but are as dead as a last-year's egg.

The Baptists claim descent from John the Baptist. Query: Whom did John baptize? Let us see: "There went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judæa, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him in Jordan." The record does not say whether there were men, women, and children, but positively states that "Jerusalem, all Judæa, and all the region round about Jordan, were baptized." The Baptists have departed from their faith; they ought not to baptize men and women, but should adhere strictly to the letter of the text, and baptize only "Jerusalem, all Judæa, and all the region round about Jordan."

There is as much authority for and as much common sense in saying that "Jerusalem, all Judæa, and all the region round about Jordan," does not mean men, women, and children, as to say it means men and women, but not children. When Israel "went out" of Egypt, "all" went, including infants; and when "all were baptized in the sea," infants were included. When a Baptist says, "I have moved all my family to Texas," he means the babies were left behind; and when he says, "I took all my stock," he means that the colts, calves, lambs, kids and pigs were not taken. Every one should have a Baptist grammar and dictionary if they would understand their "modus loguendi."

In several respects the immersionists resemble that other little water animal called "fiddler," that we meet with on the coast. Approach it from the front, and it runs backwards; approach it from the rear, and it runs forwards; approach it from the side, and it runs sideways. Its legs are so constructed as to enable it to run in any direction without turning around, and, at the same time, appears to be moving "right side up with care." When unmolested, it is very defiant and dangerous looking, but show yourself, and it at once beats a retreat.

GRENADA COLLEGE.

The Board of Trustees of this school had a most satisfactory meeting on June 10. The prospects for next session grow brighter each day. The new brick building, which will be commodious and comfortable, is going up rapidly, and will be ready for occupancy by the opening of next session.

Having accurate and ample knowledge of our organization and faculty, I wish to say a few things to the Methodists of North Mississippi.

1. Grenada College is a church school in fact as well as in name. No individual has one dollar's worth of personal, pecuniary gain in profits of the school. Every cent above the current expenses of the school, economically administered, will be used for the benefit of the school itself.

2. The school will be conducted under the immediate control and supervision of the church, for the church, and in harmony with our Conference and connectional system of education.

3. Our business manager and our president, with their families, will reside in the college building, and will be in constant charge of the pupils. One of these gentlemen will be continually present in the college, thus affording protection to the girls committed to us.

4. Our teachers, including our president, who will devote his entire time to the scholastic work of the college, are teachers by profession and training. The character and equipment of our faculty guarantee the best grade of literary work.

5. Our School of Music offers unusual advantages in stringed instruments, piano, and voice.

6. In art, French and German, we offer the best to be had.

7. There are several grounds upon which we might claim your patronage, but we prefer to rest our appeal upon the basis of merit, because of our unusual facilities in every department, and the superiority of our arrangements for the home life and religious culture of the pupils.

J. R. BINGHAM,
Pres. Board of Trustees.

MORAL MEASURES.

The International Reform Bureau has asked the President to submit to his legal advisers the question whether the anti-canteen law, which forbids the sale of beer or other intoxicants on "any premises used for military purposes by the United States," should not be enforced against the beer-selling canteens in soldiers' homes, inasmuch as the Revised Statutes (Sec. 4835) provide that all inmates of such homes "shall be subject to the rules and articles of war, and in the same manner as if they were in the army." Gen. Patrick, of the Dayton Home, is quoted as saying in a report, "The status of this Home is precisely the same as that of Columbus Barracks," and Senator Sewall as saying in the Senate that a soldiers' home may be considered to be an army post. An additional issue is raised in the case of the branch homes located on prohibition ground, in view of the following law of 1890, which Judge Advocate General Lieber, on Aug. 15, 1898, declared is applicable to places under local as well as State prohibition: "No alcoholic liquors, beer or wine, shall be sold or supplied to the enlisted men in any canteen or post-trader's store, or in any room or garrison or military post in any State or Territory in which the sale of alcoholic liquors, beer or wine, is prohibited by law."

The Bureau has learned from the State Department that no reply has yet come to its proposition that the British Government shall join with others in submitting to other powers a treaty to prohibit the sale of all intoxicants and opium to uncivilized races everywhere. The Boer war has, no doubt, been one of the reasons for this delay. Now that the war is over, the Bureau has suggested to Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, who is favorable to this policy, that the acceptance of this great proposal might well be the crowning act of the coronation season.

The attention of the new Secretary of the Navy has been called to the importance of maintaining the prohibition we found in Tutuila, and which was established in Guam by our first governor.

The Bureau has brought to the attention of the Postoffice Department the fact that many periodicals excluded from Canadian mails and American railroads as habitually indecent, and promotive of vice and crime, are regularly carried in United States mails despite the laws excluding obscene matter, of which a stricter enforcement has been asked. The Bureau will also have a special law introduced in Congress to exclude also the bandit libraries that make boys into burglars.

God keeps a school for his children here on earth, and one of his best teachers is named Disappointment. He is a rough teacher, severe in tone and harsh in handling sometimes, but his tuition is worth all it costs. Many of our best lessons through life have been taught by that same old schoolmaster, Disappointment.—Theodore L. Cuyler.

You keep the Sabbath in imitation of God's rest. Do, by all manner of means, and keep also the rest of the week in imitation of God's work.—John Ruskin.

If any feel their weakness as little children feel it, let them know that the Spirit of God broods over them as a mother over her babe.—Geo. Adam Smith.

North Mississippi Conference W. H. M. S.

BY MRS. A. C. YEAGER.

The W. H. M. S. of the North Mississippi Conference convened at Pickens, Miss., Sunday, June 8, 1902, many delegates having come on Saturday to avoid Sunday travel. By Monday the delegation was complete, to the great joy of the Conference, as there were enough present to secure reduced rates on return trip. This was an era in affairs that had never occurred before, and was very gratifying, both as to point of numbers and as showing increased interest in the work.

The people of the cozy, home-like little city of Pickens threw open the doors of their hearts and homes, and received this delegation with true Southern hospitality of the old regime, vying with each other in acts of kindness and love, and sending their guests to and from every session.

The Methodists of Pickens have material on the ground for the improvement and enlargement of their church, and felt disappointed that they had not accomplished their intention before the coming of the Conference.

The annual sermon was preached at 11 A. M., Sunday, by Rev. E. S. Lewis, of Durant, and was a grand, stirring appeal and exhortation to faith, virtue, knowledge and charity in Christian living. At conclusion of sermon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered.

At 5 P. M. Bro. W. T. Griffin spoke to the children about the little ones in the Orphans' Home, relating many pathetic incidents, which brought tears of sympathy to the eyes of young and old. At the suggestion of Rev. G. W. Bachman, several of the children pledged themselves to raise the amount necessary to place a map of the Holy Land on the wall of the chapel for the use of the orphans in their study of the Scriptures.

Sunday night the address of welcome was delivered by Miss Maude Hoover, of Pickens. The Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church, the sister society of the Baptists, as also the Foreign Missionary Society of the town, read fraternal greetings, which were responded to in a very happy way by Mrs. J. M. Bradley, of Water Valley. Musical recitations very pleasantly interspersed the addresses.

After devotional services were conducted on Monday, Rev. W. T. Griffin presented the claim of the Orphans' Home to the consideration of the Conference, stating the needs of the institution. These little ones lie very near to the heart of Bro. and Sister Griffin, and form a very devoted and happy family band, numbering 111 souls.

The afternoon sessions were devoted to business matters, which were ably conducted by the presiding officers: Mrs. E. W. Foote, president, of Aberdeen; Miss Lucy Matthews, of Holly Springs, first vice-president; Mrs. Robt. Somerville, of Greenville, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. H. B. Gladney, of Pickens, recording secretary, and Mrs. Ella Phillips, of Winona, treasurer.

Resolutions were passed to memorialize the General Conference to unify the two societies, leaving off the distinctive titles of Home and Foreign, and calling the united body the Woman's Missionary Conference, having two Boards, with plenary power to conduct all business affairs under more economic conditions, the details to be subsequently arranged by the governing body.

A suggestion offered by Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, that the Woman's Home Mission Society should work toward the opening of a hospital within the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference, was accepted as a motion, as it is his belief that there are many wealthy men who are only waiting for an opening to be willing to pour out their wealth for the establishment of hospitals and training-schools wherever it will be of greatest service to the Lord's cause or to the cause of humanity.

A telegram was received from Mrs. M. I. Hoskins, former president of W. F. M. Society. It contained fraternal greeting and good wishes.

Mrs. Wrenn, from the Mexican Border Mission, who was afterward elected to the office of second vice-president, was introduced, and read a very able paper on the condition and needs, both temporal and spiritual, of these benighted people, who, under the dominion of another church, give their all to the priesthood, and receive nothing in return, and whose condition is far worse than that of any class of peasantry in the world.

Miss Addie Purnell, of the Mississippi Conference, was introduced, and presented the claims and needs of three tribes of Indians, remnants of the Natchez, Choctaws and Chickasaws, asking that the society might undertake to alleviate their sufferings, and set about the establishment of schools, industrial and otherwise, for the enlightenment of this remnant of the great aboriginal tribes who were formerly monarchs of all they surveyed.

On Tuesday the afternoon session was devoted to the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted in the re-election of the present Executive Board, with only one or two exceptions. The district secretaries were appointed by the executive body, and were exhorted by their head, the corresponding secretary, to much prayer and earnest labor in the Master's cause, their motto to be, "Onward and upward." All vacancies were supplied with able and consecrated women.

Starkville invited the society to hold its next session there.

Consecration services conducted by Mrs. Robt. Somerville preceded adjournment, and all repaired to their respective homes to rest and perfect arrangements for departure on the midnight train.

A reception, in which the ices and souvenirs took the form of pink roses, was tendered at the hospitable and palatial home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Wilburn, who were already the Conference hosts of numerous delegates. The profusion and elegance which prevailed, the pleasant interchange of social courtesies between visitors and citizens of every denomination, diffused a genial glow through the hearts of the recipients which will gladden and brighten many future days, when cares oppress or sorrows obscure the brightness.

An impetus for service and devotion was received by the members of this Conference which, we trust, will last all until they come together again for fresh accessions of grace and renewal of consecration vows.

Grenada College.

Mr. Editor: Amid these hot days it is refreshing to be in company that makes one almost forget the range of the thermometer. Such were the environments of your correspondent during a few days of the past week. Having to attend the mid-year meeting of the Board of Missions, which convened in the hospitable town of Grenada, I tarried a few days in attendance upon the annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. A spiritual feast it was to all who were present. The opening consecration service seemed to set the key-note for the subsequent meetings. The reports from the different societies aggregated about $3,700. But better far than the financial reports was the loving consecration that accompanied the offering. These good sisters seemed to have learned the secret of giving which the widow possessed who cast in her ten mites into the Lord's treasury.

The presence of Miss Hughes, the returned missionary from China, was indeed a benediction to the Conference. Her address of one hour to a large and appreciative audience made an impression that will, doubtless, be felt throughout the Conference.

It would indeed be a phlegmatic Methodist who could visit Grenada, and see the tasty new building now being erected, that will so much enlarge the capacity of our college, and not feel that a new era was dawning on Grenada College. The popular and energetic business manager, Rev. J. M. Wyatt, is entering upon his new duties with commendable zeal. The scholarly Christian president, an up-to-date school-man, and a choice selection of teachers, give promise of a bright future for our college. We feel sure that if every Methodist who has pledged a Twentieth Century Thank-offering could see how wisely his money will be invested in Grenada, would make a strenuous effort to redeem his pledge; and I will say that the trustees are depending on these pledges to complete the payment for the new building. Let me say to those who have daughters to send to college, you need not fear to place your daughters in Grenada, as to the healthfulness of the place. Since the town has been supplied with pure water by the most improved system of water-works, the health record of the town will compare favorably with any town in the State. One of the wells from which this supply of water comes has been analyzed, and found to possess mineral properties equal in value to the water of the most famous Summer resorts. Some remarkable cures are claimed for it by those suffering from indigestion. Again: You need not be uneasy as to the influence that will surround your daughters. The teachers are earnest Christians. And your daughters will not return home inoculated with the ball-room fever, as many young ladies in our State who have attended a college where dancing is allowed.

There is another feature of the school to which I would call attention. The leasing system has been abolished, and hereafter, whatever profits there may accrue above the expenses of an economical management, will be utilized for the improvement of the school.

The business manager hopes soon to incorporate some industrial branches in the course of study, which, we believe, will greatly popularize the college with the people. There are said to be about five hundred Methodist girls attending college from the bounds of our Conference—some in the State college in Columbus, the Baptist college at Blue Mountain, the Cumberland Presbyterian college in West Point, and some other schools in and out of the State.

Let me urge every Methodist to rally to our Conference school, and educate at our own altar the daughters of Methodism.

P. E. Duncan.

Crawford, Miss.

A Hospital for the North Mississippi Conference by the Home Mission Society.

I see by the action of the Woman's Home Mission Society of the North Mississippi Conference, as published in the daily Commercial-Appeal, of Monday morning, these godly women have determined to establish a hospital in the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference. This is fruit already of the action of the General Conference in creating the order of Deaconesses in the church, and is as it should be. I, for one, hail this new movement with delight. Our Methodist people have the money. They should rally to the help of the good women, and I pray that the rich among us will respond liberally with large sums, and let the women erect great buildings, and found a great institution from the start. We have permitted the Catholic people to take care of our sick and invalids long enough.

Now, I desire to call attention to Iuka, Miss., as a place of location, for two special reasons: First, the health of the place, with those remarkable springs that are specially adapted to the abiding need of such an institution. Nothing like these springs and their general surroundings in all North Mississippi. The town now has a splendid electric light plant, and has been improving in many directions for two years. Second, the people are enthusiastic for the hospital. In the Quarterly Conference, Monday morning, the sixteenth, just after the announcement in the Commercial-Appeal, there was a resolution passed unanimously proposing to co-operate with the town authorities in a formal proposition and invitation to the Woman's Home Mission Society to come to Iuka and investigate and see what Iuka will do for them. Let the people hear the call of these godly women. If you want your money to do great good, put it in their hands, for this enterprise will not fail.

ROSE PINE.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We have just closed a wonderful meeting at this place, with twenty conversions and twenty accessions to the dear old M. E. Church, South. The meeting commenced May 21, and closed on the thirtieth. The Lord and Master was with us all the way through the meeting. Rev. T. S. Randle and wife were with us from Monday until Friday. He is a man of God, and full of faith and the Holy Ghost. Brother and Sister Randle made many warm friends here, and the people all ask for them to come back again. The last day of the meeting there were twelve children baptized and sixteen adults. Pray for us, and may God bless the readers of the dear old Advocate.

PELICAN CIRCUIT.

Dear Doctor: I have just closed a few days' meeting here at Pelican. My brother, E. C. Cargill, and A. R. Hodges did the preaching. While the results of the meeting were far from what we should like to see, yet it was a feast to many of us. Several were reclaimed, some sanctified, and the church revived to a great extent. The preaching was plain, practical, and with the power of the Holy Ghost. So the people are left without an excuse. We hope yet to see better results of the meeting. In connection with the good preaching, we had two young ladies with us a couple of days. They live at or near Many, La. Sister Florence Williams and Sister Cora Weldon. They are out and out for God. They are a power in a meeting, or wherever they go. They were a great help to the people here. Bless God for such Christian workers.

I will also say, if any of the brethren need ministerial help in their meetings, you may be able to get Bro. Hodges. I consider him a safe and able man.

Yours under the blood,

E. L. Cargill, P. C.

CALHOUN, LA.

Dear Dr. Boswell: The second Quarterly Conference for Calhoun circuit was held at Indian Village Church on last Saturday, the seventh instant; Rev. A. J. Notestine, P. E., present and presiding. A majority of the official members were present, and the proceedings of the Conference were interesting from start to finish. Bro. Notestine is a good presiding officer, and inquires diligently into every interest of the work. There has been some improvement in the financial and spiritual condition of the circuit, as evidenced by the Minutes of the Conference. One brother, James R. Downs, was licensed to exhort.

Indications being favorable, I thought it expedient to protract the services for a few days, which I did with gratifying results. Bro. Notestine remained over to help me, and did all the preaching efficiently and effectively. We opened the services Sunday morning with a missionary sermon and grand rally for the mission cause—of course, resulting in a collection, receiving in cash and subscriptions sixty-seven dollars, largely in advance of any collection taken heretofore at this appointment. Bro. Notestine used his missionary chart in connection with his sermon, and edified and interested his audience, thus producing the result mentioned. There were persons present who gave to the mission cause for the first time in their lives, and expressed themselves as being interested in the work. From this time on my services increased in interest daily, and although the busy season with the farmers, many of them attended church and were blessed. Many were at the altar from day to day. I closed the meeting on Thursday night, when every unconverted person in the church was at the altar or in the congregation kneeling for prayer. My meeting closed with six bright conversions and as many candidates for church membership. Some of our former members, who strayed off for one cause or another, have come back to the fold, and others are coming. The outlook is encouraging.

"I wrote to Dr. Pierce for his advice."

The lady, from whose letter we quote, got what she wrote for, and is a well woman to-day as a result of following Dr. Pierce's advice and using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the medicine which makes weak women strong and sick women well. "Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I can truthfully say that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a wonderful medicine and deserves the praise given it," writes Mrs. Emma Spooner, of Lakeview, Montcalm Co., Mich., Box 288. "I was sick four months, and the medicine prescribed by the doctors did me no good. Finally I wrote to Dr. Pierce for his advice. He answered in a very kind letter instructing me what to do. I followed his advice and to-day am a well woman, thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and New Orleans Christian Advocate together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

TERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW LEANS AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

FFICE: 512 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS AND DIRECTIONS.

ONE COPY, one year, $2.00; six months, $1.00. To preachers of all denominations, half price.

CORRESPONDENTS will please direct all communications, whether on business or for publication, to the Editor, 512 Camp St., New Orleans. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

OBITUARIES not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged for at the rate of ONE CENT A WORD. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

THE PRINTED LABEL on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after two weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. This applies also to those who request a change of address.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are Authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, JUNE 26, 1902.

In one of our large districts three pastors, for some cause not made known to the public, declined further service, and quit. No disaster followed, nor was any time lost in supplying their places. The men were close at hand, and the authorities put them to work. These supplies were drawn from the local ranks—not arbitrarily, for there is no authority to lay hold of local preachers and appoint them to pastoral charges. They are employed. This shows the wisdom of our system, which provides for a regular force subject to orders at all times, and a reserve force upon which call may be made in an emergency. Yet there be those who tell us that the day of the local preacher has passed.

The only way to grow in grace and develop into robust Christian manhood is by diligent cultivation of the gospel virtues. Faith is essential to bring into experience, but by itself will never accomplish the full purpose of the atonement. "Faith without works is dead, being alone." This is Bible doctrine. We heartily commend it to all pious souls who do nothing, and yet dream of heaven and an immense reward in return for a feeble faith and a life-time of loud profession.

Many Christians are like an ox on a tread-mill: they seem to be moving, but never make any advance. They attend upon the ordinances of the church, and enjoy religion, and yet, at the end of years, are found just where they started. They point to no intervening period when they received a gracious uplift. The only longing they have is to be just as happy as when they were converted. No wonder the church makes little progress under such leadership.

St. James' injunction, "Be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath," is not always wholly observed. We are swift enough to hear, but too often we are equally swift to anger, and to answer back. The reason is, we are sensitive, and take as a personal insult that which was intended for our profit.

Some men assert their manhood, and try to prove what they say by filling themselves with liquor. They are deceived. It is not manhood they have exhibited, but servile obedience to a hard and unreasonable master. Manhood has been dethroned.

The most pitiable object in this world is a poor, disappointed and despairing man who tries to brace and keep alive the remaining spark of courage with strong drink. Those who do not know him say he is a reprobate. His neighbors say he is weak.

CONCESSIONS TO THE WORLD.

Shall Methodists make concessions to the spirit and practice of the world in order to hold the young people, or shall the General Rules be retained and enforced, and thus take the risk of losing many members? These questions have recently been up for discussion in certain quarters. The discussion was started, if we mistake not, by the assertion of one, or more, ministers in a meeting of Chicago Methodist preachers. A great deal more was made of the assertion by secular reporters than was justified by the facts. The expression of one man to the effect that Methodism is too strict in its rein over young people, to lead a few sensational reporters to the conclusion that the desire on the part of the church to abandon its position in regard to worldly amusements, etc., is general.

There is no such desire. The proposition would have scarcely a corporal's guard in support of it in either division of the church. We had ample opportunity to test the sentiment of our church on the subject at our late General Conference. That body was made up of nearly three hundred delegates, half of whom were preachers and half laymen, and yet the matter of changing our General Rules, or making any sort of concession to the spirit of the world, was not even so much as mentioned. The opportunity to test the matter was at hand, but nobody embraced it. We take it for granted that our representatives are satisfied with the law as it is.

There is no dissatisfaction among our young people. They are making no complaint. That there is worldliness among them, as is also among the older people, is true. That a few break away and seek more liberal communions is not denied, but our honest conviction is, if they were brought face to face with the question, Shall the world be turned loose upon the church, or the church allowed to run loose in the world? they would say, No, with almost unanimity. Those who are tempted and led astray would not consent to have the safeguards removed.

It is all a notion that our terms of membership are too strict. They are no stricter than the terms prescribed in the New Testament. Everything set forth in our General Rules we are required in God's Word to observe and do. We had as well talk about abrogating the Ten Commandments, or making the Scriptures conform to lax notions of morality and slack-twisted ideas of experience and practice, as to talk about making concessions to the world in order to retain our hold on the young. Those who quit us because of our strictness, no matter how high they are socially, or how much they are worth financially, are worth nothing as spiritual factors in the church. If our preachers, with one consent, would preach self-denial as Jesus taught it, and impress our young people as did St. Paul, that, "denying themselves of all ungodliness and worldly lust, they must live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world," what trouble exists, if any, would soon die out. But whatever else we may do, we can not afford to concede one inch to the world, the flesh, or the devil. Loyalty to God and his Word forbid it.

THE ONE THING LACKING.

Jesus beholding a young man loved him, but was constrained to say, "One thing thou lackest." The lack of that one thing was fatal to the young man's eternal interest. This young man was beyond the average in all that went to make up character. He was, in fact, a model. Reared under strict religious influences, he early imbibed the only correct moral principles, and diligently practiced them. He never departed from them. And when Jesus told him to "keep the commandments," he replied, "All these have I kept from my youth up."

What could be lacking in the life of such a man? "Go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, take up the cross, and follow me." The conditions imposed cut squarely across his unregenerate nature, which, though predisposed in favor of religion, was not willing to make the sacrifice necessary to obtain the "one thing," and he "went away grieved, for he had great possessions." His wealth was a snare, enabling him to minister to his fleshly desires and appetites. He preferred his own good to the good of his suffering fellow-men. To take up the cross, which language he doubtless understood, carried with it the assurance of personal suffering for the sake of the Master.

The necessity of sacrificing worldly possessions, and consenting to a life of suffering as conditions of discipleship, were two things this moral young man had not anticipated. His idea was that to do something good would answer the requirements of the Master. That he would willingly do, perhaps, even to the half of his possessions. But to turn all into money, and distribute indiscriminately to the poor, and to suffer besides, was more than human nature could endure. He never took into consideration the purification of his nature, and the joys that come to the soul that lives in constant communion with God.

There are thousands to-day after the type of this young man. They earnestly desire to get to heaven, but are wholly unwilling to submit to the conditions imposed. They would be disciples of the Master on their own terms, but to lay all, soul and body and earthly possessions, on the altar, they will not. Cross-bearing, and self-denial, and persecution, and to follow Christ through evil as well as through good report, are repugnant to human nature. Against these they rebel, and declare that God is a hard master.

This young man turned away from Christ. We hear no more of him. But his end, and the end of all such, is pictured by our Lord in the parable of the rich man who satisfied his soul with the good things of life, but died and found his place in hell. Pious parents, religious teachings, a moral life, and outward obedience to the commandments, all amount to nothing if the affections are centered on the world. Such souls lack one thing, and lacking that in this life, they will be found lacking the wedding garment when the bridegroom cometh. Better far such souls had never been born.

LIVING TOO FAST.

We are living at a rapid rate—much too rapid for ordinary people. The majority break down or give up before they have begun to realize the object in view. The failure of the thousands, however, has no tendency to check the multitude. The success of the few is the only thing that is considered. That stimulates and inspires desire and expectation in the breasts of many who have no well-founded hope of success. Were men moved to exertion by high ideals—desire to reach a point in life in which they may be of some real benefit to their fellow-men—they might be excused for their ambition and haste to accomplish their purposes. But nothing akin to such a desire moves most men. Their ideals are low. They are worldly, and their methods are anything but commendable. Their only purpose is to make money. They are absorbed in the desire, and with piles of gold glittering in the distance, they let nothing stand between them and its possession. They purpose to become millionaires at all hazards, and they drive, Jehu-like, towards the goal, scarcely taking time to eat, and sleeping only when they are compelled. And in the maddening rush they often disregard the rights of others, and thus commit more than a double crime—they sin against themselves, and against their brother, and against God. No wonder so many break down before reaching middle life. No wonder so many fail and die in despair. No wonder the proud, rich man, with his ill gotten gain, is so often ungodly, unbrotherly, and wholly selfish. It is right to be industrious and saving, and to accumulate. If God wills, it is good to be rich, and have a name and influence among men. But it is far better for men to live and die poor than to lead a fast and strenuous life under the curse of men, and die at last without God and without hope. Fast living will kill some who read these lines, unless they slacken speed and turn to God.

SLIGHTING THE ALUMNI.

Serious things have been happening lately at Vanderbilt. The alumni have been slighted by the "powers that be" that rule in the athletic arena. The "bosses" make up their "teams"—foot-ball and base-ball (and hereafter will govern the basket-ball); and arrange their matches and play their games without inviting the co-operation of the alumni, or even so much as inviting them to take part in their plays. This slight the alumni feel very keenly, and at their last annual meeting spoke out their sentiments. Speeches were made. Mr. John Bell Keeble was powerfully stirred, and the dispatches say "he made a fiery talk." What will come of their resolutions we do not know.

We take the side of the alumni. They helped make the university. Some of them contributed largely to the Athletic Association in the past as hitters and runners and kickers, and they ought not now to be totally ignored. We say this much, though we are not acquainted with the Constitution and By-laws of the association, for the ethics of the Diamond and Gridiron. If there is anything good in athletics, and intercollegiate games add to the reputation of the university, and increase its patronage, or if gate receipts are necessary, there is no good reason why members of the alumni should be excluded. We are sure the public would largely patronize, and immensely enjoy contests, if the alumni were permitted to take part, and the contestants judiciously selected. Any sort of a team needed could be made up without difficulty. Editors, presiding elders, preachers, lawyers, doctors, and college professors are scattered all over the church. As "heavy weights," Dr. Tigert and Brother Campbell, of Kentucky, could not be out-classed. Possibly they can not hit a ball or make base with speed, but in foot-ball they could fall with crushing weight upon an opponent, or kick the pig skin home without trouble. For light weights Dr. R. J. Bigham, our Book Agent, and Dr. A. F. Watkins, of Mississippi, would be handy. Nashville can supply all the middle weights needed. Dr. G. B. Winton, and Dr. E. B. Chappell, Rev. J. R. Stewart and Rev. Lewis Powell are close at hand, to say nothing of the scores of professional and business men all through the city. Judge Moose, of Morrilton, Ark., or Rev. R. M. Standefer, of Mississippi, could umpire the game.

We do not approve of intercollegiate games in general, but we would be pleased to witness, on Dudly Field, a tussle between the Vanderbilt alumni above named, and representatives of "the church" located on Sewanee Mountain. The last Thursday in November will be a good time. If a match is arranged, what a yell there will be!

Dear captains and managers, please treat your alumni with more consideration. Then they will cease to shed crocodile tears over their treatment, and have no more fun among themselves at your expense.

TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND.

On another page will be found the report of Dr. J. D. Hammond, Secretary of the Board of Education, concerning the Twentieth Century Fund. The report was made to the General Conference, just held at Dallas, Texas. This report, in some respects, is very gratifying. In others it makes us feel ashamed. It is gratifying to know that, though the call made was for $1,500,000, the subscription amounts to more than $2,040,000, and that of the amount subscribed $1,420,511.86 has been paid. We feel ashamed, though, to learn from the report that three of our home Conferences have paid less than fifty dollars each to the fund, one paying as little as twenty dollars, while two foreign fields went up into the hundreds, and two into the thousands. The China Mission subscribed $12,000, and has paid $4,500. The Brazil Mission subscribed $5,000, and paid $8,000. It is true these home fields are feeble and largely supported by our mission funds. So is China, and so is Brazil.

Very much remains to be done if our schools are to be properly endowed. If the whole amount subscribed had been paid in cash, it would have scarcely sufficed to endow four colleges, to say nothing of Vanderbilt University. But the amounts subscribed and paid have in many instances been applied to small local enterprises here and there, and our large institutions have been left to struggle on. We doubt whether Vanderbilt will receive as much as one-twentieth of the amount subscribed. Trinity College, North Carolina, is the only one of our schools that has shared largely in the Twentieth Century Thank-offering. Maybe, some day, rich men will give a million to Centenary and Millsaps. We trust so. But, in the meantime, the many poor men must not fail to make their annual contributions.

THE OFFICE OF DEACONESS.

The church papers, as far as we know, have quietly acquiesced in the action of the late General Conference in authorizing the office of deaconess. Personally, we are as yet unconvinced. We still think our pastors and good women working together can accomplish the work to be done, just as well without deaconesses as with them, and at far less expense, and less trouble and show. But we are not going to throw any rocks at the young sisters (there will be no old ones among them as in apostolic (?) days), nor put any stumbling blocks in their way. Dr. Atkins, in the Sunday-school Magazine, for July, speaks temperately, but confidently. We hope his prediction will come true. He says:

"We have no fears as to the result. Our women will doubtless be as wise and conservative in this work as they have been in other lines, and we have nothing to fear at their hands. We predict that this office will be so used as to result in a decided quickening of work in fields which are now quite needy and very much neglected."

Observe: the office is only authorized. It remains for the Woman's Home Mission Society to exercise the authority given. Candidates must present themselves, they must be examined and passed, and then take a long course of training. Possibly two years or more will pass before we see the first Southern Methodist deaconess in the field, unless the Scarritt Bible and Training-school can furnish a few "ready made." If they are needed as badly as was said in advance of the General Conference, and by the enthusiastic brethren who advocated the cause on the floor, no time ought to be lost. The sooner they get to work the better.

DEATH OF MR. J. G. GRANT.

Mr. J. G. Grant, a prominent merchant of New Orleans, and at one time the publisher of this ADVOCATE, died at his home on Wednesday, the eighteenth of June. For many years he had been a leading and consistent member of our church. He was active and useful as an official member, honored and trusted by his brethren. He died a member of Rayne Memorial Church. Dr. LaPrade, his pastor, was with him in his last illness, and conversed with him freely. He expressed himself with great confidence. The way before him was bright, and he died in triumph. A good man has gone to his reward. We hope Dr. LaPrade, or some one well acquainted, will give us a suitable memoir. The bereaved family have our sympathy and prayers.

We respectfully request secretaries, reporters and authors of long essays, and other heavy matter, to pay postage in full. Several times recently we have been compelled to pay double postage before we could get the matter out of the postoffice, and once the stuff was not worth the envelope in which it was enclosed. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

PERSONAL.

Rev. C. D. Atkinson, of Parker Memorial, is in Asheville, N. C., attending a meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association. He has been absent about two weeks.

Rev. R. E. Dickenson, of the Tennessee Conference, has been accepted by the Board of Missions for the foreign work, and appointed to labor in Mexico. He will leave shortly for his appointment.

Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Tupelo, has been in Birmingham a week, or more, assisting Rev. Theo. Copeland in a meeting at St. Paul. The Alabama Advocate says the meeting was a success. Brother Bowen is a great revivalist.

A note from Rev. N. G. Augustus informs us that Bishop Key will hold the Holly Springs District Conference at Potts Camp, July 10-13. We would like much to be present and mingle again with old friends and parishioners.

Rev. J. L. Jordan, superintendent of the Seashore Camp Ground, is busily engaged putting the grounds in order for the approching camp meeting. He expects to have everything in order by the ninth of July, at which time the meeting opens.

Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan is making full proof of his ministry, and showing that at least one man who has been in the presiding eldership a long time is neither a "back number," nor worn out in the service. When it comes to hard work, he can equal many younger men.

Rev. P. H. Fontaine, pastor of Dryades Street Church, is spending this week at Ascension, helping Brother McManus in a meeting. Dr. Keener, the presiding elder, is just from Ascension, where he preached six times. He reports a good meeting; eight or ten conversions, and prospects bright.

Rev. J. W. Dorman, of the Columbus district, in a note to the editor, among other things, says: "The work on the district goes steadily, and, considering the dry weather, encouragingly. I am holding some good Quarterly Conferences, notwithstanding a third failure in a corn crop is imminent."

Rev. H. T. Gaines, of Kosciusko, on account of an affection of the throat, feels under necessity of taking a rest. His people have kindly voted him time and rations for a vacation. He is now on the coast, and will probably spend his rest-time at Seashore Camp Ground. We feel sure that a few weeks stay on the ground would greatly help him.

Will the preachers-in-charge please have written reports prepared to present at the first meeting, so that committees and the Conference can have them at once? Also urge local preachers to come; also see that Quarterly Conference records are present.

Those named as leaders will open the subject to the Conference, and select speakers, if need be. Let all members study these subjects with live interest, and make their consideration a profit to the Conference.

W. T. J. SULLIVAN, P. E.

JNO. W. BOSWELL.

Good Work at Dallas.

The Pastor's Association of Dallas, Texas, recently invited Bishop Galloway to visit the city and address a mass meeting in the interest of Local Church Extension. The invitation was accepted. The Texas Advocate says:

"At the time appointed a great congregation gathered to hear the eloquent words of the Bishop. He was introduced by Rev. I. W. Clark, the presiding elder of the district. The Bishop spoke for an hour, and it is conceded that no such important deliverance has been heard in this city for years. He went to the very bottom of things, and pointed out the problems of the city population, and dwelt upon the importance of united action upon the part of all Methodists to work as one man in the planting of other church organizations in the proper places throughout the city. The address left a profound impression upon the great congregation, and it will bear fruit in the near future. We are glad to say that Dallas Methodists are becoming more and more united in their purpose to locate and build up two or three more churches in such localities in the city as the local Church Extension Society will agree upon. They will build for the future, and make no mistakes in locating their enterprises."

Dallas is a large and growing city. It is full of enterprise and enthusiasm. It is already a city of fine churches, and many of them, but more are needed. We shall, if spared, watch this Methodist movement with more than ordinary interest. The plan agreed upon is the only plan that can successfully plant and develop strong churches. We have hurt ourselves in some places beyond calculation by building mission chapels with money furnished by rich congregations. It is time to quit making such non-paying investments.

Dr. Ward at Vanderbilt.

On Sunday morning, June 15, a representative gathering of the intelligent people of Nashville, with many visitors from abroad, heard the plain story of the old gospel preached in the old way. Rev. Seth Ward, D. D., is, comparatively speaking, a stranger in Nashville. To preach to a strange congregation on a special occasion is a severe test. We are glad to assure the many friends of Dr. Ward that he had sufficient balance to keep to the main issue. It was sound in exegesis, couched in clear, undecorated English, given out with deliberate and effective elocution, breathing deep and strong the studies of a man familiar with the conflicts and struggles of his time—the sickness of his kind, and well acquainted with the remedy. It was an excellent example of a just combination of evangelical fervor with high thinking.—Christian Advocate (Nashville).

Railroad Rates.

To Epworth Leaguers:

Rates of one and one-third fare on the certificate plan have been granted to delegates to the Mississippi State Epworth League Conference, to be held at Jackson, from all points within the State of Mississippi. All delegates are requested to observe carefully the following conditions:

1. Each person must purchase a first-class ticket (either limited or unlimited) to Jackson, Miss., at the regular rate, and at the same time procure a certificate. If through ticket can not be procured at the starting-point, the person should purchase to the most convenient point at which such ticket can be obtained, and there repurchase through to Jackson, procuring certificate from each agent from whom a ticket is purchased. Before returning from the meeting, if persons hold more than one certificate, both certificates should be signed by the secretary and vised by special agent.

2. It is necessary that certificates be procured, indicating that full fare has been paid for going passage and the route for which ticket or tickets for the return journey should be sold. No refund of fare can be expected because of failure to secure such certificates.

3. Tickets for the return will be sold at one third fare only to persons holding certificates duly signed by the secretary of the meeting and countersigned by the special agent appointed for that purpose.

4. No certificate will be honored that was issued in connection with ticket for going passage for which less than seventy-five cents was paid.

31ST ANNUAL CAMP MEETING

Seashore Camp Grounds.

Located on the Gulf Shore, with a frontage of 1,100 feet.

WILL OPEN (D. V.)

On Wednesday, July 9, next, and Continue for 8 or 10 Days.

The Grounds are opened April 1, and closed Nov. 1, for occupying cottages and reception of visitors. Modern and ample accommodations have been provided. The wharves and bath houses which were destroyed by last Summer's storms are being rebuilt, and other improvements made for the comfort and convenience of the large crowds which annually visit this refreshing and delightfully cool and bracing place of rest, free from malaria and contagious diseases.

The sea bathing is unsurpassed by any resort on the Mississippi Sound, while the supply of pure, sparkling drinking water is furnished by one of the finest of artesian wells, whose waters possess rare virtues.

The exhilarating sea breezes refresh the fatigued, and act as a tonic to the debilitated visitors from our smoke-enveloped and dust-stifling cities and towns. Boats for sailing and fishing always on hand. The drives along the seashore present magnificent views, and are over ten miles in length. Visitors are not expected to arrive or depart on the Sabbath day.

The L. and N. R. R. Company will place on sale the reduced rate of fare during the season, from all points on their lines, and secure a corresponding rate from all connecting lines. Tickets will be placed on sale July 5 to 17, inclusive, and be good to return on until Aug 31. Two daily mail trains stop at the Camp Grounds, besides the accommodation and excursion trains, during the entire Summer season. A fine hotel with a frontage of 175 feet, equipped with electric lights and all modern conveniences, has been erected.

All itinerant preachers of the Southern Methodist Church will be admitted into the grounds and provided with lodging accommodations in Wesley Hall free of charge.

The fourth Annual Tri State Epworth League Conference will be held on the Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 23, and continuing through Sunday, August 3. Reduced rates have also been obtained from the Louisville and Nashville railroad and connecting lines to this Conference. Tickets will be on sale from Monday, July 21, to Saturday, August 2, good to return until August 31. These Epworth League Conferences are growing in interest every year. All Leaguers and those interested in this work are earnestly invited to be present at the next Conference, which will no doubt be largely attended.

The usual entrance fee will be in force this season. No charge will be exacted for entrance on the Sunday of the Camp Meeting. A cordial invitation is extended to all who desire to attend the Camp Meeting and spend a while on the Camp Ground.

Persons wishing to secure accommodations before and during Camp Meeting, or rent cottages for the season, will please communicate with Rev. J. L. Jordan, Keeper Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or any of the following officers:

J. B. LEFTWICH, President, Mobile, Ala.

Aunt Mercy's Comfort Powder.

"Well, it does seem as if I had come to the end now."

Aunt Mercy sat cuddled up in a forlorn heap on her bed, and—of all things—with her bonnet on.

She was "Aunt" to everybody in the village, and lived in a tiny box of a house, where she kept herself in life's absolute necessities by little odd jobs of sewing, mending, nursing and cleaning, as her meager strength allowed. To-day, her small larder being utterly empty, she was about to go out to replenish it when she slipped and fell, spraining her ankle so badly that she could only manage to get upon the bed which was near and moan with pain. The jar was so great that she had not strength to do much more. There was no one within call, and she was not likely to have callers at that hour. It was then that she said to herself that the end of things seemed to have come.

"But," she added, presently, "it's only the end of my power, not the Lord's. I'm thankful for that. I wonder if I can't get some help out of my little box to-day. That's easy to reach if other things are not."

From a tiny box on the table near, she took at random a wee roll wrapped in bright tissue paper, and unfolded it. Inside the bright wrapping was a bit of writing paper with a few written words upon it. Her glasses were on the little table, too—another cause for gratitude—and Aunt Mercy read aloud from the scrap: "Jehovah-jireh—the Lord will provide."

"So he will," she thought, "and I'll just wait for him to do it, for there's nothing I can do now," and she lay back on her pillows faint with pain.

It seemed a long waiting-time to Aunt Mercy, but at last there came a tap at the door, and in answer to her weak call, a bright face looked in.

"Why, Aunt Mercy, what's the matter?" was Rose Lee's astonished question. She put down a basket she carried and hurried to the bedside. Soon she had the pitiful little story from Aunt Mercy's lips. "I've been waiting for the Lord to provide," she said, "and he has sent you, child. I'm so glad."

Capable Rose, whose father was the village doctor, knew what to do and how to do it, and soon had hot water to bathe the aching limb, while before and after this process she did what was needed for easing the sufferer.

"Mother has sent you some goodies in this basket," said the young girl, when there came a chance to speak of this, "and I'll run home in time to have father come and give you some medicine and bandage your ankle better this noon. He won't be at home before that, so it's no use going. I should think you would be in a fever by this time, with all this pain," and sweet Rose looked compassionate.

"Perhaps I would have been but for my comfort powder," said Aunt Mercy, smiling. She felt much easier now, but she had kept very quiet while waiting.

"Comfort powder?" exclaimed Rose, in a tone of inquiry.

"Here is the box which my niece sent me last week," was the answer, as the box full of bright little paper rolls was held up. "And here is the one I took before you came in." Aunt Mercy held up the written scrap, and Rose bent to read the words: "Jehovah-jireh—the Lord will provide." Then she looked at the little box bearing the label, "Comfort Powders," and admired the neat, bright little rolls inside.

"What a beautiful thought," she exclaimed. "What a sweet way to help."

"I've thought so ever since I got the box," said Aunt Mercy. "Every day I have gotten comfort out of it. It seems to come in a special way, when I take up one, not knowing what is inside, and unroll it, feeling sure that it will be something to help a body, whatever it is. But I never needed one so much nor found one to fit better than to day."

The thoughtful look deepened on Rose's face as she held the little box in her hand.

"I wonder if our Helping Hand Circle could not make some of these to send to the Old Ladies' Home in the city, especially for the sick ward;" she said, ponderingly. "Aunt Mary has been interested in the old ladies there for so long that we have come to care, too. We have done a good many things and have been waiting to find something new. This is the very thing."

"They are really comfort powders," said Aunt Mercy; "for every promise comes true some time, somehow, as this one did to-day. I am sure it kept me quiet till you came, and then the Lord provided care, and help, and food, and"—she looked lovingly at a little nosegay of home flowers that had come out of the basket—"even posies, too, to make me happy, though I did not need those to eat or to wear. How good He is."

Aunt Mercy had the best of care after this, you may be sure, and one day the Helping Hand Circle met with her to choose texts for the Comfort Powders that by and by gladdened many a troubled heart as they went on their mission.

"And we can take these powders ourselves, as well as send them on," said Rose, "which is more than father can do with all his medicines."—Julia H. Johnston, in the Presbyterian.

A Child's Dream of Heaven.

"I dreamed," said little Ellen, "that I stood outside the gate of Heaven, and looked in. The gate was all made of precious stone, but I could see through it. I could see the street, and it was all pure gold. I saw angels who were playing on harps, and I heard such singing as I never heard on earth. They were all singing the same words, but I could not tell what they were. As I was looking God spoke to me. He asked me if I had a new heart. I told him I did not know. He said: If you have not, you can not come in here; but if you will go back to earth and pray for it, you shall have one; and I will send an angel and bring you up here. So I went back to earth, and went into a closet, and as I was praying an angel came and took me, and put me in one side of his bosom, and dear sister Annie in the other, and carried us up to heaven. You don't know how sweet we looked, tucked in his bosom like two little flowers. When we came to the gate an angel opened it for us, and we went in. Before, when I heard the music, I thought I never could sing like that; but the moment I was in I could sing as well as any of them. Angels were all the while coming, bringing little babes in their bosoms, and the moment they were in they would sing as loud and sweet as the rest. I saw my mother, and she looked glorious and beautiful. She was sitting on a little stool covered with silver, playing on a harp and singing, oh! so sweetly. Grandmother, too, was there, and, oh! Annie, her wrinkles were all gone, and she looked as young as you do, and her face shone, and she was singing, too. I said: Grandmother, there was great weeping when you left earth. She said: Yes; but I would not like to go back. I saw Jesus sitting on a throne and angels were worshiping him. When I saw how beautiful, bright and glorious everything was, I wished I had never sinned."

In twelve short chapters sets forth in outline the religious condition of the world, the dominant power of Christendom and its responsibility for the rest of mankind, the need and beneficence of mission work in heathen lands, and the best methods for its performance.

Barbee & Smith, Agts.,
Nashville, Tenn. Dallas, Tex.

I should like to ask the children who may read this if they think a little heathen girl, in dreaming, would have seen what Ellen did? It was because she had read the Bible, and had stored her mind with what it said of that blessed world, that such scenes visited her in her sleep. It was there she learned she could never enter heaven without a new heart. It was there she got such a vision of the Savior of the world and of the bliss of heaven that she wished she had never sinned.—Selected.

The Work That Is Never Done.

"If things would only stay done; if I could look back over the day and see one thing accomplished which will not have to be done over again to-morrow, I should not get so tired of it or feel so discouraged."

How many millions of wives and mothers have made some such comment as this on the monotony of household tasks! It is not alone the deadly sameness, the constant repetition of little duties! It is even more the feeling of futility, the apparent failure to accomplish any enduring results. The bread which was baked this morning will be gone to-morrow; the dishes are washed and put away, only to be used and washed again; the linen fresh from the ironing table will be back in the laundry by the end of the week; the rooms swept clean the other day already need sweeping; the children call for endless sympathy and attention.

A man's work may be ever so hard; it is less often clouded by this sense of unproductiveness. It usually brings a definite reward in the feeling of something accomplished, some tangible result achieved. The architect points to the finished building and says: "I designed it." The carpenter and the mason, who see the structure growing under their hands, know that it will stand for years, an unimpeached witness to their industry and faithfulness.

But the things which are tangible are not always those which are most real or most useful. There are other noble works besides fine buildings. The young man who goes out into the world healthy and clean-minded, strong in principles, which he acquired at home, and firm in the belief that there is no other woman in the world quite so good as his mother—he is a nobler work even than a Parthenon or a Taj Mahal. And the daughter who has grown to womanhood with a pure heart and hands trained to perpetuate in a new home the deeds of usefulness and comfort learned in the old—is she less to the world than brick and marble?

"Do you think that nothing is happening because you do not see yourself grow, or hear the whir of the machinery?" says Henry Drummond. "All the great things grow noiselessly; you can see a mushroom grow, but never a child."—Selected.

Queer Australian Birds' Nests.

The discovery of the nests and eggs of the magnificent rifle bird of Paradise in New South Wales was the chief event in the world of Australian naturalists a few years ago. The bird inhabits the dense scrubs, and has been known to science some seventy years. Both eggs and nests are peculiarly handsome. The eggs look for all the world as though an artist had been trying his color brushes on them; they are beautifully streaked with red and violet markings, on a ground color of delicate flesh tint.

The wonderful nests are always decorated with cast off snake skins, for the purpose of scaring away, by their terrible appearance, nest-robbing reptiles. They are very skillfully hidden where the scrub is most impenetrable. We have never noticed the shy, timid rifle bird of Paradise to alight on the ground; all of its food and nest-building materials are taken from the limbs and hollows of trees.

Another interesting inhabitant of the thick scrubs is the quaint scrub turkey, which collects for its nest a huge mass of dead leaves and sticks on the ground, in which the eggs are carefully laid and covered over, to be hatched by the heat of the decaying vegetable matter. I have seen as many as thirty large, white eggs in one nest.

In the scrub, too, builds the beautiful bower bird, whose habit it is to make a little playground for itself of thin sticks and twigs, stuck upright in the ground, and generally covered over at the top.

Inside the bower bird's "bower" is brightly decorated with small shells, bits of colored glass or china, when they can be found; colored feathers, berries, flowers, and leaves. Here, in these happy bowers, the birds continually play, especially just before their breeding season. A watch chain, lost by a surveyor, was found in one of these bowers, and sometimes coins have been discovered. —Pearson's Magazine.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

PURE REFINED PARAFFINE

Who Defined

"Soap-powder" in the Standard Dictionary? Sounds as if some old fashioned soap-maker had written it. Used in dish-water! Yes, and when it is PEARLINE, used in everything where soap can be used. PEARLINE is modern, up-to-date soap; a better soap; it has revolutionized the soap trade. 666

Ask Your Friend

Hearing God Speak.

How shall we hear God speak? Listen, if you would hear. No sound in nature can be heard by the deaf ear. No song of bird or voice of friend or tinkle of the rivulet's ripple comes to the ear that is sealed and stopped. He that would hear God must listen to his voice. Time and attention are necessary.

God never forces himself upon the indifferent soul. A little time alone with God every day is indispensable to those who would hear him speak. The man who never leaves his counting-room can not hear an oratorio. The student who never lifts his eyes or his attention from his books will never know the glories of Mendelssohn or Beethoven. The house-wife, in whose ears is always the clatter of pots and pans and kettles, will have no time or attention for a sweeter orchestra. So the man or woman who never listens to God's voice will never hear it.

This makes indispensable the quiet hour, the morning watch, the moments of silent communion until our senses have become so refined and our spiritual ears so attentive that, like Brother Lawrence, we can hear God's voice above the din of the market-place and the buzz of the school-room and the clatter of the kitchen.

The very familiarity of the voice of God in nature or his word may dull our accustomed ears to its sound, just as the roar of Niagara is never heard by those who live upon the banks of the Horseshoe Falls, and the whirr of the loom in the factory falls upon calloused ears. Because we are familiar with God's message in his house, with his written Word, with his songs of praise, we need all the more to stop and listen, that we may catch his individual message for our souls.

But God's voice must be obeyed as soon as heard, if we would hear him speak again. The truth that we know we must practice, and then more truth will be revealed. Then shall we go each day to the trysting place with new eagerness to listen for the voice of the Spirit.—F. E. Clark, in Independent.

Good Manners.

The Spartans taught their youths to speak the truth, honor their parents, and shoot straight. This training may have fitted them to shine in Spartan society, but nowadays most parents find that other virtues need to be inculcated in their children. A child may speak the truth and keep the Sabbath, and yet insist upon wiping its sticky fingers on our gowns or bawling in our ears. So, too, an adult may keep the letter of the Ten Commandments, and at the same time be a most disagreeable, uncomfortable companion. Most of us can endure an encroachment upon our rights better than some lapse of manner which jars upon our taste. Often there is a real agony when what Dr. Holmes calls the filaments of taste are struck, which is not equaled by pressure on the great nerves of right. People who would not defraud their fellow-mortals of a cent will rob them of their peace of mind by some act of bad taste, and not care.—Woman's Home Companion.

Gloomy Christians.

Faith and grace stand for good cheer, courage, and contentment. Despondency is a contradiction of blessed assurance and the lively hope of a true follower of the Lord. Satan has many ways of duping the children of light. One of his most successful methods is to hold up the dark side of things. If he can get a Christian under a spell of gloominess and keep him there, and then induce him to go about sowing seeds of discontent and discouragement among others, he has a good emissary.

Gloomy Christians can not grow until they get out into the sunlight of God's grace and shine for Christ, instead of exhibiting a long, cheerless, hopeless face in the name of religion. Wake up, cheer up, and be a light-bearer, a comfort to others, and not a vexation to the faithful of the Lord.

Prayer and personal activity in the Lord's work will chase away gloom, and tend to cultivate a cheerful, hopeful disposition of heart and mind. To think of God and to talk with him, and to study his will and his purposes concerning the redemption of the world, inspires faith and hope and courage, and brings joy and gladness, leaving no room for morbid sadness.—Evangelical Messenger.

Another mother in Israel, Mrs. SOPHIE CAMPBELL, has been called to her home. Reaching the wonderful age of fourscore years, she was enabled to round out a life vouchsafed to very few. Indeed, Mother Campbell's life had been one of beauteous Christianity; a life that had been in daily contact with the Master; a life like an open book read by all. No one but her Master above can tell of the hungry that were fed, the naked that were clothed, the sorrows assuaged by this loving Christian. This whole community will ever cherish her memory as a sweet-smelling savor. Her last day was, as she said, "her happiest day," as it crowned her with the crown of the righteous. With perfect confidence and rapture she obeyed the call, and with an unfaltering faith she drew the drapery of her couch about her and laid down to pleasant sleep, to awake in her Father's mansion. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

The neatest thing I ever saw was a deer in his new coat of blue—not a particle of dust or of soil, from the tips of his new horns to the tips of his sharp, transparent hoofs. Everything in nature is daintily exclusive. She abhors a slouch. It is esteemed unpleasant work, this clearing away of dirt, litter and garbage; but nature, like a spongy woman, goes at it with a high spirit and cheerful resolve.—From Musings by Camp-Fire and Wayside, by W. C. Gray.

Christianity calls for a ministry that aims not at drawing crowds, but at saving souls. A large congregation is a means, not an end. Christ has regard, not to the number, but to the character of the audience. He estimates his servants, not by their attractive power, but by their fidelity. His church is to be built up by those who rely upon his methods and use them to the purest and highest advantage.—Exchange.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE—A REMARKABLE HISTORY.

BY BISHOP CHARLES B. GALLOWAY.

At the recent commencement this vigorous young college closed the tenth year of its rather phenomenal life. A decade does not usually count for a great deal in the life of an institution. Many years are necessary for its development and equipment, for its growth in the confidence of the educational world and its ability to meet the demands of the age. But all this has been reversed in the speedy maturity of Millsaps College and in the really wonderful history it has already written.

In the first place, its founding was not an impulse, but of deliberate and prayerful purpose. There was much careful and devout counsel before decision and determination. Its imperative need became a divine conviction. Then, and not till then, did the work begin. Never a brick was laid, or a movement made, until the way of Providence seemed unmistakably clear. And every year's splendid history of the college has abundantly vindicated the wisdom and timeliness of its planting.

Its founders, with unusual forethought, determined, first, to secure some substantial endowment before the erection of a single building or the selection of a faculty. Colleges for young men must have generous income in addition to the receipts from tuition. Such faculties of instruction as are demanded for genuine collegiate work can not be supported without endowment. Because of this wise forecast, Millsaps College was able to secure for the very first session an able faculty of professionally-trained men, unsurpassed by any college or university of the Southwest. This has commanded the confidence of the educational world, and of thoughtful parents who are determined to give their sons the best collegiate advantages. A high standard of scholarship has been jealously maintained, and will be. In this respect our college has made a real and large contribution to the educational forces of the country. Already her graduates have taken honorable rank as scholars and teachers in the schools and colleges of the South. We make not the slightest reservation, therefore, in offering our patrons the very best collegiate advantages. Of course, no assurance can be given that each student will share to the fullest the excellent advantages furnished. Not all the universities of the world can make scholars out of some boys. But it is undoubtedly true that if anywhere in our great Southwest a young man can secure the best collegiate training, he has that opportunity in the class-rooms and library of Millsaps College.

The attendance, from the initial term, has been most gratifying, exceeding, indeed, the largest anticipations of most sanguine friends. Scarcely less than two hundred have matriculated any year, the largest enrollment of the entire decade being the last. And among these we have had the very flower of our Christian homes. Some have gone out to command already high place and extensive influence in their several callings and chosen professions. The college can point with pardonable pride to the noble sons she has trained. Names are too numerous to call. Upon everyone I invoke a divine blessing, and for each I feel a paternal interest.

Upon the new decade we enter with quickened zeal and enlarged hopes, because of our greatly increased facilities. On the first day of July we come into possession of additional college property connected with our campus, secured at a cash outlay of forty thousand dollars. This gives us about eleven acres of land, with three excellent buildings, one an imposing brick structure capable of accommodating over a hundred young men, besides a chapel and class rooms. It is well furnished, with a steam-heating plant and every modern convenience.

It has always been the aim of the college authorities to provide the best education at the lowest possible cost to each student. Our chief concern has been for the worthy poor. Of course, the sons of the wealthy have no occasion for special sympathy. We have, therefore, sought, while providing the best professional instruction in the class-room, to put board and other necessary expenses down to a minimum price. Cottages have been built, in which young men have lived for six or seven dollars a month. A few heroic spirits have even lowered these figures, while taking high rank in their classes. All honor to such imperial manliness!

Now it is proposed to carry out this purpose on a larger scale. The splendid new building, which is to be thoroughly refitted and furnished with heavy furniture, will be in charge of Prof. A. H. Shannon, a graduate of Millsaps College and of Vanderbilt University. When at the Vanderbilt he had charge of Wesley Hall for two years, and conducted it with gratifying success. He knows the struggles of young men, and can enter into their life. In this building, to be known hereafter as "Founder's Hall," in honor of the last munificent gift of our noble friend, Major Millsaps, table board will be furnished for seven dollars a month. For the rooms in that building, including heating, a small fee will be charged. In the cottages living expenses may be even further reduced. The boarding-houses on and adjoining the campus will continue to furnish Christian homes for young men at a very moderate cost. So the whole question of expense is now happily met. We hail the coming of boys who have character and ambition, but little money to spend and none to squander. Of such will be the kingdom of God in this world.

There has been very little occasion for criticism of the college during these ten toilsome years. In only a few instances have unworthy young men found entrance, and they have not been allowed to long remain. Every proper effort will continue to be made by a vigilant and splendid faculty to guard each student against evil communications, and guide his feet in the path of manly honor and personal salvation.

The next term ought to be, and must be, the very best in the brilliant history of Millsaps College.

Jackson, Miss., June 23, 1902.

OFF OF THE DISTRICT.

To the great surprise of the writer, he was informed by certain parties that it was the purpose of the district to get rid of him for a season, notwithstanding the Discipline provides for such action at our approaching Conference. No appeal to Cæsar, or any other tribunal, seemed to afford relief from the verdict which had gone forth: the presiding elder must go, or answer to a grave charge; so on Monday morning, May 12—not without purse or scrip—we mounted the West-bound A. and V., an exile from home and field of labor,

ON PLEASURE BENT.

When the great engine pulled out of the depot at Jackson, we became assured that a day of no little pleasure was before us. The morning was bright and the weather was inviting. On board the train we found the genial, accommodating traveling agent of the road, to whom we are indebted for many courtesies. Having passed this way some ten years ago, we were anxious to review the scenes of that journey. But little change was observable. The famous Grant's Canal would not have been detected but for the large board which announces its presence. The very sight of this relic of a most daring campaign revived all the feelings of horror which made my boyish blood run cold during the siege of that historic city. We fancied that we could hear the roll of the cannon and the sudden burst of the mortar shells as they reached us at our country home during those days of anxious concern for those who represented us in the ranks of the gray.

The next point of interest was a long lake lying parallel with the railroad, which, upon this occasion, as at the first, presented a scene worthy of a poet's pen. As ours is not such, we shall not attempt its description of limpid water covered with the broad leaves of the water lily, and they themselves crowned with the beautiful flowers of golden and white—a picturesque scene not soon to be forgotten.

Failing of connections at Shreveport, the writer spent a most enjoyable evening with relatives and friends of other days. Not at all to our surprise did we find these greatly interested in the success of Methodism, and greatly in love with Pastor Bowling. Just at that time the Doctor was making things interesting for some characters in the city.

Resuming our travels over the T. and P. at 9 P. M., when we looked out upon the daylight again, we had passed over into the borders of the Empire of Texas, and at seven o'clock Tuesday morning debarked at the depot in Dallas in time to make all preparations for the General Conference room. The point of our destination,

TEXAS.

Texas is a world within herself. When contemplating a visit to this great State, one is conscious of a feeling of vastness which is indescribable, and as he whirls on and on over the vast prairies and through tens of thousands of acres in flourishing farms, the impression of vastness grows deeper still, until one is impressed that to leave Texas is to go out into illimitable space. He sees trains no longer held to mother earth by bands of steel, but flying on and on to light in some vaster region, he knows not where.

For lack of rains in the early Spring the oat and wheat crops did not promise a large yield, but such prospects for corn and cotton crops we thought we had never seen, even in our boasted Yazoo Delta. We were almost ready to condemn ourselves for remaining out of Texas, but when we learned that months upon months frequently passed without a drop of rainfall, our doubts began to enter, and when, in response to a father's boasting of the greatness of Texas, we heard the reply from the devoted daughter, "Father, you know that we have had broods of chickens to hatch, grow to maturity, and to come to the table, which never saw a drop of rain," our Texas fever began to cool. Our Mississippi climatic education was too deeply set for this.

One feature impressed us, at least, as to that part of the State which it was our privilege to see: that Texas is largely a white man's country, evidenced not only by the actual laborers which we saw, but from the condition of farms, farm-houses, teams, and improved tools used upon the farms. I was never so forcibly struck with the expression, "one-horse farmer," as when I looked upon the great number on their riding-plows turning out a row at a "through," and the man following the one mule in the good old Mississippi style.

The only Sunday out we spent with our old friend and school-fellow, Werlein, in Fort Worth, where the Texas State League was in session. Though fully three decades have passed since we took leave of each other at old Emory and Henry, in Virginia, we found him the same genial, joyous, spirited Halsey, full of reminiscences and fun. As yet, time has left no trace upon him, and he is in great favor with his large congregation.

Either of school-boy days or of maturer years we met quite a number of former acquaintances who now live in Texas. Indeed, it became an interesting question with us as to whom we would meet next. It is only reasonable that so new a State should be peopled largely from other sections. One thing was apparent: all had a good word for Texas. If any were disappointed with Texas, we failed to discover it. Well, Texas is a big thing—too big for further discussion in such a communication—and the people of Dallaa think their city is the biggest thing in all Texaa.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

In response to the brother who enjoined upon us to write our impressions of the General Conference, we can better reply in the words of the World's Fair visitor, "You just ought to been there." I could easily exhaust all the better adjectives of the English language, and then fail to give my impressions of the personnel. Many great men were there, and, of course, some not so great. As in our Annual Conferences, some were recognized as leaders, and seemed to love it; others said little, but evidently had all matters clearly before them. Some were loquacious, speaking on all questions; some less conspicuous, but all heard when on the floor. To those of us who were on the outside things did not alwaya go as we thought best, and then, of course, we felt irrepressibly inclined to use our prerogatives as Methodist preachers, and speak out in meeting, but we held our peace. There were statesmen there who were, or are, the equals of any in our congressional halls. Such talent would do credit to any position in our great Republic. While at times there was spirited discussions of the great questions which came before the body, we did not see anything to justify the charge of a rancorous, unbrotherly spirit which was sought to be made by the public press. Grave questions were to be settled, and while all were not satisfied with the conclusions, we were impressed that all were willing to abide the decision in the spirit of brotherly affection.

As to further impressions, I would refer the reader, without permission, to the communication of Dr. Keener in a recent issue of the ADVOCATE.

And now to the brethren of the district, let me, by this means, tender my thanks for your generous expression of affection, assuring you that I shall ever hold in loving memory the days when you banished me from your midst, and at the same time served me as your guest. Many times did I wish for your presence and companionship.

Fraternally,

T. B. HOLLOMAN.

LETTER FROM CHINA.

THE EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF CHINA.

It will be interesting to all friends of missionary work in China to know that the missionaries who are especially engaged in educational work, which also includes the preparation and publication of school and textbooks, have associated themselves together in a society, called The Educational Association of China. This association was organized at the General Missionary Conference in 1890. Previous to that time there had been in existence since 1877 a committee called the School and Text-Book Series Committee, whose sole work was the preparation and publication of school and text-books in Chinese. When the Educational Association was organized the work of the School and Text-Book Series Committee, together with all their property, consisting of books, plates, maps, charts, etc., was turned over to the Educational Association, which has been carrying on the work of preparing, publishing and selling school books ever since. The association numbers now some 230 members. According to the constitution, all Protestant missionaries in China, who are or have been engaged in school work or in the preparation of school books, are eligible to membership. The constitution provides for an educational convention to meet in Shanghai every three years. At these meetings papers are read, by previously appointed writers, on the many subjects that grow out of the educational situation in China, which are followed by discussions, and often by action in the way of appointment of committees, or otherwise, in order to put into operation the purposes of the convention along the lines indicated in the discussions. Much stimulus has been given to the educational work by means of these meetings during the past twelve years. The papers that have been prepared and published in the Records of the association have been valuable contributions to educational work in China. Quite a number of school books on mathematics, science, history, geography, etc., have been prepared by members of the association and others, and published by the association, and the work in this department is extending rapidly. Newer and better books are being made to take the place of those which, by reason of limitations necessarily surrounding first attempts, have been found more or less defective. The sales of the association's publications have, during the last few years especially, increased very rapidly, amounting to some $14,000 (Mexican) during the three years ended Dec. 31, 1901.

The fourth triennial meeting of the association is now in session in Shanghai, having formally opened Wednesday morning, May 21. More than one hundred delegates are in attendance from various parts of China, including Peking on the north and Hainan on the south, and a number of places up the Yangtse river. As an indication of the scope of such a meeting, the following are some of the subjects placed on the programme for treatment at this time: How Can We Help Officials to Secure Such a Knowledge of Western Subjects as Will Fit Them for the New Regime? What Can Be Done to Reach the Great Scholar Class in China? Christian Education in Relation to Educational Reform, Kindergarten, Day Schools, How to Teach the Chinese to Sing, A Lesson on Voice Production, Romanization, The Great Need of Competent Native Teachers, New Methods of Teaching Chinese, Teaching English in Mission Schools, How to Teach Useful Trades and Professions, Industrial Schools for Women and Girls, Medical Schools for Women, Training-schools for Christian Workers, Training-schools for Women and Others.

Several problems now confront us which require some action on the part of the Educational Association. Among others is the question of religious toleration in government schools, to which I have referred in previous letters. It is thought by many that a strong representation from this association, presented through the diplomatic body in Peking to the Chinese Government, would have a very material influence in securing religious toleration for Christian students in all the government institutions that have been, or will be, established in China. The relation of missionaries to educational work, and especially government schools, is another question that is perplexing the missionary educators in China. Along with the effort at forcing the worship of Confucius on Christian students in government schools there comes also a manifest purpose, on the part of the conservative leaders in the government, to dismiss the missionaries that have hitherto been employed by them in the management of their schools. There is also becoming apparent a feeling that the missionary is looked down upon as incompetent to do the special work that is required in government schools. The source of this feeling is chiefly in a young man named Tseng, son of the former Marquis Tseng, who has been educated in England. He is now the chief adviser of the chancellor of the Peking University, and his influence over the chancellor is said to be almost absolute. This young man affects to look down upon the missionary educators as not being up-to-date in educational methods, etc.; and it is said that the tendency in the direction of refusing the assistance of missionaries in government educational work is the result of this young upstart's advice.

Another problem before the association is the introduction of a system for writing the Chinese language in Roman letters. The feeling among the missionaries is growing that in order to extend the benefits of common school education among the poorer classes, a simpler way of writing the spoken language of the country than by means of the character is absolutely necessary, and an effort is being made to devise a system of spelling all the sounds in the various dialects according to a uniform method. This Romanization system in different forms has been in use in Swatow, Amoy, Ningpo, and other places, and has been found to be of great value in teaching children and women and the poorer classes of adults, generally, to read, thus giving them access to the Bible, the hymn book, and such simple school books on geography, arithmetic, etc., as have been published in the Romanized. The object of the association now is to define a system that will be of universal application, so as to simplify and unify, as far as possible, the writing of the sounds of the various dialects in Roman letters.

Another question before the association is as to what can be done to influence the great scholar class in China, in the first place, to obtain a general knowledge of Christianity; and, in the second place, to help those among the scholar class who are looking forward to becoming officials to obtain a knowledge of those subjects which it is necessary for them to know, in order that they may be able to adapt themselves to the new regime that is now coming on in China. This great scholar class and these expectant officials are the real rulers of China. They form public opinion; they lead the masses; they are stronger than the officials and the Central Government; and to influence them in the right way is to accomplish a mighty work for Christian education in China.

A further account of the educational convention will be given in a future letter. A. P. PARKER.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION IV.

In the next (fifth) section I shall consider the commission, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them," etc., given by the Savior to his apostles. Therefore, in this, as the most fitting time and place, I shall consider "proselyte baptism" as practiced by the Jews at the time the commission was given. To know that the Jews practiced baptism before Christ instituted it, that they made proselytes from "all nations," and that they administered it to infants, will make the commission much plainer to us.

Baptism was no new ordinance when our Lord instituted it as the initiatory rite into his church, though he gave it a particular designation. It had been in use among the Jews for many centuries before. The practice of the Lord was to adapt existing customs to his own use and purpose. The "broken bread" and "cup of blessing" of the former dispensations were turned by him to his own purpose, carrying with them none of the authority whatever of their original use. And it may be remembered that he adopted no new form of worship for the congregations of his people, but allowed them to follow the customs of the synagogues in this important respect. Circumcision would not meet the demands, since visible church membership was extended to females as well as to males; hence he adopted baptism as he found it practiced by the Jews. It was used by them as an ordinance of purification, and was administered to proselytes of both sexes.

When we appeal to the practices which were familiar, we do not intimate that Jesus Christ learned from them, or founded his institutions upon them; nor do we suppose that, so far as he adopted them, or allowed his disciples to follow them, he attached to them the same meaning, in every respect, that the Jews did. But why should we not suppose that the custom of the Jews, with reference to the baptism of proselytes, would not effect the minds of the apostles in construing and applying the words of the great commission to "disciple all nations, baptizing them"? There is not only no reason for disallowing this, but the highest reason for it; and this is all we claim in our appeal to proselyte baptism. We simply claim that Christ and his disciples were familiar with it as a Jewish rite, and that, in adapting baptism to the gospel purpose, he took it as he found it, gave a new meaning and application to it, and yet that he did not prohibit its application to infants, which was the practice, as we shall proceed to show.

"Divers baptisms" spoken of in the New Testament, as recorded in Heb. ix, 10, were very common among the Jews almost from the beginning of their history.

Bishop S. M. Merrill says: "The Talmudic writings of the Jews speak of this practice, and some look upon it as coming down from the days of Jacob."

The Talmud of Babylon says: "When a proselyte is received, he must be circumcised; and when he is cured, they baptize him in the presence of two wise men, saying, 'Behold, he is an Israelite in all things.'"

The Jerusalem Mishna says: "If a girl, born of heathen parents, be made a proselyte after she is three years and a day old," then she is to be denied certain privileges.

Maimonides, one of the greatest of the Jews since the exile, says: "Israel was admitted into covenant by three things, namely: by circumcision, baptism, and sacrifice, if a man: but if a woman, then by baptism and sacrifice. Baptism was in the wilderness before the giving of the law." Again: "Abundance of proselytes were made in the days of David and Solomon before private men, and the great Sanhedrim was full of care about this business, for they would not cast them out of the church, because they were baptized." (Issure Biah., c. 13) He says further: "They baptize also young children. They baptize a little proselyte according to the judgment of the Sandhedrim; that is, as the gloss renders it, if he be deprived of his father, and his mother brings him to be made a proselyte, they baptize him. . . . If an Israelite find a Gentile child, or a Gentile infant, and baptize him, behold, he is a proselyte." (Maim. in Avid., c. 8.)

Dr. Lightfoot says: "They baptize young children, for the most part, with their parents."

The Mishna, which dates back to near the time of Christ, and is a faithful compilation of older Jewish writings and oral traditions, and unquestionably gives the most accurate and minute ideas of the Jewish doctrines and religious rites accessible, gives testimony to the practice of baptizing infants.

Rabbi Joseph says: "When they grow into years, they may retract; where the gloss writes this, this is to be understood of little children, who are made proselytes with their fathers."

Watson says: "This baptism of proselytes, as Lightfoot has fully shown, was a baptism of families, and comprehended their infant children."

Dr. Clarke says: "The apostles knew well that the Jews not only circumcised the children of proselytes, but also baptized them. The children, and even infants of proselytes, were baptized among the Jews."

Dr. Wall, in his "History of Infant Baptism," says: "The Jews had already, and a long time ago, the baptism of the law and of Moses; that if any proselyte who came over to the Jewish religion, and was baptized into it, had any infant children then born to him, they also, at the father's desire, were circumcised and baptized, and admitted as proselytes."

Numerous other authorities could be cited, but I deem these sufficient to establish the fact that proselyte baptism was practiced by the Jews from almost, if not quite, their earliest history, and that infants were baptized the same as were adults. However, with these already cited, agree Selden, Dantz, Whetstein, Beza, Buxtorf, and Whitsius—men of the highest repute for learning, and who have examined the subject thoroughly from the most original sources.

At the time of Christ, and before his day, the spirit of proselyting ran high. To this the Savior alluded in his withering rebuke (Matt. xxiii, 15), "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte; and when he is made, ye make him twofold more the child of hell than yourselves."

Their religion was then popular, and they were in a condition to make proselytes, and did it; but in a few years all was changed with them.

"In laying down the conditions of discipleship, it is well known that Christ had particular reference to the conditions of receiving proselytes among the Jews; so that there can be no doubt that he adapted to his use all that was capable of adaptation in their practices."

The fact that the Jews were acquainted with baptism is why John's baptism elicited no inquiry and effected no surprise. Hence, they went to John, not to ask the meaning of a new and unknown practice, but to ask, "Who art thou?" And upon being told that he was not the Christ, nor Elias, nor that prophet for whom they were looking, they ask, "Why baptizest thou then?" Here we have satisfactory evidence that the Jews were then acquainted with the rite, and that it was employed in making disciples.

It need not surprise us, then, in view of the fact that the Jews were looking for the Messiah, and were acquainted with the initiatory rite of baptism, that "There went out unto him (John) all the land of Judæa, and they of Jerusalem"—infants as well, for all went out—"and were all baptized of him." Infants likewise being baptized, for all went out and all were baptized, as had been the custom. And this occurred before the so-called "believers' baptism" of the Anti-Pedobaptist was given.

This section will close with a lengthy, but pointed quotation from Bishop S. M. Merrill: "There is no disputing the fact that the Jews practiced baptism—infant baptism, too—in a short time after the apostolic age. Whence did they derive the practice? They did not learn it from the pagans, for pagans did nothing of the kind; and their national repugnance to paganism forbids the idea that they copied it from heathen ceremonies. The truth is, the origin of the practice, among Jews or Christians, is absolutely unaccountable, except on the hypothesis here presented. The opposition have never been able to find a period in the history of Judaism or Christianity when infant baptism was certainly unknown or rejected; and no reasonable hypothesis has ever been devised to account for its origin as an innovation, while the whole line of concurrent tradition, with Judaism and Christianity, assigns it an origin in the imperative requirements of the law, long anterior to the time of Christ. The probabilities in favor of the correctness of this account of its origin are at least as a thousand to one. Indeed, when the full force of the cumulative testimony is gathered into one view and compared with the utter barrenness of the opposing assumptions, I see not how candid minds, accustomed to balancing probabilities and weighing testimony, can possibly be in doubt. All the conditions are favorable to this view, while enough of the factors in the problem are substantiated by testimony to render the conclusion next to inevitable." (Christian Bap., pages 130 and 131.)

ADDENDA.

A few days ago a clipping from the Mississippi Baptist, of May 30, was handed to us. Its author is a Baptist preacher. In the clipping we find these words: "It is impossible for baptism and other outward performance to secure salvation. They follow it." That is the Bible with reference to baptism, and precisely what we teach. Baptism does not save an infant—it is already saved from birth; therefore, it is ready for baptism at once. Baptism follows salvation, but not like Peter following the Savior, "afar off."

Query: If an adult must be saved before eligible to baptism, and an infant is saved, what is the difference between the two? If two persons, a man and an infant, were in a burning building, without clothes on, and some one should run in, pick up the helpless, unconscious infant, and save it from the flames, and others should call to the man to jump from the window into an outstretched netting, and he would be saved, and he believed it and jumped, and was saved, can any Baptist metaphysician tell me the difference between the two results? Which is the most saved, and should the man be given clothes, and the infant left without any? We await an early answer to these questions.

DIDN'T YOU KNOW

That John the Baptist said he baptized with water, but Christ baptized with the Holy Ghost? That Christ always baptizes with the Holy Ghost, but never with water? That man always baptizes with water, but never with the Holy Ghost? That the baptism of the Holy Ghost initiates into the invisible or spiritual church, and not the visible or earthly church? That the baptism of water initiates into the visible or earthly church, and not the invisible? That the visible church is but the type of the invisible? That water baptism only symbolizes as a sign and seal the baptism of the Holy Ghost? That Christ baptizes with the Holy Ghost by "pouring out upon," "shedding upon," or, in other words, by affusion? That the baptism of water, to typify this, must be by affusion? That Christ has initiated infants into his invisible church by baptizing them with his Spirit? And that infants, therefore, ought to be initiated into the visible church by baptizing them with water? Why should man refuse to do his part, if Christ does his?

LEAGUE READING COURSE.

BY MISS MARY PRICE.

It has been said that books are foremost among the superior teachers that God has given to man. It is through the medium of the printed page alone that we have access to the store-houses of the learning of the past ages, as well as to those of the present day. By the reading of books we may reap the benefit of the thoughts, observations and discoveries of great men in all ages. To cultivate and broaden the mind, therefore, reading is essential. "To read well—that is, to read true books in a true spirit—is a noble exercise," says Thoreau. And this is profitable for us to consider. In order to read aright, we must first choose good books. This is the time when "of the making of many books there is no end," and we find the good and the bad intermixed in books as well as in other things. Just as there are in the world many different kinds of people—good, bad, and indifferent—just so in the world of literature there are all sorts of books. This mixture of the true and the false, the sound and the spurious, the weak and the strong, goes to form what is called literature in general.

Let us consider the attitude of our Epworth League Reading Course toward literature in general. Let us look at it, first, as a selected course. There can be no doubt as to the literary worth or moral tone of these books, for we know that they have been carefully selected by some of the wise men of our church.

This matter of selecting suitable books is one requiring much discrimination. Not only must it be viewed from a negative side, and the books chosen be such as will in no way injure the mind or vitiate the taste of the young; the committee must go further, and give us such reading matter as will help to strengthen the mind and cultivate a taste for higher and better things.

The books of our course must be such as can be enjoyed by the more intelligent of our members. At the same time they should not be such that their purport and teachings can not be grasped by the less thoughtful. These books are adapted to our several needs, each being of a different nature. Each is a standard work, among the best of its sort. Each will help in some way—perhaps, in many ways—any who will give the necessary time and thought to the study of its contents.

Second, let us consider our Reading Course in the attitude of a gateway into the field of good literature, and as a path leading from books that are bad or frivolous. Anyone giving careful reading to these books must necessarily be impressed in some way by them. This will create or strengthen a desire for more reading of a like character.

Who can read "Evangelization of the World in This Generation," and not feel moved to inquire more deeply into and seek more information upon the vital question of missions?

Where is the Leaguer who, having read "The Christ of our Poets," does not long to come more closely in touch with those master minds who have so beautifully set forth in verse their belief in our universal Savior, and their conception of the gospel of holiness and love?

Then, too, we have "The Sky Pilot"—a book which will serve to implant a taste for the true and beautiful in fiction.

The reading of "Self-Culture" alone will be a great means of broadening in a literary sense. It calls for so much of research among the different branches of learning.

The books of this year's course have been mentioned merely by way of illustration, for each year's course is of the best.

These are the two leading thoughts which have come to me in regard to the question under discussion: The wisdom of having a course of reading selected and set apart from literature in general—set apart for our workers, many of whom have not minds sufficiently trained and mature to choose what is best for themselves; and the second—this course serves to, or at least helps to, develop those untrained and immature minds, and to strengthen those already accustomed to reading and thinking for themselves.

"MOTHER OF PREACHERS' WIVES."

If Rome is the "Mother of Nations," Virginia the "Mother of Presidents," the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE the "Mother of Bishops," certainly Vicksburg Methodism can claim the proud title of "Mother of Preachers' Wives." A facetious member of Crawford Street Church, Vicksburg, once remarked, apropos the attentions of a certain bachelor itinerant to one of our prettiest girls, "I wonder if M—— thinks this church is to furnish wives for all the preachers in the Mississippi Conference?" This speech has often recurred to the writer with increasing force, especially since the layman's own lovely daughter joined the glorious band of parsonage heroines.

Away back in the early days of Vicksburg, Rev. Newet Vick, founder of the town, gave his oldest daughter, Sallie, in marriage to the Rev. John Lane. This sainted pair have long since entered into their blessed heritage. Amanda, a younger daughter of Mr. Vick, became the helpmeet of that promoted prince in Israel, Dr. Chas. K. Marshall. In the light of the eventide Mrs. Marshall yet lingers in her father's nametown, quietly awaiting the call homeward.

Some time in the "fifties," at the first wedding in the old church, Miss Lucy Lundie gave her hand and heart to Rev. W. P. Barton. The devoted husband has passed to the church triumphant, where he awaits the faithful wife who is enjoying the twilight of her radiant and beautiful day.

In the days of girlhood fair Hattie Willis lived adjacent to Vicksburg, and used to attend the Crawford Street Sunday-school. This winsome maiden afterward became the wife of our own beloved Bishop, Charles B. Galloway.

One of my earliest memories is the beautiful church wedding of the lovely Miss Emmie White, when she plighted her troth to Rev. H. W. Featherstun, now pastor of Moss Point.

In 1889 Miss Janie Cook said a happy "Yes" to Rev. Robert Selby, who, with his brave little wife, is now comfortably enscouced in the parsonage at Brandon.

In 1891 Miss Juliet Howe and Rev. Nolan B. Harmon were united for life, and this itinerant pair may be found serving the church in the beautiful old town of Canton.

In 1895 Mrs. Juliet Peale became the energetic preacher's wife of that noble Mississippi veteran, Rev. John A. B. Jones.

Some time in the "nineties" Miss Annie Stanton and Rev. Kirby Smith Enochs were made one, and if I mistake not, he is now a member of one of the Western Conferences.

Last, not least of this distinguished list, in 1901 Miss Lucy Paxton gave her happiness into the tender keeping of the Rev. Fitzgerald Parker, of the Louisiana Conference.

Who can measure the influence sent out by Vicksburg Methodism through the ministry of these elect women? The old church in which they worshiped, in which many of them were wed, is no more; but its teachings, its memories, live. A handsome modern structure has replaced that dear old church-building, but, homely, quaint, old-fashioned, it yet lives in my heart a Vision Beautiful, for,

Before that altar, in their solemn last sleep,
My loved ones have lain, cold and still;
Thence were so sadly borne down the foot-worn aisle
To the graveyard out on the hill.
Naught but a church, antiquated and queer?
Nay, something much more unto me!
A hallowed shrine a memorial dear
Of friends long passed, who used to be.

J. H. H.

LETTER FROM "GILDEROY."

One of our county editors went with the State Press Convention to Malmaison, the palatial home of the old Indian, Greenwood Leflore, for whom Leflore county was named, and he reports that the members of the body "spent three hours pleasantly with the ancestors of Greenwood Leflore." As an offset to this, I got a letter some days ago asking me to preach the funeral of a lady who died in April, on the second Sunday in July next. The husband wanted it preached at this time "because on that day all of his wife's deceased relatives would be present." I declined to go because I am sent to preach to the living and not to the dead. Some to whom I do preach are dead in trespasses and in sin while yet living in the flesh.

The seasons have been fair, and the crops are good in this part of Mississippi. The expense of living has been heavier this year than for several years past. The Beef Trust has learned us that we can do without beef, and we can live pretty well without meat of any kind. A small cut of bacon to season with is all we really need. We have used one small ham this year, and only one. Chickens, the canonical Methodist preacher diet, have been too high for poor folks. We raised but few, as the lot on which we live is too small for a poultry yard. After a long argument I gained my wife's consent to kill the young dominecker rooster, and allow him to enter the ministry, for the reason that he would make a poor lay member if spared. This argument won the case. Other preachers might try it. The egg crop has been good and the price reasonable. I never saw as many eggs served at meals as have appeared on the table this year. The hen is a great institution. This is "eggs-actly" a fact. She has added much this year to the comfort of living. In many homes she has supplied the lack of meat. This may come to be, more and more, the laud of "hen und hominy." It was once the laud of "hog und hominy." The work of the church is closely bound up with the prosperity of the people. If the farmers prosper, every other interest goes and grows. All that we have to live upon grows out of the ground, or feeds upon the product of the land. There is no material interest so important as the farming interest. It is the groundwork of everything else. In many sections we are not getting the best out of our land. It is to be hoped that we will soon come to greatly improved methods in farming. Our people all agree that we ought to grow more corn. All our farmers talk corn, and each goes home and plants more cotton. They have not yet learned that all farmers talk corn and grow cotton. They are sound in theory and unsound in practice. If they talked cotton and grew corn, times would be easier in this country, and living would be cheaper and more abundant. If this were the case, the church would prosper more in all departments of her work. The short crops of the past two years have hampered and hindered all the work of the church in this part of our Zion. It is manifest that there is a growing sense and sentiment of liberality among our people. They have done well in most places, even under adverse conditions. In the midst of poverty they have remembered mercy. They have strained a point to be liberal. The spirit of liberality grows by being liberal. One sees what he can do when he tries, and the doing of it brings a joy he knew not of before. We are advancing slowly. GILDEROY.

It makes life miserable.
Its sufferers eat not because they want to, —but simply because they must.
They know they are irritable and fretful; but they cannot be otherwise.
They complain of a bad taste in the mouth, a tenderness at the pit of the stomach, an uneasy feeling of puffy fulness, headache, heartburn and what not.

Review of Missions.

MR. EDITOR: May I, through the dear old ADVOCATE, speak a few words in praise of the Review of Missions? We have been subscribing for some seven years, and feel that we can not do without it. Nothing I read instructs me in the great work of foreign missions as the Review. Being a Methodist preacher's wife, "of course, I am an advocate" for both home and foreign missions. As I read of the great need of means to advance the cause of missions in foreign fields, I can but lift my heart to God, begging forgiveness, having done so little in the days of my youth. Often I have tried to introduce this good periodical where we visit, but seldom find parents or children who have a desire for such reading. My heart is made sad to see the neglect there is in teaching children that they may aid in sending the "message of love to those who are in darkness." I can only pray God to visit the homes in our Christian land, that fathers and mothers may feel the importance of having missionary literature read in their homes.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DEAR DR. BESWELL: On the nineteenth instant we closed a very successful meeting at our charge, St. Paul's, in which we were assisted by Bro. J. A. Bowen, of the North Mississippi Conference. Brother Bowen came to us on Monday, June 9, the second day of the series of services, and, with the exception of two days, remained with us until the close of the meeting. Our congregations were large at all the services, the attendance increasing daily as the meeting progressed. Brother Bowen preached with fervor, efficiency, and with the Spirit; and as a result of the meeting, twenty souls were added to the church upon profession of faith and six by certificate. The church has been greatly strengthened and edified. Brother Bowen, by his cordial and genial manner, by his earnest presentation of the truth, won the hearts and affections of our people. Dr. J. P. McFerrin, pastor of First Church, was present with us during a part of the meeting, preaching for us at one service, imparting spiritual strength to those who heard.

May the grace of God abound unto you in your work!

Fraternally yours,
THEO. COPELAND.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

An Appeal.

Bro. W. T. Grillin, manager of the Mississippi Orphans' Home, Water Valley, has sent out appeals for help to build a kitchen for the Home. As no worthier object could engage the attention of our Sunday-school children, we give the following extract from the appeal, and ask the Sunday-school children of Mississippi to send contributions to Bro. Grillin for that purpose:

"A ten-months' school, with two teachers and over eighty pupils, is the pride of the Home. They are taught the lower branches of an English education. They are trained religiously by family worship, Sunday-school, and preaching. More than thirty have united with the church this year. We take any orphans that are needy, regardless of denomination. We take the little ones that are outcast, and all enjoy the same privileges. We have just opened a neat little cottage for a hospital. Since the Home opened it has cared for 207 children. We have found good homes for a large number. We now have 102—more than ever before. With this increased number we find we must have more room. As we have our kitchen, a little room 12x16, for ten girls to cook and wash dishes for over 100 persons, entirely too small and warm for the comfort and health of these girls, we wish to build an annex for this purpose, with small rooms for additional bath-rooms, pantry, storeroom, place for milk, etc. The children are delighted at the hope of getting out of this hot and crowded room. Will you help us erect this for these little helpless ones?"

We take the following from a private letter from Bro. J. C. Cavett, superintendent of the Sunday-school at First Methodist Church, Jackson, Miss.:

"We had a most delightful Children's Day, and had Decision Day in connection with it. Between twenty and thirty decided to live for Christ, and on last Sunday about twenty joined the church, with more to follow. Some one has said that if you save a man, you save a soul; but if you save a child, you save a life and a soul. We pray God that all of the scholars who joined may be saved to the uttermost."

We rejoice to hear such good news. Would to God all our Sunday-schools in our three Conferences could say as much. That is what our Sunday-schools are for—to redeem the little ones for Jesus Christ. Let us work and pray for a sweeping revival among the children of Louisiana and Mississippi.

Bro. Bachman wrote us some time since that the North Mississippi Conference would probably hold a Sunday-school Convention and Institute some time in August, with Prof. Hamill to conduct it. We trust they will hold it, and pray that it may be successful and to the glory of God.

On account of illness in our family and business engagements, we have been unable to write for this column for the past three weeks, but we now again take up the delightful task, and pray that the workers will assist us to make it a blessing to all of our Sunday-schools.

It is not good, says an exchange, for men to lose sight of their individual responsibility. When the Master comes to reward his servants, he will reckon with them one by one. They will not come up in "boards," with a secretary to report for them; nor in "societies," with a company of trustees or directors to make a statement in their behalf; but "every man will give account of himself to God." The man who supposed his duty performed when he had joined a society and contributed to its funds, may find at the end that his work still remains undone, and that the contributions he has made will not be accepted in lieu of personal service in the Master's vineyard.

The greatest university is in the home where youth sits and learns at the feet of Jesus.

Information does not make an education without inspiration.

The man who is caged in or cooped up day after day without sufficient exercise is sure to suffer for it. Quite often the liver is the first organ which becomes disordered, and constipation, biliousness, sick headache and general physical torpor make life miserable. There's only one way to deal with liver "trouble" and that is to go to the root of the disease, and cure it once for all. Such cures of the disordered or diseased liver almost always follow the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It always helps. It almost always cures. It regulates the liver, strengthens the stomach, and purifies the blood.

"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine made," writes Michael Maher, of Little Falls, N. Y. (68 Center St.) "I had yellow jaundice and liver trouble in November, 1900. Was almost dead, lost sixteen pounds in three weeks and my whole body was as yellow as gold, and I was sick at my stomach all the time. I tried three doctors and they gave me tablets and pills and another one some other stuff, but I went to Messrs O'Rourke and Hurley's drug store and got your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' One bottle cured me and I thank it and God that I am a well man."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send 21 one-cent stamps for expense of mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1902.

TWO DISTRICT CONFERENCES.

It was our pleasure to attend two District Conferences last week. We had pressing invitations to attend four or five others. As we could not get to all of them, we concluded to attend those most convenient, and that involved the least expense. To practice economy, both as to time and money, is a necessity in this office. We first went to Water Valley, the seat of the Grenada District Conference. Rev. J. W. Bell directed matters, and Brother J. G. McGowan kept the records. We were present only one day—the first—and heard reports of Sunday-school and Epworth League work, and also addresses by Rev. J. M. Wyatt and President W. L. Clifton in reference to Grenada College. The Sunday-school work prospers throughout the district. But for some reason the League does not flourish, except in a few places. The secretary, we trust, will furnish a full report of the Conference.

The Mississippi Methodist Orphans' Home is located at Water Valley—not in the town, but near by. It is a great institution, and is doing work that will bless humanity in years to come. The citizens of the town, we were informed, are proud of "the Home," and do their full share in sustaining it. They have contributed to its support from the beginning, and keep up the good work. Two Sundays ago our two churches in the town, Wood Street, and Main Street, including twenty-five dollars contributed by the Sunday-school of the Baptist Church, gave nearly four hundred dollars to the orphanage. The brethren expect the contribution to go beyond that amount, as others are yet to be called on to give.

Through the kindness of Rev. R. P. Neblett we had the pleasure of visiting the Home and seeing something of its management. In the absence of the agent and manager, Rev. W. T. Griffin, his good wife conducted us through the building. The home is large and comfortable, and neatly kept. The children have a home in deed as well as in name. There are now 102 children—one a babe not old enough to walk—being cared for. To feed and clothe, and otherwise care for this number, requires much money and the constant attention of the manager and those under his direction. Until recently the facilities were amply sufficient. But now more room is a necessity. The cook-room is entirely too small. A kitchen and laundry should be built immediately. Steps to that end have been taken. We hope the brethren throughout Mississippi will help in the undertaking.

From Water Valley we dropped down to Carrollton, where we found the Winona District Conference in session, under the presidency of Bishop Candler. Brother J. R. Bingham was secretary. Bishop Galloway was present one day. His time was short, as he was under obligation to be in Chicago by Saturday night. Everybody was sorry he had to leave. The Conference was well represented, and all the brethren in good spirits. The reports were made in writing. The presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Mitchell, had blanks prepared, and these were filled out properly, no preacher occupying longer than two minutes in showing the state of his work. Now and then questions were asked by the president or some member of the Conference, and the preacher reporting was kept on the floor a longer time. The method of reporting was reduced to a system.

Bishop Candler's services were not only acceptable, but fruitful. His presidency and his preaching will be long remembered. He enlivened the exercises by asking questions and throwing out suggestions. His talks were to edification. His preaching was great. The people of Carrollton, who compose one of the best and most refined communities in the State, do not often hear such preaching as the Bishop gave them. We mean no reflection on resident pastors, or others who now and then visit that little city.

At both Conferences the editor was kindly treated. He was given ample time to represent the ADVOCATE, but the labor, unless it bears fruit in the future, was well-nigh in vain. We secured four new subscribers—two for one year each, and two for six months. A few brethren renewed. We hope some good seed were sown that will produce a harvest by and by.

We are indebted to the kindness of the presiding elders, and pastors at Water Valley and Carrollton, for courtesies, and to Brothers J. G. McGowan and J. R. Bingham for hospitable entertainment. The Lord reward them all.

We find our people, wherever we go, in the best of spirits. Everybody is in a good humor. The general expression is to the effect that the quadrennium is opening auspiciously. There is harmony and quiet, and a disposition to make the very best we can of our opportunities. We thank God and take courage.

SEPARATION FROM THE WORLD.

Believers are forbidden to work under the same yoke with unbelievers. The reasons are plain. Righteousness has no fellowship with unrighteousness. Light has no communion with darkness. Christ has no concord with Belial. He that believeth has no part with an infidel. The temple of God has no agreement with idols. Wherefore says St. Paul, "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, and touch not the unclean thing." It is only on this condition that God receives sinners, and consents to make them his sons and daughters. To cut loose from all unhallowed associations, and refuse to yoke with sinners, is what we call separation from the world.

The idea largely prevails that separation from the world means seclusion, and demands the absolute surrender of everything that is pleasing to the natural sense. This is a superstition pure and simple, growing out of the belief that entire sanctity is wholly inconsistent with secular life. This belief has resulted in thousands of monasteries and nunneries filled with men and women who have not only cut themselves loose from all secular pursuits, but have denied themselves all the social relations of life. We have among us an army of unmarried priests, and a host of unmarried women. All this may do very well for Roman Catholics, and it may be the best way for them to carry out their purposes. We make no war on them, nor do we in the least impugn their integrity. We do not believe, though, that such a life is according to the gospel, nor in any sense essential to sanctity, and our Protestant people have no right to say or to think that the Roman Catholic clergy and sisterhoods make up, as a class, the holiest people in the world.

If seclusion in any sense is essential to the full development of Christian character in one class, it must be in all. We are all one in Christ Jesus, clergy and laity, men and women. Nothing pertaining to salvation is required of one that is not of necessity laid upon another. We find no distinctions in the New Testament. Nor do we find that New Testament preachers, or any class of New Testament women, were required or exhorted to celibacy and literal separation from the world. The Lord never enjoins one duty that comes in conflict with another, and to enjoin separation from the world in such a sense as to forbid all dealings with the world, socially or otherwise, would at once, so far as Christians are concerned, put an end to all human relations and enterprises.

Nor does separation from the world demand a denial of everything pleasing to the senses. Our trouble at this point grows out of the fact that we put an interpretation on certain passages of Scripture, and make them apply in a way wholly at variance with their true meaning. For example, our Lord said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself," etc. In this expression many suppose Jesus intended to teach that discipleship depended on denying one's self of all superfluities, all indulgence of the pleasures of the world, and of everything that tends to the gratification of human life. He had reference to none of these things; nor did he have in mind the sinful and hurtful things of life. He had in mind the self-trust and self-righteousness of men which kept them from trusting in him. He would have them to cease trusting in themselves, renounce their self-righteousness, and trust in him.

What, then, is separation from the world? There is a line of cleavage. It is clearly drawn in the gospel, and every man who seeks to know will find himself on one side or the other. No intelligent individual need be mistaken. It is true that some make the mistake of supposing that it is a matter of indifference whether a man is on one side or the other, so that he is not far from it. Such persons have little conception of the difference between the earthly and the spiritual, or of the meaning of our Lord when he said, "No man can serve two masters." One whose notions are lax on this subject is also obliged to know that his moral state is such as to put him on the side of the bad.

Separation from the world means to renounce all evil ways and associations that tend to compromise the Christian character and hinder religious enjoyment. Everybody knows there are certain classes that Christians can not associate with, and keep themselves "unspotted from the world," and that there are certain ways of living, not only detrimental, but ruinous to the Christian life. Such associations are to be abandoned; such ways are to be forsaken. Of course, situated as Christians are, dependent on their labor in some form or another for daily bread, they must come in contact with bad men, and sometimes have more or less to do with them in business. But this contact does not imply that Christians countenance their evil ways or sanction their immoral lives. Only those who go with the multitude to do evil are to be classed with the world.

The above expressions imply a large measure of self-denial, as that term is ordinarily used. Such self-denial is necessary, for indulgence in the things named is natural and agreeable, but hurtful. It is forbidden. The Scriptures are discriminating and specific. They enjoin us to "lay apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, and receive with meekness the engrafted word." They require us to "deny ourselves of all ungodliness and worldly lusts, and to live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world." We are to use this world as not abusing it; to be in the world, but not of the world. The highest and best exponents of the divine requirements are those who are most like Christ in spirit and example—not cloistered, but mixers with the people for the people's good. Jesus went from place to place, talked to the multitude, and did not decline to eat with publicans and sinners. But he never did evil, nor countenance wrong. He was separate from sinners. We can do no better than imbibe his spirit and follow his example.

MAKING AND REVISING CREEDS.

It is said that "this is not a creed-making age." Perhaps not, but there is now and then a demand for the restatement of doctrines, and for revision. It is also true that in some quarters there is an outcry against creeds, accompanied by the exhortation, "Let us stand on the Word — the Word alone." But we happen to know that those who are so vehement in denunciation of creeds place on the Word their own interpretation, and insist on its correctness. We also notice that these same interpreters on all important points are identical in their views with some wise man who lived in years past. We confess our inability to see the difference between a systematic creed formulated in a man's mind and made known as occasion demands, and one that is written and printed in a book. Nor are a set of people who imbibe certain principles, and bind themselves together to propagate those principles, any the less sticklers for a creed than those who adopt principles and publish them as articles of faith.

And why should there not be creeds? It is well enough to say, To Christ, to the Word. We all believe in Christ, and accept the Word as the rule of our faith and practice. But we do not all agree in our views of Christ, nor in our interpretations of the Word. Unitarians are Christians, but they do not believe in our Lord's divinity. It is perfectly proper that they should embody their views on this point, and all others, in a creed. Their creed certifies to the world their interpretation of the Word of God. Other Christians with equal propriety write their views in a book. Orthodox Christians, though agreeing in all essential particulars, are not of one mind as to the decrees, the ordinances, and form of church government; and it is manifestly proper, not to say necessary, for them to unite in separate bodies, with a written creed for each as a basis of agreement. Where doctrines are so far apart, as, for example, the extremes of Arminianism and Calvinism, common sense and the fitness of things make it expedient to erect standards of doctrine, and require adherents to subscribe to and maintain the faith, else seek another communion.

Unity of sentiment and practice in any given communion is necessary to its peace and prosperity. When divisions arise, there is but one of two things to do: come together and settle differences, or let those who can not be persuaded depart. Divisions are sometimes so serious that agreement is impossible. In that case separation is inevitable and advisable. In the early church there was a serious dispute, so serious that it was necessary for the apostles and elders to hold a council. They reached an agreement, and harmony was restored. (See Acts xv, 5–31.) Since then the church has not always been so fortunate. Divisions have occurred. Sometimes they have been disastrous. Sometimes they have proved to be the very life of evangelical religion. In spite of all that can be said, men will adhere to their creeds.

It is easier to make a new creed than to revise an old one. Men who are born and trained under a system of theology do not easily surrender their faith. The action of the Northern Assembly of the Presbyterian Church has given us an exemplification of this fact. For ten years the revision of the creed of that church has been agitated, principally with a view to get rid of certain ideas growing out of the doctrine of election and reprobation. But, after all, neither a revision nor a new creed could be obtained. A compromise was reached. The "Brief Statement of the Reformed Faith," presented by the Revision Committee, and adopted with only two dissenting votes by the General Assembly, does not strike out or revise the distinctive features of Calvinism. It is only explanatory of these features, and, as we understand it, puts the Assembly squarely on the side of Arminianism on the questions of free-will and the extent of the Atonement. The Interior declares that the Brief Statement is "a compromise which gave the revisionists a decided advantage." We think so, too, and the Assembly, in adopting the Statement, put itself on record as more in harmony with the teachings of Scripture than with the Calvinism which still remains in the Confession.

THE SECOND SERVICE.

In some churches the evening service is called the "second service." In many places, particularly the cities, the second service is meagerly attended. Now and then the number present is only seven per cent. less than at the morning service. Frequently it is fifty per cent. less. We have seen it more than sixty per cent. less. Such a congregation in a large house which is seldom half full at any time, is distressingly small. It must be discouraging to the preacher—enough so to take from him all heart and hope. But for the faithful few who are hungry for the Word, he could not preach at all.

What is the explanation? One answer is, "It may be that the people, from long experience, have found out that the pulpit work in the second service is of inferior grade, and so do not think it worth while to be present." That may explain, if fifty per cent. or less of the people attend preaching merely to be entertained by a superior or finished sermon. That the morning sermon, as a rule, is more systematic, and has in it more thought, and more learning, may be true, but our observation is that a preacher who is able to produce a sermon worth hearing in the morning is quite able to produce one worth hearing in the evening. Our observation also is that the evening sermon is quite as edifying as the morning, and fully as well adapted to produce immediate results.

Our explanation is as follows: Many old people attend the morning service who can not conveniently, or with comfort, attend in the evening. This probably accounts for the absence of a large number when the evening congregation is only seven per cent. smaller than the morning. Then, many children, if trained to go to church at all, attend with their parents in the morning. They are turned loose for the remainder of the Sabbath, and if converted and brought into communion, they simply keep up the habits of their childhood. Again: Sunday afternoon is lounging time with very many persons, especially those actively engaged all the week. Lounging does not rest them. They feel worse about the hour of preaching than earlier in the afternoon, and conclude to stay at home.

In our cities and towns, whether the Epworth Leagues which hold their meetings immediately before the evening preaching, have anything to do with depleting the attendance, we do not know. We hope not. And yet we fear that Leaguers, like many Sunday-school scholars, large and small, who never attend public worship, are satisfied with the League service, and go home or elsewhere. We know there is nothing in the League to encourage anything of the kind. But we also know how readily a conscience satisfies itself with the performance of a single duty. We must be on guard.

If the old members and officials of the church could be persuaded that the evening service is fully as important as the morning, if not more so by virtue of the fact that more sinners are in attendance, whether the sermon is as good or not, we would soon hear less complaint of small evening congregations. We would cease to hear of poor preaching at the second service.

PERSONAL.

We are sorry to learn that the health of Rev. R. M. Davis, of Iuka, has been impaired—so much so, it is feared, that he will be compelled to cease work for a while. We hope the affliction is but for a season.

Rev. P. H. Fontaine reports the meeting on Ascension circuit, in which he assisted last week, as a great success. Congregations were large, and the result was an accession of twenty-one members to the church.

Rev. R. I. Allen, of Vaiden circuit, is in feeble health, and will spend the Summer and early Fall in California. We hope the change will do him good. The brethren would be glad to hear from him through the ADVOCATE.

Dr. W. B. Murrah has been appointed fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Church of Canada. This is a first-rate appointment. Dr. Murrah will worthily represent our church, both on the platform and in the pulpit.

A card from Rev. R. G. Porter, Oxford, informs us that Rev. J. W. Malone, D. D., has been transferred to the South Georgia Conference, and stationed at Brunswick. He will enter upon his work the first of August. Mississippi will give up Dr. Malone with regret.

Rev. W. E. M. Brogan, of the North Mississippi Conference, has prepared a "Pastor's Record," and submitted it to our Book Agents. We hope they will see their way clear to adopt it. We have never seen anything of the kind so complete. If published, every pastor in our church should have a copy.

We had the pleasure of a moment's meeting at Winona last week with Rev. T. H. Haines, one of our faithful local preachers, who has for some time past lived at Water Valley. He has lately moved to Memphis, and united with our Hernando Street Church. Brother Hines is an engineer on the Illinois Central railroad.

Rev. J. A. Randolph, who for several years has been doing duty as chaplain in the Philippines, has returned to the States, and is stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kans. Brother Randolph says he will be glad to hear from the brethren. He hopes to attend the session of the North Mississippi Conference at Tupelo. We are sure he will have a cordial greeting.

Millsaps College Commencement—Impressions.

MR. EDITOR: It is not the purpose of this article to infringe upon the duties or privileges of the Visiting Committees, but as an humble spectator to write of what he saw and heard.

The closing exercises of Millsaps College began Friday, June 6 and ended Tuesday, June 10. During the ten years of its existence the writer has attended every commencement, except one or two, and, in his judgment, this just closed was in all points equal to the best. Indeed, in some particulars, this has been a memorable year in the history of the institution. The enrollment for the year has numbered 239, the largest in its history. For so great a number the health record has been unsurpassed, and the evidences of solid, faithful work was to be seen in every programme presented.

Different friends of the college have offered medals to be awarded, for all of which the contests were spirited and without acrimony. The Millsaps medal for declamation (in the Freshman class) was contested for by nine youths, and awarded to A. H. Whitfield, Jr., the son of our Chief Justice, and conceded by all a fair representative of his eloquent father. The Andrews medal, contested for by the Sophomore class, was awarded to Mr. S. M. Grayham as having delivered the best original speech of the six who had entered the field. The Gunning medal for Bible reading and general pulpit demeanor was awarded to Mr. J. H. Penix, of Aycock, La. (Only young ministers are allowed to enter this contest.)

On Friday evening the large chapel was filled with anxious, sympathetic friends come to witness the second most interesting feature of the entire season—the debate between the Galloway and Lamar Literary Societies of the college. The very announcement of the question under discussion—"Resolved, That the formation of another strong political party in the South would promote the interests of the South"—gives evidence of the heroic spirit of the young combatants; but before the discussion had ended all were convinced that they had not reckoned beyond their powers. Four stronger speeches we do not remember ever to have heard on similar occasions. One given to study great questions said in our hearing after the debate, "How those rascals must have studied to produce such speeches." This listener had but one adverse comment: most too long. But, then, there was a medal at the end, which was awarded to Mr. C. S. Simpson, and the question to the affirmative. For the first time the J. J. Clark medal, the gift of Miss Mollie Clark, of Pickens, in honor of her father, was awarded to Mr. W. A. Williams for the best original essay. (This medal is open to any student in the college, and, in the humble opinion of the writer, represents one of those "best gifts earnestly to be coveted.")

Sunday was an ideal day, and Dr. Hopkins gave us a great sermon. We had heard of the Doctor before his coming, and were not disappointed. Taking as his text the familiar words contained in the twenty-third and twenty-fourth verses of the fourth chapter of St. John's Gospel, he led his hearers on wider fields and deeper depths until one was reminded of Ezekiel's "vision of the holy waters." Great in its simplicity, full in its deep religious spirit, some gave it first place among the great commencement sermons. In his address before the graduating class, on Tuesday, he was master of his theme, "The Personal Equation in Problems not Physical." Twenty-nine diplomas were granted to graduates; fourteen in the literary department and fifteen in the law. The class of 1902 was rendered conspicuous because of having on its roll the first young woman graduate, and who had accomplished the course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. In presentation of diplomas, President Murrah took occasion to state that the recipient of one had not in five years been absent a single time from class. This young man will go out to honor the institution, and to speak well of her, while others who wasted time and opportunity will go out to censure.

The contest for the Ligon medal (confined to the Senior class of the literary department) was full of spirit, and stimulating to audience as well as contestants. While, as is the case with all medals, each speaker had his special friend who desired his success, the Committee of Five awarded this trophy to Mr. Allen Thompson. Thus closed the literary feature of the tenth commencement of this strong young institution. The annual class gatherings, and alumni banquet incident to such occasion, were enjoyed by the friends and students.

During the year, through the generosity of the founder, Major Millsaps, the college has come into possession of the Jackson College building, which adjoin the original grounds of Millsaps, and which will furnish accommodations for 80 boys—two to the room. This building, already heated by radiators, and furnished with water connections, bath-rooms, and other conveniences, will be refitted, and will be under the immediate control of Professor Shannon, who has been added to the faculty of the institution, and who will live in the new dormitory hall.

At its session the Board authorized the collection of $2,500 (more than one-half was raised in the Board) for the renovating and repairing and furnishing of this building. Dr. Murrah is charged with this matter, and has full confidence of collecting the balance during the Summer. With this commodious addition, Millsaps will be capacitated to care easily for 300 pupils, and the system pursued will enable them to reduce the living to the minimum.

Millsaps begins her second decade under most flattering conditions indeed, and we predict greater things in the years to come. * * *

Grenada College.

Three new things that set like jeweled crowns upon the brow of this grand old college: New buildings, new policy, and new interest.

Grenada District Conference encourages the new management, and promises renewed effort and loyalty in its behalf, by offering the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Grenada College is the only female college owned and endorsed by the North Mississippi Conference, and the outlook for the college exceptionally bright under the new policy; And, whereas, The school is conducted under the immediate control of the church, so that all pecuniary gain in profits of the school above the actual running expenses will be used for the benefit of the school itself; And, whereas, All the departments will be under well equipped teachers, chosen with especial regard for work assigned them; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Conference, as a Conference, and as individuals, give this school our loyal support, and will assist the management every way possible in furthering the interest of this, our only Conference school for girls.

Seashore Camp Grounds.

Located on the Gulf Shore, with a frontage of 1,400 feet.

WILL OPEN (D. V.)

On Wednesday, July 9, next, and Continue for 8 or 10 Days.

The Grounds are opened April 1, and closed Nov. 1, for occupying cottages and reception of visitors. Modern and ample accommodations have been provided. The wharves and bath houses which were destroyed by last Summer's storms are being rebuilt, and other improvements made for the comfort and convenience of the large crowds which annually visit this refreshing and delightfully cool and bracing place of rest, free from malaria and contagious diseases.

The sea bathing is unsurpassed by any resort on the Mississippi Sound, while the supply of pure, sparkling drinking water is furnished by one of the finest of artesian wells, whose waters possess rare virtues.

The exhilarating sea breezes refresh the fatigued, and act as a tonic to the debilitated visitors from our smoke-enveloped and dust-stilling cities and towns. Boats for sailing and fishing always on hand. The drives along the seashore present magnificent views, and are over ten miles in length. Visitors are not expected to arrive or depart on the Sabbath day.

The L. and N. R. R. Company will place on sale the reduced rate of fare during the season, from all points on their lines, and secure a corresponding rate from all connecting lines. Tickets will be placed on sale July 5 to 17, inclusive, and be good to return on until Aug 31. Two daily mail trains stop at the Camp Grounds, besides the accommodation and excursion trains, during the entire Summer season. A fine hotel with a frontage of 175 feet, equipped with electric lights and all modern conveniences, has been erected.

All itinerant preachers of the Southern Methodist Church will be admitted into the grounds and provided with lodging accommodations in Wesley Hall free of charge.

The fourth Annual Tri-State Epworth League Conference will be held on the Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 23, and continuing through Sunday, August 3. Reduced rates have also been obtained from the Louisville and Nashville railroad and connecting lines to this Conference. Tickets will be on sale from Monday, July 21, to Saturday, August 2, good to return until August 31. These Epworth League Conferences are growing in interest every year. All Leaguers and those interested in this work are earnestly invited to be present at the next Conference, which will no doubt be largely attended.

The usual entrance fee will be in force this season. No charge will be exacted for entrance on the Sunday of the Camp Meeting. A cordial invitation is extended to all who desire to attend the Camp Meeting and spend a while on the Camp Ground.

Persons wishing to secure accommodations before and during Camp Meeting, or rent cottages for the season, will please communicate with Rev. J. L. Jordan, Keeper Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or any of the following officers:

J. B. LEFTWICH, President, Mobile, Ala.
DR. E. L. McGEHEE, Vice-President, New Orleans, La.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp Root and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention that you read this generous offer in the "NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE." Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home Circle.

A Pretty Girl.

My good mother, when she saw any evidence on my part of prinking and pride, used to say, "Handsome is that handsome does." The mere decoration of the body and fine manners without usefulness were of little value in her estimation. I couldn't see the full force of her reasoning in those days, being young and giddy and somewhat anxious—though, of course, I never acknowledged that—to please the eye of some available candidate for the head of my future sphere of action. I was not so stupid but I could see that "the fellows" made the most account of gay girls, and what they liked was of far more importance to me, at that period of verdancy, than what mother thought. I had no use for her grannyisms when they were about looking so stunning. After many years of observation I have come to her way of thinking. Even captivating a man is not a sufficient excuse for folly and vanity; for one that is charmed by outward appearance alone will not be worth having after he is captured. Girls would stand a far better chance of making suitable matches by behaving so that fools will not fancy them. Of course, neatness in outward appearance and pleasing manners are always desirable; it is the superfluities that are put on merely for effect that reasonable creatures condemn.

I was led into this line of thinking not long ago on a railroad train. I had passed through a crowded car, and there being no vacant seat, I took a stand near the door among a few others similarly situated. I had not stood there long ere a gentle hand was laid on my shoulder and a girlish voice said, "Come, take my seat." I demurred at robbing her of the seat to which she was justly entitled, but she took no refusal, and led me along to the place she had vacated a few benches from the door, she herself standing partly supported by the arm of the seat. There were old men and young men, middle-aged ladies and girls sitting around, some of whom I knew.

Why should this young girl of all the rest, an entire stranger to me, feel moved to sacrifice her own comfort for my benefit? How came she to take notice that I was older and, perhaps, less able to stand than some of the rest, and so take upon herself the discomfort of standing that I might have comfort? It was her kind, compassionate heart that did it, and she was on the alert for helpful acts. This inner grace, if nourished, will grow as the years roll by, and come to illumine her countenance and be an adornment that money can not buy, and that is beyond the reach of the thoughtless and inconsiderate who first and last, and pretty much all the time, are grabbing for the best places for themselves.

What made the slight, almost insignificant-looking Lucretia Mott so attractive and beautiful that the mob, which would have burned the hall and destroyed those therein, who were advocating freedom for the slave, pass her by unharmed? What made that big, burly leader of the angry crowd, when she asked him kindly to assist her put on her shawl, place it gently around her, and lead her to a place of safety? It was the inner grace illumining her countenance. It could not be hid; he saw it, felt it, and dared not lift a hand against her. He knew that were he in distress, she would plead his cause with the same zeal that she did the cause of the slave.

Suppose Lucretia Mott, if the case is supposable, had spent her youth in dancing, card playing and flirting, in gay dressing and novel reading, in trying to outdo her set in entertaining or in playing the piano, while mother operated on the washboard, could she, with few personal attractions, have become that beautiful, charming woman whose presence was a benediction anywhere?

So the kindness of my young friend of the train gave her a new interest in my sight. I watched her when she left the car and tripped lightly and swiftly across the platform, and thought what a pretty girl she is. How was she dressed? Everybody will want to know that. She had on a long, loose light coat and a hat of similar color, without feathers, birds or flowers, with only a simple bow of ribbon for an ornament. Her chief decoration was a bright, intelligent, amiable countenance, which became her so well that I feel sure she will never be permitted to enjoy single blessedness long, unless she stands at the door with a hatchet to keep back the aspirants after her hand.

I may never see this dear girl again—I do not even know her name—but I can never pass that station and look out at the platform and people without wishing I could see her attractive face once more. So little kindnesses that cost no money often win for us loving friends, who, in turn, will be ready to help us; or, if no opportunity occurs to do so, can adopt the Sunshiners' motto, "Pass it on" to some one else. It was the good, motherly heart of Queen Victoria that made her the world's peerless queen.

It was the love for all men and women and a desire to lift them above destructive indulgences that made Lucy Hayes one of the most conspicuous and well beloved of all the ladies who have presided at the White House. For less prominent examples of self-sacrificing devotion we have but to turn to our own good mothers and remember their tireless efforts in our behalf. A good mother always looks beautiful in the eyes of her child. She doesn't have to have fine form and features, doesn't have to be begowned and becoiffured in the tip of the mode to win the baby's heart; she has been good always, and nobody can supplant her in its affection. The kindness that wins the child wins the world.

The pity of it is that big creature self demands too much of our time. We are kept so busy catering to ourselves that we have no time to look after the comfort and convenience of our neighbor. Self wants the finest farm, the biggest house, the best furniture, the most accomplished children, the richest clothes and choicest food. Self, when full grown, wants the earth, and, like Alexander, forgets to stand aside and let the sunshine on a humbler brother.

The beautiful lesson the pretty girl of the car taught of attentive helpfulness to age is one there is much need of. It is growing to be a lost commodity.

The old folks are too often looked upon as mere "hewers of wood and drawers of water" for the young. They take their places in the field and kitchen and busy marts, and are well content if they can succeed in getting enough money to satisfy the demands of their children.

When they can no longer labor and are obliged to give it all up, if they have not saved money enough to buy attendance and a home, they will be very lucky indeed if they find them among those they have reared. "That is all correct," said the Head of the Sidneys; "wear out the oldest first. You can't expect young folks to bother about the old mossbacks when they have more wants of their own than they can manage."

A little more consideration and practical efforts to lighten their parents' load might be the surest way to prosperity for themselves. It would cut off many needless wants and put them in a way of giving less attention to self.

I should like to know whether my pretty girl of the train took to thoughtfulness for the comfort of older people naturally, or whether the trait was implanted by her bringing up.

It is a question worth considering. — Mary Sidney, in Farm Journal.

"Just Let It Hurt."

We were hunting among the Tennessee mountains and came upon a log cabin on a sunny southern slope. The only evidences of prosperity were to be found in a brood of tow-headed little children who were scampering about the door-yard. The oldest was a sturdy lad of twelve or thirteen. He told us his own name in answer to a query, and then we asked him that of a little shaver of five or six who was tagging him around like a shadow.

"His name? He ain't got no name. We jest call him Monkey. That's his name—jest Monkey; and he's mean."

"What does he do?"

"Bothers! Bothers dad and main and all the young ones and me. He bothers me when I work and when I play."

"Do you have to work?"

"Work? Well, I should say. I cut all the wood that's cut fer this here place."

He was a worker, sure enough; but when he heard the guns go off, he went off with them. He followed us over hill and vale, through forest and clearing, through stubble fields and bramble patches. As he emerged from one of those tangled masses of blackberry bushes which are so common in that region, I noticed that his little bare shins from his knee to his ankle were just streaming with blood.

"Whew!" said I, sympathetically.

"That's nothin'!"

"Don't it hurt?"

"Hurt? You bet it hurts!"

"What are you going to do about it?"

"Do? I ain't goin' to do nothin' but jest let it hurt!"

Now, that is the kind of stuff that makes men!

"Jest let it hurt." Don't squeal, don't kick, don't put up your lip; but "jest let it hurt." It is not such a bad education as some others for a boy to go stumbling barefooted around a farm or through a country village. I pity the boy who has never done it.—Evangelist.

Secret of a Long Life.

You sometimes see a woman whose old age is as exquisite as was the perfect bloom of her youth. You wonder how this has come about. You wonder how it is her life has been a long and happy one. Here are some of the reasons:

She knew how to forget disagreeable things.

She mastered the art of saying pleasant things.

She made whatever work came to her congenial.

She retained her illusions, and did not believe all the world wicked and unkind.

She relieved the miserable, and sympathized with the sorrowful.

She never forgot that kind words and a smile cost nothing, but are priceless treasures to the discouraged.

She did unto others as she would be done by, and now that old age has come to her, and there is a halo of white hair about her head, she is loved and considered. This is the secret of a long life, and a happy one.—Selected.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

A Brother's Tribute to a Sister's Memory.

BY REV. WILLIAM H. HARGROVE.

There are some thoughts and feelings that abide in my heart, to which, with the leave and pardon of my sister's friends—who, for the greater part, are my own—I wish to give expression.

There are some sorrows that write their mark deep on the human heart. These marks are generally made with the diamond of another life. Man may forget the time he parted with some material good, but he can not forget the time he parted from a life he truly loved. It must be that, as the years come and go, that love remains as fresh and as sacred as when felt at parting, and grows deeper with the deepening manhood of the man.

I knew my sister, who departed this life on the thirtieth of last April, as one truly devoted to God, nature, and the best there is in life. That which we believe with the extent that becomes a part of our lives, determines the kind of life that we live. So it was with my sister. Her adherence to that which is true, pure, and of a heavenly character, was unfaltering. By reason of this disposition, God shaped her life to suit himself; nature wrote its pure lines upon her soul, and the crying needs of those about her called forth the activities of her life. In matters of religion and faith I ever trusted my sister, ever believed in her. Never once did doubt flit across my mind as to her sincerity in word spoken or deed done.

Some lives furnish us a rule by which we can measure our lives to see if we are coming up to a true pattern or not. Such was my sister's life to my life, and to others, to a great extent, I feel sure, who were intimately acquainted with her. I always measured my spiritual attainments by her life, but ever felt the great inequality existing between the two.

Thus we passed through life, she the staying and inspiring hope of my life. And when she left, it seemed like they had buried me, too; and my soul, though there was no soul in that coffin, thought itself there. But the memory of her life has not been interred, and still lives with me, assuring me that she has not been taken far away, to be parted from me forever, but to the beautiful mansion in heaven prepared for her.

As I look at my sister's life as a whole, these lessons impress themselves deeply upon my mind: First, the power of a true life; second, the nobleness of an unselfish aim in life; third, the victoriousness of faith.

Elmwood, Mo.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

It becomes our sad duty to chronicle the death of a much-loved member of our M. E. Sunday-school at Slaughter, La. Little RALPH LAW passed to his eternal home, with a happy smile, on the sixth day of June, 1902, after a painful illness of three months. Three months of heroic suffering, patient endurance, and then his reward. Three days before the end he told his sister that he had prayed all night to get well, and that something told him that in three days he would be well. Glorious truth! The loving Father did not fail to fulfill his word. Dear little Ralph is joyously, gloriously well. No longer should we think of the helpless little body, robbed of its beauty and strength by the ravages of disease, but of our own dear Ralph as transformed by the touch of the finger of God into an image shining with celestial light. Ralph was thirteen years old; a bright, attentive Sunday-school scholar, whom we miss from his accustomed place. The entire Sunday-school extends loving sympathy to the bereaved family.

Committee: Pearl N. Corcoran, M. D. Corcoran.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, God has removed from our midst our beloved sister and coworker, Mrs. HALLIE HARRISON CHRISTIAN, who suddenly departed this life April 26, 1902; And, whereas, We desire to express our appreciation of her pure life and exalted virtues, and to bear testimony to the high esteem and love in which she was held by all who knew her; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Ladies' Aid Society, No. 1, of Central Methodist Church, has lost one of its most useful members, whose lovely and lovable life and character have left a deep impress on our society and community. She was tenderly loved by her friends and neighbors. Sympathetic and kind, she won the affection of all who came within the sphere of her influence. "Earth is poorer and sadder for her passing; we are richer that she lived."

Resolved, That we tender our sympathy to the bereaved ones, and pray that they may be sustained by the grace of our Lord.

Committee: Mrs. Bettie Ormond, Mrs. W. G. Casteel, Mrs. Lulu Van Slyke.

MARTIN A. CRAIN was born March 12, 1833, in Rankin county, Miss., and died June 8, 1902, at his home. He moved to Lafayette parish, La., in 1858; from there to Little Pecan Island, Cameron parish, in 1868, where he remained until his death. He leaves an aged wife—a very amiable person, and a Christian woman of great piety; a daughter of my good old friend, Duncan Smith—and six children to mourn his decease. To them we extend our heartfelt sympathies. It was the privilege of the writer to baptize and receive Brother Crain into the church, Oct. 22, 1883. He was a devoted husband, a loving father, and a true and faithful citizen, always ready to administer help to the needy. He was a great supporter of Christianity, and always did his part in paying to build up the cause of Christ. His doors were open to all alike, to friends and strangers, and all were welcome, and it did not appear that numbers made any difference; so we consider the church has lost a great man. Our Israel has suffered, but our loss is his gain. Weep not, dear mother, and you, dear children; only strive to meet in heaven on the other shore, where sorrow and weeping and pains will never come, and God will wipe away all tears from our eyes. JOS. BERWICK.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

Patent Thumb Index, 35 cents extra.

R-I-P-A-N-S

I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia and sick headaches. I was many times compelled to leave work and go home. Our druggist told me to try Ripans. I am now in much better health. I can eat most anything, have no headache and work steady. I also was greatly affected with constipation, and Ripans gave me relief from that.

At druggists.

BOOKKEEPING, SHORTHAND, PENMANSHIP etc., successfully taught by mail or no charges. POSITIONS secured. 10,000 students. Booklet free. Add. DEPT. 19, DRAUGHON'S BUS. COL. Nashville Tenn.

MOZLEY'S LEMON ELIXIR.

Regulates the Liver, Stomach, Bowels and Kidneys.

For biliousness, constipation and malaria. For indigestion, sick and nervous headache. For sleeplessness, nervousness and heart failure. For fever, chills, debility and kidney diseases, take Lemon Elixir. Ladies, for natural and thorough organic regulation take Lemon Elixir. 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle at druggists. Prepared only by Dr. H. Mozley, Atlanta, Ga.

A Prominent Minister Writes.

After ten years of great suffering from indigestion, with great nervous prostration, biliousness, disordered kidneys and constipation, I have been cured by Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir, and am now a well man.

Summer Tourist Tickets

To all Summer resorts reached by the Queen and Crescent Route will be sold, commencing June 1, at low rates for the round trip, and carrying return limit of Sept. 30, 1902.

The Summer schedules are nearly all now in operation, a few additional facilities to be added by connecting lines on June 1 and June 8 when Summer travel will be in full swing.

The Asheville service, including sleeper from Birmingham, which is attached to train leaving New Orleans at 7:30 P. M., will run daily, commencing June 8.

The dining-car service of the Queen and Crescent Route is maintaining its reputation for excellence, and no effort is spared to make the Summer trip via this splendidly equipped line a thoroughly enjoyable journey.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

General News.

Governor Taft is making slow headway at Rome. His negotiations with the Vatican for the friar lands will consume several weeks more.

The Government has already begun negotiations for the purchase of the French Company's franchise and property on the Isthmus of Panama.

King Edward of England is improving, while the discomfort in the wound caused by the operation is somewhat less. The general feeling of relief throughout the British Isles vented itself by the touching off of 3,000 bonfires which were originally prepared to celebrate the Coronation Night.

HOW ARE ALL AT HOME? Buy a bottle of Painkiller to-day and you will be insured against cholera morbus, diarrhœa and kindred troubles. The old reliable Perry Davis' Painkiller is sold by all dealers. 25c. and 50c. bottles.

Brook Trout Fishing.

The trout fishing in the stocked streams of the Sapphire Country of North Carolina is at its best.

The splendid new hotels of the Toxaway Company afford accommodations which are thoroughly up to date.

Summer tourist tickets to Brevard and Toxaway, N. C., on sale at all principal stations on the Queen and Crescent System.

If the label on your paper is wrong, let us know, and we will correct. If it is right, and shows that you owe us, please send the amount due. We need the money.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I need the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

We will, until further notice, send the "Short History" and the ADVOCATE one year, to all subscribers, new or renewing, for TWO DOLLARS cash, the subscriber to pay cost of sending the money. If checks are sent, ten cents must be added. The price of the history is sixty cents. It will be mailed postpaid. We would like to have many orders on this proposition during the dull months of the Summer.

Change of Life

(Woman's Most Critical Period.)

"The woman is a mother still,
The holiest thing alive."

At about the age of 45 years women begin to pass into a condition on which their future health depends. This condition is known as the "change of life," or the cessation of the monthly function and capabilities for maternity. If they pass this change safely they may reasonably look for a quarter of a century of good health, but if complications arise and are not properly treated they will be left feeble wrecks. When symptoms of this change appear a woman should at once begin to take G. F. P. It will carry her through the ordeal safely and leave her enjoying good health.

"My wife suffered for seven years from the Change of Life. We tried everything we could get from the doctors and paid out a considerable sum of money for treatment, but without any good result, so we then began using G. F. P. and it did more good than all else we had used for six years. It is the greatest remedy for suffering females ever yet placed on the market."—J. D. Borden, Palmetto, Tex

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of monstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies' Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Bro., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

If our government is to hold the Philippine Islands (and such seems to be the purpose), it is well that the friars, who have been a disturbing factor for a hundred years, or more, should be expelled. It is said they caused two rebellions against Spain. They are stumbling-blocks to-day in the settlement of questions in that unhappy land. Many Filipino leaders are holding aloof from Americans, waiting for the final disposition of these troublesome priests, whom they look upon as real enemies and despoilers of the people. If the American Government tolerates the presence and power of these men as they were tolerated by the Spanish Government, the Filipinos will have no more confidence in Americans than they had in the Spaniards. They do not understand, as we do, the utter separation of Church and State; hence in the future, as in the past, if the friars remain, they will hold the government responsible. Our government can not confiscate the lands of the friars, nor expel them from the islands. For this reason the government seeks to purchase the friar lands, and to induce the Roman Catholic authorities to withdraw the objectionable friars. The matter, it is said, has been settled—at least, as to the main issues. "The friars are to be compensated for their property, their lands are to go to the government, and through the government to the people." "Thus," says the Chicago Inter-Ocean, "the gravest problem associated with American occupation of the Philippines has been solved."

Two altercations between United States Senators in the Senate chamber during one session is too much. Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, in the early part of the session assaulted his fellow-senator, McLaurin. In the latter part Senator Bailey, of Texas, attempted to choke Senator Beveridge, of Indiana. This last assault occurred on June 30, and, as we see it, was wholly unjustifiable. Senator Bailey, it appears, had offered a resolution calling for papers of a certain character which were in the State Department. Some delay was encountered in securing these papers. This irritated the Texan, and he declared that he had encountered such delay in securing the information as forced him to conclude that the officials of the State Department were either "grossly incompetent or shamefully indifferent to the rights of an American citizen in a foreign land." This expression, with others, was construed by Mr. Beveridge as an "unwarranted attack" on the solicitor of the State Department, Mr. Pennfield. Senator Bailey took this as an intentional insult, and demanded a retraction. Mr. Beveridge disavowed any intention to insult the Texas senator, and declined to retract, whereupon Mr. Bailey gave way to his anger and seized Mr. Beveridge by the throat. Little harm was done, as other senators close by caught Mr. Bailey and held him. The temper of the Indiana senator seems not to have been ruffled.

The illness of King Edward of England, which required a delicate and dangerous surgical operation, necessitated the postponement of his coronation set for June 26. This was a great disappointment to the people. They were expecting to pass the happiest day in the history of the nation. Such general preparation for festivities had never before been made. Suddenly all was turned to gloom. The King's life was hanging by a thread. His death would have surprised nobody. Not only the people of England made ready for the coronation, but other nations were interested, and sent special ambassadors to give double assurance of welcome to the new King, the head of a mighty nation upon which so much depends the peace of the world. The operation was necessarily painful; and was followed by days of suffering, but so far no unfavorable symptoms have developed, and the prospect is for a speedy recovery. Queen Alexandra has given the public to understand that the coronation will take place in September.

A rich man of New York has given $4,000,000 to establish and maintain a home for the poor who are recovering from sickness. The name of the philanthropist is Burke. Commenting on this generous act, the Times-Democrat says: "Here is a man who is, perhaps, unknown outside the somewhat limited circle of his personal friends; a man whose life has not been ruled by desire of notoriety, or even of what is frequently called fame; a man who has been content to organize industries, and, by so doing, to give employment to thousands of his fellowmen; a man whose life has been work, and whose work has been none the less valuable by reason of the fact that it is little known. By habits of honesty and economy he has succeeded in amassing a large fortune; and now, in the closing days of his career, he sees the finished product of his labors, and dedicates it to the alleviation of human suffering." All honor to such benefactors!

LETTER FROM CHINA.

EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF CHINA.

In a previous letter I gave some account of the Educational Association, its aims and objects, its work, etc. I also wrote of the fourth triennial meeting, which was then being held in Shanghai, the list of subjects for papers, addresses, and problems before the association, etc. The meeting adjourned on Saturday, May 24, closing one of the most successful conventions that we have ever had since the organization was started. There were about 120 members in attendance, representing many different parts of the country. The meeting was characterized by the utmost spirit of harmony and good feeling. The papers and discussions on the various educational questions were of a very high order, and those who attended received much benefit and encouragement for renewed effort in the work of Christian education in China. Action was taken by the association looking towards the accomplishment of certain definite results and the solution of certain problems that are now confronting Christian educators in this country. Several committees were appointed to take action in regard to various subjects that were before the meeting for discussion.

1. A committee of eight of the leading members of the association was appointed to prepare a memorial to be presented to the Chinese Government through the diplomatic body in Peking, urging, first, that religious toleration be granted in all government schools, so that Christian pupils may not be debarred from whatever advantages these schools offer to students. Second, that the work of Christian schools and colleges in China shall obtain full recognition on the part of the Chinese Government, so that students coming from these institutions, who are well qualified otherwise, shall not be debarred by reason of their Christian faith from entrance into civil service examinations, or from appointments to positions in the government service.

2. A committee of five was appointed to draw up a general and comprehensive Course of Study, covering pretty thoroughly the whole range of instruction, beginning with the primary school, and going on through the high school, college and university, including such special courses as the kindergarten, biblical instruction, civil service examinations, etc. The object of such a Course of Study would be, in the first place, to provide a guide by which various mission schools and colleges in the country might become united in some kind of general uniformity. In the second place, as a guide to the Chinese in what they should seek to secure in the establishment of private and government schools and colleges. Third, it will also be a very great advantage to the large numbers of men who, being past school age, or inaccessible to any school of Western learning, still desire to prepare themselves for the new regime. Such a Course of Study would indicate to them the line of work that they would be required to follow in order to prepare themselves to meet the new conditions that are now upon the country.

3. A committee of eight was appointed to prepare a system of Romanization to be used in spelling the sounds of the various forms of the Mandarin spoken language.

4. A special committee of five was appointed to prepare a Course of Biblical Study for use in Christian schools and colleges.

5. A committee of three was appointed to organize the kindergarten work for the schools in China.

6. The Executive Committee was instructed to prepare an appeal to the Boards of Missions in Europe and America, urging them to send out trained men for school work, especially laymen, who are well up in the latest methods of teaching. A very strong feeling was expressed in the meeting that the school work now opened up to us in China needs especially trained men to develop it successfully. The old idea that every missionary who comes to the field must be an ordained man, ought to be given up. There is room and need for specialists in the way of teachers, etc., and consecrated laymen ought to be sent out to fill these positions, and leave the ordained men to do the special work of preaching, for which they were sent.

7. A committee of five was appointed to continue the preparation of a list of biographical and geographical names for use in translating books into Chinese.

8. The Committee on Scientific Terminology, consisting of five men, was continued. The work of this committee is now producing some permanent results. A list of about 12,000 terms in English and Chinese has already been prepared, and is ready for the printer. This list covers pretty thoroughly the whole range of learning in science, mathematics, history, chemistry, astronomy, sociology, political economy, etc. Even with the publication of this technological dictionary, however, a great deal of work remains to be done in the way of revision, collection of new terms, etc.

The various officers and standing committees were elected for the ensuing three years—that is, president, two vice-presidents, secretary, treasurer, general editor, Executive Committee, and Publication Committee. The names of the officers and the committees indicate their duties in general. The work of the Publication Committee is to pass on manuscripts submitted to the association for publication. If they approve, the book is published at the expense of the association; if they disapprove, the manuscript is returned to the author. The general editor, which office this correspondent has the honor to fill, attends, first, to the receiving and forwarding to the Publication Committee of all manuscripts that may be submitted to the association. Second, he has general oversight of the publication and sales of the books, maps, charts, etc., belonging to the association. Third, he presides at the meetings of the Executive Committee, and, in general, has charge of the interests of the association, in connection with the Executive Committee, during the interval between the triennial meetings. Your correspondent also serves on four of the above-named committees.

From the brief outline contained in the above, together with the previous letter on the same subject, it will be seen that the work of the Educational Association is extending, and that this association occupies a very important position in this great mission field. We are working to improve our methods of instruction; we are endeavoring to prepare the very best books possible in the Chinese language for use in Christian and government schools; we are seeking to guide the government officials, as well as the common people, in the establishment of a general system of education for the whole country. The sales of our books are extending by leaps and bounds. In fact, the great boom in the sale of books that is now on shows a decided preference for educational books above all other kinds. As an indication of how rapidly books are selling, I may state the fact that the geography prepared by my wife—her last work before she left me in September—was published in an edition of 2,000 copies about Jan. 1 of this year. This has all been sold out inside of four months, and a new edition is called for. I am now revising the book for a new edition. A. P. PARKER.

WINONA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Winona District Conference was held in Carrollton, June 27–29. The Sunday-school Conference met the day preceding the assembling of the District Conference. The occasion was generally pronounced to be one of the best—by some the best—of the kind ever attended. The attendance was about as usual, viz.: about one-third of the members were present. All the pastors were present except one, who was absent on account of sickness.

The visit of Dr. Boswell, of Rev. J. R. Countiss, representing the Orphans' Home, for which he secured $263.50, and of President and Mrs. W. L. Clifton, of Grenada College, was greatly enjoyed. The two last named have taught at Carrollton, and were warmly welcomed by former patrons and pupils. Grenada College, always in favor at Carrollton, is doubly so now. Those who know Mr. Clifton as a Christian gentleman and a teacher of great ability, and Mrs. Clifton as a sweet-spirited, cultivated Christian woman, and a vocalist of superior merit, do not hesitate to predict for them great success and large usefulness.

The pastors' reports were encouraging. The preaching during the Conference was unusually good. The pulpit was occupied by Poe, Countiss, Boswell, Ritchey, Duren, Park, and by Bishop Candler twice. It was not decided which of the Bishop's sermons was the better. But there was unanimous agreement that two better were never heard. The Bishop won all hearts. By his witty and wise speech on many subjects during the Conference, his brotherly bearing, social good cheer, and great sermons, he completely captured Conference and community. Worthy of special mention were his wise and weighty words on prohibition, and his closing address, Saturday, on the general work of the church. None who were present will ever forget the president of the Conference of 1902.

There was another distinguished visitor for whom this separate paragraph has been reserved. Bishop Chas. B. Galloway came Thursday night, and remained till Friday noon. No one is more welcome in Mississippi, in a Methodist Conference in Carrollton, than Bishop Galloway. The Carrollton Conservative says: "If the Methodist Church has any more Bishops like Bishop Candler and Bishop Galloway, we should like to see them and to hear them in Carrollton. If any church in Christendom can match this pair, it will confer a lasting favor on Carrollton by sending them to our town. They are 'par nobile fratrum.'"

Wm. Murvin Johnson was granted license to preach, and was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial into the traveling connection. Wm. L. Duren was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial and for deacon's orders.

If Millsaps College will continue to send out such preachers as those now serving charges in the Winona district, the sooner the better and the more the better. The Winona district says, Let them come on.

J. B. Small, J. R. Bingham, J. B. Streater and A. H. George were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, with H. H. Estes and B. S. Elliott, reserves.

The next session of the District Conference will be held at West.

BOB.

Resolutions adopted by the Winona District Conference:

We heartily approve the change of policy at Grenada College. We are gratified at the splendid faculty chosen for the institution, and believe under its present management Grenada College will take its place with the best colleges for girls in Mississippi. Grenada College should have the patronage of all our people, not simply because it is the only school for girls owned and indorsed by the North Mississippi Conference, but because of the superior advantages offered.

Millsaps College has just closed the best session in its history. In every way it merits the confidence and patronage of our people. We congratulate the church upon the recent valuable addition to the equipment of the college. Through the generosity of Major Millsaps the college has acquired property valued at more than thirty thousand dollars. This provides ample and comfortable dormitory room.

Shreveport District Conference.

The Shreveport District Conference convened at Grand Cane, De-Soto parish, on Thursday, June 26, at 9 o'clock A. M., and adjourned, after a night session, on the twenty-eighth. There was a fairly good attendance, and we had a pleasant and profitable session. Dr. Sawyer, our diligent and capable presiding officer, was in good health and spirits, and utilized every opportunity to bring his ministerial brigade to bear on opposing forces. The pastors of the district—only two out of twenty-one of which failed to report—gave encouraging accounts of their charges, which clearly indicate that the gospel trumpet in this district gives no uncertain sound.

The religious services at 11 o'clock A. M. and at night were well attended, and the Word fell upon willing ears. The following preachers participated in these services, in the order named: Cornell, Purcell, Sanders, Moore, Patterson, Jenkins, Staples, Carter, Dr. Sawyer, and Rundle.

The sacrament on Sunday was impressive and profitable.

The following resolution was adopted without a dissenting vote:

Whereas, Our presiding elder has been faithful in performing the arduous duties of his office; And, whereas, Under his leadership this district has been raised to be the banner district in the Louisiana Conference; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the members of this District Conference, that we hereby express our appreciation of him as a Christian gentleman, wise counselor, and safe leader, and that we pray for the blessings of God upon him in his new field of labor.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION V.

In view of the fact that proselyte baptism, including infants among its subjects, was practiced by the Jews for many centuries before Christ, and that our Lord made that ceremony the initiatory rite into his church, and that this proselyting extended to "all nations" and both sexes, enables us to better understand the commission, "Go ye, therefore, and teach ['mathetensate,' make disciples] all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." (Matt. xxviii, 19.)

Every scholar knows that the Greek "matheteusate," for teach, in the commission as quoted above, is properly translated, "make disciples." The marginal references in the Authorized Version of the Bible has it, "make disciples." The New Version, also, has it properly translated, "make disciples." Dr. Doddridge renders it, "proselyte all nations."

The object here expressed is to disciple all nations; and the ceremonial rite to be employed is baptism administered in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

The rendering given above to the word is that given in the lexicons, which is admitted by Rev. Alex. Campbell, Mr. Jewett, and others of the Baptist school, "It must be observed," says Benson in his commentaries, "that the word rendered 'teaching' in the next (twentieth) verse (namely, 'didaskontes'), though in our translation confounded with the word used in the nineteenth verse, yet is a word of very different sense, and properly implies instructing, which the word used in the nineteenth verse does not necessarily imply, but merely to proselyte, or make disciples."

Our Lord's words, taken together, in both verses distinctly enjoins three things, and that in the following order: to proselyte men to Christ, to baptize them, and then to teach them. It is true, however, that adult persons, before they can be made Christ's disciples, or be proselyted, must be instructed and brought to believe the great essential truths of Christianity, and even to profess their faith in them. But the case is different with infants, who may be admitted to baptism, as the children of the Jews were to the rite of circumcision, and be instructed afterwards. From this it is evident that our Lord had primarily in view, when he gave the commission, the proselyting and baptizing of infants. Therefore, Dr. Doddridge justly observes: "If Christ had sent out these missionaries to propagate Judaism in the world, he might have used the same or similar language, 'Go and proselyte all nations, circumcising them in the name of the God of Israel, and teaching them to observe all that Moses commanded.'"

Let us examine the commission, and see what it does and does not teach.

We have previously shown that Jesus Christ never organized a church while here on earth. He never came in the flesh for that purpose. His coming was altogether for another thing. He found his church already in existence when he came. His mission on earth was to give his blood for the church already organized, and to purify it; or, in the words of Paul, "Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish." (Eph. v, 25-27.) All that was necessary was for him to be "made manifest" to his church. (John i, 31.) When he came he found infants members of this church, having received the rite of the covenant. These infants the Father considered as capable of entering into "covenant" and solemn "oath" (Deut. xxix, 10-12) with himself, holding them peculiarly sacred, requiring their parents to "teach them diligently" (Deut. vi, 7) at a very early age in his laws and statutes. These infants were put into the church by special command and positive enactment of God (Gen. xvii, 12), and neither this church nor this positive law of infant membership had ever been annulled up to the giving of the commission by the Son. If any can call this statement into question, let him produce his reasons.

This all being true, I now assert that the commission itself gives no authority to organize a church; nor does it in the least intimate such. God has ever kept to himself the prerogative to found his own church; hence he gave no commission to any mortal man to organize a church. He simply gave authority to his apostles to carry out what he had ordained.

In the second place, "the commission does not, either directly or indirectly, by positive law or implication, exclude children from the original grant to church privileges and ordinances." If Jesus intended to exclude them, now was the time to have done so. But some one asks, "Does he not say believers only are to be baptized?" No; he says no such thing. The word "only" is not in the commission. He was addressing adults who must believe, but their children were already eligible. Abraham was circumcised upon his faith, but Isaac was not. The command was given to Abraham, but included eight-days-old Isaac. Here the command is given through the apostles to the parents, but it includes their infant children. The cases are parallel.

In the third place, the practice of receiving infants into the church, with the ordinance, was so common and so authoritative that no special announcement to that effect was necessary. Both Christ and the people understood this.

"Go ye, therefore, and disciple all nations." But what constitutes a nation, and, likewise, what constitutes "all nations?" Men only, women only; or men and women only? We must confess our ignorance by saying we never heard of such a nation, nor have we ever met any one, so far as we know, who has. If any one can point us to such a nation existing to-day, or to such a nation that ever existed in the past, we will be greatly obliged. Until this is done, we are not foolish enough to believe that this is what Christ meant by "all nations." This doctrine is taught, but no one has discovered the truth of it, and no one believes it. It is a flurry of trumpets without sound. It is actual stupidity to entertain such an idea. But, earnestly, all nations are composed of men, women, and children—even infants. Therefore, when the nations are baptized, infants are baptized, because they are a constituent part of them.

"But," it is asked, "how are infants to be discipled?—they can not understand, and therefore, can not be taught." We answer by asking, How do we know they can not understand? Who can tell what communion there is between the soul of the infant and its Maker, and the ability that God has given it to understand his eternal spiritual truths? At any rate, God seems to have thought they were capable of understanding and being taught.

Hear what Moses says: "Ye stand this day all of you before the Lord your God; your captains of your tribes, your elders, and your officers, with all the men of Israel, your little ones, your wives, and the stranger that is in thy camp, from the hewer of thy wood unto the drawer of thy water; that thou shouldst enter into covenant with the Lord thy God, and with his oath, which the Lord thy God maketh with thee this day." (Deut. xxix, 10-12.) Here all the elements that constitute a nation are mentioned—men, women, and children, and they are treated as disciples. The little ones, as well as the older ones, are to enter into covenant with the Lord, and into his oath. Whether they understand it or not is not for us to say. God requires it of them. But the Lord presses the matter still stronger when he declares, that "The uncircumcised man-child, . . . that soul shall be cut off from his people; he hath broken my covenant." (Gen. xvii, 14.) This is, indeed, strong language, but we presume, and have no right or reason to think otherwise, than that God knows whereof he speaks, and that the Judge of all the earth will do right. It is evident, from this language, that we are treading on sacred ground at this point, and we should be very careful to take off our shoes, lest we tread on the hearts, and even the souls, of these little ones and mortally wound them. Since Almighty God declares that the uncircumcised child has broken his covenant, and that its soul shall be cut off from his people, we deem it extremely dangerous—indirectly, if not directly—to deny to infants the initiatory rite into his church. This law has never been repealed. We, therefore, warn unfaithful Methodists of the grave responsibility that they assume by not dedicating their children to God by holy baptism. And may all such hereafter say, "Let others do as they may, but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!"

But why should we consider it a thing incredible for infants to enter into covenant with God, simply because we do not understand how? Are there not thousands of things we accept as facts, though we do not understand them? And are there not other things recorded in the Bible that are beyond our comprehension that we accept as true, simply because God says so? But we will go a step further. Not only did God enter into covenant with little children, but with the beasts of the field also. "And I, behold, I establish my covenant with you, . . . and with every living creature that is with you, of the fowl, of the cattle, and of every beast of the earth with you." (Gen. ix, 10.) If God can covenant with the beasts, we do not see why he can not covenant with children. But he says he does both. This ought to be satisfactory.

"At what age are infants capable of hearing, and at what age can they be taught?" asks one. Upon this point we shall let God decide. Hear what he says to Moses: "Gather the people together, men, women, and children, . . . that they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear the Lord your God, and observe to do all the words of the law; and that their children, which have not known anything, may hear and learn to fear the Lord your God." (Deut. xxxi, 12, 13.) "And there was not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read not before all the congregation of Israel, with the women, and the little ones." (Joshua viii, 25.) God says, the "children that have not known anything may hear and learn to fear the Lord." Then, if they are capable of instruction, they are proper subjects for baptism. Who can deny this?

Now, it does seem to us that if the Jewish infants "that have never known anything" could enter into covenant with God (and receive its sign and seal), and be taught, so can the infant children of Christians. At any rate, we shall consider them capable until we find where God says they are not.

We turn now to the Jews' practice of making proselytes. They made proselytes from "all nations," then baptized them, and then taught them. Among these proselytes were their infant children, both male and female, as we have before learned. So, when the apostles were sent out to the heathen nations with a commission in no other words than these, "Go and disciple (proselyte) all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," what could they think other but that they must do with the infant children as had been done in that church in which they and their Master had always lived, namely: baptize them?

We have shown that under the commission given by Jesus Christ to his apostles, infants are included, and are, therefore, entitled to baptism. There is not a circumstance suggesting the contrary, and even all objections have been squarely met by the Word of God.

AN AWFUL REAPING-TIME.

"Make a chain: for the land is full of bloody crimes, and the city is full of violence." (Ezek. vii, 23.)

This city has been sowing beer and drink on every corner for years past. We are reaping the harvest. Drink, drink, accursed drink, is enslaving the masses. Insatiate greed of the liquor seller, and the stupidity of the men and women who fall victims to their deceptions, is impoverishing this city. Dead-beats, hoodlums, harlots, gamblers and murderers are constantly being made. The crimes of the past few weeks ought to show the people the direction this city is drifting. What an awful reaping from past sowing! Still we go on sowing all manner of lawlessness, with wide-open saloons all night and all through the Lord's day. Here anarchists are bred. From these cesspools of iniquity go out an immoral miasma, poisoning the very air we breathe. Many streets fairly reek with vulgarity and profanity. The stench of old mud and stale beer, together with the foul language, makes these streets obnoxious indeed.

Are the vices of the city larger than the city itself? Are the lawless in full control of this city? Is it clean given over to the liquor seller, the drunken hoodlum, the gambler, and the harlots? Has God forsaken this city? Where are the Christian patriots who will come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty? Where lies the guilt of all these blood-curdling tragedies following in rapid succession? Are you sure you are wholly innocent, dear reader? What is your example as to drinking? Do you sanction the saloon? Do you drink, and thus give your money and example in support of the traffic? Do you not know the saloon is responsible for quite all these bloody tragedies? What assurance that you, or some of your loved ones, will not be a victim of the assassin? Do you help your weak fellow-man to self-destruction by treating him to drink? Do you aid the saloon-keeper by justifying moderate drinking? "Woe unto him that putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips." As you see liquor sold on every corner, and men and women going to ruin by troops, don't you care? Do you feel no concern? This is common ground on which Christians of all creeds and all patriots can stand together. It is a moral and patriotic duty, in which all lovers of humanity may join in concerted effort for total abstinence for the individual and prohibition for the State. With every saloon outlawed in this city, and the law rigidly enforced, an era of prosperity never known would ensue. Crime would be nearly unknown. Murder of rare occurrence. Poverty would yield to plenty. Happy homes would take place of hovels. The churches and schools filled with happy people. All would have employment. The masses would buy homes, dress well, and eat a-plenty. Harlots would leave, or reform. Divorces would be few. Love would prevail instead of drunken lust. Criminals of all sorts would leave, or reform. In their place would come good citizens, who love God, love home, love their country, and live to elevate humanity. Here is food for the New Orleans Protective Union to digest and assimulate. Deny it who dare, but the saloon is a hideous foe, that hangs, a mighty menace, over this city. Iniquity will be the overthrow of this city if the decent, law-abiding citizens fail to rise to the occasion. In the organized liquor traffic is a bold, sleepless, relentless, unscrupulous, tyrannical enemy of every home, every school, every church, and of our country. They are openly defiant of all legal restraint, claiming undisputed right to rob and plunder the people of money, manhood and womanhood, home, virtue, soul, robbing heaven, depopulating earth, and peopling hell. It is a pirate on the city's commerce, robbing the wage-earner, and driving many an honest tradesman to bankruptcy, by filching the money for drink that should have paid an honest debt. The landlord is also robbed by this same destroying monster. Is not this heinous robber and bloody murderer worthy to die under the condemnation of a long-suffering and outraged public? The saloon must go. Yet the people say so. What do you say, dear reader? What good can it bring to you or yours? What evil has it not wrought in your community? Has humanity no claim on you?

North Mississippi Conference W. F. M. S.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference was held at Grenada, June 4-8. The Reception Committee are especially to be congratulated on the easy and happy manner in which its members made each guest feel so welcome from the first, and no other, perhaps, has ever served with more grace. Many elegant homes were open to the delegates and visitors, and nothing seemed to have been left undone for one's comfort. Our lot was cast at the college with eleven other delegates, where that lovely Christian lady, Mrs. W. M. McIntosh, dispensed the most charming hospitality. There was not a man around, so we ladies felt that we were "monarchs of all we surveyed." The consecration service was led by Mrs. McIntosh, and so many bore witness by words of their great devotion to the Master and his cause. It was truly an uplifting service, and none could go away without feeling "it was good to be there." One of the grandest testimonies was from Miss Bettie Hughes, the returned missionary from China. When we hear the burning words of one who has given up all that is sweet in this life for the good of those beyond the seas, we feel that we should be glad to make a great many sacrifices to care for them.

Thursday, at 8:30 A. M., the Conference was opened with devotional services led by our president, Mrs. Mary I. Hoskins. Her address was inspiring, and all through the Conference her elegance and consecration drew all hearts to the cause she represented. The regular routine of business was followed in calling the roll, appointing committees, etc.

Revs. J. M. Wyatt, G. W. Bachman and Perry Duncan were introduced to the Conference, and each responded with appropriate remarks.

Mrs. Wren had just been to Mexico, and visited Miss Norvell's school. She gave a most interesting account of the natives, their physical and moral needs, that called forth the sympathy of all who heard.

Miss Maggie Foster, who has used our Scarritt Bible and Training-school scholarship, was introduced to the Conference. She has given her life to foreign missionary work. She gave us an interesting account of the training-school during the Conference.

Our treasurer, Mrs. G. C. Jones, did not arrive until Thursday.

Mrs. Carlotta Gibbs has just returned from the meeting of the Woman's Board at Charleston, S. C., and gave a delightful account of it. She said one of the most impressive services she had ever witnessed was the presentation of three young women who had given themselves to the missionary cause.

Miss Ella Grider kept the Minutes in the way that a recording secretary should do.

The music furnished by the choir was much enjoyed, especially two vocal solos—one by Mrs. Buchanan and one by Mr. G. W. Williamson.

The reports from districts showed that the missionary interest is not lagging. So many noble women have the work at heart.

The recitations given by different little girls and one little boy were very entertaining.

Miss Hinton was elected reserve delegate to the Woman's Board, to be held in Memphis.

The election of officers was as follows: Mrs. Carlotta Gibbs, president; Mrs. S. M. Thames, vice-president; Mrs. Evans, corresponding secretary; Mrs. McIntosh, auditor and editor. Only the Corinth and Durant districts were changed.

Bro. McIntosh gave us a missionary sermon on Sunday morning, and all who heard him realized that he had the true missionary spirit.

The Sunday night service was delightful, and the meeting at Grenada will long be remembered as a lovely season of spiritual feasting.

THE OFFICE OF PREACHING.

There is no cheaper sophistry than the outcry of a hurrying age against theology. For the grasp of religious life upon man has ever been proportionate to the depth and intensity of religious thinking, and Dr. Johnson said that he who thought deeply thought religiously. If the sacred science suffers, it is in good company, for no problem emerges in your studies which has not previously emerged in philosophy.

I do not deny that religion and theology are distinct; that they can and do exist apart, as do flowers and botany. For our spiritual communion depends upon certain concrete facts of experience, to which I have just alluded; it is a life of fellowship with Christ, of divine love and knowledge, hope and aspiration. But there is an irresistible need to explain these, and when they are rudely challenged, we must produce the title deeds to such spiritual estates as we claim.

Nearly all the difficulties of faith in this generation have origin in our failure to unite in our vision the fundamental principles which govern the entire man. The physical and the spiritual obscure each other and awake at intervals to collision. This is a temporary state which your ministry should help to abolish. After centuries of a false psychology we are coming to see this.—S. P. Cadman.

"St. Anthony of Egypt," says Dr. Stalker, "before his conversion was a gay and fast young man of Alexandria, and when he was converted he found the temptations of the city so intolerable that he fled into the Egyptian desert, and became a hermit. But he afterward confessed that the temptations of a cell in the wilderness were more than those of the city." Ask first where God wants you to be. Your temptations will always be lightest there, no matter where it is.—Exchange.

There is a good old prayer in the Bible, "to be kept from presumptuous sins." It is well for men in business to repeat it when temptations to run hazardous risks are so abundant. Venturing on God may be a noble act of faith; venturing on self is often an act of fatal folly. A good rule is never to do what we can not conscientiously ask God to prosper, and never to go where we can not ask our Master to go with us.—The Evangelist.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves?

In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility.

How are they expelled? By

which also builds up the system that has suffered from them.

It is the best medicine for all humors.

Conversion of the Children.

Our pastor, in a recent prayer-meeting talk, laid bare the burden of his heart, which was the conversion of the children and young people of his congregation. A large number of them are members of the church, but only a few are leading godly and consistent Christian lives. The faithful pastor was distressed because a flood of worldliness seemed to engulf the children and young people, and makes the work of God-fearing parents and Christian workers extremely difficult. The remedy he suggested is the only solution of the problem—a genuine revival among them, producing a deep conviction of sin.

Now, we know that a genuine revival comes from God, and is the work of the Spirit. It can not be worked up, and is not the result of excitement. But we have the promise in God's Word that whenever the conditions are met, there is an outpouring of the Spirit. The conditions are confession and a turning away from sin on the part of God's people, and a faith that will lay hold of the promises of a living Christ.

And by God's people we don't mean all the members of the church. It is a lamentable fact that there are large numbers in all the churches who disregard their vows. And yet God has not left himself without witness. In each church there is an elect few who are zealous and jealous for Zion. If these faithful ones will pay the price, they can have a genuine work of grace among the children and young people of their church and congregation.

A recent writer in the Outlook says that "one has only to look at the year-book of the churches to satisfy himself that church after church with very large schools are receiving by confession a beggarly few of their many children. There is only one conclusion to come to, namely: that the great crowd of children that make up our schools slip through our fingers out into the great churchless world, while in the great order of nature they ought to pass into the church, as the boy passes from the grammar-school into the high-school." The same writer adds: "The only hope of the future is in holding the children. On this we are all agreed. There seems to be little faith, however, in the possibility of doing this. But I believe it can be done; and I believe the time is coming when the Protestant Church will take every child into its bosom just as the Roman Catholic Church is doing."

The writer in the Outlook wrote from a view-point at the opposite from Methodism, which has always looked after the spiritual welfare of the children within her gates. But we give place to the quotations to show the trend of the churches towards the children. Methodism must still lead the van, but, to keep first place, she must now give attention to a deeper work of grace among them. It is not enough to get their names upon the church rolls. Upon their young hearts must be produced a deep conviction of sin and its hideousness, and of the pardoning and cleansing power of the blood of Jesus Christ. They must be taught that church membership means something; that religion is a life, and not a form; and that "godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come."

In speaking of the church attendance of children, a religious exchange recently said: "Parents are altogether too indifferent in this matter. In this connection it might be said that the Sunday-school is a splendid supplement to church attendance, but a poor substitute for it. In this age of specialization many look upon the Sunday-school as the children's church. This is a grave mistake. The Sunday-school has information for its key-note, not worship. Its stirring activity, its friendly bustle, its conversational and familiar atmosphere lack the quality of reverence, which is the very first essential of public worship." Possibly this indifference of parents and consequent lack of reverence has much to do with the worldliness among the children. Let us try to change this state of things.

We have heard people pray, mentioning the name of the officers of the church as pastor, superintendent of the Sunday-school, stewards, trustees, officers of the League, etc., President, governors, congressmen, judges, and all who are in authority, sweeping all horizons, inclusive of all men, classes and conditions, but somehow we have never heard the name of an editor, as such, mentioned in prayer.

Why is this? It surely is not due to the fact he is regarded as incorrigible, for the many flings of which he is at times the bountiful recipient, would indicate a hope for his redemption was indulged in many quarters.

This is not meant as jest, but to call attention to an urgent need.

There is not an editor in the land who truly recognizes the arduous and responsible task assigned him, but pleads for an humble place in the hearts of his constituency while at a throne of grace.

If assured of this, the word which we preach, though submitted in cold type, will run and be glorified—yea, will fly on wings of good cheer, bearing gracious tidings to the utmost bounds of our patronage, making glad the heart of all.

Your prayer will open the way of larger success for the paper in your community. It will increase its circulation, which will augment the concentrated powers of an aggressive movement against vice and sin, and thus contribute mightily toward enriching and bettering the condition of our social, intellectual and religious life everywhere.—Pacific Methodist Advocate.

Looking Upward.

It is wise for us to look at the dangers, to be fully aware of the perils, to be troublingly conscious of our own weakness; but it is folly and faithlessness to look at the danger so exclusively or to feel our weakness so keenly, so that either one or the other, or both of them combined, shall obscure to our sight the far greater and confidence-giving truth of the knowledge, sympathy and the extended protecting hand of our brother and our Lord. We belong to him, if we have yielded our hearts to him, and he will not "suffer his holy one to see corruption," here and hereafter.

If you look down from the narrow ledge of the Alpine heights to the thousand feet of precipice on either side of the two or three inches where you have your footing, you will get dizzy and fall. If you look up, you will walk steadily. Do not ignore the danger, nor presumptuously forget your weakness; but "when I said my foot slippeth, thy mercy held me up." Recognize the slippery ice and the feeble foot, and couple with them the other thought: "The Lord knoweth them that are his." Alexander Maclaren.

Not Forgotten.

In that great day no honor done to Christ on earth shall be found to be forgotten. Not a single kind word or deed, not a cup of cold water, or a box of ointment, shall be omitted from the record. Do we know what it is to work for Christ? If we do, let us take courage and work on. What greater encouragement can we desire than we see here? We may be laughed at and ridiculed by the world. Our motives may be misunderstood. Our conduct may be misrepresented. Our sacrifices for Christ's sake may be called "waste" waste of time, waste of money, waste of strength. Let none of these things move us. The eye of him who sat in Simon's house in Bethany is upon us. He notes all we do, and is well pleased. Let us be "steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as we know that our labor is not in vain in the Lord." Bishop Ryle.

God calls us to duty, and the only right answer is obedience. Undertake the duty, and step by step God will provide the disposition. We can at least obey. Ideal obedience includes the whole will and the whole heart. We can not begin with that. But we can begin with what we have. God calls. It is better to obey blunderingly than not to obey at all.—George Hodges.

Amid all the distractions of daily duties, and the solicitations of carking cares, and the oppression of heavy sorrows, it is possible for us to keep ourselves perpetually in the conscious enjoyment of the love of God. Alexander Maclaren.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

TRANQUIL CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Only once during the past year and a half of my ministry on Tranquil circuit have I essayed to write for the ADVOCATE, and that was to simply describe my "fortunately unfortunate" trip from my last work. The fact of the business is, that everything has been extremely "Tranquil." There has been nothing to write about; there is little to be said even now, except that we are "looking up."

The weather has been very dry and parching. Crops are in a very backward condition, and it is feared that our corn crop will be almost a failure. This is the third year in succession than this calamity has befallen this people, and you may well judge the discouragement felt in this region. In spite of all this, however, we are making some progress along our line of work.

Our second Quarterly Conference has been held, and we were able to report a healthy improvement over last year in every particular. The Sunday-school work at this place is in a prosperous condition, and has been an instrument in the hand of God of reclaiming some who had fallen by the wayside. Finances are sadly behind, and bid fair to remain so, but still we are ahead of last year, and so take courage and press on. Brethren, pray for us!

A PICTURE

Of health, we say of a perfectly healthful woman, and it is a picture everyone loves to look upon. All the pictures of all the artists who have ever painted the glory and beauty of womanhood, are only copies and imitations of this picture. Never artist mixed a color on his palette that can vie with the hues which tint a healthful woman's cheek. Why should this charm be sacrificed to sickness? It need not be save in rare cases. The general health of woman is so linked with the local womanly health that wasted cheek and sunken eye are in general but evidences of womanly diseases. Cure the diseases and the physical health is restored.

Mrs. Mary E. Lewis, of Tanner, Gilmer Co., W. Va., writes: "I shall always recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' for they cured me when doctors and other medicines failed. For fifteen years I suffered untold misery. When I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicines, I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I could not lie down to sleep, and everything I ate would almost cramp me to death. Was very nervous and could hardly walk across the room. I only weighed ninety pounds when I commenced taking these medicines six years ago; now I weigh one hundred and forty pounds and am having better health than ever before. My friends all say they can hardly believe that I am the same person; after being sick so long I have changed to be robust and rosy cheeked."

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1902

We are sorry to learn from Brother Bailey, of the Baptist, that the Methodists have a woman preacher "over in Georgia now 'evangelizing' around," and that he has "heard of others." How is it, Brother Lovett? Do Southern Methodists "over in Georgia" authorize women to preach? Please tell us. The one who "held meetings all over Mississippi, in parts of Louisiana, Texas, the Pacific Slope," and elsewhere, was never authorized to preach. She neither "belonged to the Conference," nor was she in the local ranks. She exercised her gifts on her own responsibility. She does not now belong to the Southern Methodist Church, and has not belonged to it for several years. There may be others. We do not know them.

We have seen some Christians much like a balky horse. They work well enough when everybody else is working, and the load is not too heavy, but the moment others slacken and the pressure increases on their own shoulders, they get discouraged and quit, lest they have the whole load to pull. Under no circumstances can they be coaxed or forced to pull on a cold collar. Every farmer can make an application of this illustration.

When one church receives into fellowship an individual who is known to be under charges and awaiting trial, it is guilty of a high degree of contempt. Respect for a sister church requires that such an applicant be held off at least until the court before which he has been cited to appear has passed on the charges. All the gush about fraternity amounts to nothing when one church thus treats with contempt the courts of another.

A revival, no matter how widespread and exciting it may be, is worth nothing unless it broadens charity, quickens zeal, deepens spirituality, enlarges affection for the church, and overcomes the disposition to hold on to the world. And those who profess to be converted must unite with the church, otherwise there is ground to doubt the genuineness of their conversion.

The evidences that brotherly love is increasing multiply. We see signs of it to-day, where it did not exist a few years ago. This indicates an increase both of piety and intelligence. In a little while the selfishness and bigotry that once forbade fraternity will be found nowhere except among the ignorant and pharisaic.

Selfish enjoyment of religion, like selfish enjoyment of wealth, so narrows a man's horizon that he can not see beyond his own desires. He never considers the wants of his neighbors. There is no benevolence in his soul.

THE PASTOR.

The pastor is God's angel to the churches. As such, he declares the Lord's message. By him the people are instructed, warned, and exhorted. But the pastor is more than a messenger. He is the feeder of the flock of Christ, over which the Holy Ghost hath made him an overseer. His relation is a peculiar and sacred one. He receives his charge from God, and into his hands is committed the welfare, not to say the destiny, of the church. Tremblingly, yet with confidence, should he receive his commission, and with strictest fidelity should he serve his people. The Lord will call him to account.

The pastor is not a priest. Neither is he a confessor. No such functions are lodged in him by the Lord Jesus. He offers no sacrifice to God for his own sins, nor for the sins of the people. There is no law binding the people to pour into his ear the tale of their sins, with a view to absolution. Yet no relation is so near and sacred as that of pastor and people, none so productive of spiritual comfort and edification, when the duties of each are fully recognized and performed.

The shepherd knows his sheep by name, and keeps constant watch. If any stray from the fold, he forthwith goes after them and brings them back. If hungry, he leads them into green pastures. If sick, he takes them into his arms and ministers to them. None are neglected. So the faithful pastor knows his people. His eye is always upon them. He restores the wandering, succors the tempted, comforts the sorrowing, ministers to the sick, visits the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and breaks to all the bread of life. Besides all this, he performs other duties, delicate and difficult, but necessary. Not all professing Christians, even though they may be entirely sincere, are obedient or teachable. They need to be instructed, and often to be restrained. Discipline in such cases is essential. The power to enforce it is committed to the pastor. St. Paul said to Timothy, "Reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine." And he charged Titus to "rebuke with all authority," that no man might have occasion to despise him for weakness and looseness of administration.

The pastor gives his life for the people, not as a hireling, for if he is a man of God, he does not serve the flock for the sake of the fleece, but because he careth for the sheep. He has their highest and best interests at heart. The people, in turn, owe something to the man who serves them in the Lord. They owe him confidence, esteem, and loving obedience. The Spirit's charge to the church is, "To know them which labor among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; and to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake." "Obey them that have the rule over you, and submit yourselves: for they watch for your souls as they that must give account, that they may do it with joy and not with grief." No church can withhold from a faithful pastor that which is his due, and prosper. The very life of the kingdom depends on observing the duties enjoined. Let those who fail to confide in the pastor, or to esteem him, but criticise and otherwise throw stumbling-blocks in his way, think on these things.

The relation of pastor is not properly secured by selection. Its very nature forbids any such idea. No flock can call and ordain its own shepherd. The master of the flock selects and appoints whom he will. So Jesus selected and sent out men after his own heart to shepherd his sheep. This business now belongs to the church, and Methodism, acting on that principle, furnishes all its flocks with pastors. None are overlooked or neglected. Methodist preachers are never in the market-place waiting to be hired. They are in the pastorate, and stand ready to serve any flock to which they may be sent. The Lord has signally blessed the method. May it never grow inefficient!

DANCING METHODISTS.

Do dancing Methodists violate the law of the church? To many minds this is not an open question. They not only believe it is a violation of the law for members to dance, but that those who dance violate solemn vows taken before God and the congregation. But one of our great city dailies, in an editorial evidently intended to justify dancing Methodists, makes what it seems to regard as a fine distinction in saying: "Dancing is not a matter of doctrine. It comes under the head of custom or rule." And because this is so, it is argued that "the movement to change the church rules so as to remove the restrictions on dancing and certain other amusements," is no movement whatever "to liberalize the theology of the Methodist Church." The truth of the argument is self-evident.

But what about the morality of those Methodists who dance and play cards, and do other things forbidden by the rules? A leading Methodist minister says, "No Methodist may dance or play cards without perjuring himself." The editor of the daily above quoted says this leading preacher talks wildly. Who is right? Perjury is commonly defined as false swearing. Possibly if the courts of the land had jurisdiction, and should try a member of the church, and find him guilty of dancing, etc., while he might not be held as a perjurer, they would certainly hold that he had been guilty of violating a solemn vow. Anyone who belongs to the church, claims its privileges and enjoys its communion, and at the same time indulges in practices forbidden by the General Rules, is not only grossly inconsistent, but constantly breaks faith with the church. Members of the church who desire to dance can escape censure by first withdrawing. There is no law compelling them to remain. When they withdraw they are no longer under vow as Methodists. But as long as they remain in communion and violate the rules, they "forswear themselves," and injure the cause they profess to represent.

We are obliged to conclude that an individual who vows, and deliberately breaks that vow, is as guilty of a breach of morals as one who swears to what he knows is the opposite of the truth. "Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths."

"AN HONEST NEWSPAPER."

A versatile, but erratic brother, who writes frequently for the press, recently made use of the following remarkable language:

"An honest newspaper must necessarily be more or less independent. We can not perfectly rely upon official organs, because the proprietors dare not advance their honest sentiments freely if they have anything of that sort; they are necessarily chameleous; they sneeze when the bosses take snuff."

The writer of that paragraph was once editor of an official organ. The presumption is, he knows what he is talking about. During his incumbency he was "chameleons"—changed his color to adapt himself to environments. He sneezed when his bosses took snuff. Such we take to be his confession. He is out of office now, and has repented. He would warn the church against those who fawn for the sake of thriving.

But why should this brother cast such reflections on official organs? He is not justified. These organs are enterprised and conducted for specific purposes. Church papers are projected for the purpose of advancing and defending the doctrines and polity of the church that authorizes and sustains them. To conduct these papers with a view to meet the design of their establishment is perfectly consistent with honesty and independence. Those who control are supposed to be in harmony with the purpose of the enterprise. Otherwise they would never have been elected to the position. It is further presumed that they were honest and independent in reaching conclusions in harmony with the church which the paper represents. If one who is elected to control forthwith begins to show his independence by uttering sentiments contrary to the doctrines of the church, or adapted to undermine its polity and impair its usefulness, he was either dishonest when he accepted the position, else shows himself a miserable apostate. Sometimes men think they are independent when they are nothing more than agitators and disturbers, some because they are "cranky," others because they are contrary and have a grievance. Every iconoclast in the land thinks he is a bulwark of freedom, a torch of liberty to enlighten the world.

Every preacher in our church occupies precisely the same relation to the church that our editors do. They only hold different positions, and a man has just as much ground for saying that the preachers are "chameleous," and "sneeze when the bosses take snuff," as to say such things of editors. But our preachers are honest and independent. So are our editors. All are bound by certain great principles. These we must sustain. When we can no longer do so, we should get out. Nothing hinders. As an editor, we adhere to the great principles of Methodism. In matters of detail, methods and policy, we exercise our liberty just as others do—no more, no less.

Who are the "bosses" before whom church editors stand in mortal dread? They are mostly imaginary beings, set up by men of a certain stripe, and crossed and contraried just to show their independence. If they had any real existence, and were set over these men, their attitude would be different. We get tired reading these unjust and unwarranted attacks on men. We suppose they will be kept up as long as men hold independent pens, and can find independent newspapers in which to print their thoughts.

CATCHING PEOPLE WITH GUILE.

It seems to be the effort of some pastors and people to catch people with guile. A case in point. A certain English Church, name not given, being unable to reach the masses, especially the men, proceeded to entrap them. A meeting for religious purposes was announced to be held, not in the church, but in a building devoted to temperance purposes. It was understood that the familiar methods of conducting religious worship would be discarded. It was also advertised that men only would be admitted, and that they would be allowed to smoke during the service. This meeting was crowned "with a large measure of success." That is, the "loafers and the poachers"—nearly all of them attended. The saloon-keepers expressed a desire to attend, but patrons were too numerous to allow them to close the bar. We presume large quantities of tobacco were consumed, and that between the lectures the attendants visited the bar (which was within hearing) for refreshments.

One of our highly esteemed exchanges, speaking of the success of this method, says it "simply shows that men are accessible, if only one goes about it along the line of least resistance." This is, in effect, advice to churches to adopt any sort of method to catch men, that does not run square up against the desires of the flesh, concede everything possible to the demands and tastes of human nature, give place to the devil, if by so doing men can be drawn to a religious service outside the church. It is bad enough to erect a "tabernacle" with the understanding that it is not a church. It is worse to draw men to public service by promising them the privilege of smoking, thus encouraging not only indulgence of the flesh, but ill manners as well. It would be far better to go to men and talk with them face to face, and give them the unadulterated gospel, than to stoop to such methods as will inevitably impress them with the idea that the public worship of the house of God has lost its power. Our religion forbids a compromise with the world, the flesh or the devil.

SEASHORE CAMP MEETING.

The usual preparations for the camp meeting are being made, and by the time this issue of our paper reaches subscribers the meeting will be in progress. The damage done by the storm last season has been repaired. New bath-houses have been built, and some improvements have been made. The boarding-houses are ready for visitors. The tabernacle is in order and arrangements for preaching complete. Everything is in readiness except the electric lights. Making changes in the power-house at Biloxi, which are delayed, has made it necessary to adopt a different method of lighting the grounds and tabernacle. Large lamps have been procured, and we think the light will be quite as good as the electric, though not so convenient. At this writing the tents are filling up, and the prospect is for a good attendance. Let everybody pray for a gracious revival!

An Invitation to Bishop Smith.

The pastors and official members of our church in New Orleans held a meeting at Carondelet Street Church on the evening of July 5, and unanimously resolved to invite Bishop Smith to make his residence in our city. A committee, consisting of Drs. LaPrade, F. N. Parker, and Mr. A. F. Godat, were appointed to set forth our claims, and to offer him a tentative home. We hope the Bishop will see his way clear to accept the invitation. His presence and influence would be greatly felt.

NEW ORLEANS PREACHERS' MEETING.

The meeting of July 7 was opened by prayer by Rev. Thomas McClendon, of the Louisiana Conference. Present: LaPrade, Parker, Wynn, Johnson, Dodson, Drake, Alford, Atkinson, and Fontaine. In addition to the presence of the local pastors, the meeting was honored by the presence of Rev. T. L. McClendon, and Rickey, of Clinton, La.

Additions: Algiers, 3; Carrollton, 3; Dryades, 1; Carondelet, one by profession of faith and several by letter; Felicity, 6; Rayne Memorial, 12.

NOTES.

An Italian Mission has been organized at Algiers.

Most of the pastors have the Bible Teachers' Circle.

Bro. Johnson has returned from Cooper's Wells. While away, the Ladies' Aid of his church remodeled his room.

The Legend of McNutt.

We have been looking forward with pleasure to the forthcoming volume, "The Legend of McNutt," by Rev. W. L. Anderson, an advertisement of which has appeared several times in our columns. Brother Anderson informs us that its publication has been delayed, and that he can not now say how soon it will appear. We hope it will not be long.

Fiftieth Anniversary.

The article of "J. H. H.," "Vicksburg the Mother of Preachers' Wives," coming to me on this fiftieth anniversary, I send you this notice that may be of interest to old friends.

Married in Vicksburg, Miss., July 6, 1852, Rev W P Barton, of the Mississippi Conference and Miss Lucy Lundie, by Rev. John Lane.

L. L. BARTON.

PERSONAL.

Brother Cammack, pastor of our church at Gulf Port, is doing a fine work. The town is rapidly growing. The presiding elder says the pastor has more work than he can do.

Rev. A. S. Lutz, recently graduated from Vanderbilt University, has been appointed for the remainder of the year to supply Texas Avenue Church, Shreveport. He has entered upon the work, and met a cordial reception.

Bishop Keener spent part of one day last week at Seashore Camp Ground. We have not seen him looking so well in a long time. The coast air and water agrees with him. Mrs. Keener has also improved since leaving the city.

We are sorry to learn of the continued illness of Mrs. Nina Raper, wife of Rev. J. W. Raper. She is now at her old home, Holly Springs, where she hopes to recover her health. May a kind Providence hear the prayers of her many friends.

Bishop Galloway was in Chicago last week, engaged in delivering a series of sermons before the Chicago University. This work closes his public service at home for some months. He will start the fifteenth to meet his engagements in Japan and China.

President Wilson, of Grenada College, is visiting the District Conferences in North Mississippi, and is making a fine impression. He is doing excellent work in behalf of the college, as is also Rev. J. M. Wyatt, the business manger. Both report fine prospects for another year.

Rev. W. D. Burroughs, who has been sick so long, has been at St. Joseph's Hospital, Memphis, several weeks, under treatment. He has much improved. This his many friends will be glad to learn. He will soon go down to Seashore Camp Ground, where he will spend a month or two.

Dr. Collins Denny, of Vanderbilt, is spending his vacation at Plymouth, Mass., and filling the pulpit of the Church of the Pilgrimage, of which Dr. D. M. James, who is traveling in Europe, is pastor. Dr. Denny is a fine preacher, and we have no doubt his hearers are greatly pleased and benefited.

Rev. J. M. Morse, one of the presiding elders having charge of Seashore Camp Meeting, was on the ground and taking notes last week. He reports the Seashore district as keeping up the record made last year, in some respects going beyond. Several of the charges have been blessed with gracious revivals. Bro. Morse is making a good presiding elder.

Rev. Thos. Carter, who for years has been Professor of Greek in Tulane University, New Orleans, has been elected to the Chair of New Testament Greek in Vanderbilt University, made vacant by the resignation of Dr. Gross Alexander. He has accepted the position. New Orleans will miss Brother Carter, especially the young people who look to him as their leader. He has been specially interested in the League work. The Nashville Leaguers will find him ready and willing. We commend him also to our brethren who desire help occasionally in their pulpits.

The Sam Jones Camp Ground.

Rev. J. A. B. Jones, president of the S. J. C. G. Association, announced in last week's ADVOCATE that the annual meeting would be held in August, beginning on the eighth day.

A writ of injunction will be served on the association, and the meeting prohibited. If there should be any hitch in the injunction proceedings, we claim absolute jurisdiction and control of all services.

We request all preachers, traveling and local, and all laymen to desist from conducting services there on that occasion. We refer to Paragraphs 301 and 286 of the Discipline. We request all preachers to remain away from the grounds during the meeting to be held August 8–18.

A Sustaining Diet.

These are the enervating days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by the sunstroke as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the less robust of our readers, that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood purifier and tonic—say, a sustaining diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep, and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

REV. C. D. ATKINSON, EDITOR.

Epworth Leaguers!

Final preparations are being made for the coming Tri State Conference at the Seashore. The date is July 23 through August 3.

The programme will be issued during this week, and the attention of all our young people is called to the splendid bill of intellectual and spiritual fare it offers.

Reduced rates have been secured on the railroads. Leaguers from North Louisiana can come via the Queen and Crescent for one fare round trip. The Southern Pacific sells Summer excursion tickets to Biloxi for one straight fare plus two dollars. These tickets will be on sale every Wednesday and Saturday, final limit sixty days. The Louisville and Nashville gives the regular camp meeting rate. These are the best rates that have ever been secured.

Let all Leaguers make their plans to come to the Conference. If you can not see your way clear to spend the time of the whole session, come for what time you can. Board can be secured for five or six dollars per week, according to accommodations.

THOS. CARTER.

Tri-State Epworth League Conference.

The fourth annual meeting of the above-named Conference will open Wednesday night, July 23, at 8 P. M., and close Sunday night, Aug. 3.

DAILY PLAN.

This year the session of the Conference will include eleven full days. As two of these are Sundays, there are left nine days for the work of the several classes, making three divisions of three days each.

A preliminary period of twenty minutes to one-half hour will be given each morning to the Devotional Study of the Bible. This meeting will be of incalculable benefit to such as desire training for personal work.

After this prayerful preparation, the schedule of class work will be as follows:

FIRST PERIOD.

General Bible Study.—Prof. H. B. Carre. (Every day except Sundays.)

SECOND PERIOD.

Home Missions.—Miss Daisy Davies. (First three days.)

Foreign Missions.—Mrs. Mary L. Hargrove. (Second three days.)

Charity and Help Department.—Miss Mabel Wheeler. (Third three days.)

THIRD PERIOD.

Devotional Department.—Joe M. Ramsey. (First three days.)

FOURTH PERIOD.

Personal Work.—Miss Jennie Armstrong. (First three days.)

Current Reform Movements. (Fourth and fifth days.)

Temperance.—Mrs. K. Ellis.

Consumer's League. (Sixth day.)

Christian Citizenship. (Seventh and eighth days.)

1. Obligation of Office.—Mr. T. M. Evans.

2. Obligation of Voters.—J. A. Woodville.

During the afternoon throughout the Conference a class in Church History and Polity will be conducted by Dr. Featherstun.

PLATFORM SPEAKERS.

The following prominent divines and speakers have been secured: Dr. H. M. DuBose, Nashville, Tenn.; Rev. J. E. Carpenter, Natchez, Miss.; Rev. J. R. Moore, Monroe, La.; Miss Emma Tucker, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. B. H Kellis, Flora, Miss.; Rev. F. N. Parker, New Orleans, La.; Dr. H. W. Featherstun, Moss Point, Miss.; Rev. R. Wilkerson, Aberdeen, Miss.

EXPENSES.

Elsewhere you will find a note from our president, Thos. Carter, on the subject of expense. There will be no trouble to send a delegate or two from your League if you make up your mind to do so. Write for a programme. Appoint a committee to canvass your young people, setting before them this great Conference. Some will see and feel there will be so much in store personally for them that they will tell you that they desire to bear half of their expenses as your delegates. Business men to-day are putting in millions of dollars for the training of the young in colleges, and the business men of your League or church will gladly invest some of their funds in sending one of your number to this training-school for leadership in Christian work.

NOTES.

Mr. J. B. Gordon, of Georgia, writes for rates, etc., stating a party of six from his State would like to attend.

President Carre, of Centenary, writes: "I feel as you do: that our programme will be excellent, and that the problem before us is to secure an attendance worthy of it."

The founder of the Conference, Rev. G. D. Parker, will be absent for the first time since its organization in 1899.

Fast Train Service.

The following telegram from the General Passenger Agent of the Big Four Route to the General Passenger Agent of the Queen and Crescent Route tells its own story, viz:

Dated Cincinnati, O., June 13, 1902.

Twentieth Century Limited, via Big Four, Lake Shore and New York Central, will leave Cincinnati 2 P. M. daily, arriving at Cleveland, 7:40 P. M.; Buffalo, 11:30 P. M.; New York, 9:30 A. M., making run in eighteen and one half hours. Excess fare, $4, but it will be worth it. Dining-car service all the way through.

(Signed) W. J. LYNCH.

This means that passengers from the line of the Queen and Crescent Route can arrive in Cincinnati at 8:15 A. M., do nearly a day's business, leave Cincinnati at 2 P. M., and riding on a magnificent fast train, reach the cities of Cleveland and Buffalo the same evening, and New York, etc., the following morning.

A similar fast train service, carrying excess fare charge of $4 from Cincinnati, has been inaugurated by the Pennsylvania railroad, leaving Cincinnati at 2:45 P. M., and arriving at New York at 9 A. M. the following morning. This train passes through Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, and Philadelphia, and offers the travelers to that section the same high-grade facilities as are offered by the Big Four through Buffalo.

Seashore Camp Grounds.

Located on the Gulf Shore, with a frontage of 1,400 feet.

WILL OPEN (D. V.)

On Wednesday, July 9, next, and Continue for 8 or 10 Days.

The Grounds are opened April 1, and closed Nov. 1, for occupying cottages and reception of visitors. Modern and ample accommodations have been provided. The wharves and bath houses which were destroyed by last Summer's storms are being rebuilt, and other improvements made for the comfort and convenience of the large crowds which annually visit this refreshing and delightfully cool and bracing place of rest, free from malaria and contagious diseases.

The sea bathing is unsurpassed by any resort on the Mississippi Sound, while the supply of pure, sparkling drinking water is furnished by one of the finest of artesian wells, whose waters possess rare virtues.

The exhilarating sea breezes refresh the fatigued, and act as a tonic to the debilitated visitors from our smoke-enveloped and dust-stilling cities and towns. Boats for sailing and fishing always on hand. The drives along the seashore present magnificent views, and are over ten miles in length. Visitors are not expected to arrive or depart on the Sabbath day.

The L. and N. R. R. Company will place on sale the reduced rate of fare during the season, from all points on their lines, and secure a corresponding rate from all connecting lines. Tickets will be placed on sale July 5 to 17, inclusive, and be good to return on until Aug 31. Two daily mail trains stop at the Camp Grounds, besides the accommodation and excursion trains, during the entire Summer season. A fine hotel with a frontage of 175 feet, equipped with electric lights and all modern conveniences, has been erected.

All itinerant preachers of the Southern Methodist Church will be admitted into the grounds and provided with lodging accommodations in Wesley Hall free of charge.

The fourth Annual Tri-State Epworth League Conference will be held on the Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 23, and continuing through Sunday, August 3. Reduced rates have also been obtained from the Louisville and Nashville railroad and connecting lines to this Conference. Tickets will be on sale from Monday, July 21, to Saturday, August 2, good to return until August 31. These Epworth League Conferences are growing in interest every year. All Leaguers and those interested in this work are earnestly invited to be present at the next Conference, which will no doubt be largely attended.

The usual entrance fee will be in force this season. No charge will be exacted for entrance on the Sunday of the Camp Meeting. A cordial invitation is extended to all who desire to attend the Camp Meeting and spend a while on the Camp Ground.

Persons wishing to secure accommodations before and during Camp Meeting, or rent cottages for the season, will please communicate with Rev. J. L. Jordan, Keeper Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or any of the following officers:

J. B. LEFTWICH, President, Mobile, Ala.

Home Circle.

Led by a Child.

I was staying in a large town, says a writer in an English paper, and took lodging at the house of a lady who was a member of one of the churches there; but her husband, though once professedly a Christian, has long ceased to act as such. Among her family was a sweet little chubby-faced boy, not more than five years old, who had just commenced to learn to read, and he would frequently come and sit on my lap, and let me hear how he could spell out the first few verses of the fifteenth of John's Gospel.

It was at one of these reading meetings—before his mother—I heard him say that he never saw his father pray; and it was to him, as well it might be, a matter of surprise, that though his mother was often on her knees, his father never was.

"Well, Willie," said his mother, "you know when your father comes home from his office every night, he always comes into your room to kiss you and wish you good-night. Why not ask him to pray?"

"Well, mother, I never thought of it before, but I will to-night."

Little Willie did not forget his promise, but kept awake on purpose that he might do as his mother had suggested; and no sooner did he hear his father's footsteps than he called out to him: "Father! I want you; I want you! Come up, father."

The father went upstairs and said to him: "Well, Willie, my child, what is it you want me for?"

"I want you to do something for me. I want you to—pray."

"Willie," said he, "you have asked me to do what I am unable to do."

"Oh, no, father, not unable." And he seemed as though his little heart would break, to hear that his father was going to refuse him; and he again pleaded that he would kneel down and pray.

"No," said the father, "I can not; I should not know what to say."

But Willie remembered the words his mother had often taught him, raised himself up in the bed, put his arms on both his father's shoulders, and said: "Kneel down, father, and I will tell you what to say."

The strong man knelt down, and Willie, with both hands clasped, said: "Father, follow me," and he repeated these words: "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me."

There was weeping in that house that night; but there were tears flowing before the joy that cometh in the morning.—Selected.

The Homeless Singer.

On a cold, dark night, when the wind was blowing hard, Conrad, a worthy citizen of a little town in Germany, sat playing his flute while Ursula, his wife, was preparing supper. They heard a sweet voice singing:

"Foxes to their holes have gone,
Every bird into his nest;
But I wander here a one,
And for me there is no rest."

Tears filled the good man's eyes as he said: "What a fine, sweet voice! What a pity it should be spoiled by being tried in such weather!"

"I think it is the voice of a child. Let us open the door and see," said his wife, who had lost a little boy not long before, and whose heart was opened to take pity on the little wanderer.

Conrad opened the door and saw a ragged child, who said, "Charity, good sir, for Christ's sake."

"Come in, my little one," said he; "you shall rest with me for the night."

The boy said, "Thank God!" and entered. The heat of the room made him faint, but Ursula's kind care soon revived him. They gave him some supper, and then he told them he was the son of a poor miner, and wanted to be a priest. He wandered about and sang, and lived on the money people gave him. His kind friends would not let him talk much, but sent him to bed. When he was asleep they looked in upon him, and were so pleased with his pleasant countenance that they determined to keep him, if he was willing. In the morning they found that he was only too glad to remain.

They sent him to school, and afterward he entered a monastery. There he found the Bible, which he read, and from which he learned the way of life. The sweet voice of the little singer learned to preach the good news: "Justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." Conrad and Ursula, when they took that little street singer into their house, little thought that they were nourishing the great champion of the Reformation. The poor child was Martin Luther. —Sunday-school Advocate.

A Rare Accomplishment.

If you had asked her about her accomplishments, she would have told you that she had none, and would have been quite sincere in her answer. She did not know how to play the piano, and she never had tried her hand at water colors or crayon sketching. She had never found time for embroidery. She got off the key when she tried to sing. In fact, one might run through the list of what are called accomplishments without naming one at which she was an expert.

Yet this sunny-faced, sweet-voiced girl had one accomplishment which outweighed all those she lacked, says an exchange in relating the above. Wherever she went gloomy faces became cheerful. You have seen drooping plants freshen at the touch of summer rain, and it seemed as if her presence revived drooping hearts in very much the same manner. She was a happiness maker. Children stopped fretting when she came near. Old people came back from dreams of the past and found the present sweet. Without being wise, or witty or beautiful, there was an atmosphere of peace about her like the fragrance of a flower. Her smile had the comforting warmth of sunshine. The tone of her glad young voice stirred the heart like a song.

You girls who are fitting yourselves for life, and to adorn life, will do well to take into account this rare and valuable accomplishment. You have missed part of your preparation, unless you have mastered the art of making happiness.—Exchange.

Who Was Rich?

"If I were only as rich as he is!" muttered a boy who had just found a crust of stale bread in a garbage barrel, as he eyed a poorly dressed boy leaving a baker-shop with a basket of whole, fresh loaves.

"If I were only as rich as he!" said the boy with the fresh loaves as he saw another boy on a bicycle munching candy.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" sighed the boy on the bicycle as another boy rolled past in a pony cart.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" grumbled the boy in the pony-cart as he caught sight of a lad on the deck of a beautiful private yacht.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" this lucky fellow wished, as his father's yacht cruised in foreign waters, as he spied one day a young prince attended by a retinue of liveried servants.

"If I was as free as that boy is!" impatiently growled the young prince, thinking of the boy on the yacht.

The Foreign Missionary and His Work.

By Dr. W. G. E. Cunnyngham.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION BY

16MO. PP. 132. 50 CENTS.

In twelve short chapters sets forth in outline the religious condition of the world, the dominant power of Christendom and its responsibility for the rest of mankind, the need and beneficence of mission work in heathen lands, and the best methods for its performance.

Barbee & Smith, Agts.,
Nashville, Tenn. Dallas, Tex.

"If I could drive out alone with a pony, and nobody to take care of me but myself!" thought the pampered boy on the yacht.

"If only I could have a good time like that boy on the bicycle!" longed the driver of the pony.

"How happy that boy with the basket looks!" said the boy on the bike.

"If I could relish my dinner as that boy does his crust!" said the baker's boy. "I'm sick and tired of bread!"

Which one was rich?—Christian Endeavor World.

Carnegie's Advice.

Andrew Carnegie's name is now on every one's lips. Recently he credited much of his success to the use of a private library open to his brother and to himself with a few other poverty-blessed boys. This explains his favoritism of libraries.

Recently he published a few rules for young men. Here are some extracts:

"Never enter a bar room, nor let the contents of a bar room enter you."

"Do not use tobacco."

"Having entered upon a certain line of work, continue and combine upon that line. Do not shrink, rather go beyond your task. Promotion comes from exceptional work."

"A man must discover where his employer's interests lie, and push for these. The young man who does this is the young man whom capital wants for a partner and a son-in-law. He is the young man who by and by reaches the head of the firm."

"Save a little always. Whatever your wages, lay by something from them. Never speculate. Never buy stocks or grain on margin. Never indorse. If you want to help another, give him all the cash you can spare; never indorse. It is dishonest."—Herald and Presbyter.

The Reward of Giving.

No good deed is ever forgotten. An incident is related of a little girl whose mother was a sick widow, and who stopped a young man on the street and begged him to buy her chestnuts. He was poor, but could not withstand her pitiful look. He handed her a coin, and said: "I can not use your chestnuts, but you are welcome to this." She thanked him, and then hurried away. Twenty years passed. The little girl grew to womanhood, and became the wife of a banker. Passing the library one evening she saw a man with her husband whom she recognized as the man who years before had been kind to her. When he had gone she inquired his errand. "He came to see if I would give him a vacant position in the bank." "Will you?" "I don't know." "I wish you would," she said, and then told him the story of her poverty and the man's generosity.

The man sat that night beside his sick wife's bed, when a liveried servant brought him a note.

"We shall not starve," he exclaimed, "I have the position." He opened the note, and found inclosed a $250 check, with the words: "In grateful remembrance of the little silver piece a kind stranger gave the little chestnut-girl twenty years ago."—Christian Herald.

Helping.

The basket of blocks was on the ground, and three rather cross little faces looked down at it.

"It's too heavy for me," said Jimmy.

"Well, you are as big as I am, 'cause we're twins," said Nelly.

"I won't carry it!" said the little cousin, with a pout.

Mother looked from her open window and saw the trouble. "One day I saw a picture of three little birds," she said. "They wanted a long stick carried somewhere, but it was too large for any one of them to carry. What do you think they did?"

"We don't know," said the twins.

"They all took hold of it together," said mother, "and then they could fly away with it."

The children laughed and looked at one another; then they all took hold of the basket together, and found it very easy to carry.

"The way to do all the hard things in the world," said mother, "is for every one to help a little. No one can do them all, but every one can help."—Philadelphia Methodist.

Hold fast to your friends—"grapple them to thy soul with hooks of steal." They are the treasure of treasures. Boys, make friendships with true boys. Girls, win hearts of true girls. Men and women, seek true friends more diligently than you seek fields or farms, money or merchandise, reputation or power. And securing them, hold them forever. Let all else go—rather than lose the friend.—Southern Churchman.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

Don't tie the top of your jelly and preserve jars in the old fashioned way. Seal them by the new, quick, absolutely sure way—by a thin coating of Pure Refined Paraffine. Has no taste or odor. Is air tight and acid proof. Easily applied. Useful in a dozen other ways about the house. Full directions with each cake.

After lingering for nearly two months at death's door, the soul of Mrs. MARY REILY was carried to its eternal resting-place by the pale horse of death. On Wednesday, June 18, 1902, Mrs Reily died. She had suffered no little, and, when death came, she faced it without the least spark of fear. On Friday before the end she took off her ring and gave it to her husband, with the request that he wear it. She had heard the call, and showed by that act she knew it was the Savior's voice calling and saying, "Come unto me, and I will give you rest." Mrs. Reily was born July 1, 1841. Her maiden name was Mary Washington Doherty. She was born and reared in this vicinity. In 1856 she became a member of the Methodist Church, and since that time she has strived to live in the faith of Christ. At the age of eighteen she married Mr. A. G. Reily. By the happy union came five children, two of whom preceded her through the valley of death. She leaves behind her an influence which will last for many years to come. She was noted for her charity. She could not bear to see anyone want for anything she could do for them. A kind word and a pleasant smile greeted everyone with which she came in contact. With her charity began at home, but did not end there. And until her last days on earth she strived to be a mother to three motherless girls. While the clouds often came over her life, still, in her darkest hours, she found rays of sunshine to illuminate those around her. And even in her greatest trials she would see the power of God, and with the hand of faith cling to the cross of Christ, saying within her heart, "Rock of ages, cleft for me; let me hide myself in thee." To the grief-stricken husband and children, relatives and friends, I would say: Grieve not for your dear one; she is not dead, but asleep in Jesus, "blessed sleep." Weep not, for while you can not call her back to you, ere long you will go to her; then you may clasp hands on eternity's shore, never again to say goodbye. JNO. L. SUTTON.

MISS JENNIE, daughter of W. H. C. and M. F. Lane, was born in Morgan county, Ga., July 30, 1851. When an infant she was taken to Mississippi, and in 1866 her parents moved to Jackson parish, La., and there resided until 1900, when she came to Texas and settled in Decatur. She departed this life April 30, 1902. She was converted in October, 1874. From the first inception of renewing grace to her final coronation in her heavenly mansion, she lived an exemplary, devoted Christian. She was careful and thoughtful in reference to the hymns and the Scripture she desired read and sung in the presence of her friends over her lifeless form. The hymns that she selected were Nos. 1, 841, and 842. The Scripture that she selected was Psalm xxiv, Isa. xii, and John xiv. These hymns and Scripture indicate the trend of her mind and the thoughts of her soul. She was thoroughly an intelligent Christian. She was a Methodist, and knew the reason why she was a Methodist. Miss Jennie was a fine Bible student, and passage after passage marked in her Bible indicate that she sought to know the deep things of God and to understand the higher meaning of eternal truth. Her experience of saving grace was conscious. She doubted not her acceptance with God, because the gospel had wrought its marvel in her heart and upon her life, and she could say to her soul's delight, "Being justified by faith, I have peace with God through my Savior, Jesus Christ." During the last year of her life she was a great sufferer, and for three months before her death was confined to her bed, but never a murmur escaped her lip, for all the while grace rippled over her heart in gurgling murmurs, and kept her in patience and peace. She walked with God in progressive holiness. Her life was a benediction. We pray especially for her aged mother and sister, who were so devoted and attentive to her every want, that grace may support, and then to salvation's final day. Pure saint, farewell, but not forever.

Her pastor, J. R. WAGES.

MRS. L. A. BROWN (nee Milam) was born in Lawrence county, Ala., Dec 13, 1835, and was married May 1, 1853, to Mr. Q. M. Brown, and passed away in great peace on May 14, 1902, at Tchula, Miss. Mrs. Brown was converted and became an earnest follower of Christ before reaching the age of sixteen. For several years after conversion she was identified with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Then, owing to change of circumstances, she, with her husband, united with the M. E. Church, South, of which she was a consistent member until death. Mrs. Brown fully illustrated in her life the religion she professed. A close student of God's Word, her life was in harmony with its teaching. As a wife, she was loving, gentle, helpful; as a mother, devoted to the welfare of her children, teaching them by precept and example the religion that was the light of her own life. Eight of her nine children, with thirty-six grandchildren, still survive her. May these, with the sorrowing husband, be comforted with that grace that ever comforted the departed one! J. M. HUGGIN.

MISS LENORAH E., daughter of Rev. Philip and Epsy Burkett, was born in Alabama, Oct. 1, 1875; and died in Bienville parish, June 5, 1902, aged twenty-six years eight months and four days. A severe spell of sickness when a child caused her to be an invalid all her life. She was partially paralyzed and deprived of the power of articulation, and could only make her wants known by signs and moans. She was a member of the M. E. Church, South, and always attended church when it was so she could. She was very devoted to her parents and to her church, and seemed very happy when in the service of her Lord. We can only say to her loved ones: Weep not; be faithful until death, and you shall meet her in the home of the blest. M. V. VAUGHAN.

The terrible evil of the saloon is illustrated in the statement of the owner of a costly and attractive building formerly used as a saloon in New York City, but who has gone out of the dreadful business.

"I have sold liquor," said Mr. Blank, "for eleven years — long enough for me to see the beginning and end of its effects. I have seen a man take his first glass of liquor in my place, and afterward fill the grave of a suicide. I have seen man after man, wealthy and educated, come into my saloon who can not now buy his dinner. I can recall twenty customers worth from $100,000 to $500,000 who are now without money, place or friends."—New York Advocate.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

Patent Thumb Index, 35 cents extra.

A Woman's Discovery.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female diseases and the piles. It never fails to cure the piles from any cause or in either sex, or any of the diseases peculiar to women, such as leucorrhœa, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc. I will gladly mail a free box of the remedy to every sufferer. Address MRS. C. B. MILLER Box 198, Kokomo, Ind.

General News.

King Edward will be crowned between Aug. 11 and Aug. 15. His recovery has been so rapid and so satisfactory that the above decision has been arrived at. No official announcement of the fact has yet been made. The pageant through the streets and the ceremony at Westminster Abbey will be much curtailed from the original plan.

Dr. Gatlin, who invented the gun known by his name, has invented a plow operated by gasoline which will do the work of thirty men and eight horses, at an expense of a little more than $2 a day.

It has been definitely decided to name one of the battleships authorized by the session of Congress, just closed, "Louisiana," in honor of this State.

Cures Nervous Headache—
HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

It removes the cause by quieting the nerves, promoting digestion and inducing restful sleep.

FIVE LITTLE MINUTES are all the time Perry Davis' Painkiller needs to stop a stomach-ache, even when it is sharp enough to make a strong man groan. Don't be fooled by imitations. 25c. and 50c.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,

A Chance to Make Money

I have been selling Perfumes for the past six months. I make them myself at home, and sell to friends and neighbors. Have made $710 Everybody buys a bottle. For 50 cents worth of material I make Perfumes that would cost $2 00 in drug stores.

I first made it for my own use only, but the curiosity of friends as to where I procured such exquisite odors prompted me to sell it. I clear from $25 00 to $35 00 per week. I do not canvass; people come and send to me for the perfumes. Any intelligent person can do as well as I do. For 42 cents in stamps I will send you the formula for making all kinds of perfumes and sample bottle prepaid. I will also help you get started in the business. MARTHA FRANCIS,

Change of Life

(Woman's Most Critical Period.)

"The promise be a mother still,
The loftiest thing alive."

At about this age of forty years women begin to pass into a condition in which their future health depends. This condition is known as the "Change of Life," or the cessation of the monthly function and capabilities for maternity. If they pass this change safely they may reasonably look for a quarter of a century of good health, but if complications arise and are not properly treated they will be sick feeble women. When symptoms of Bleeding appear women should at once begin to take G. F. P. It will carry her through the ordeal safely and bring her a long and good health.

"My wife suffered for seven years from the Change of Life. We tried every thing we could get from the doctors and held out a considerable sum of money for treatment, but without any good result; so we then began using G. F. P., and it did more good than all else we had used for the years. It is the greatest remedy for suffering females ever yet placed on the market."—J. D. Bordon, Calhoun, Tex.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; bearing-down and displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; friability, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private or married women. At all stages of pregnancy it is a God-send, during womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of any woman for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies' Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

A Massachusetts lady, who has somewhat to do with newspapers, and who is supposed to know what she is talking about, bewails "the increase in the habits of drinking and swearing among young women." Clearly the inference from such language is that the drinking and swearing in vogue among women is spreading. If the habit is indulged at all, it is to be deplored. If it is on the increase, it is enough to occasion alarm. But should we be surprised? The country seems to be going wild over sport. Ping pong, basket-ball, foot-ball, base-ball and horse-racing are the rage of the day. Among the attendants at some of these games the women are as numerous as the men. They attend the races. Efforts are being constantly made to attract them in larger numbers, and we have reason to believe that this form of sport, especially in our cities, grows in popularity with the women as well as the men. The daily papers lead us to believe that many of them are more than witnesses. They are interested in the issues because they stake money on the horses. They bet on the races. If women attend horse-races and bet on them, mingle with the men, hear their horse-talk, and in all ways put themselves on a level with the "fraternity," it is not surprising that they add to the vice of gambling the no less sins of swearing and drinking. What character of wives and mothers these women will make the future will determine.

We failed to see the report of the action of the Louisiana State Senate on the twenty-sixth of June, by which the bill to legalize boxing contests was killed. The action was to indefinitely postpone. Under the motion the question was debatable on its merits, and the vote, 19 to 13, showed what would have been the fate of the bill had it been up for final disposition. Thirteen senators in favor of the bill were thirteen too many, but we are glad that a majority were against it. The argument that "it would be better to encourage the manly art than to teach boys to use pistols and knives," was puerile. The senator who made that argument knows full well that the boys of the country are neither instructed nor encouraged in the use of deadly weapons. He also knows that no pugilist will use his fists against a man who is armed with a pistol or a knife. Unarmed men seldom get into a fight, not because they are too cowardly, but because they are too manly. To legalize boxing contests for the purpose of encouraging the manly art of self-defense is to encourage fisticuffs and rowdyism. We are glad the Legislature put a quietus for a time on a proposition which Mr. Lewis declared "would have a demoralizing effect on the youth of the State."

Mississippi Conference.

To the Presiding Elders and Preachers in Charge, Local Preachers and Other Members of the M. E. Church, South, in the Bounds of the Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: Some of you read everything published from my pen, and some of you skip everything to which my name is signed. Whether you read or not, duty demands that the opportunity be given you to read some facts and statements (which are believed to be facts), not for the purpose of controversy or strife, but for unity, peace, and the upbuilding of the church which we all love.

We have the best form of church government ever devised, and the only system of doctrines consistent with themselves and perfectly consistent with the Bible. We have grown since 1866 as no other church has ever grown in the history of the world. And as to our own Conference, it is worthy of note that one-tenth of the net gain in the number of members in our church last year was in the Mississippi Conference. Almost the whole Conference was swept by revival fires. We have been at peace among ourselves, but have we worked together as we might have done, as we ought to have done? Have we shown that unity of the Spirit which ought always to be shown? Have we not been heady and high-minded, and many of us sought to be masters or leaders? Have we not been too unwilling to follow our duly appointed leaders? Have we shown proper respect for the actions taken by resolution in the Conference? Have we been "obedient sons in the gospel"? Is not this disregard of Conference resolutions, and of plans duly devised by proper authorities, a growing evil in our Conference among preachers, and people, too? And does it not savor of self-conceit and self-sufficiency? Let me call your attention to a few matters.

1. Year after year without dissent the report of the Joint Board of Finance has been adopted, and thereby the preachers have agreed to observe "Veterans' Day" in the month of March, preach on the subject, and take the collection for the support of the superannuated preachers and the widows and orphans. How very few ever do so! And yet the treasurer of the Joint Board is required to pay the allowances in quarterly installments to the claimants. Take this year for a fair sample of our condition in this matter. W. M. Thornton, treasurer of the Joint Board of Finance, reports to me, as president of the trustees of the Conference Endowment Fund, that he had, up to July 2, received the following remittances: Jackson District—Yazoo City, $40; Brandon, $20.25; Flora, $16; Camden, $15; total, $91.25. Natchez District—Roxie, $30; Woodville, $20; Harriston, $5; total, $55. Brookhaven District—Magnolia, $50; McComb, $20; Hazlehurst, $35; Wesson, $28; Providence, $17; Caseyville, $15; Gallman, $5; total, $170. Vicksburg District—Mayersville, $14; South Warren, $23; total, $37. Meridian District—Matherville, $13.70; Central, $8.75; Shubuta, $20; total, $41.45. Seashore District—Columbia, $30; Vancleave, $15; McHenry, $35; Mt. Olive, $27.50; Hattiesburg, Court Street, $25; Americus, $35; Lumberton, $65; Williamsburg, $8; Mt. Carmel, $10; total, $250. Forest District—Eucutta, $24; Rose Hill, $26; Shiloh, $61; Walnut Grove, $5; Vossburg and Heidelberg, $70; Montrose, $45; Edinburg, $4.80; Lake, $25; Trenton, $20; Harperville, $33; Morton, $13; Carthage, $16.65; Ellisville circuit, $3.50; Neshoba, $12; Newton and Hickory, $20; total, $408.15. It will thus be seen that Yazoo City is the only one of the "first-class stations" to make any remittance to this fund at all, and that the great majority of the pastoral charges in every district, save one, has failed to carry out the orders of the Conference, and in that one district there are nine delinquent charges.

2. At the last session of our Annual Conference an amendment to one of the reports of the Joint Board of Finance was offered by Governor Jones, and adopted without a word or vote in opposition, by which the Conference ordered, and every member of the Conference promised, to appoint a layman in each pastoral charge to collect money for the Conference Endowment Fund. The Joint Board of Finance requested me, as president of the Endowment Fund Trustees, to take the matter in hand. After months of waiting and of appeal, fifteen pastors reported to me the names of the laymen appointed. I declined to give further time to that movement—too slow to be called a movement. But two belated young preachers, after my last card on the subject, sent me names. One of the brethren would have had me to believe that it took him five months to find "a man who would consent to act!" Some waited till after Conference had been adjourned two months to give private expression to their disapproval of the plan they had helped to adopt by voting for it or by not voting against, and "suggesting" that the "proper plan" was to take a man out of the pastorate (notwithstanding the scarcity of preachers in our Conference), and put him in the field, and out of his collections pay him $1,000 or $1,200 and his expenses.

3. Our Missionary Secretaries have urged that earnest effort be made to place at least 500 copies of Go Forward in so many homes in each presiding elder's district, and, if possible, 50 or 100 in each pastoral charge. This publication is authorized by the Board of Missions duly elected by the General Conference. There are two presiding elders and sixty-two pastors (four of whom are in the Forest district) who do not take either the Review of Missions or Go Forward; one presiding elder and thirteen pastors who take the Review of Missions, but do not take Go Forward; and eleven pastors who take Go Forward, but not the Review of Missions. Among the negligent, or indifferent, are several members (clerical) of the Conference Board of Missions. The total number of subscribers to these invaluable periodicals in the respective districts are as follows (the presiding elders and preachers serving charges not being counted):

District.	Review of Missions.	Go Forward
Jackson	4	227
Vicksburg	1	47
Forest	12	94
Meridian	5	37
Seashore	8	53
Brookhaven	4	106
Natchez	2	11
Total	36	575

Of the pastoral charges, Yazoo City, with 167 subscribers to Go Forward, leads not only in the Jackson district, but in the whole Conference; Terry circuit, Brookhaven district, 79 subscribers; Mayersville, Vicksburg district, 20; Morton and Pelahatchie, Forest district, 33; Hattiesburg, Seashore district, 30; while Natchez, with two churches, furnishes only one subscriber to Go Forward, and Meridian, with four churches, does not do much better; and Vicksburg, with two churches, is nearer to Meridian and Natchez in these matters than railroad distances would seem to imply.

May these plain statements of facts and figures move us all to greater union of effort and of purpose! That is my only motive in writing. Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN,
Miss'y Sec'y for Miss. Conf.

Jackson District Conference.

The Jackson District Conference was held at Flora, July 2-5; Rev. T. B. Holloman, P. E., in the chair, and Rev. R. Selby, secretary. The attendance was unusually good, and, in spite of depression caused by the prevailing drouth, there was generally a hopeful spirit, and the reports were encouraging. Prominence was given to religious exercises, as required by the Discipline; the sermons preached were earnest and practical, the congregations large and attentive.

A cordial welcome was given to the visiting brethren: Rev. G. W. Bachman, colporteur of the North Mississippi Conference; Rev. J. R. Countiss, representing our Orphans' Home at Water Valley, and Rev. H. G. Hawkins, the recently-elected vice-president of Whitworth College.

The work of the Home Mission Society was interestingly reported by Mrs. T. B. Holloman and Mrs. A. P. Ball, of Jackson, and Mrs. Pollock, of Brandon.

Friday's session was devoted mainly to missions, the spirited discussion of the various phases of the subject showing that the Conference was fully alive to its sacred claims upon the church. A programme on Sunday-schools was rendered with good effect, special reference being had to the Study Circle. Two collections were taken: one of $80 for the Orphans' Home, and one of $114 for furnishing the new Millsaps College dormitory. Bro. Hawkins made a strong speech for Whitworth College, which elicited favorable comment among the brethren, who, with regret for the resignations of Bros. Watkins and Burton, expressed great faith in the new administration of the college. Gifts made during the current year to our educational institutions were duly acknowledged, viz.: to Millsaps College, the Jackson College property, valued at $35,000, donated by Major Millsaps, and $1,000 by Bro. I. C. Enochs, $250 by Bro. R. J. Bennett and $100 by Bro. J. R. Bingham for refitting and furnishing the same; to Whitworth College, $900 worth of furniture and apparatus by Rev. M. L. Burton, and a $600 lot by Bro. L. L. Lampton, of Magnolia.

J. M. Lewis, of First Church, Jackson, and E. W. Lipscomb, of Yazoo City station, were licensed to preach; the license of A. S. Cameron was renewed, and J. M. Cowan was recommended for re-admission into the traveling connection.

N. A. Mott, A. H. Bradley, A. T. Bell and J. R. Elliott were elected delegates to the Annual Conference; alternates: W. G. Bell and I. C. Enochs.

Dr. J. A. Moore and Prof. A. H. Shannon, the latter having special charge of the new dormitory, represented Millsaps College; and the collection before mentioned, which is in excess of the amount asked for, gives gratifying evidence that the college has the favor and confidence of those who know it best.

With many thanks to the good people of Flora for their delightful hospitality, the Conference selected Brandon as the place for its next session.

The following resolutions from the Committee on Temperance were adopted:

Whereas, Ours is practically a temperance church, and is in hearty sympathy with the prohibition cause; And, whereas, It is understood that an effort is being made to secure the open saloon in Hinds county, a part of which is within the bounds of this district; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That as preachers and laymen of the Jackson district, Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South, representing a large constituency of Christian people and prohibitionists in the district, we do earnestly urge upon the good citizens of Hinds county to take an active part in opposition to the saloon element, in the event the Board of Supervisors orders an election.

2. That we commend Judge Powell for his wise, strong and timely charge to the Grand Jury of Hinds county, June 23, 1902, and for the aid he has rendered to the prohibition cause.

3. That we urge upon the laity of our church the Christian duty of serving as jurors when called upon to do so.

4. That we strive to enlist the Christian laity in the detection and conviction of any person or persons who may be engaged in the illicit sale of intoxicants.

5. That we deplore the action of Governor Longino in giving charters, without restrictive clauses, to clubs supposed to dispense intoxicants to their members and others.

6. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Board of Supervisors of Hinds county, and that the daily papers of Jackson and the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE be requested to publish the same.

As an unsolicited mark of their appreciation of his faithful and arduous service, the Conference granted to Dr. Holloman a four-weeks' vacation, and by resolution expressed their great regret that the current year would close his term as presiding elder of the district.

The Committee on Church Periodicals had this to say of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and its editor: "We take pleasure in commending our Conference organ, the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, to the attention and favor of our people. This paper has had a long and brilliant history, and is ably edited by Rev. J. W. Boswell, D. D." And this of the Nashville Christian Advocate: "The work of the new editor, Dr. Winton, is quite satisfactory, and gives promise that he will be very useful to the church in his new office." In regard to both publications the report adds this: "It is our hope and prayer that the weekly issues of these Christian journals may not only give us church news and doctrinal discussions, but also that they may furnish our homes a regular supply of the Bread of Life." The last paragraph was suggested probably by the statement of a pastor in whose charge twice as many of the Pentecostal Herald as of Advocates were taken, that his people complain that our church papers do not "feed" them.

Aberdeen District Conference.

The opening sermon of the thirty-third District Conference of the Aberdeen district, North Mississippi Conference, was preached in the Methodist Church at Nettleton by Rev. J. A. Leech, of Okolona, June 25, 1902. Thursday, the twenty-sixth, at 9 A. M., the Rev. W. W. Woollard, P. E., called the Conference to order. After devotional services, conducted by the presiding elder, the roll was called, and a large number of pastors and laymen answered to their names. Mr. J. T. McIntosh, a young layman from Okolona, was elected secretary.

The first day was given to the Sunday-school and Epworth League interest. Many valuable papers were read, and many good speeches were made, and much done and said that show that our laymen, as well as our pastors, are awake to the interest of these two important institutions of the church as never before. We are getting our Sunday-schools on a better foundation than ever before. Our superintendents are awake to the importance of having good, competent teachers—men and women who both know and love the doctrines of our church. Prof. Hamill has and is doing much to arouse in our people a higher standard of efficiency among our teachers and workers in both the Sunday-school and League.

The second day the general interest of the church throughout the district was considered, and we found that much was being done for the advancement of our Master by both pastors and people.

Our good women were on hand, and gave us much encouragement by the deep interest manifested in our home and foreign mission work.

Marvin Pierce Booth, a young man of fine attainments, was licensed to preach, and was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

Prairie station was selected as the next place of meeting.

G. C. Pain, S. T. Harkey, F. P. McElrath and P. W. Shell were elected as delegates to the Annual Conference, with G. J. Leftwich and F. J. McDonnell as alternates.

We were honored with the presence of Revs. J. M. Wyatt and J. R. Countiss. Bro. Wyatt was on hand in the interest of our school at Grenada, and his visit was an inspiration to us, and, we believe, will be of great benefit to our school. Our Methodists on this side of the State have never seemed to take much to Grenada, but we are now much more hopeful, and feel that we have something we can call our own, and something that all of us are interested in. We hope to see many of our girls from this part of the State, that have been going either to other than Methodist schools, or out of the State to school, turning to Grenada College.

Bro. Countiss gave us some valuable information from Millsaps, and we are glad that our Methodist boys have already been captured by that noble institution.

We find that our Orphanage is growing on our people, and while we are doing much already, we hope to see much more done for these poor, helpless ones.

Most of the preaching was of a high order. It was done by Revs. J. A. Bowen, Richard Wilkerson, Q. A. Oats, W. W. Williams, J. M. Wyatt, W. W. Woollard, and the writer.

Doctor, we missed you and Bro. Bachman, but the ADVOCATE and other publishing interests were carefully looked after by Bro. Countiss, who always does his work well.

Nettleton is a beautiful little village on the K. C., M. and B. R. R., situated about half way between Tupelo and Amory, and belongs to the Amory charge, which is served by that princely young preacher, H. T. Cunningham. He is in great favor with his people, and his people are in great favor with him. Never was a District Conference better entertained than was this, and some of us wanted the next District Conference held at Nettleton, and wanted Rev. H. T. Cunningham our host. The Lord bless him and all of his good people.

J. A. LEECH,
For the Sec.

Miscellaneous Notes.

The movement among Virginia Methodists for the endowment of Randolph-Macon College seems to be taking substantial shape. The papers say that Mr. John P. Branch, of Richmond, Va., has offered to give $100,000 as soon as another $100,000 is raised. He has also given $10,000 as a loan fund for students.—Epworth Era.

The Epworth Era is to be enlarged. Dr. DuBose is anxious to make the improvement at the earliest day possible. How soon the enlargement will come depends on the friends of the paper. The number of subscribers must be increased. The prospect is encouraging.

Dr. C. E. Dowman, who succeeded Bishop Candler as president of Emory College, has been appointed presiding elder of North Atlanta district, made vacant by the election of Dr. R. J. Bigham to the Book Agency. Now a successor for Dr. Dowman must be found.

The Roman Catholic authorities at the Vatican seem to be trying to find some way to get the friars out of the Philippines without appearing to do so at the instance of the United States. But the friars will have to go. The government will make no concession.

GENERAL CONFERENCE ACTION ON MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

BY REV. J. D. HAMMOND, D. D.

"For the guidance of all candidates for admission, and undergradnates in the Conferences, and also of those who, having completed the Conference course, desire to prosecnte a post-graduate course of study, the Board of Education is instructed to establish at Nashville, in connection with the Biblical Department of Vanderbilt University and under the direction of its faculty, correspondence courses, which shall be offered to all ministers or candidates for our ministry, under such regulations as may be approved by the Board and faculty.

"The secretary of this Correspondence School shall issue a certificate to everyone who prosecntes, nnder the direction of the school, the study of any book embraced in the course of study, and who passes a satisfactory written examination on the same. He shall send this certificate, along with the questions and examinations papers, to the chairman of the Annual Conference Committee having charge of the candidate or undergradnate concerned. The Conference Committee may then, if they see fit, accept his certificate in lien of examinations held by themselves; but if the questions and answers given are not satisfactory to the local Conference Committee, they may reqnire a further examination."

The above plan indicates (1) a dissatisfaction on the part of the General Conference with the present status of our ministerial education, and (2) a purpose to improve that status just as far as the conditions will admit during the present quadrennium. It does not make any change in the course of study, but it provides for the best possible results from that course as it is given to us by the Bishops. The demands on our ministers at the present time are such that a forward movement in their preparation becomes a necessity which the church can no longer ignore. Instead of admitting candidates and passing undergraduates as heretofore, the plan looks to a more thorough preparation, and offers the assnrance that the courses of required study shall yield the best results possible. The Annual Conference Committees have heretofore done their best, considering the conditions nnder which they were forced to work. Bnt by the present system the candidate or nndergraduate will not be left to himself in the effort to master the subjects on which he is to be examined.

Those who have charge of this Correspondence School—the best men for snch work to be found in the whole church—will be in constant touch with each stndent. The year's course will cover nine months. The student will receive directions and all needed assistance, and will prepare lesson papers on all of the work done by him, to be passed on by examiners, and returned to him with corrections and snggestions. In a similar manner courses of study and reading will be mapped ont for post-graduate students.

The man selected to take charge of this work is Rev. J. L. Cnninggim, of the North Carolina Conference, of which Conference his father was also a member before his death. Mr. Cunninggim is an A. B. graduate of the University of North Carolina, a B. D. graduate of Vanderbilt University; has done four years' special work at the University of Chicago and three years' pastoral work in his own Conference. He will be assisted by the faculty of the Vanderbilt Biblical Department. The work will be fully inaugurated at the next round of Annual Conferences. All those seeking admission and others will there have the matter explained to them, and will have the opportunity of enrolling and entering upon their studies at once. The thoroughness with which this work will be done is attested by the fact that the Biblical Faculty at Vanderbilt propose to accept it in part on the course of study prosecnted by theological students in residence at the university.

Circulars of information concerning the work of the Correspondence School may be had of Mr. Cnninggim, whose address is, Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.

TO OUR PASTORS AND PEOPLE.

The sessions of the Annnal Conferences are approaching, and there is but a short time to do what may not already have been done in providing for the payment of the assessments for the year. I write in the interest of church extension. Last year the church paid over four thousand dollars more than any preceding year, and yet the payment was only a little over seventy-two thousand dollars on an assessment of $110,000, and was a mnch smaller per cent. of the assessment than was paid for several other of the causes for which assessments are made, and did not provide for more than about one-third of the applicants for aid. Will not our people pay more this year? May I not appeal to each pastor and every congregation to see to it that the assessment for church extension is paid in full? If paid in fnll, we wonld still leave many very important calls for aid unprovided for. Many, many thousands of our people are without houses of worship, and can not prosper in their work till they are provided for, and very many of them can not without aid provide for themselves.

Most respectfully,

P. H. WHISNER, Cor. Sec.

July 8, 1902.

Schism.

Of all things hurtful to the Christian church, the schism is the most salient. God says: "There should be no schism in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another. And whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honored, all the members rejoice with it." (I. Cor. xii, 25, 26.) The church was reproached for this very thing. "First of all, when ye come together in the church, I hear that there be divisions [schisms] among you." (I. Cor. xi, 18.) "For there must be also heresies [sects] among you." (Verse 19.) The awful results of schisms is noted by the apostle existing in the heart of the Corinthian Church. "For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep." (I. Cor. xi, 30.) God can never bless a schism. Although the church at Corinth had once been all alive, yet the apostle laments that "many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep." Because of their schisms some were dead and others were dying. Schisms are born of hell, not of heaven. They have no kinship to the Holy Ghost. He is the author of peace and oneness. The Holy Ghost "perfectly joins together in the same mind and in the same judgment." (I. Cor. i, 10.) The scriptural sense of schism is "a breach of love, rather than a difference in doctrine." To this definition Mr. Webster agrees. It is reprehensible because of this very thing; "it is a breach of the spirit," "a breach of love." That is, there is no doctrinal differences between the brethren; yet they divide because of rankling prejudice, sordid hate, or consuming pride. Schismatic persons are narrow-minded and narrow-hearted. They see more of men and creatures than they do of God. They follow men and creatures more than they do God. "Now this I say, that everyone of you saith, I am of Paul; and I of Apollos; and I of Cephas." Those silly-minded brethren had let Paul, Apollos and Cephas get between them and Christ. The song of one was, "Paul, Paul, Paul," while another would chime in, "Apollos, Apollos, Apollos," and still another would make you tired by repeating the name of Cephas. I once knew a good-hearted, but simple-minded woman to so lose her self-possession over a preacher that for awhile you could scarcely hear anything but, "Bro. N, Bro. N, Bro. N." Such creature infatuation as this often results in damnable schisms. Listen at the stentorian voice of Paul in stern rebuke, "Was Paul crucified for you, or were ye baptized in the name of Paul?" Sister, was Bro. B or C or D crucified for you, or were you baptized in the name of Bro. B or C or D? If not, then let us hear you magnify God more than men. Paul was not one of those sap-headed preachers who pine after self-creature worship, and who encourage the same. "I thank God that I baptized none of you; . . . Lest any should say that I had baptized in mine own name." (I. Cor. i, 14, 15.) No whole-souled, sound-headed preacher will lead a lot of people off into a detestable schism. Bishop McKendree, while a young itinerant, came near being ensnared by the malign influence of the O'Kelley schism; but having good sense and grace under God's providence, he escaped it, and became a bright star in the firmament of the church. Has not God left an eternal memorial to us of his displeasure in schism and sedition when he opened the earth and swallowed up Korah and his company, who rebelled against Moses?

ROBERT L. PHILLIPS.

Natchez District Conference.

The Natchez District Conference convened in Centreville, Miss., Wednesday afternoon, June 25, 1902, with T. W. Adams, P. E., in the chair. At the opening session quite a large number of the delegates were present, and others came in later, making the attendance very good indeed. All of the pastors were present except two. The attendance of the people of Centreville and the surrounding country upon all of the sessions of the Conference was marked and very gratifying. The reports of preachers in charge show an advance along all lines of church work. Indications are for all of the Conference collections in full. A number of charges already have the missionary collection in excess. The preachers and people of the Natchez district are aroused as they have never been before in the spreading of the gospel of our Lord.

C. N. Guice was elected secretary of the Conference, and W. H. Saunders, assistant secretary.

The committee appointed at the District Conference a year ago to investigate the Sam Jones Camp Ground property reported that this was the property of the Gloster Church, and recommended that the Gloster Quarterly Conference turn the property over to the District Conference. In pursuance of this recommendation a prospective Board of Trustees was appointed to receive the property, provided the property is tendered the District Conference. J. R. Whittington, W. O. Ligon, D. E. Kelly, H. G. Millsaps and R. Whitaker were elected.

A committee was appointed to negotiate with reference to selling or repairing the district parsonage, with a possibility of moving the parsonage to Fayette. Fayette offers to give a lot and two hundred and fifty dollars towards building. The house at Gloster has never been paid for, and is needing repairs badly. The property, as it stands, will sell for enough to pay the debt, and, with the generous offer of Fayette, build a house that will be a credit to the district.

E. J. Coker was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

The preaching was done by Revs. C. D. Cecil, L. S. Jones, W. H. Saunders, W. G. Forsyth, J. E. Carpenter, C. N. Guice, A. D. Miller, and Dr. W. B. Murrah.

The following visitors were present: W. T. Griffin, Dr. W. B. Murrah, L. S. Jones, and J. A. B. Jones.

Resolutions were adopted in appreciation of the kindness and hospitality of the people of Centreville.

The Conference adjourned Saturday, the twenty-eighth.

C. N. GUICE, Sec.

Alexandria District Conference.

The Alexandria District Conference met at the hospitable little city of Boyce, on the T. and P. R. R., on June 25; the Rev. J. D. Harper, presiding elder of the district, in the chair. All the pastors of the various charges were present but three; eleven lay delegates present. The entire session of the Conference was spiritual, the brethren genial, and the preaching good.

The Alexandria district comprises about one-fourth the territory of the State, one-third the territory occupied by the Louisiana Conference, and includes about fourteen parishes, in whole or in part. The above is indited to inform the world of the magnitude of our immensity. The district includes about one-ninth of the population of the State. Until 1897 this was a missionary district, and there are three missionary parishes still within the bounds of the district. About one-third of the district is alluvial soil, and unsurpassed in fertility, comparing favorably with the valley of the Nile; the remainder is finely timbered land, and Northern capital is fast milling it into lumber. Last year the finances surpassed anything in the history of the district, and the outlook this year is promising.

The brethren of the Louisiana Conference will be pleased to learn that Dr. J. A. Parker, after an outing of six weeks, is again at his post.

The Rev. Geo. Jackson, a beloved superannuate, almost an octogenarian, brightened the Conference by his genial presence and unfeigned faith.

The Rev. L. L. Roberts, of Lecompte, read a paper on Sunday-schools that is worthy of mention.

Bro. Haney, of Opelousas, read a paper on "Our Church Literature," which, by vote of the Conference, was requested to be published in the Nashville and NEW ORLEANS Advocates.

Bro. Paul Brown presented a "Survey of the Foreign Field" in a most unique and comprehensive paper.

Chicken and preacher are inseparable. Our Conference opened on Wednesday. One brother arrived as late as Saturday, about an hour before day, and while waiting for the coming of the dawn, stated that he listened in vain for the crowing of a single cock. He was informed that most of them "had gone into the ministry." It is a game cock that crows before breakfast during a District Conference.

There were two lady delegates to the Conference, representing the W. H. M. Society. We do not know what the final outcome of the deaconess legislation will be, but we do know that woman generally succeeds at what she undertakes, and that these two ladies added materially to the pleasure of the Conference.

The following lay delegates were elected to the Annual Conference: S. M. Barr, R. H. McGimsey, Wm. W. Morrow, and Noel Norwood; alternates: H. H. White and J. M. Watson.

Rev. D. E. Kelly, pastor at Boyce, proved an elegant host.

Bro. Harper, our genial presiding elder, reports the district prosperous and the outlook hopeful.

C. C. MILLER.

The Monroe District Conference.

This body convened at Collinston, La., Thursday, June 26, and adjourned the business sessions Saturday, the twenty-eighth. While the attendance was small, the Conference was exceedingly pleasant, and the social and brotherly spirit that prevailed was delightful. A. S. J. Neill, W. R. Harvell, J. R. Moore and S. L. Riggs did the preaching, and every sermon was thoughtful and earnest.

R. H. Green was licensed to preach, and he and S. L. Riggs were recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

There were but three committees appointed, viz.: On Public Worship, Quarterly Conference Records, and a special Committee on Temperance, having special reference to the whisky problems of our own district.

The presiding elder reported an increase in the preachers' salaries of the district, and that the missionary collection last year about doubled, making us fourth per capita among the districts. He now needs a missionary appropriation of $500 and three more preachers. There are debts only on the Mer Rouge and Winnsboro parsonages and on the Monroe Church. A parsonage has been built at Harrisonburg, valued at $800, and one is in course of construction at Bastrop, to cost about $1,200, each of these having received a donation of $100 from the Conference Board of the W. H. M. Society. A parsonage is also needed at Rayville.

It was to be regretted that the Conference host, Rev. J. I. Hoffpauir, was kept away at the bedside of what was supposed to be the serious illness of his mother in Southwest Louisiana.

A more generous and fraternal congregation is not to be found in our midst than the friends who entertained us at Collinston, and our presence seemed to delight our entertainers.

Bro. Henry makes a first-class presiding elder, and surpasses any man I ever knew in getting all manner of data that adds to his intelligence of the district: How many inhabitants, black and white; number of preachers of each denomination, number of saloons, etc.

Mrs. Sligh was present in the interest of Mansfield Female College, and after representing her school, a voluntary offering of $45 was given her to assist in providing a scientific equipment to cost $500.

Mrs. M. E. Carr, the model district secretary of the W. H. M. Society, was present, and represented her work well.

On Sunday the brethren were sent to the neighboring churches to preach, which was a new feature of our District Conference.

We meet next year in Monroe.

P. O. LOWREY, Sec.

Baton Rouge District Conference.

At Zachary, Wednesday, July 2, the Conference opened at 9 A. M. H. W. Rickey was elected secretary. Rev. Robt. Randle preached the opening sermon at 11 A. M. Twenty-one preachers present; thirty laymen; fifteen visitors attracted thither. The infant class of preachers had "to go way back and sit down," whilst the old veterans came to the front and dispensed the old-time gospel with fervor and force. The sermons of Revs. R. A. Davis, T. J. Upton, S. H. Whatley, T. H. McClendon, H. W. May, S. S. Keener, Floyd Vaughn, and the address by President Carre, were honored by the presence of the Holy Spirit.

A love-feast on Sunday evening, and a sermon by Rev. Eli Riggs on Sunday night, prepared the way for the revival meetings which follow.

Reports from work reveal 150 additions to the church, financial advances, and activities of importance in the temporalities.

The business sessions had the nature of a real conferring together, and less of the mechanical routine of the formal Conference.

The following licenses of licentiates were renewed: J. D. Nesom, J. B. Henderson, W. C. Biberon, Chas. T. Stepp, Hamlin G. Lumpkin, John W. Harper, W. H. Nelson, J. L. Sutton.

The lay delegates elected to the Annual Conference were: N. Felder, T. J. Reames, B. C. Zneber, Chas. T. Stepp; alternates: J. A. Burris and E. C. Bott.

The chairman appointed H. W. May, T. J. Upton, Theo. Reames and H. W. Rickey a committee to devise ways and means to support a missionary in the West Baton Rouge section, subject to appointment by the presiding elder.

Chas. T. Stepp, W. H. Nelson and J. L. Sutton were in due form recommended for admission on trial.

The sessions and services were so brotherly and gentle as to be a source of joy and refreshing to the laity and clergy. The hospitality of those who entertained was of the truly Southern type. The elder who presided achieved a reputation of some merit. As his first effort on the district, he gave no pain and much profit.

The next place of holding the Conference will be Hammond, La.

SECRETARY OF THE D. C.

E. M. F. COLLEGE.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

The closing exercises of the E. M. F. College were largely attended, and passed off pleasantly. The sermon was preached by Rev. C. L. Chilton, of Greensboro, Ala., and was said by many who heard it to be one of the finest commencement sermons ever heard in Meridian. It was deeply spiritual, plain, practical, and free from attempts at oratory. It will long be remembered in Meridian and by the young ladies.

The Elocution and Physical Culture Department gave exhibition of a high order, and they displayed the fact that this department, in which there is so much temptation, is for God.

The piano music surpassed any former concert, and the solos and twenty piano pieces with forty performers were especially interesting, according to the opinion of many competent judges.

The commencement address by Rev. F. P. Culver, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., was a masterpiece of literature, and full of excellent, practical thought.

There were eight graduates—five with degrees, one in music, and the others in literary courses. This college strives after quality rather than quantity in its graduates; hence the small number in the graduating class.

During the whole of commencement religious services were held every afternoon by Rev. Geo. R. Back, of Bloomington, Ill., and that godly woman, Miss Mattie Perry, of Marion, N. C., in which many souls were blessed and strengthened for the Summer campaign for God.

This has been the most prosperous session of any in the history of the college.

The enrollment reaches 400, with 250 boarders; music pupils of different branches, 378; elocution pupils, 54; art pupils, 16; voice pupils, 35; chorus and sight-singing, 49; cornet, 7; violin, 10; guitar, 8; mandolin, 4; orchestra, 9; teachers' course in music, 14; harmony class, 57; sight-reading class, 26; book-keeping, 9; stenography, 21; typewritting, 19; dressmaking, 20.

We had more boarders than we could accommodate in the dining-room, and have been compelled to enlarge it, making it a commodious and attractive room. We have also added electric lights in the bedrooms, and are now erecting another two-story building.

Our Industrial Home, which we opened this year, was a great blessing to the noble girls who find it necessary to economize in order to get an education. It is carried on in one of the college buildings, and on the same grounds with the other dormitories, and is presided over by one of the teachers. The girls have the same class-room advantages as the other students, and by boarding themselves, brought their expenses for board and tuition in many instances to less than $100. This is a wonderful help to worthy girls who want to be educated at a small cost, and yet be in a religious atmosphere.

The spiritual atmosphere of the college is better than in the previous years. There were more than two hundred professions of salvation among the students. Scarcely a week passed but that some one was saved. There was truly a good atmosphere in the college, and a large number of students go out on fire of God, ready to assist their pastors and communities in any kind of religious work. Truly God has been with us this session, for which we are very thankful.

We are opening a work for boys for next session about one mile from town, in which God shall have right-of-way. This will help the college for girls, as many parents have sons and daughters that they would like to educate in the same town where they can see each other occasionally, and yet not be subject to the temptations of a co-educational institution.

Pray for our work in Meridian, that it may always be to the glory of God and to the advancement of his kingdom.

Your brother in Christ,

J. W. BEESON.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

The Study Circle.

We had a Sunday-school hour at the Jackson District Conference, at which Prof. Ricketts, of Millsaps College, presented the Study Circle in his usual felicitous manner, giving somewhat of its history, aims, and practical workings, as well as some of the difficulties in the way of a successful circle.

Now that the General Conference has made training-work for Sunday-school teachers a part of the polity of the church, and has made its superintendent a connectional officer, all of our pastors and workers ought to rally to his support. His duty is to train teachers, and he has two methods of doing that work—the Study Circle and the Institute. Both are important, both are necessary, but we wish now to specially urge the claims of the Study Circle.

We have heard it objected that on the circuits in the country it is impossible to get up a circle. The idea prevails in many places that it is easier to run a circle in the town than it is in the country. That is a great mistake. In the town there is more to attract and divert attention, and there is often so many more societies to be attended in the church, that the Study Circle is looked upon by many Sunday-school teachers as an additional burden. True, they fail to grasp the full meaning and value of the Study Circle, and the responsibilities of their work as teachers, but, in talking up the circle, we have often heard that objection urged.

But our country brethren are not overburdened with societies. And teachers in both town and country ought to divest themselves of the idea that it is necessary for the circle to have frequent meetings. It is better for the members to get together often and discuss what they have studied, but it is not necessary. The beauty of the plan is that the books are to be studied at home, in leisure moments. Surely no other method has ever been devised so inexpensive and so well adapted to reaching every Sunday-school teacher in the connection. The plan is admirable, and it only remains for pastors and superintendents to see to it that it is faithfully executed.

Like any other work, the success of a circle will depend largely upon the leader chosen. It is the leader who plans, and leads, and executes, and keeps up the interest in the work. Unless the leader is alive to the importance of his duties, and devoted to his work, the interest will lag, if not die out altogether. The leader must have the circle upon his heart and conscience if it is to win success.

Two will constitute a local circle, and surely the faithful pastor or superintendent in any school can get one of his teachers to join him. But in the economy of the plan, any individual in any place may join the circle, and will receive the same attention that the largest local circle does. So there is no reason why anyone should not join.

Our Sunday-school teachers should study to show themselves approved unto God, workmen that needeth not to be ashamed. Their calling is next to the ministry. They are under-shepherds, and they will be held responsible at the last great day for the manner in which they use their gifts and opportunities. They need to be trained for their calling. The teachers in the small country Sunday-schools need it, and those in the large city schools also need it. Let us appeal to you to avail yourselves of the opportunity afforded you in the Study Circle course. As loyal Methodists, we should join this great movement that our church has inaugurated; as teachers called of God to lead the children to Jesus and train them for his work, we should avail ourselves of the assistance it affords us to become skilled laborers in the Master's vineyard.

Adult auxiliaries	26
Juvenile auxiliaries	7
Adult members	593
Juvenile members	228
Total members	821
Adult members added during the quarter	24
Juvenile members added during the quarter	45
Life members on roll	34
Scholarships supported	12
Bible women supported	5
Subscribers to W. M. Advocate	200
Subscribers to Little Worker	82

Two societies were organized at Amite during the quarter—a Young Ladies' Society and a Juvenile Society. This makes three auxiliaries in this place. Surely the pastor at Amite is a warm friend of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and the women who are members of the adult society are earnest workers.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

PINEVILLE, LA.

We commenced our first protracted meeting last night. We baptized 7 infants yesterday, received one man into the church, organized two Sunday-schools, preached three times, secured one subscriber to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and drove 28 miles. If our plans, as now mapped out, do not miscarry, we will not spend a single night with our family until Sept. 1. We have good ministerial help promised, and expect great things. Pray for us. We will do what we can for the ADVOCATE.

TIDINGS FROM NEW RIVER.

We have just returned home from New River with a glad heart for the victory won for the Lord Jesus. Bro. McManus had everything well planned by the kindness and help of the dear boys of New River. He had a large arbor made, and notwithstanding the few windy days we had, the lights were made to shine forth at night.

Our beloved presiding elder preached Saturday and Sunday. Everybody fell very much in love with Bro. Keener.

Bro. A. J. Coburn, from Denham Springs, came Tuesday, and stayed till Thursday. He also did fine work, and made many friends.

Bro. McManus and I were left alone Thursday, but the congregation kept increasing as the meeting continued. The attendance ran from 300 to 500 people. We continued the meeting until Sunday night, and closed the meeting with 34 accessions to the church and 28 conversions.

Bro. McManus is doing good work. Two years ago we had no society there. Now he has a membership of 60 or 70, and they are planning now to build them a nice church. Methodism is planted on New River to stay, and this is one of the best fields for the plant that I ever saw.

I want to say that the people of New River are the best people, as a whole, that I ever met. There are 200 or 300 boys and girls that I feel proud of as a visitor. What grand prizes these dear boys and girls are for the Lord! The good mothers in this section account for the strong man- and womanhood of the boys and girls.

May the Lord continue his good work!

ED. C. BOTT.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

FOREST DISTRICT.

The meeting at Ellisville resulted in 9 accessions; some by vows, some by baptism, and one or two by certificate. Bro. Norsworthy was assisted by W. M. McIntosh, evangelist. At Hexlelberg there were 19 accessions by baptism and vows. Meetings are in progress at Vossburg, where Bro. Hardin is being helped by W. D. Bass, evangelist, and at Zion Grove, Scott circuit, where Bro. J. W. Thompson, the local preacher supplying the work, had the help of Bro. G. S. Harmon, an evangelist having failed to keep the appointment. The evangelist, though a good man and preacher, will not be missed. Bro. H. will meet all demands.

By having a better "forgettery" than memory, I failed to credit Bro. Hardin and some of the Heidelberg brethren with having pulled down the ugly little meeting-house close to the railroad, and built a much better house of worship at a much better point in the town. The new building is worth $1,000, and only $300 remain unpaid. As none of the members have given over $100, and only one so much as that, of course, there will be no great trouble in raising the balance of the money.

Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN, P. E.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Rev. E. P. Craddock, P. C., Columbus, Miss., July 7, writes: "We organized the Second Methodist Church in East Columbus two weeks ago. A big revival is on now. Fifteen joined yesterday on profession of faith. We now have thirty-five members. Have a nice lot fronting the college campus; will lay the corner-stone at the close of the meeting, and expect to have the church up by next Fall."

Resolutions.

The third Quarterly Conference, Vaiden charge, Winona district, North Mississippi Conference, held at Kilmichael, July 5, 1902, passed the following resolutions:

Whereas, Our pastor and brother, Rev. R. I. Allen, feels it his duty to himself and family to give up his charge temporarily because of failing health; therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Quarterly Conference that Bro. Allen has been a faithful pastor and preacher, and we are sorry to lose him from the work.

Resolved, That we commend him to the love and fellowship of any and all with whom he may meet and mingle.

Resolved, That our prayers shall follow him and his family for his improvement in health, and for God's richest blessings and benedictions upon him and his loved ones wherever they may go.

A WOMAN WORN and WEARIED

By pelvic weakness and pain and some of the many reflex disorders of other parts to which the through nerve connection with the seat of the real disease, cannot be expected to find zest in any duty or amusement.

Sensitive women shudder at the thought of consulting a physician. A natural feeling of modesty makes them dread the embarrassment attending examinations and local treatments.

In nearly all cases such ailments can be quickly, privately and safely cured at home and at very little expense.

In nearly every neighborhood are women who will testify that O. E. P. corrects all functional wrongs peculiar to women, promotes proper periods, corrects displacements, strengthens relaxed muscles, ligaments and tissues, stops unnatural drains, allays all pelvic irritations and makes a woman as she should be.

"I had almost given up hope of ever being cured, but through the means of O. E. P. I have been restored to health. I wish that I could tell all women of this splendid medicine."—Miss Cornelia Peterson, Iron City, Tn.

There is but one thing more convincing than the testimony of others and that is actual self-experience. If weak or ill in a womanly way go to your nearest druggist or dealer, invest one dollar in a bottle of O. E. P., take it according to directions, and of your own self you will know that it does not disappoint. It is the ailing woman's reliance, the one medicine that, widely used for years, has withstood the severest tests and more than fulfilled the hopes of the thousands who have tried it. There is no other medicine like it or "just as good," none that can take its place and do its work. Accept no substitute, get the real medicine and it will prove the right remedy.

O. E. P.—Oerstle's Female Panacea, is sold by nearly all medicine dealers at one dollar a bottle, or six bottles at one time for five dollars. If your dealer does not have it we will supply you with it, all charges prepaid, on receipt of the price.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1902.

Young converts who are persuaded that one church is as good as another are likely to conclude that they can live as religiously, and be as useful out of the church as in it. Those who try this method come to nought, and worse; they turn out to be agitators and disturbers, or soon go back to the world. The worst case of the kind we ever saw was a young man evangelizing on this liberal line. He was thoroughly fanatical — entirely void of judgment and prudence. The last time we met him he was under a cloud, penitent, and seeking the advice of one of our old preachers. He had come to his senses.

A man who is so anxious about the future as to bend all his energies in accumulating wealth, never spending anything for the improvement of his mind, or for the comfort and convenience of his home, or for the welfare of his fellow-men, will find himself in due time glued to the world, sordid and selfish, pauperized in mind and heart, a burden to himself and a by-word among his neighbors. He will die "lean of soul," and meet the doom of the rich fool whose end was destruction. "So is everyone that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God."

A Georgia Baptist wrote to the Christian Index, of Atlanta, in defense of women preachers, saying: "I think it is time to encourage anybody to preach." In reply, Dr. Bell says: "Unfortunately, this is a day when a great many people are setting up their 'I think' against the direct teaching of God's Word; and when Christian men do it, they undermine the authority of the Word, which is our sole authority in both doctrine and practice." We quite agree with the editor of the Index.

If our theology is founded on the teachings of the Holy Scriptures, then, before we can get rid of it, we must undermine the Scriptures and get them ont of the way. But as long as the Word stands, our theology will stand. And if it is worth believing, it is worth preserving. To tolerate men in our schools and in our pulpits who deny the faith is equivalent to giving our consent to the making of infidels. Let us stand by our theology.

The cultivation of a little church of grace no bigger than a window-garden may satisfy those who have no idea of religious joy and privilege beyond personal satisfaction, but it will not satisfy the demand of the gospel which requires Christians to "do good to all men, especially to them who are of the household of faith."

"UP-TO-DATE PREACHING."

That which is called up-to-date preaching is indulged in by a class of men who have been beguiled into the belief that they are great scholars, or men of more than ordinary sense and courage. It is asserted in some quarters that no man in this day believes the creed of his own church. In other quarters it is said that very much of Scripture is purely allegorical. What ordinary people have been taught to accept as history is declared to be fiction. Miracles are said to be unbelievable, and to be accepted only as parables. The very heart of inspiration is torn out, and nothing is left to show that the gospel, as held by our fathers, is necessary. Ethics is substituted for grace, and virtue is its own reward. Christ as an atoning sacrifice is rejected, and he becomes simply an example to his fellowmen. The up-to-date preacher rejects the story of the creation and fall of man, and talks evolution. And as there is no such thing as innate corruption or depravity as the result of original transgression, he discards the atonement, or attaches to it a meaning utterly unknown to the Word of God. He has discovered that immortality is conditional, and that if there is any punishment at all for the wicked, its duration is uncertain. He only knows that eternal punishment is impossible. And much more might be said.

What is the effect of such preaching? It depends altogether on who hears it. One class hears it and accepts it, and forthwith they are transformed into believers about on a par with the sect of the Sadducees who confronted our Lord. We can describe the benefit of such religion no better than in the language of a "Soul-Sleeper" in Arkansas, who told his hearers that "men have mighty little hope in this world, and none at all in the next." What ground for hope as to the future has one who rejects everything that makes the gospel a necessity? Another class of hearers, taught to believe the gospel and the infallibility of the Scriptures, if they are impressed by the up-to-date preaching, swing to the other extreme, and plunge into infidelity. This result is natural. Others who know themselves to be sinners, but saved by the grace of God, and rejoice in hope, turn from such preaching with disgust. It could not have any other effect on simple and confiding disciples. And we thank the Lord that among these trusting ones are men and women of the highest intelligence and social standing.

Up-to-date preachers are numerous. We are sorry to say they are found in Methodist pulpits and in Methodist schools. We have been told that some holders of chairs in schools are tainted, but do not openly teach their heresies. How true this is, we do not know. But we need not be alarmed. The coming of these men was anticipated by St. Paul; indeed, there were a few in his day—men inflated by a sense of their own importance and learning—who trouble the church with their "oppositions of science, falsely so called." Learning will never so dominate the church as to destroy all faith in the gospel; never so long as men feel themselves to be sinners, and find relief and salvation in Jesus Christ.

Up-to-date preaching, so called, is mis-called. The only true up-to-date preaching is the preaching of the gospel as proclaimed by the Master. It is the only sort we hear, and we hear it from men who stand at the very head of the list of preachers. What others preach is not the gospel; it is not even a counterfeit. It is a substitute, pure and simple; worthless as a spiritual force. It neither comforts nor strengthens the soul. The Master said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel." That means to know nothing among men "save Jesus Christ and him crucified."

THE MAN WITH THE TUNING-FORK.

The singing of to-day is not congregational, as it was in former years. It is more artistic, but less spiritual, and excites less devotion. There is not that melody in it that used to thrill our souls when led by masters who were full of music, and who took pains to instruct the people. These singing-masters, as a rule, were plain, unlettered men. They knew but little outside the singing-book. This they knew to perfection. Occasionally there came along one well-educated, who could sing a higher order of music. His anthems were inspiring, and would almost lift his hearers out of their seats. Every word he uttered was distinct, and could be plainly understood. He carried a tuning-fork, and so did his plainer brethren. There were no organs in the country, none in the small towns, and the Methodist Church in the city that used one was an exception. The tuning-fork was a necessity.

We call to mind a short, heavy-set man, with bushy hair and horny hands—a man who worked hard for his living. He was known as "the singing-master," for between "laying-by and crop-gathering time" he taught singing-school. He charged a small fee, and conducted his classes as though he had an object in view. He was serious. He charged nothing for his services on the Sabbath. Everybody was invited to join in the singing, and, led by Mr. Davis and his class, such music was heard as we hear nowhere in these days. This man was only one of many who depended on the tuning-fork, and knew how to use it.

How is it now? The man with the tuning fork would be laughed out of countenance. Few are left to "raise and carry" even our familiar tunes. The organ has supplanted the tuning fork, and if there is no one present to handle the instrument, the congregation is treated to inharmonious sounds, too high or too low, or if per chance the pitch is right, the time is too slow or too fast. And with or without an organ, only a few join in the singing. And where there is a trained choir, especially in our cities, the bigger part of the congregation merely listen, while many of the minority content themselves with following the lines in the hymn book. It is often the case that only trained ears and the angels know what is being sung. The calling of penitents by choir and organ is frequently farcical. We have known the whole effect of a stirring sermon entirely dissipated on account of the lapse of time between the close of the exhortation and the beginning of the song; and then a sense of shame, or a smile of disgust, to pass all over the congregation because of inappropriate music. The introduction of a man with a tuning-fork would be a blessing.

THE TRI-STATE CONFERENCE.

Prof. Thos. Carter is striving industriously to secure a large attendance at the Tri-State Epworth League Conference, to meet at Seashore Camp Ground, the twenty-third of July. He is scattering literature broadcast, and by tongue and pen trying to work up an interest. We hope he will succeed. The programme of exercises which appeared in this ADVOCATE last week is extensive, covering important subjects. Careful study of these subjects will prove helpful to soul and mind. Leading preachers interested in League work will deliver addresses. Two honored laymen will discuss Christian citizenship. The first half of every day will be given to work except the two Sundays, which will be devoted to religious services. Every afternoon will be given to recreation, sailing, bathing, driving, wheeling, etc.

Our young people, who, of necessity, will take an outing of some kind to some place, can be better accommodated nowhere than at this Epworth League Conference. They can at the same time accomplish good. The Epworth League is no longer an experiment with Methodists. We must recognize it as part of our church economy, and rally to it, and make it a great success. And we call upon fathers and mothers to encourage their sons and daughters, and aid them in the work. The League is a fine training-school for future usefulness. Every League in the three States, Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi, should be represented.

The officers of the Conference close their announcement with these words, which we commend to all who are interested:

"You can spend your vacation in no more delightful or profitable way than attending this Conference or Summer School. While the Conference is called primarily for Epworth Leaguers, yet any members of young people's societies, Y. M. C. A.'s, Y. W. C. A.'s or any Christians that will come, will receive a cordial welcome, and be granted all the privileges of the Conference. No better investment can be made by any League than to send one of their number to bring back the practical knowledge and spiritual quickening to be received at this Institute."

SEASHORE CAMP MEETING.

The Seashore Camp Meeting opened, according to appointment, on the evening of the ninth, with an appropriate sermon by Rev. W. W. Drake, of Felicity Street Church, New Orleans. Rev. W. H. LaPrade, of the New Orleans district; Rev. J. M. Morse, of the Seashore district, and Rev. W. M. Cox, of the Mobile district, have general supervision. Rev. J. W. Chambers, of McComb City, directs the music, with Rev. H. W. Van Hook and Miss Bessie Thompson, organists. Four services a day are held, the preaching being done alternately by brethren previously selected by the three presiding elders. Who is to preach is never announced in advance. The people take the preaching as it comes. Nobody complains at the arrangement—at least, we never hear any complaint. At the end of the fourth day but few signs of good had been seen, notwithstanding the services have been well attended, and the attention all that could be asked. A very large congregation was present on Sunday. We will make further report next week.

A QUESTION.

A brother, for whom we have very great respect, asks us to say in this week's ADVOCATE whether or not Bishops, presiding elders, and other preachers, who wear gold watches and chains and rings, are guilty of perjury. Of course, he has in mind the General Rule which forbids the "putting on of gold." We answer by saying: If the rule is to be construed solely according to the letter, without any qualification, and the violation of the rule is perjury, then Bishops, presiding elders, and all others, laymen as well as preachers, who put on gold in the shape of watches, chains, and rings, are guilty of perjury. But we are not sure that the rule is to be construed under all circumstances according to the letter.

The General Rule is founded on the third verse of the third chapter of the First Epistle of Peter, to which, we are persuaded, many give a wrong interpretation. We do not understand St. Peter as absolutely forbidding the putting on of gold, or braiding the hair, or wearing costly apparel, but not to depend on such things for adornment. The wearing of such things he calls "outward adorning." The true adorning, he tells us, is inward, that of "a meek and quiet spirit," which is perfectly consistent with modest apparel, part of that apparel possibly being gold and costly. We may conclude, therefore, that if Christians wear gold watches, chains, or rings, not for adornment, but for use and economy, or as tokens of affection, it is no violation of the spirit of the General Rule. But if nothing is in view except outward adornment, the rule is violated, and if violation is perjury, then violators are perjurers, whether they are Bishops or only common men and women.

THE NEW DISCIPLINE.

The new Discipline will soon be ready for distribution. Every Methodist home ought to have a copy. No official member can afford to be without one. Some radical changes by the General Conference in May were made, so that the old Discipline does not now contain all the laws of the church. From this date until the first of September we will furnish the new Discipline and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE one year for TWO DOLLARS cash. This offer applies to all who will pay up back dues to date, and renew their subscriptions, as well as to new subscribers who send the money. We ought to have several hundred answers to this proposition. Address,

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

A BIT OF IGNORANCE.

When a man writes for the public he should know what he is doing. Willful ignorance in some cases is a sin, especially when in ignorance a man makes statements which cast reflections on the intelligence and integrity of his fellow-men. A writer in one of our exchanges, who has "editor" attached to his name, says in his department, "As the Methodist General Conference has closed its session at Dallas, we suppose that the Methodist people will soon know what they will have to believe for the next four years, at least." If this man knew half as much about Methodism as he thinks he knows, he would never have penned that sentence. The work of the Conference was done openly, and all its proceedings were published. He could have informed himself. Had he done so, he would not have committed such a blunder. The subject of the church's belief was not discussed at Dallas.

Book Notice.

TRUE ARMINIANISM VS. MODERN ANTINOMIANISM. By Rev. K. M. Harrison, of the North Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South. Amory, Miss. 1902.

This is by no means a pretentious booklet, but it discusses in a sensible and readable way some of the important doctrines of the gospel. The arguments are from the standpoint of an Arminian. The author shows that he has read extensively on the subject—his reasoning is to the point. The book will do good. Brother Harrison is a superannuated preacher, and dedicates the volume to his brethren of the North Mississippi Conference. We are sorry the printer and proof-reader marred the title, both on the outside, and on the title-page, by printing Armenianism, instead of Arminianism. The error should be corrected in future issues. We hope the book will have a good sale.

Rev. Geo. Jackson, a venerable superannuated preacher of the Louisiana Conference, greatly enjoys the services at Seashore Camp Meeting. He has many friends who take great pleasure in making him comfortable. He is always a welcome visitor.

PERSONAL.

Rev. H. T. Gaines, who has spent a fortnight at Seashore Camp Ground, has returned to North Mississippi. He has taken care of himself, and goes back improved in health.

Dr. A. F. Watkins, Centerville, Miss., June 12, 1902, says: "We are pleasantly situated here, and happy in the work. I shall not forget the ADVOCATE in the pulpit and the pastoral work."

Prof. Thos. Carter was called a few days since to Mansfield, to visit a sister who has been sick for two weeks, or more. We have heard nothing further, but trust the afflicted one has passed the crisis.

Bro. S. A. Arnold, of Pickens, Miss., has been at Seashore Camp Ground more than a month. When he got there he was very feeble—scarcely able to get along. He has greatly improved, and the prospect is that he will recover his health entirely.

We are sorry to learn that Rev. W. J. Ferguson, pastor of our church at Auburn, had the misfortune to lose his horse last week. A thief came by night and stole him away. A negro who had shot his wife, and was in a hurry to leave the country, is suspected.

The brethren of the Brownsville district, Memphis Conference, have invited Bishop Hoss to continue his residence in Tennessee, and have asked the church in the State to join them in building an episcopal residence in Nashville, to be occupied by the Bishop during his life.

It was a great pleasure to all the brethren and sisters, especially the old ones, to see Bishop Keener once more worshiping in the tabernacle at Seashore Camp Ground. His stay was short, but his presence, even for a little while, was inspiring. For many years he was practically the manager of the camp meeting.

A note from Rev. L. F. Alford, of Tchonpitoulas Street, informs us of the death of his mother, who died in triumph on the evening of July 9. Our brother desires the prayers of the church in his behalf, and in behalf of his family so sadly bereaved. We hope some friend will send us a suitable memoir of our departed sister.

Verbal reports from the Baton Rouge District Conference indicate a successful Conference in every way. The presidency of Dr. S. S. Keener was eminently satisfactory, and helpful in every way. His method of conducting the Conference brought out all necessary information, and made plain the state of the church.

The death of Dr. H. Urquhart, editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate, was quite a shock. We had seen notices of his sickness, but had no idea of anything serious until we heard of his decease. He passed away quietly at Tate Springs the early part of last week. He had for fifty years been a faithful and useful preacher. A good man has gone to his reward.

Rev. W. W. Woollard, presiding elder of the Aberdeen district, and Rev. T. W. Adams, of the Natchez district, attended the Seashore Camp Meeting. Many of the brethren of the rank and file were present—too many to mention by name. Brother Adams was not well when he reached the ground. He did not improve, and left before the close of the meeting. We had the pleasure of seeing him in our office on his return.

The editor of the Epworth Era, Dr. DuBose, is a busy man. Besides looking after League business in the office, and editing the Era, he has found time recently to visit Atlanta, Ga.; Jackson, Miss., and the Brownsville District Conference, in Tennessee. Last week he was in Virginia and North Carolina. Very soon he will be at Seashore Camp Ground, helping in the Tri-State League Conference, where we hope he will be met by a multitude of Leaguers.

In a personal notice, last week, we gave the name of the president of Grenada College as Wilson. That was a slip of the pen. We beg President Clifton's pardon. The slip is not to be charged to ignorance or indifference, but partly to haste, and partly to the law of association. The President and Mrs. Clifton recently visited Winona, where on the Sabbath he made a plea for Grenada College, and Mrs. Clifton sang at both morning and evening services. The Winona Times says: "Her presence at the head of the School of Music of Grenada College is a guarantee of success."

Notices.

The following are the delegates elected by the Shreveport District Conference to the Annual Conference, to meet in Alexandria, La., next December: Hon. A. F. Jackson, of Mansfield, La.; Hon B. C. Lee, of Half Way, La; Col. S. B. McCutcheon, of Shreveport, La.; Rev. Joshua S Sanders, of Rocky Mount, La. Alternates: Walter S. Phillips, of Grand Cane, La.; Rev. Henry C. Murphy, of Orange, La.

DEAR BRETHREN: Those of you who are coming to the Arcadia District Conference will please note the following directions: If you come by railroad, come to Ruston on the V., S. and P., and change to Arkansas Southern, and get off at Dubach. There you will be met with conveyance. For our convenience, let all try to reach Dubach by the fifth of August. Let as many as can do so come by private conveyance.

J. B. WILLIAMS, P. C.

WILLOW HOLE, TEXAS, March 2, 1902.

Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Dallas, Texas:

DEAR SIRS—Some weeks ago I received a letter from you, requesting me to let you know concerning my eye. I think it is well. I give you the credit for curing it. I feel very grateful to you, indeed.

Very truly,
MRS JULIA A. B. WALTHALL.

The above result came from using Dr. D M Bye's Combination Oil Cure. Its action is specific on diseased tissue, leaving unharmed the sound. Hundreds of people cured at their own homes and without pain or disfigurement. Those interested may receive free illustrated book and papers by calling on or addressing DR. D. M. BYE CO., 171 Main street, Dallas, Texas. P. O. Box 462.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

Mississippi State League Conference.

This body has just closed a delightful session in the city of Jackson. About one hundred delegates were reported present, and the spirit of the Conference was hopeful and cheerful.

Dr. H. F. Tatum presided, and Drs. H. M. DuBose, J. W. Lewis and H. W. Featherston, and W. D. Hawkins and Prof. Thomas Carter made fine speeches. Papers of a high order were read by a number of young ladies. But it is not of this work of the Conference I desire to write, but I call special attention to the following action: A resolution was introduced the first day looking to a division of the State Conference, and the organization of the League on Conference lines. The resolution was referred to a committee, which reported in its favor, and the next morning it was adopted. The paper adopted recommended the election of officers for each Conference, and that the matter be referred to the Epworth League Board of each Conference for their endorsement and practical co-operation. This places the work directly in harmony with our regular Annual Conference Board, and commits the League to their care. The following officers were elected for the North Mississippi Conference:

President, Rowan Thayer, Greenwood; 1st vice-president, T. W. Lewis, Columbus; 2cd vice-president, Miss Carrie Gillespie, Greenwood; 3rd vice-president, J. N. Powers, Grenada; corresponding secretary, J. C. Park, Winona; recording secretary and treasurer, Miss Mary Sweatman, Winona; superintendent of junior work, Mrs. G. H. Mathis, Columbus. District secretaries: Sardis district—Miss Julia Jones, Coldwater; Grenada district—J. C. Wilson, Grenada; Winona district—Miss Lillie Mitchell, Winona; Durant district—Prof. Smith, Durant; Columbus district — Miss Mabel Cayce, Columbus; Aberdeen district—J. T. Connell; Corinth district—Miss Sallie Kilpatrick, Corinth; Holly Springs district—Lester Fant, Holly Springs; Greenville district — Miss Allie Dunn, Greenville.

Mississippi Conference Minutes.

There are on hand one hundred and fifty or two hundred copies of the Minutes of the last session of the Mississippi Conference. Preachers or others wishing copies may procure them by writing to Rev. H. G. Hawkins, Brookhaven, Miss. Be sure to send postage at the rate of two and a half cents per copy when you write for them. A. F. WATKINS, Sec.

THIS WILL REMIND YOU that the pain of strains, bruises and sprains, common incidents of active out-door life is drawn from aching bodies by Perry Davis' Painkiller, as a magnet draws bits of iron from sand.

Fast Train Service.

The following telegram from the General Passenger Agent of the Big Four-Route to the General Passenger Agent of the Queen and Crescent Route tells its own story, viz:

Dated Cincinnati, O., June 13, 1902.

Twentieth Century Limited, via Big Four, Lake Shore and New York Central, will leave Cincinnati 2 P. M. daily, arriving at Cleveland, 7:40 P. M.; Buffalo, 11:30 P. M.; New York, 9:30 A. M., making run in eighteen and one-half hours. Excess fare, $4, but it will be worth it. Dining-car service all the way through.

(Signed) W. J. LYNCH.

This means that passengers from the line of the Queen and Crescent Route can arrive in Cincinnati at 8:15 A. M., do nearly a day's business, leave Cincinnati at 2 P. M., and riding on a magnificent fast train, reach the cities of Cleveland and Buffalo the same evening, and New York, etc., the following morning.

A similar fast train service, carrying excess fare charge of $4 from Cincinnati, has been inaugurated by the Pennsylvania railroad, leaving Cincinnati at 2:45 P. M., and arriving at New York at 9 A. M. the following morning. This train passes through Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, and Philadelphia, and offers the travelers to that section the same high-grade facilities as are offered by the Big Four through Buffalo.

To the Preachers in Charge in the Mississippi Conference.

The treasurer at Nashville writes me that they are forced to borrow large amounts from the banks in order to meet the pressing demands. This means that interest must be paid. Let me urge those who have made collections to remit promptly, so that our Conference shall be free from blame in this matter. Don't keep the money in your hands, for it forces the Board to borrow and pay interest. I am glad to say that receipts to date are in advance of same date last year, especially for domestic missions. Not one of our faithful brothers serving a Conference mission has asked for help and been denied this year. I beg you to send in the money, and this record will be maintained. W. L. LINFIELD,
Treas. Conf. Bd. of Missions.

Do You Get Money Enough?

This advertisement applies to three classes of people. It will be strange if you do not belong in one of the three classes.

It applies to the young man or woman who recognizes the fact that almost every conceivable profession or business is so overcrowded as to make the chances of success very small and the possible final results very discouraging. This class should consider the greatest business in all the world—advertising.

In this business in America alone there are expended over $600,000,000 per year, and a vast army of skilled, able, experienced assistants is needed. Such assistants are very difficult to get. Salaries are large. The business is easily learned. The occupation is dignified and pleasant.

It applies to that vast army of young people who are now learning some business as clerks, bookkeepers, stenographers and other employees. A knowledge of advertising will so add to their efficiency as to make immediate promotions certain and a rapid rise to positions of trust and importance and large remunerations equally certain.

The man or woman in a business establishment who gets in closest touch with the head of the firm, gets the most promotions and reaches the top round of the ladder first, is one who has, or can gain, a working knowledge of the advertising business.

It applies to the business man, whether just starting or established in business. The business which gains all the custom and makes all the money nowadays is the one which is the best advertised. Others must go to the rear.

It should be the first duty of every business man to possess himself of a full working knowledge of the proper means and methods of advertising his business rightly. With this knowledge he has an advantage over all competitors which will be of inestimable value to him every business day in the year.

Do you belong to any of these three classes?

Would you like a detailed statement of a plan by which in the easiest, quickest and most inexpensive manner you can gain a complete, practical knowledge of the advertising business? Not from a theorist in an office room, but from the inside of an actual advertising business, which does writing, illustrating, printing, mailing, posting and placing of advertisements of every conceivable, good kind, for retailers, jobbers and manufacturers, all over the civilized globe, and which is beyond question the most successful business ever built upon the writing and illustrating of advertising—or advertising as a professional proposition.

If you are interested, write for the plan.

31ST ANNUAL CAMP MEETING

Seashore Camp Grounds.

Located on the Gulf Shore, with a frontage of 1,100 feet.

WILL OPEN (D. V.)

On Wednesday, July 9, next, and Continue for 8 or 10 Days.

The Grounds are opened April 1, and closed Nov. 1, for occupying cottages and reception of visitors. Modern and ample accommodations have been provided. The wharves and bath houses which were destroyed by last Summer's storms are being rebuilt, and other improvements made for the comfort and convenience of the large crowds which annually visit this refreshing and delightfully cool and bracing place of rest, free from malaria and contagious diseases.

The sea bathing is unsurpassed by any resort on the Mississippi Sound, while the supply of pure, sparkling drinking water is furnished by one of the finest of artesian wells, whose waters possess rare virtues.

The exhilarating sea breezes refresh the fatigued, and act as a tonic to the debilitated visitors from our smoke-enveloped and dust-stifling cities and towns. Boats for sailing and fishing always on hand. The drives along the seashore present magnificent views, and are over ten miles in length. Visitors are not expected to arrive or depart on the Sabbath day.

The L. and N. R. R. Company will place on sale the reduced rate of fare during the season, from all points on their lines, and secure a corresponding rate from all connecting lines. Tickets will be placed on sale July 5 to 17, inclusive, and be good to return on until Aug 31. Two daily mail trains stop at the Camp Grounds, besides the accommodation and excursion trains, during the entire Summer season. A fine hotel with a frontage of 175 feet, equipped with electric lights and all modern conveniences, has been erected.

All itinerant preachers of the Southern Methodist Church will be admitted into the grounds and provided with lodging accommodations in Wesley Hall free of charge.

The fourth Annual Tri-State Epworth League Conference will be held on the Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 23, and continuing through Sunday, August 3. Reduced rates have also been obtained from the Louisville and Nashville railroad and connecting lines to this Conference. Tickets will be on sale from Monday, July 21, to Saturday, August 2, good to return until August 31. These Epworth League Conferences are growing in interest every year. All Leaguers and those interested in this work are earnestly invited to be present at the next Conference, which will no doubt be largely attended.

The usual entrance fee will be in force this season. No charge will be exacted for entrance on the Sunday of the Camp Meeting. A cordial invitation is extended to all who desire to attend the Camp Meeting and spend a while on the Camp Ground.

Persons wishing to secure accommodations before and during Camp Meeting, or rent cottages for the season, will please communicate with Rev. J. L. Jordan, Keeper Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or any of the following officers:

J. B. LEFTWICH, President, Mobile, Ala.
DR. E. L. McGEHEE, Vice-President, New Orleans, La.

The Home and the Saloon.

It is universally admitted that there is no more destructive force arrayed against the home than the liquor power. It may be said that the saloon is driven out to the exact extent that the home is made what the home ought to be; and that it thrives to the exact extent that the home is a failnre. Prohibitory laws may repress the liquor traffic, bnt the building up of good homes will sap its very life. The most of onr temperance legislation has been aimed at the repression of the evil, rather than at the removal of the evil's cause; but an inflammation snppressed from the outside at one point will break out at another, nnless at the same time the cause of the trouble is removed. We have long traced crime and poverty and disease to drink; the connection is so close and obvious that it is scarcely to be wondered at that inquiry stopped at that sink of iniquity, satisfied that the source of the trouble was reached; and when the foulness has risen again as fast as it could be drained out, the inborn depravity of human nature has been a satisfactory, though a painful explanation. It is only in recent years that serious doubts of the correctness of this theory has led to a more careful stndy of the subject; and it has been fonnd that the love of drink, the cause of so much wretchedness, is itself the effect of a deeper evil, whose remedy must go below even the best repressive legislation, no matter how good that may be as an aid in its rightful place. No positive evil can be adequately met with negative measnres alone; when the shadow of death hangs over us, good sanitation is not enough; something positive, constructive, must be added—the vital force must be stimulated, fed, built up.

Most of the springs which feed this Dead Sea of human life, and give it power to blight everything about it, can be traced back to the saddest thing which ever darkened this world—the home without the power of life. God never does anything with great masses except through the accumulating force of little things. It is not to the State, or even to the Church, that he has entrusted the life-centers of humanity, but to the individual home. The little children are the foundation of the kingdom; the children whose nascent life is to be fed and shaped by the power of life in the home. When this power of life is crippled or starved or dead, we get out of the home everything that is unlovely, from deformity to putrefaction.

Just as life has a physical basis, the home has a physical basis; and without that basis neither of them can exist in this present world. It is not claimed that legislation or philanthropy can create a home, but legislation and philanthropy can do away with conditions which make a home impossible. They can do more than that; they can snpply the conditions favorable to the growth of the home's physical basis, just as the gardener can supply favorable soil to a plant in the faith that the Lord of life will take np the work which his limited power can carry no further.

What is the physical basis of a home? If the spirit of love and wisdom is its soul, the house which enshrines it is its body; and the house, with the conditions, good or bad, which surround it, and all that part of the daily life which concerns the nourishment and welfare of the body, make up the physical basis of the home.

Where this physical basis is deficient to any great extent it is idle to look for a healthy development of the life of the home except in rare instances. And it is this defective physical basis, as the study of the subject more and more clearly shows, which must be remedied, and that on a large scale, if the fight to the death which is on between the saloon and the home is to end in the triumph of the right.

It is difficult, in such short compass, to state fully even a small section of this great liquor question; there is the constant danger of being misunderstood because to press one point in a single column is necessarily to pass by everywhere else. It is not meant that repressive legislation is not necessary; nor that God can not touch and save the soul of a man without any physical help—that good physical conditions are the necessary premises for religious life. But it is meant, emphatically, that we have no right to put a stumbling-block in our brother's way, or to leave there a stumbling-block which we can remove. We are still too strongly tainted with the monkish falsehood that to exalt the soul we must despise the body; yet God has ordained that only through the body can one soul reach or help another. If this fact be recognized, we can better understand how the physical basis of the home is the pivotal point in the struggle against the saloon.—Selected.

The Coronation Chair.

The chair in which King Edward will be crowned is the most precious relic in all England. It stands in the Chapel of St. Edward in Westminster Abbey, and surrounding it are the graves of six kings, five queens, four princesses, a duke and a bishop. Standing beside it are the sword and shield of King Edward III.

The chair is of black oak, with a pointed Gothic back, elaborately carved. The feet are lions, with their tails curled np over their backs to support the seat, which is a stone two and one-half feet long, a foot and a half wide and a foot thick. On this chair all the rulers of England from the time of Edward I. (the famous warrior who was called Longshanks because of his long legs) down to Victoria have sat to be crowned.

This alone is a period of 800 years, but the stone has a legendary history that adds to its preciousness in the eyes of the British people. It is claimed that this is the very stone which Jacob used as a pillow when he lay beneath the Judean stars and dreamed of the wondrous ladder which reached to heaven, and npon which the angels ascended and descended. Yon remember it was here that God himself came and made a covenant with Jacob (Genesis xxviii). Then Jacob rose up and, taking this stone, poured oil upon it, and vowed a vow unto the Lord, and called the name of the place Bethel, which means, "The House of God."

Tradition then relates that this is the very stone upon which every king of Israel, from Saul to Zedekiah, that King of Judea, who was captured by the Babylonians, was crowned. It is said that when the Babylonian army swept over Jerusalem, destroying the palaces and temple, that Jeremiah concealed this "stone of the testimony," the witness of the compact between Jehovah and Jacob, and preserved it for Zedekiah's children. One of these, a daughter, Circa, by name, Jeremiah is said to have saved and taken to Egypt, where he kept her hidden safely until after some years they went to Ireland, Jeremiah carrying with him the precious stone.

After they reached Ireland, Circa's beauty attracted Prince Heremon, ruler of "Tuatha de Danan," which is said to be the Celtic name for "Tribe of Dan;" so Heremon must have been Jewish as well as Circa. They were married, and one of their descendants, Fergus I., carried this stone to Scotland in the year 1200. James VI. of Scotland became James I. of England, and back through him King Edward VII. traces his descent to Circa and Heremon.

However much truth there may be in these ancient traditions, the stone is of great historical value from its known use at the coronation of every king and queen for a period of at least 800 years. It is a curious fact, however, that the ancient altars of Ireland were called in the Celtic tongue, "Bothel," the word meaning "House of God," as the old Hebrew "Bethel" meant.—The Presbyterian.

What the Children Learned.

"There is no place like grandpa's"—that is what the children thought when they came from the dusty city to the old farm. There were so many things to interest them that they never got tired. Grandpa had a way of explaining things to the little folks that even Johnnie, the baby, could understand.

"How do birds build their nests that they are so nicely made, and so soft inside?" asked one of the children.

"Well," said grandpa, "they have nothing but a bill and a pair of feet. Maybe you wonder how they can do so much with so little in the way of tools, but they have been given skill by the great Father above, and can do a great deal with but few materials. Take, for instance, the nest of the goldfinch. The inside of it is lined with cotton, wool, and fine, silky threads, while the outside is interwoven with thick moss. Then, in order to conceal the nest as much as possible, the outside is made to look very much like the tree or other object to which it is attached. In some nests, the hair, the down, and the straws, are curiously laid across each other and interwoven together. There are others, all parts of which are neatly joined and fastened together by a thread which the bird makes of flax, horse or cow hair, and often of spider's webs. The blackbird, after completing his nests, plasters the outside with a thin coating of mortar, which cements and binds together all the lower parts, and which with the help of some cow hair or moss, stuck to it while the plaster is wet, keeps it compact and warm."

"But how about the swallows right here at the house," said Annie. "How do they build their nests?"

"The swallows," said grandpa, "build their nests quite different from most birds. They use neither sticks, straws, nor strings, but they compose a sort of cement, with which they make themselves nests, perfectly neat, secure and convenient. To moisten the dust of which they form their nests they frequently skim over the surface of some lake or river, and dipping their breasts into the water, shake their wet feathers upon the dust till it is sufficiently moist, and then knead it up into a kind of clay with their bills. There is much more about birds that I will tell you some other time, but always remember this one thing, that the Lord, who cares for the birds, is willing to care for each one of us who is willing to trust him fully."—Exchange.

The Gospel of Happiness.

A woman who had many sorrows and heavy burdens to bear, but who was noted for her cheerful spirit, once said in explanation: "You know I have had no money. I had nothing to give but myself, and so I made the resolution that I would never sadden any one else with my troubles. I have laughed and told jokes when I could have wept. I have always smiled in the face of every misfortune. I have tried never to let any one go from my presence without a happy word or a bright thought to carry with them. And happiness makes happiness. I myself am happier than I would have been had I sat down and bemoaned my fate."

This gospel of happiness is one which everyone should lay to heart. Set out with the invincible determination that you will bear burdens, and not impose them. Whether the sun shines or the rain falls, show a glad face to your neighbor. If you must fall in life's battle, yon can at least fall with a smile on your face.—Wellspring.

J. AVERY MCCLURG was born in December, 1900, and ended his brief life June 18, 1902. Though only a few short months marked his stay, home was brightened and his winsomeness gained for him a wealth of affection in a large circle outside his immediate family. He was the only son, and his parents, with fondest love, watched the unfolding beauties of their darling's character. Love could not foil the dart of death. Friends, with softest tread, with gentlest touch, ministered in all that love or skill suggested; yet steadily the golden sands of life gave way. The end was reached, the "silver cord was loosed," and some one whispered, "He is dead." O, the anguish of that hour! Yet he is not dead. The babe is sleeping, resting safe with Christ, the children's friend. Like the beautiful flowers that covered his bier, like snow unsullied by earth's rude contact, he gave joy here and then went back to God. Home is desolate without his baby voice to charm, his tiny hands to fondle. Parents and sister sorely miss the lovely child who erstwhile made them all so happy. Yet we must not question Providence, nor impatiently ask "Why is it?" God's plans in his own time unfold. When life's last sun is set, and our tired feet pass through heaven's portals, then shall we know and gratefully exclaim, "God's way is best." A FRIEND.

Whereas, In the providence of God the Mary Ervin Union has sustained an irreparable loss in the death of their beloved friend and co-worker, MRS. EMMA MAYES STAMPS; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That while death came to her in a way that seems doubly pathetic and sad, that we bow in submission to One who is too wise to err and too good to be unkind. We have the blessed assurance, by her consistent life, that sudden death meant sudden glory to our comrade in white-ribbon bonds. As we looked upon her lifeless body the thought came to us: Sooner or later we, too, must follow. We know not when the summons will come. It may be in the Spring-time, when mother earth is putting on her robe of richest green, or it may come with the biting frost of Winter; but come it will.

2. That we extend our loving sympathy to her husband, children, and other bereaved ones, and may God bless and comfort them in their sorrow and loss!

3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the Minutes of our Union, and a copy be furnished the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and Hazlehurst paper.

Committee: Mrs. J. B. Watkins, Mrs. Nellie Todd.

RUTH ERMA EVERETT was born in West Point, Miss., Nov. 16, 1901, and died June 30, 1902. All too brief, from a human standpoint, was the life of this sweet and beautiful babe. From the moment of her arrival to the time of her unhappy departure she was the brightness and joy of the household. By her shining, sweet face and winsome ways she impressed all who saw her, and won a place in every heart. Father, mother, grandparents, and all, loved her and lavished caresses upon her. But she who was so pure, and who, in her innocency, seemed fragrant with the aroma of some fairer clime, has gone, leaving behind a desolate home, aching hearts, and sad, sweet memories that will forever abide. Dear friends, your babe has not ceased to be. She is with the Master in the "house of many mansions." Be true to God, and you will hear again the prattling voice. You will see again, radiant with immortal life, her cherub form, and you will feel again twining around your necks the white, encircling arms, now cold in death. May God help you to be faithful unto the end!

R. A. MEEK.

It was at the noon hour on Friday, June 27, 1902, while everything was quiet, and the weeping of those who watched could be distinctly heard, that little EMMA JULIA, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Peterson, ceased to breathe. The lives of those about her had only been brightened seven months by her little smiles to strangers as well as loved ones. She is sadly missed by all, but we would not call her back if we could, for she has gone to be with the angels, and bloom in the paradise of God. Weep not, loved ones, for she is in heaven. We have just laid her little body away among the pines, where the birds and gentle zephyrs will sing (her) sweet songs till the graves will give up their dead clothed with immortality. H. E. CARTER.

A Supreme Crisis.

Alike at home and abroad we have entered upon a new era. New dangers confront us, new opportunities invite us, new obligations command us. We are living at a supreme crisis in the history of the race. The least and most obscure mission in all our oriental field presents more signs of promise, more trophies actually won, and more open doors than could have been found in the whole of our foreign fields a brief generation ago. God is thrusting the missionary into the foreground of the world's great events. He lays the foundation of empires, blends together the elements of new civilizations, constructs new institutions, and from this time forth marches in the van of every great movement which marks the progress of the race. The present is a supreme moment in the history of the missionary enterprise. Our present situation is critical in the extreme. Eastern Asia, Southern Asia, and Africa, the regions where the Christless myriads are found, are all beckoning to us from their distant shores. In God's name let us be up and doing.—Bishop Thoburn, in Missionary Intelligencer.

Blessed is the man who, in the midst of trials, is contented not to know. Not least among the heroes of the war were the men who were in the ships, listening for and obeying the commands of the officers, hearing the noise of battle, and having more than a full share of its risks, but for whom, because they were deep down in the engine-room, there was none of the excitement of vision. Such must often be our Christian obedience, knowing but in part, and yet obeying cheerfully in faith and patience and good assurance that the end is victory through Christ.—Congregationalist.

The secret of a pure life is a pure heart. Clean lives, noble deeds, Christ-like characters, are the incarnation of pure thoughts. As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he. The man of impure thoughts will not long speak pure words. If, then, our lives are to be clean and sweet, we need to think often of God and his holy attributes, his mercy, his truth, his compassion, his goodness, his fatherly care, his protection, and his perfection.—Brethren Evangelist.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

Patent Thumb Index, 35 cents extra.

We will, until further notice, send the "Short History" and the ADVOCATE one year, to all subscribers, new or renewing, for TWO DOLLARS cash, the subscriber to pay cost of sending the money. If checks are sent, ten cents must be added. The price of the history is sixty cents. It will be mailed postpaid. We would like to have many orders on this proposition during the dull months of the Summer.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

"Potatoes."

We once heard of a man who ate potatoes for breakfast, but at lunch his wife always gave him a nice dish of potatoes, while for dinner the dear woman thought he would enjoy nothing more than a good square meal of potatoes.

This poor man died.

My dear madam, have mercy on the poor man who has to eat potatoes all the time; give him a change. Order a "New Orleans Cook Book." It is full of the best recipes by the best cooks of this Southland—95 pages—and was designed to be serviceable. Send twenty cents in stamps to the ADVOCATE office, and secure one of these valuable books before the limited supply is exhausted.

A PLAIN QUESTION: Do you really get the only Painkiller—Perry Davis'—when you ask for it? Better be sure than sorry. It has not, in 60 years, failed to stop looseness and pain in the bowels.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia and sick headaches. I was many times compelled to leave work and go home. Our druggist told me to try Ripans. I am now in much better health. I can eat most anything, have no headache and work steady. I also was greatly affected with constipation, and Ripans gave me relief from that.

At druggists.

BOOKKEEPING, SHORTHAND, PENMANSHIP etc., successfully taught by mail or no charges. POSITIONS secured. 10,000 students. Booklet free. Add. DEPT. 18 DRAUGHON'S BUS. COL. Nashville Tenn.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

Glances at the World.

Our Roman Catholic citizens in some sections seem to be much distarbed over the efforts of our government to secore the withdrawal of the friars from the Philippine Islands. They evidently intend to make it appear that the purpose grows out of a spirit of persecution. On this ground they will make an appeal to the public. At a mass meeting in Grand Rapids, Mich., a few days since, a set of resolutions adopted was preceded by a preamble in these words, "Whereas, The friars, as a class, are unjustly maligned, and are even threatened with expulsion and the spoliation of their property; therefore," etc. These Catholics would have us believe that the friars are innocent, consecrated priests, who have no object in life save to serve the souls of the people; whereas, daring Spanish occupation, they were virtually civil rulers, and largely responsible for the revolt against the rule of Spain. This cry of the Catholics of Grand Rapids may be taken up and repeated all over the United States, but it will amount to nothing in face of the facts that the native Filipinos desire the removal of the friars, and that our government proposes to fully compensate them for their lands. No such thing as "spoliation" is thought of for a moment. But it makes good capital for the Romanists.

The success of scientific investigation is marvelous. The following paragraph contains the latest information in regard to consumption: "Karl Spengler, director of the hospital at Davos, the celebrated Swiss consumption resort, has stirred the European medical fraternity by his discovery of a means of preventing the dissemination of tuberculosis contagion. The treatment consists of administering a liquid by means of inhalation, which kills the contagious particles in the pulmonary regions, and permits expectoration without danger of infection. Dr. Spengler is a graduate of the Koch School of Bacteriology. Koch thinks well of Spengler's idea, and the new process is already used in the Charity Hospital at Berlin." On the supposition that consumption is contagious, this discovery will prove of incalculable value.

A dispatch from Richmond, Ind., to the New York Times says: "The last negro has left Decatur, Ind. His departure was caused by the anti-negro feeling. About a month ago a mob of fifty men drove out all the negroes who were then making that city their home. Since that time the feeling against the negro race has been intense, so much so that an Anti-Negro Society was organized. The colored man who has just left came about three weeks ago, and since that time received many threatening letters. When he appeared on the streets he was insulted and jeered at. An attack was threatened, and he made a hasty exit. The anti-negroites declare that as Decatur is now cleared of negroes, they will keep it so, and the importation of any more will undoubtedly result in serious trouble." Referring to this dispatch, the Nashville Banner comments as follows: "This is but a repetition of similar happenings reported from other Northern States. There was even a more serious manifestation of the anti-negro spirit recently in Illinois. There is no such hostile feeling to the negro in any part of the South. There is no Southern locality in which the negro is not welcome as a laborer, and where he can not safely count on kindly treatment from the whites, as a class, as long as he deports himself in an orderly manner."

The readers of newspapers see a great deal of strikes, but we imagine they do not always get an idea of what they cost, nor where the cost falls. The anthracite coal strike, which began about ten weeks ago, has cost more than fifty millions of dollars. Such is the estimate as given by the Chicago Inter-Ocean, the losses being divided as follows:

Loss to operators in price of coal (normal)	$22,500,000
Loss to miners in wages	10,500,000
Loss to employees [illegible] (men striking, made idle [illegible] strike	2,750,000
Loss to be [illegible] in region	7,500,000
Loss to [illegible] men outside of region	4,250,000
Cost of maintaining coal and iron police	500,000
Cost of maintaining non-union workers	150,000
Losses to mines and machinery	2,000,000
Grand total	$50,210,000

This strike threw out of employment more than one hundred thousand miners, and about thirty-five thousand other people. Strikes do not pay.

THE MISSION OF THE COLLEGE GRADUATE.

BY REV. W. W. DRAKE.

The value and usefulness of an education is a proposition to which everyone will readily assent, if everyone is permitted to formulate his own definition of education, for the definitions and ideals on this subject are as various and contradictory as the standpoints from which men look at life.

In order to discuss the mission of the college graduate, we must decide among these various ideals what the college ought to do for a man. Selecting from the medley of ideals, which more or less dominate the thought of our time on this vital subject, three typical conceptions of the purpose of education, let us decide which is the true one.

1. There is a strong popular tendency to exalt the practical financial value of education, and make that its chief value and its purpose. This tendency grows out of the commercialism of a materialistic age. It discriminates against any study or training that does not commend itself by its commercial value. While I do not decry the practical value of industrial education, and while I believe that the college man is likely, other things being equal, to be a leader in the business world, I firmly believe that this bread-and-meat ideal is the great bane of our educational life. While none may avow the doctrine that a curriculum is to be regulated according to its money value, there is a strong popular tendency to exalt this element unduly.

2. At the opposite pole of thought is an idea which in our age is happily a diminishing quantity, and which, for want of a better name, may be called the scholastic ideal. Its rallying cry is, "Culture for culture's sake;" its purpose is scholarship, and its practical tendency is to separate between education and practical life. It trains men to know, rather than to do or to be.

3. The broad and high ideal, which I believe to be the true, is expressed more forcibly than I could hope to express it in these recent words of Prof. Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University: "In these modern days the university is not apart from the activities of the world, but in them and of them. It is both for scholarship and for service." This conception seeks not to lower the standard of broad and accurate scholarship, nor to make a man less fit to take care of himself in the hard, practical, workaday world, but to turn his scholarship and his practical knowledge alike to the highest and most unselfish ends in the service of society. It may be most emphatically styled the Christian ideal, for it follows the example of Him who "came not to be ministered to, but to minister." Its purpose is to supply the world with men, strong and well furnished, who realize that power of any kind is not a possession to be used for their own aggrandizement or emolument, but a sacred trust to be administered in the interest of society. Its product is men trained to serve. There are signs unmistakable in the history of the present generation of student life, that this last and highest ideal of the purpose of education is coming to be recognized as the true basis of training. Within the last few years has arisen a movement among the students of the Christian world, which unites the best conception of education with the best Christian thought, which has for its slogan, "The evangelization of the world in this generation"—a movement in which thousands of the brightest students of our universities have offered their own lives for the work of rescuing the most unfortunate of their fellow-men from the thralldom of superstition and heathenism. Growing out of the same spirit of unselfish service to society, have arisen the phenomena of college settlements, which are simply an effort on the part of students to share the blessings of the higher life with the lowliest population in our cities. Another, perhaps not less striking sign of the fact that education is regarded in our day as the handmaiden of every effort for the improvement of social conditions, is furnished by the recent political history of America's greatest metropolis, when a distinguished college man resigned the presidency of a great university to lead a reform movement against the entrenched power of corrupt politics. These are well-known and palpable signs of the movement in educational thought that is destined to make of the educated manhood of the future a twentieth century knight errantry, ready to espouse the cause of truth and righteousness and social betterment upon every field where need may call.

I shall refer only briefly to the scope and character of the college training that must grow out of this ideal. It will not be less thorough in its impartation of knowledge than the more selfish ideal that makes knowledge itself the summum bonum; it will not be less practical than the low ideal that aims merely at commercial efficiency; but, above all, it will turn these accomplishments to the end of social efficiency. Its method will be threefold: 1. Information, including not only the impartation of a knowledge of facts, but a development of the power of independent thought; 2. Application, the adaptation of knowledge and thought to the actual conditions of life; and, 3. Above all, inspiration, the implanting of a true view of the meaning and purpose of life. In pursuing this method and carrying out this ideal, very much depends on the spirit of the institution. An all-important element is found in the personal touch of teacher on student, and the best condition for that result is in the small college. Some one has criticised President Garfield's definition of a university, "Mark Hopkins at one end of a log and a student at the other;" and it is true that university work, which involves wide experiment and independent investigation, is utterly impossible, unless it has at its command a wealth of material and apparatus; but the definition emphasizes this all-important element of college training, viz.: the impressing personality with high personality. A large part of the value of Rugby consisted in the reproduction of the great personality of Thomas Arnold in the lives of the Rugby boys.

Our definition of education and its ideals has assumed that the college graduate, trained for manhood and for service, has a mission. Let us point out in outline what that mission is. There are various moral and social problems pressing on our generation for solution. The dominant commercialism of the time must be rebuked and overcome by the setting up of nobler standards of thought and life. There are giant vices, like the liquor traffic, which not only corrupt private morals, but dominate political parties and Legislatures—vices which must be met and routed. Political standards are painfully low, and too often questions of government degenerate into a bartering of personal honor and public welfare for money or political advancement. Not infrequently men accept the dictation of a boss or party leader, and delegate the sacred right of citizenship to a set of often unprincipled men to do their thinking for them. Men must learn that political honor is as sacred as personal honor; they must be taught to think and act for themselves on all questions of public interest, and the leaders of public life must be men whose ambition is to serve instead of being served.

In industrial and social life, too, there are pressing problems which can only be solved by trained minds capable of accurate, sustained and unprejudiced thought, and inspired by large hearts that feel the world's need. Among these questions is that of the equitable division of the profits of capital and labor. Closely connected with this is the social condition of the laboring man and of the army of the unemployed, and of the extension of the blessings of our modern civilization to those who have not inherited wealth, leisure, or educational opportunity. A method must be worked out for averting the disastrous effects of strikes and other labor disturbances; the degeneracy growing out of unsanitary homes, immoral living, and the fearful nightmare of child labor, must be relegated to a barbarous past. A modus vivendi must be found for two diverse races living upon the common soil of our Southland, bound together by destiny to work out together a common salvation.

In order to meet these questions, there is need for men of trained minds, who can think them out to a solution, rising above prejudice and passion; men of brave, self-devoted hearts, which beat in sympathy with the world's sorrows; men of trained powers to grapple with actual conditions about them. To whom may the nation look for leaders in the solution of these and other problems but to her college graduates, to the men who have been trained in mind and heart and hand for the service of mankind after the pattern here suggested?

If one doubts what one earnest soul can do for his race when he sets himself with trained intellect and tireless hand to the solution of its problems, let him look at the grand figure of Lord Shafteshury, alleviating the condition of millions of his fellow-men through his personal influence on legislation, and by his tireless personal sympathy and beneficence, and drawing from the Prime Minister of England the assertion that, "The history of reform legislation in England during the last generation has been largely the history of one man Lord Shaftesbury." Or let him look at the more recent and humble spectacle of an obscure foreigner, a reporter on a New York paper, dinning in the people's ears, through his reports, a plea for better conditions for the city's tenement-house dwellers, until a wave of popular indignation wrought marvelous improvement there, and our humble reporter was introduced by the present head of the nation as "New York's most useful citizen."

One of the special and important problems of our State and section at the present moment is one to which the college graduate has a special call, viz.: the problem of education. This question is an important element in the solution of all others. The questions of better citizenship, better social, industrial, and moral conditions, is very largely the question of more and better schools for the children of all the people. It is an encouraging sign of the times that some of the leading college men of the North and of the South have taken practical hold of this problem, and have enlisted thought and wealth in the movement represented by the "Southern Education Society." A very important part of this movement in our section is the equipment of small colleges—colleges which shall not only be based upon this Christian ideal of service, but shall have the means to furnish, along with lofty inspiration, the most thorough and accurate scholarship. I think it is safe to say that no man could do a finer work for Louisiana and the South than would be done by putting Centenary College upon a basis of financial competency to do such work as has always been her ideal and her aim—the work of Christian education as I have sought to define it here.

The old boys have, in a graceful and appropriate way, striven to begin this work, and be faithful to the mission of the college man in this direction, by initiating the endowment of a chair in honor of that grand man who might well have sat for a portrait of Robert E. Lee, either in personal appearance or in the moral force of his cultured manhood—Prof. G. H. Wiley, who nobly served his generation, and left an indelible impress on the character of every boy that came under his influence. When this monument has been reared by the hands of that large company who are his debtors for some of the noblest inspirations of their lives, it is not extravagant to hope that loving hands will erect a similar memorial to that other noble figure in Centenary's glorious history, who, with strong hand and heroic courage, took hold of her helm in the darkest hour of her post-bellum poverty, and laid the foundations of her future history; a man cast in the same noble mold as the great Arnold of Rugby—the sainted Dr. C. G. Andrews.

It is the mission of Centenary's sons to catch the spirit of these noble men, and go forth with the motto, "If any man would be greatest among you, let him be your servant," to lead in every movement for the betterment of men.

The only real relief is in absolute conquest, and, the earlier the battle begins, the easier and the shorter it will be. If one can keep irritability under, one may escape a struggle to the death with passion.—Juliana H. Ewing.

A Statement Concerning Whitworth College.

The friends of Whitworth Female College have a right to expect from the undersigned a statement of the reasons which actuated them in retiring from the positions to which they were elected two years ago by the Board of Trustees of that institution.

It is well known to their friends that, when elected, they accepted the work, not because they wished to leave the pastorate, or had any educational ambitions to gratify, but because they were induced to believe the institution needed them, and that the path of duty led in this direction.

At the end of two years the health of the vice-president and business manager became impaired, making it necessary that he be relieved of his work in the college. At his request the Board of Trustees released him, and elected in his stead the Rev. H. G. Hawkins, of the Mississippi Conference.

The president and his new associate were preparing for the work of the next session when Dr. I. W. Cooper, lately retired from the presidency of Centenary College, proposed to purchase the interests of the president, and, with Brother Hawkins, to carry on the work of the college. The eminent fitness of Dr. Cooper for this work was so fully recognized that the possibility of securing his services seemed to the president to present an opportunity to indulge his preference for the pastoral work without jeopardizing in the least the interests of the college, and, accordingly, he accepted the proposition, subject to the approval of the Board of Trustees. This condition was met, his resignation was accepted, and Dr. Cooper was elected in his stead.

It has been suggested that Watkins and Burton resigned because they had lost faith in the future of the institution, and changed their minds about the providential character of their call. This is a mistake. They believe the crisis in the life of the college has been met, and that its future is secure. In two years they have seen its boarding patronage nearly doubled; the course of study has been widened and raised until it is equal or superior to that of any Methodist Female College in the South, with two exceptions. The financial standing of the institution is first class; about two thousand dollars have been spent in material improvements, and the prospects of the college are brighter than they have been for years.

It has been suggested that the administration had become involved financially, and for this reason desired the change. This is also a mistake. While their profits have not been large, they have promptly met every financial obligation, and the amount remaining assures them a reasonable interest on the money invested. They are confident that future sessions would have been increasingly remunerative, and expect to see their successors realize liberal profits on their investment of time and money. This statement is made because of those who seem to comprehend no motives except those of financial loss or gain.

The gentlemen who now have the college in charge are finely equipped for school work, and enter upon their labors with bright prospects. They are worthy of the highest confidence, and parents can safely commit their daughters to their care. The writers of this card believe there is no female college in the State that can offer advantages equal to those of Whitworth, and that there are but few in the South that are superior to it.

Rev. M. L. Burton, of Summit, Miss., is engaged in winding up the business affairs of the recent administration, and any college business transactions occurring after June 11 are understood to be with the new administration.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION VI.

We shall now review the commission as recorded by St. Mark in the sixteenth chapter and sixteenth verse. Since the fifteenth verse has been fully explained in the preceding section, we shall not discuss it here. The sixteenth verse reads: "He that believeth and is baptized, shall be saved; bnt he that believeth not, shall be damned." This is the Anti-Pedobaptist stronghold—their Gibraltar; bnt we shall see that it utterly fails them.

"Now," say they, "faith is placed before baptism; hence, it must precede it. All mnst believe before they are entitled to baptism, and as infants can not believe, they mnst not be baptized." It is a poor rule that won't work both ways. Let us notice the other sentence of the text, "bnt he that believeth not, shall be damned." Here "faith," in the first sentence precedes salvation—"shall be saved;" but, in the second sentence, "he that believeth not"—is without "faith"—"shall be damned." Infants "believeth not"—that is, are without "faith"—so they teach; hence, can not be saved. Thus we have infant damnation! There is no possible way of escaping this logical conclnsion of their reasoning. Does anyone believe that the tender, loving Jesus, who took the little children into his arms and said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven," meant to teach any such thing? Is this the unkind manner he had of denying infants the initiatory rite, which they had always received, into the church which he came to "pnrify" and "sanctify?" (Eph. v, 25–27.) The mild term, "unkind," is used, bnt, really, wonld Christ delude and mislead his disciples? Never the position is false!

We shall expose further this error. "Here Anti-Pedobaptists lay great stress npon 'believeth' in the first sentence, and contend that that is evidence for 'faith' before baptism. However, instead of faith being an arbitrary prerecnisite to baptism, the commission reverses it; and, both in the original and in the English translation, baptism is placed first in order, and shonld be first in practice. A carefnl analysis of the langnage employed, I think, will satisfy the impartial reader of this fact. The word 'baptisthesis' is in the aorist passive form, and the sentence literally and properly means, 'He that believeth, having been baptized, shall be saved.' And this is the sense our English translation now gives. The verb, 'is,' is a neuter verb, present tense. It describes not an action or passion received or endnred in the present time, but a relation which the subject sustains at the time he believes: 'he is baptized;' and to snstain a baptized relation at the time he believes, the subject must have been baptized previously; and, if previously, it mnst have been done in infancy. If we connect 'is baptized,' as most grammarians are inclined to do, we then have a passive verb, indicative mood, present tense, the snbject, 'he,' becoming a nenter nominative, and the verb retaining its nenter form, so that it still describes a state of being in which the snbject exists at the time he believes. Or, if we call 'is baptized' a perfect participle, it still describes a neutral relation, in which the snbject exists, and the action that placed him there perfected at the time he believes. The sentence is so construed in both the Greek version aud English translation of the Scriptures as to give a decided preference to baptism before belief, and, consequently, to infant baptism." (Inf. Ch. Memb., pages 249 and 250.)

This might be stated thus, "The believing one, having been baptized, shall be saved." However viewed, the strncture of the language shows that baptism precedes faith. The language is not, "He that believeth, and will be baptized," but is, "He that believeth, and is baptized"—that is, believes as a baptized person.

I will illustrate the point: He who votes, and is twenty-one years of age, shall be entitled to rnn for office. We mean that he is twenty-one before he votes. The qualification of years precedes the voting. In like manner the qualification of baptism precedes the act of believing according to the regular economy of the gospel in a Christian land. Agreeable to this are the words of our Lord to Nicodemus, "Except a man (everyone) be born of water (baptized) and of the Spirit (regenerated), he can not enter into the kingdom of God." (John iii, 5.) The church is the kingdom of God. Here baptism, as in the passage from Mark, is placed first in order. The custom of the Jews in making proselytes was to first baptize, and then instruct the infant. So, also, was circumcision first. This has always been the Lord's plan. The Anti-Pedobaptists pnt "the cart before the horse," and, whichever way they drive, enter the church backwards. (A backward dip.)

Bnt, be this trne, infants are classed by the Scriptures with believers, and are to be treated as believers. There are but two kingdoms that we know anything about. The one is the kingdom of God, and the other is the kingdom of the devil. We are not persuaded that such a kingdom as the Anti-Pedobaptist exists, for the Bible mentions only the two former. Little children belong to the kingdom of heaven, for Jesus plainly tells us so: "for of such is the kingdom of heaveu." There are also two classes into which the whole human family may be divided, in the light of Scripture, namely: "believers" and "unbelievers." Of course, we do not mean church members and non-church members, as is usnally considered, but actual "believers" and "unbelievers." Now, upon which side of the line that divides the two classes shall infants be placed? One says, "Of course, on the side of 'unbelievers,' for they can not 'believe.'" Then, we reply, if they can not "believe," they are incapable of "disbelief." But, mind you, the Scriptures say there are but two classes, "believers" and "unbelievers." Then they must enter into one or the other class, or be nonentity, which is a contradiction. But if nouentity, there is not only no salvation nor damnation for them—as that that has no existeuce cau neither be saved nor lost—bnt they are actually uuthinkable. Where, then, shall we place them? Siuce Christ has placed them in his "kingdom," evidently he classes them with "believers." So, then, must we. Then, if "believers," they should be "baptized believers." We dare not class them with the "nnbaptized unbelievers," becanse they are not unbelievers. They can not disbelieve, and uutil they become unbelievers they have all the spiritual relation to Christ and his kingdom that faith implies, and which, to the adult, is secured only by faith.

It is past comprehension how an infant can be a proper subject for the pure heaven, as Christ declares and the Christian world generally admits, and yet not a "fit" person for membership iuto the church on earth. This is certainly "straining out a gnat and swallowing a camel."

"Oh," but says a Baptist, "we know our children are good enough for the church, hut they have never sinned, and they do not need baptism until after they have committed sin, and they are not entitled to church membership until after baptism." Actual sin, then, is a prerequisite qualification for church membership, is it? That would exclude Christ, for "he knew no sin." According to Baptist doctrine, this would also have excluded him from baptism.

"Oh, no," says another, "we do not teach that; we teach 'believer's baptism'—one must be capable of exercisiug faith before he is to receive baptism."

We reply, Does not "faith" on the part of one who has reached the years of moral responsibility simply put that one in the same relation to Christ that the infant already sustains? If not, what do repentance and faith accomplish for such individual? Does not our Lord say, "Except ye be converted, and beeome as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven"? And do not the Baptists say, "Unless you be converted (become as little childreu), you are not entitled to baptism"? Then, if an adult must "be converted, and become as little children," to be entitled to baptism, why are not little children entitled? Certainly the antitype is eqnal to the type. Here infants and believing adults are placed in the same relation; believers are classed with infants and infants are classed with believers. Any other couclusion is senseless.

Baptisiu does not make a child a spiritual adult, bnt faith makes au adult a spiritual child, like an infant. That infants are properly classed with believers, and accounted believers, and treated as believers in the church of God, is evident from the following passage of Scripture: "At the same time came the disciples nnto Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven? And Jesus called a little child nnto him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever, therefore, shall hnmble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name, receiveth me. But whoso offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea." (Matt. xviii, 1–6.)

The only way to avoid the plain statement of this passage is to show that the "little child" which was set in the midst of the disciples was not an infant, or under the years of moral responsibility. This has been attempted, with the result a perfect failure. There is no difference in rank between the "little child" in the presence of the disciples and the "little ones which believe." Indeed, the "little child" and the "little ones which believe" are of the same class, the "little child" representing the whole class. Then, was the "little child" an infant, or not? Unless it was, the whole incident is misleading.

By turning to Luke xviii, 15–17, where this transaction is recorded, we find the answer: "And they brought unto him also infants, that he would touch them; but when his disciples saw it, they rebuked them. But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God. Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, shall in no wise enter therein."

Here the "little children" are "iufants," brought by their parents, and yet he "called them to him," as in the case of the "little child" in Matthew. They are "infants"—brephos—in the beginning of the passage, where they are brought to Jesus, and immediately thereafter they are called "little children"—the same class as the "little oues that believe" in Matthew. The word is rendered "little child" in the passage in Matthew, and is the same word that is used with reference to the infant Jesus, in every instance, until after his return from Egypt. It also occurs where the Savior speaks of "babes."

So we have our Savior's word that infants "believe;" hence, they are classed with believers, and, therefore, entitled to baptism.

Our church has done the wise thing by incorporating Mark x, 13–16, in her baptismal service for infants, for Luke tells us that the "little children" thereiu mentioned were "infants," Matthew tells us they "believe," and Mark tells us Jesus "took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them." Now, to deny them baptism is to measure them by a tape-line rather than by the Bible.

Here is another hobble of the Baptists. According to their teachings, no idiot nor insane person is entitled to baptism. We do not know whether they believe these unfortunates can be saved in heaveu or not. If they can—and most assuredly they can—they are certainly entitled to the sign and seal of the covenant, baptism, and to deny it them is to make baptism, rather thau Christ, the Savior of those capable of exercising faith. These are facts. The Baptist teachings at this point hold the truth like a sieve holds water.

One other thing before we leave this place. In the commission, was Christ really speaking of the proper subjects of baptism, or of salvation? The answer must be, the proper subjects, not of baptism, bnt of salvation. Jesus pnts the emphasis on salvation, but the Baptists on baptism. This is natural: Savior and salvation, Baptist and baptism.

We have now bored into the Anti-Pedobaptist cocoanut with a large-size auger, and let all the milk out. The props have all been knocked from under their defenses, and their walls battered down. The only argument they advance against iufant baptism is "believers' baptism." But we have shown by the words of Christ himself that children are classed with believers, and that their proof-text, "He that believeth, and is baptized," instead of repealing, or abrogating the law eutitliug infants to the sign and seal of the covenant, confirms it. The Scriptures never make "faith" a prerequisite to baptism in any instance except where it is a prerequisite to salvation. In the case of unbaptized adults, who must repent and believe the gospel in order to salvation, faith is properly required in order to baptism; but, then, the baptism relates to the salvation, and not to the faith. It is not a symbol of faith, nor a seal of faith, nor does it in any way represent faith, bnt ouly the salvatiou which faith secnres. Then, wherever the salvation is, there may baptism go; and every argument that would deprive the infant, idiot, and insane of baptism for want of faith, would deprive them of salvation on the same ground. One minute an Anti-Pedobaptist will tell you that baptism symbolizes the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ, and expatiates glibly and pathetically and almost with tears, on the "liquid grave," but upon being asked if this be true, why should it exclude infants and the unfortunates from baptism, aud instead of candidly admitting that it would strangle them half to death, he shifts his position and endeavors to make baptism symbolize "faith," thinkiug this will exclude them. While it is true that it requires a wonderful amount of courage, or an immense stock of ignorance, on the part of a modest female to indnce her to go down into a hole of muddy water with an Anti-Pedobaptist preacher who teaches that "Christ is the end of the law," and, therefore, it is not only impossible, but nunecessary to keep the Ten Commandments (a heresy more damning than eschewing infant baptism), faith has nothing whatever to do with it. At the call of a wicked boy an ignorant old dog will come and get ducked. These people must abandon their flimsy argument, and until they find other Scripture to support their claims, have absolutely nothing to rest their case upon. To turn the commission of our Lord against infant baptism is as foolish as it would be to deny bread to the children because they do not work, according to II. Thess. iii, 10.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE.

BY REV. B. F. JONES.

The commencement exercises of this time-honored institution closed on the tenth of June. The exercises measured fully up, in every particular, to the high standard of excellence established in former years. The commencement sermon was preached by the Rev. J. W. Lewis, D. D., of Central Church, Meridian. His profound thought and chaste style impressed his large audience with his entire fitness for the task he had in hand. His exposition of Matt. xiii, 46, was both instructive and inspiring. At night he preached the nnniversary sermon before the Epworth League.

The contest in reading Monday morning by six young ladies, and the nnniversary of the Alumnæ Association in the evening of the same day, were occasions of special interest. The business meeting of the alumnæ was well attended, and was adjudged to be the most successful, in point of enthusiasm, that has been held in many years. The association pledged itself to raise $500 to be used in making some needed repairs on the college buildings.

The contest on Tuesday morning in piano and elocution, in each of which three young ladies appeared, afforded opportunity to exhibit the skill and accomplishments of both the teacher and the pupils. The committee awarded the medal in music to Miss Alma Biggs, while Miss Edna Converse captured the one in elocution.

For years and years the grand concert has been given on Tuesday night of commencement week. There was no exception made to the general rule this time, and on that night a crowded house listened to a charming programme most charmingly presented. The conservatory of music appeared at its best on this occasion, and won the applause of its friends, which was liberally and worthily bestowed.

The graduating exercises took place Wednesday morning. The baccalaureate address was delivered by the Rev. H. M. DuBose, D. D. The mere mention of his name in this connection guarantees the polish and force with which his ornate address was delivered. He sustained well his wide reputation as a commencement orator. He has many friends and admirers in his home Conference who are always delighted to hear him.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trnstees was held on Monday. A good attendance of the members attested their interest in the affairs of the college. This meeting of the Board was not without importance. The report of the president of the college showed a larger attendance of pupils than was matriculated last session, while the exhibit made by the vice-president and business manager showed a most gratifying condition of the affairs of the college. These reports elicited many warm congratulations on the success and achievements of the session just closed. To the surprise of many, Bros. Watkins and Burton tendered their resignations as president and vice-president and business manager of the college. For reasons satisfactory to the Board, these resignations were accepted, and Rev. I. W. Cooper, D. D., and Rev. H. G. Hawkins were elected to fill the respective vacancies and the unexpired term. These gentlemen come to the college under the very best recommendations, as well as from the most favorable surroundings. Dr. Cooper comes direct from Centenary College, where, as president for several years, he had great success, and made for himself an enviable record as the head of a church college. He has a spirit as bright as a sunbeam and as fragrant as a rose. Bro. Hawkins comes direct from the active pastorate, where he has proven himself capable and successful. He is an accomplished teacher and a thoroughly practical business man, with a nature as genial as it is true.

The friends of the college feel perfectly confident that the new management will maintain the untarnished reputation of the college, and continue to raise the already advanced curriculum until it shall fully meet the requirements of our Commission of Education.

At this meeting Bro. M. L. Burton, the retiring vice-president, donated to the college $900 worth of furniture for the institute. There is included in this donation an engine with heating fixtures, and laboratory apparatus. Bro. L. L. Lampton, of Magnolia, Miss., also donated to the college a most desirable lot valued at $600. These generous contributions were gratefully accepted by the Board of Trustees, who immediately passed resolutions expressive of their high appreciation of the munificent gifts of these magnanimous friends. May the Lord raise up many other such friends who will give some tangible expression of their esteem for noble old Whitworth!

The faculty for the approaching session is complete, being filled with trained specialists. Space will not permit me to speak of each of these teachers, but I must say a word about the new musical directress, Miss Nina Weston. Miss Weston received her literary education at Hamline University and Syracuse University. She is a graduate of the College of Fine Arts, Syracuse University, in the musical department. She then spent some time in Europe, where she studied music under the masters in Berlin and Paris. She comes bearing recommendations from L. M. Vernon, dean of Fine Art College, Syracuse University; Rev. B. W. Hutchinson, president of Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, and other distinguished educators, who heartily recommend her as a teacher of ability and successful experience.

The present outlook of the college is in every way encouraging. The successes of the past betoken a brightness for the future. It has everything to commend it to the favorable consideration of those who have daughters to educate. Here is a splendidly equipped faculty, a location that offers many advantages, and a wholesome moral atmosphere. Large improvements are now being made on the premises, and by the time the next session opens—which is Sept. 18—there will be a freshness about the whole campus that will chase away every feeling of loneliness that may chance to come to the most homesick girl. Let the Methodists of this section of the State rally to the support of Whitworth, and there will be such an advancement and enlargement in the usefulness of the college as will secure a future worthy of the spirit and purpose of its founders.

W. F. M. Society, North Mississippi Conference.

BY MRS. W. M. M'INTOSH.

We regret to announce that our own North Mississippi missionary, Miss Lily I. Whitman, was compelled to come home on account of ill-health, brought on by overwork and malaria. Her physicians think it will take a year's rest to restore her health. A letter from her tells but too plainly how she is disappointed in having to give up her loved work in Matanzas, Cuba. Let our prayers be for Miss Whitman's speedy recovery. She is with her sister at Wilmore, Ky. A letter of sympathy and encouragement would, doubtless, prove a tonic to her tired body. Let our members remember this; also remember to press her case before our Father, who does not willingly chasten.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

International Convention.

We shall not attempt to give even a summary of the proceedings of this great Sunday-school Convention, which met at Denver, June 26-30, but wish to mention a few of the incidents of that great gathering. There were 54 States, Territories and provinces, and 25 denominations, represented by 1,107 delegates, which gives some idea of the extent and wideness of the Sunday-school movement.

The preparation service was a memorial to Mr. B. F. Jacobs, of Chicago, who died on June 23. Mr. Jacobs had been a leader in Sunday-school thought and work for nearly half a century. He is regarded as the father of the uniform lesson system, and his name is a household word among the thousands of Sunday-school workers.

A great deal of feeling had been aroused throughout the land by a report that the Lesson Committee was going to discard the temperance lessons. But the chairman of that committee stated that the committee had never had such a thought, and among the resolutions adopted was one recommending the continuance of the quarterly temperance lessons.

The convention, by resolution, recommended the adoption of a two-years beginners' course for the primary department, to be optional, and refused to recommend an advanced course for adults.

Toronto, Canada, was selected as the place for the next convention in 1905, and Jerusalem was recommended as the place for the next World's Sunday-school Convention, to be held in 1904.

A pleasing incident of the convention was an enthusiastic tribute to our own Prof. Hamill. Before beginning to read his report, Mr. Marion Lawrance, general secretary, always felicitous in his words and actions on the platform, told the convention that he wanted its authorization to pin the field secretary's badge, which he held in his hand, upon the breast of Prof. H. M. Hamill, who had so faithfully served the convention in that capacity up to the time of his resignation in the Spring of 1901. The delegates, it is said, gave enthusiastic approval to this graceful and well-deserved tribute.

By request, at a recent county Sunday-school convention, we asked for show of hands in answer to the question, Who wrote the Book of Acts? Besides the ministers present, not more than half a dozen hands were raised in an audience of three or four hundred, though probably as many more could have answered the question. This was a very simple question, and yet how few could answer it. Would it not be well to drill our classes somewhat on the simple facts of Bible history and history of the Bible? We are well aware that it is best not to consume too much time in the classroom with the historical and geographical setting of the lessons. Most of the time during recitations ought to be devoted to teaching and pressing home the spiritual truths contained in them. And yet the history and geography parts ought not to be neglected, and a few moments each Sabbath ought to be given to teaching the children a few of these simple facts about the Bible.

Our North Mississippi brethren will be highly favored, within the next few months, if plans now being considered are carried out. The State Convention of interdenominational workers will meet at Winona, Aug. 26, and the Sunday-school Board of the North Mississippi Conference is considering the question of holding two Institutes, to be held early in October—one at Oxford and one at West Point. Prof. Hamill has promised to give a date for one or both of these Institutes. We trust the North Mississippi Board will use this column freely to advertise these Institutes as soon as the dates are decided on. Unless we can be of service to our brethren of our three Conferences, we shall feel that its mission has been a failure.

The number of Home Departments, according to reports at Denver, is rapidly increasing, and they have been proven to be a most effective method of Christian work. We wish that more of our schools would have one.

From Rev. W. D. Bass.

MR. EDITOR: June 15 I began a revival with Bro. Hardin and his people at Heidleberg, Miss., and continued nine days. Had a very fine revival indeed. A number of church members were saved who did not claim conversion at the first of the meeting. While there was not much material outside of the church to work on, yet it was one of the most successful revivals I have conducted. There were nineteen additions on profession of faith to our church; one united with the Presbyterians. The people of Heidleberg, with the fewest exceptions I ever saw, are now in the church. It is a Methodist town by a large majority, and one of the nicest little towns I have visited in the State. They love and appreciate the pastor. He is getting on nicely on his work. They paid this helper a reasonable and satisfactory amount for his services, and they took pleasure in paying up quarterage to the pastor. That was as it should be everywhere. I have never yet held a successful meeting that was not a real blessing to the pastor in a financial way. Pastors that I help take no risk of losing their salary. I do not allow people to pay me their pastor's assessment, which is always small enough at best. Of course, I know my own responsibilities better than anyone else, and what I can afford to work for in order to provide comfortably for those dependent upon my labors; still I am always willing to proportion the finances according to the success and acceptableness of my work, and the ability of the people above their regular established assessments.

I am not a professional revivalist in the sense that some construe it, but I do claim that the good Lord, to whom I look for guidance and power, does bless my humble efforts with a good degree of success. This fact is known to the brethren. I never use wild or doubtful methods. I preach Jesus, and rely upon the strong arm of God. I also claim that where my work is satisfactory, and there is a genuine revival, and a whole town or community, in a manner, taken for Christ, it is right, in the sight of God and man, for me to receive satisfactory pay for my labors. As to just what amount I think my labors are worth as an instrument in the hands of God in the resurrection of a dead church and the conversion of a multitude of sinners in a community, with from 25 to 100 additions to the church, is a matter to be somewhat determined by myself, and the ability and willingness of the people to pay. "God hath ordained that they which preach the gospel shall live of the gospel." If I do not the work of a preacher in the estimation of intelligent people and pastors, then I will not accept their money. But if I do what they want done, then "the laborer is worthy of his hire." Many people pay less for the salvation of their souls than anything else, and yet it's the most important matter of all. I long to see the time come when all charges will not stop at paying their pastor a bare living and not even that but pay them enough to secure a comfortable living; enough to lift them above want and embarrassment, and to educate their children.

After closing our great meeting at Heidleberg, I next held a little meeting at Vossburg. That town is small, composed of, perhaps, a dozen families, but very fine people—most all in the church. Had a good meeting; five additions.

As a local elder, I do all of my work in regular line with our pastors, and in a perfectly legitimate way. To God be all the glory.

BIENVILLE, LA.

DEAR EDITOR: We are pulling along with our work fairly well. We have two prayer meetings, two Sunday-schools, and thirteen family altars on this circuit. I have obtained six subscribers for the dear old ADVOCATE, and must, by the help of God, sell the ADVOCATE to four more members before this year is out. We have just received about ten dollars' worth of song books for Bienville Church, and both old and young assist in the singing, which is a blessing to this place. Our collections are good so far, and we hope to report at Conference, "Collections up in full."

Our presiding elder was with us on his second round at the appointed time, and rendered us good service. On Sunday he again took up the cause of missions, and delivered us quite an able sermon, after which he presented to the congregation his chart on missions, which was to the delight and edification of the whole congregation. Then, of course, a collection followed, and the assessments on that church for both home and foreign missions were paid in full.

We have about $1,500 of public school funds in this district, and the School Board has elected Prof. C. C. Lewis, principal. So we are expecting a good school at this place.

The preacher-in-charge and his family are well pleased with their home in Bienville. But, brethren of this circuit, let's sell the old parsonage, and build a new one, God being our helper. I will do my part. Will you?

We ask for the prayers of all Christians. M. H. HONEYCUTT.

The Crowley District Conference, at its recent meeting at Abbeville, located the district parsonage at Lafayette. One of the elect sisters of Lafayette, Mrs. M. E. Girard, donated an excellent lot, and the citizens gave $100 towards the enterprise. This was the best offer made, and was accepted by the Conference.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, JULY 24, 1902.

Notwithstanding "the New Statement" of doctrine, adopted with only two dissenting votes by the Northern General Assembly, The Presbyterian, of Philadelphia, affirms that "the old Confession is still the test of ministerial and elder sonndness in the faith; and even with the proposed changes, it will retain the Calvinistic system in full force and recognition." Surely The Presbyterian does not intend to say that ministers and elders will be required to subscribe the old Confession, and at the same time be allowed to preach something else. The Presbyterian further says, the old Confession "is scriptnral and robust. . . . Its Calvinism will endure with advancing eras. . . . God has use for it, and it will assert itself from generation to generation." Then the New Statement, snpposed to be the work of revisionists—a work with which they express themselves as satisfied—is altogether useless.

A venturesome scientist, unable to find the link connecting man with any known tribe of monkeys, has declared the absence of the link due to the fact that there was a "leap from the anthropoid to the anthropos, from the human-like to the full human." In other words, dumb, but human-like apes were the immediate progenitors of fully endowed human beings. The leap was tremendous indeed! The distance is so great the learned gentleman is constrained to denominate the operation by which the distance was overcome as "a divine generative impulse." That man will yet solve mysteries.

As long as the Lord continues to answer the prayers of his people in the conviction and conversion of sinners, turning them from sin to holiness, and filling them with his blessed peace, there is no danger to the truth. Science will attack in vain. Or is conviction and conversion purely imaginary? Millions besides Saul of Tarsus can answer that question.

No matter how numerous and diverse the gifts of the Spirit, "it is the same God which worketh all in all." With equal confidence we may say, though there are differences of administration, there is but one religion—"one Lord, one faith, one baptism." Wrangling over the differences will never bring Christians into the unity of the Spirit.

Opinions of men based on hearsay, or formed on slight acquaintance, ought always to be subject to revision. They are often wrong. Refusing to change when we come to know them better, we write ourselves down as wholly unqualified to render righteous judgment. We lose nothing by according to men their rightful place.

THE CHURCH AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

BY BISHOP CHARLES B. GALLOWAY.

MR. EDITOR: I have had recent and urgent invitation to attend a great national assembly of educators and deliver an address on "The Church and the Public Schools." Much to my regret, other and imperative engagements of long standing would not allow me to accept. Convinced that no service I could render my people would be of larger or more permanent value than the encouragement of a broad and true educational spirit, and the adoption or development of wise educational plans and policies, it would be a distinguished privilege and honor if I could make some slight contribution thereto. In my judgment, no other question just now furnishes so great an opportunity for genuine patriotic statesmanship both to the churchman and the citizen. It is vital to the stability of the republic and lies at the very bottom of all social order. Long ago it ceased to be a mere academic question, and became a momentous and portentous practical issue. Men of every calling and station, from the President to the humblest citizen, are giving it deep and anxious attention as never before in the history of the nation. None can ignore it, and to trifle with it is little less than a national crime. I do not think a distinguished statesman of our country overstated the case, when he said, "The battle for the future of the American republic must be fought around the cradle of American childhood."

The attitude of the church toward the public-school system, I have always held, should not be one of hostility, but of friendly co-operation. All the efforts of the State should be re-enforced by the moral and spiritual support of the Church, and thus give to the character of public education a more elevating and redeeming quality. While jealously guarding the fundamental doctrine of our republic—the separation of Church and State—there may be such co operation as to multiply a million-fold the transforming power of the instruction given. The separation of Church and State does not mean the separation of the State from religion. Against ecclesiastical dominance or interference we should be vigilant and uncompromising, but to religious and moral influences we ought to extend the broadest and most generous hospitality. Christ and Cæsar are independent, but they are at peace. I have long thought, therefore, that every churchman should be earnestly and patriotically concerned for the thorough organization and equipment of our public schools. As all elementary instruction is practically turned over to the State, we should see that it is in devout and competent hands. Neglect here may mean peril both to Church and State.

Some have sneeringly characterized the public school as "the fetish of the American Republic." But such writers' evidence is a cheap appreciation of the sublime mission of education, and a strange innocence of its magnificent history. With the vast amount of illiteracy in our country we are not yet in danger of excessive attention to this vital concern of the nation.

Those were noble and statesman-like words uttered by President Lamar in his great message to the Texas Congress in 1839, insisting upon the establishment of a general system of education throughout the young Republic: "Cultivated mind is the guardian genius of democracy, and while guided and controlled by virtue is the noblest attribute of man. It is the only dictator that freemen acknowledge, and the only security that freemen desire."

On the other hand, the greatest foe to democracy—stealthy, subtle, unrelenting and undermining—is an illiterate citizenship, with or without the powerful weapon of the elective franchise. Universal education saturated with moral principle is the only safe and enduring foundation of a republic. Our constitutional fathers, therefore, showed consummate statesmanship in adopting the motto afterwards enunciated by Lord Macaulay: "The first business of a State is the education of its citizens."

The whole doctrine of public education grounds upon the idea that illiteracy is dangerous in the body-politic. Statistics are appalling and overwhelming, showing the immediate and almost mathematical relation of ignorance to crime. The criminal classes are largely recruited from the illiterate. The State, therefore, taxes all her citizens in order to furnish instruction to the children of the poor. By this means, as history has triumphantly vindicated, she decreases crime, reduces the expense of government, and multiplies the productive capacity of labor, thus adding to her sources and supply of wealth. It is argued, and wisely, that the State had better expend money on schools, and thus improve her citizenship, than to increase her outlay for courts of justice, shelters for the indigent and a large and expensive constabulary. The able and voluminous reports issued by the Department of Education, under the editorship of Dr. W. T. Harris, are an almost inexhaustible treasury of facts and arguments on this vital doctrine. My own somewhat extensive travels and studies in many lands have only deepened and strengthened the convictions of years. Look at Brazil, for instance, with a territory equal to the United States, exclusive of Alaska, a wonderfully fertile soil, untold mineral resources and every variety of climate. Her poverty is in men, and their weakness is in their ignorance. Nearly eighty-five per cent. of the people are illiterate.

Now, if this doctrine of public education is sound in principle, it must have universal application in the State. The only question that can be asked, Is the child the offspring of a citizen of the State? To grant these advantages to the children of some families, and deny them to others, undermines the whole theory of public instruction, and strikes a death-blow at one of the most sacred and vital principles of democracy. No State can do it and preserve her constitutional integrity. Autocracies and monarchies, in which one man rules and the classes control, may consistently adopt such a scheme of education; but not a republic, in which the people reign, and every citizen is a peer of the realm. There is no possible ground for the State to base an argument in support of a position by which she grants school privileges to my child and denies them to my poor neighbor. The very suggestion is its own refutation.

Speaking as a son of Mississippi, I am patriotically proud of my State's record on this great question. She occupies a foremost place in her large liberality to the cause of general education. According to per capita wealth, she stands first in the sisterhood of States, if not in the wide world. Not Massachusetts, with all her great educational history, taxes her people so largely for the maintenance of public schools. And that our State, with equal and liberal hand, provides for the poor blacks, once our slaves, has been, and is, the admiration of the whole nation. With a statesmanship worthy of Washington, and a liberality the rejoicing of the wisest educators, she is determined to test the virtue of the school and the church, to make the best citizens of all her people. Nothing else, in my humble judgment, promises so sure and magnificent returns.

I am proud of the strong position our great church has taken on this subject. In every congregation we urge our people to assist in this momentous matter. And there must be no foreslacking of effort. Ignorance must be removed, under whatever color of skin, or the kingdom of God will long delay its coming.

Jackson, Miss.

THE PASTORATE.

Methodism, as organized, whether Episcopal or non-Episcopal, is the only system among evangelical Christians that has and maintains a pastorate that is always in service. In other churches a preacher may be in the pastorate to-day and out of it to-morrow. He is at liberty to resign, or his resignation may be demanded by his congregation, or, as in some communions, his time may expire. In either case he is left without a congregation, and for months, maybe for a year or more, he is without a charge. It follows that the church is without a pastor. We read of pastorless churches about as often as we do of churchless preachers. Under congregational and independent church government the work of supplying vacant pulpits, or of securing work for a preacher out of employment, is not the work of a moment.

In Methodism the case is wholly different. Every itinerant preacher is a pastor, and every one, except such as are under suspension (perhaps less than one for every five hundred), is entitled, by virtue of his relation, to a place as pastor, and receives it. The continuance of the relation does not depend on the vote of the congregation he has served, nor on the Conference to which he belongs, but on his "life and official administration," both of which, the purity of the one and the fidelity of the other, are determined by examination. The congregation has no jurisdiction in the matter. The members may show cause why he should no longer serve them, and get rid of the man, but they can not put him out of the pastorate. Nor can the Conference, except for cause. It can not arbitrarily thrust him out.

As to supply and demand, we have but little trouble. If the number of itinerants is not sufficient, we have a reserve force, the local ranks, from which we can obtain supplies. These men are not subject to appointment without consent. They are employed. But under the system it comes to pass that every pastor in the church has a charge; and, except in case of death, abandonment, or some extraordinary occurrence, no church is without a pastor, even for a moment. It is only a question of transferring a preacher from one charge to another. One pastor goes out and another steps in, and, as a rule, is cordially received. The work goes on without interruption.

That we sometimes have trouble, is not denied, but it is not in the matter of supply and demand; it is rather in the matter of adjustment, fitting men to places, and places to men. In other churches, if one man suited a place as well as another, or if one place suited a man as well as another, there would be no unemployed preachers, nor any vacant pulpits. But while among us we have no unemployed pastors, nor any vacant churches, we often encounter great difficulty in adjusting each to the other. And though much thought and time are bestowed on the work, it goes without saying that failures are not infrequent. After having done the best possible, there are sometimes misfits and dissatisfaction. In such cases, both the preachers and people console themselves with the reflection that the arrangement is only for a year, and that possibly the mistake may be rectified immediately, for our system is not so exacting and inflexible as to make it impossible to adjust itself to circumstances. Methodism, in its fullest sense, means adaptativeness.

Why then, is there a disposition to do away with the time limit?

1. It grows out of a desire on the part of many persons to be like somebody else. Other churches, they say, do not limit the term. This is a mistake. Some churches, congregational or independent, elect their pastors only for a year. Others, though nominally for life, really make its continuance dependent on circumstances. The preacher may become dissatisfied and quit, or the people may become dissatisfied and force him to quit. The pastor who remains with a church for a long term of years is an exception. If the average could be struck, we think the figures would show that Methodist pastors remain about as long as pastors of other churches. If this be true, then conformity to the polity of other churches is nothing to be desired. It certainly would prove of no advantage. It might prove to be our ruin.

2. The desire is largely based on the supposition that a limited pastoral term is detrimental to the church in old and settled communities. It will be time enough to force this argument to the front when it is shown beyond doubt that our church suffers anywhere on account of a limited term. An argument in a case like this is worth nothing when facts are set over against it. The church is not deteriorating in city, town, or village, nor in country places. Occasionally a church may decline, but, we dare say, the cause may be found in something else than a limited pastorate. How many churches can be pointed out as having been ruined by change of preachers?

3. Some desire to test their staying qualities, and are led to advocate the abolition of the term limit. This may be regarded as bringing the argument home to the man, but we are led to this conclusion by the fact that under our law, as it is, there is an unquenchable desire among many preachers to remain on a work as long as the law will allow, regardless of fitness or circumstances. They feel that character is at stake, and character must be maintained at all hazards. To advocate an unlimited pastoral term on this ground shows a willingness to make an experiment. The argument is not worthy to be considered.

We have the ideal pastorate. We can not improve it. We should be satisfied, and we would be, if every man stood in his lot, and worked to the best of his ability. Our system is not at fault.

THE CAMP MEETING.

The Seashore Camp Meeting began Wednesday evening, July ninth, and closed Wednesday evening, the sixteenth. First and last, there were seventy-four preachers on the ground. Thirty-seven services, including the early morning prayer, were held. The attendance was larger than last year, and perfect order prevailed throughout the meeting. The results were meagre. Christians received benefit, but though a few penitents presented themselves at the altar for prayer, none were converted, as far as we heard. The ardor of the church, however, was not dampened, and the brethren and sisters will be as anxious as ever to come back next year.

The three presiding elders, Revs. W. H. LaPrade, J. M. Morse and W. M. Cox, who had charge, worked in perfect harmony, and managed without difficulty. But we believe the people would have been better satisfied and more good accomplished, had these presiding elders done some of the preaching. Not because they occupy high official position, but because they are more competent to do good than some of the preachers they put forward. If these presiding elders are in control next year, we hope they will include themselves in the list of camp meeting preachers.

Seashore is an ideal place to hold a camp meeting. Absolutely nothing can be said against the place, but everything for it. The large and well-arranged tabernacle facing the water, the ample and well-shaded grounds, the convenient and comfortable tents, the sanitary arrangements, and, above all, the health-giving breezes and the pure artesian water inexhaustible in supply, conspire to make it the most desirable place for Methodist preachers and Methodist people to congregate and rest and worship. Nothing but the lack of money and time keeps this editor from leasing ground, and building a house in which to live from the first of April to the first of November.

In addition to the camp meeting, and the annual Tri-State Epworth League Conference, there ought to be a Preachers' Institute after the order of the Institute conducted every year at Vanderbilt. The idea we learn has been suggested by some of our preachers. We hope the matter will receive attention at our approaching Conferences. What say our brethren in Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi? The matter is worthy of consideration.

Special Notice.

We call special attention to the advertisement of E. P. Mackie, who has a cottage for sale at Seashore Camp Ground. It is a nice house, well-finished and furnished throughout. Anyone desiring a Summer home on the coast will find a bargain in this offer. It will be withdrawn soon. Read the notice.

PERSONAL.

We learn from private sources that Rev. T. B. Clifford, who transferred to Arkansas last year, desires to return. For what reason we have not heard.

Bishop and Mrs. Galloway left last week for their long voyage to the East—Japan and China. May journeying mercies be granted them, that they may go and return in safety.

Bishop Key has appointed Rev. John R. Countiss to Grenada station, and Rev. W. M. McIntosh, president of the Woman's College, Oxford, to fill out unexpired terms. Both these appointments are in Grenada district.

Rev. J. W. Lewis, of Meridian, spent a few days at Seashore Camp Ground last week. He preached once to the delight and edification of his hearers. A telegram calling him home (for what cause, we did not learn) cut short his visit.

Rev. W. D. Burroughs, after a stay of a month, or more, at the hospital in Memphis, returned to his home, Rural Hill, Miss., somewhat improved in general health, but weakened by a temporary derangement of the stomach. He is arranging to go to Seashore Camp Ground, and hopes there to receive permanent benefit.

Revs. C. T. Munholland and H. W. Rickey, of the Louisiana Conference, and W. W. Woollard, of the North Mississippi Conference, lingered several days at Seashore after the close of the camp meeting, enjoying the fishing, delightful breezes of the gulf, etc. Brother Woollard was suffering, when he left, with a boil on the back of his neck.

We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to the marriage of Miss Coral Webster Oates to Mr. Murrell O. Clark on July 16, 1902. The bride is a daughter of Rev. Q. A. Oates, pastor of our church at Verona, Miss. It was quite out of our power to attend the wedding, but we have the best of wishes for the happy couple. May prosperity attend their steps.

Grenada College.

The trustees of Grenada College held an important and most satisfactory meeting July 16 A contract was let for an up-to-date heating-plant for the splendid new three-story building, which is about ready for the roof, and will be ready for occupancy Sept. 1.

Prospects for the school grow brighter each day. Unless present indications are wholly deceptive, the attendance next Fall will be phenomenal. We have taken for our motto, "150 girls for Grenada," and will surely accomplish it. The loyalty—aye, more, the enthusiasm—with which the forward movement and improved methods have been received by the Methodist preachers and people of our territory have been most gratifying, though not at all surprising. Church loyalty, self-interest, superior advantages, combine to induce our people to stand by this, the only school for girls owned by us, and the only one indorsed by the North Mississippi Conference. Our teachers are all cultured Christians, and experienced in their chosen work. Each one is a demonstrated success in the great work of teaching. Close scrutiny of our course of study, as shown in our handsome catalogue, is invited. If thorough work of a high grade is desired, send your girls to Grenada. If superficiality, skimming and froth be desired, look elsewhere.

Plans are on foot to put beautiful new papering on the walls of all the rooms of the main building.

Epworth League Notes.

Miss May Mayo, junior superintendent of the Louisiana State Conference, had a council with several of the representatives of the junior work of the city, on July 12, at Audubon Park.

There is a very enthusiastic Junior Epworth League at Epworth Mission, New Orleans, La. They have as superintendent Miss Ada Parker, sister to the well-known League worker, Rev. G. D. Parker, now of Brazil.

Mr. H. A. Christenbery, the secretary of the Parker Memorial Senior League leaves to-morrow for a visit to Nashville, Tenn. Mr. Christenbery was won back to the church through the influence of the General Missionary Conference.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: I know you are always glad to secure any notes of interest from the Leagues throughout the State. Possibly you do not know that we have organized the Leagues on the Baton Rouge district into a permanent district organization.

In response to a call from Pres. Henry Beach Carre, representatives from the Leagues on the Baton Rouge district met in Zachary, July 3, during the session of the Baton Rouge District Conference, for the purpose of effecting a permanent district organization. Much interest in League work was manifested. The following officers were elected:

Pres. Henry Beach Carre, president; Rev. Harry W. May, first vice-president; Rev. Wm. D. Kleinschmidt, second vice-president; Miss Carrie V. Schwing, third vice-president; Miss Laura Richardson, treasurer; Mr. T. J. Roame, recording secretary; Miss Rosa E. Tabor, corresponding secretary. We did not decide definitely upon our plan of work, but with the president we have, there can be no doubt of success in our movement.

Yesterday afternoon a Junior Epworth League was organized here, with twelve members. Mrs. Northcutt and I will have charge of the work, and we feel very much encouraged. Possibly you would like to know the names of the officers: President, Miss Kate Allison; first vice-president, Miss Mattie McKneely; second vice-president, Miss Zekie Slocum; third vice-president, ——; recording secretary, Miss Lilah V. Schwing; corresponding secretary, Miss Bessie McLean; treasurer, Miss Malvina McKneely. You will hear from the Juniors when they are more permanently organized. Our Senior League is in good condition. We are preparing for a series of cottage prayer meetings, and I know we will receive much benefit from these meetings.

Yours sincerely,

CARRIE V. SCHWING.

The Real Life of a Sailor.

To the average boy the life of a sailor possesses an irresistible charm, and at one time or other in his early years he sighs for an opportunity to gain a practical insight into its mysteries.

He imagines that all sailors live in happy-go-lucky style, doing as they please, working when the inclination strikes them, and having any number of idle hours in which to lounge round and kill time by spinning "yarns."

As a matter of course, this false idea has been fostered by the authors of romances of the sea, in which the sailor is usually painted as a wild, rollicking fellow, whose chief aim in life is to enjoy himself, without giving a thought to the morrow. If, however, he was to ship on some merchant vessel, it would not be long before he would find all this to be mere sentimental bosh, and the daily routine on board to be of a most exacting character.

Every Jack-tar lives on a floating house of business, so to speak, which is continually carrying him into unexpected labors. He begins his day's work with the "morning watch" at 4 o'clock, when he is required to turn out of his by no means roomy bunk in that part of the ship technically known as the forecastle, but universally referred to as the "fokese," tumble up on deck and scrub and wash all parts of it, which are usually begrimed with iron rust, dirt and salt water.

He has no trouble in finding the water necessary for this work, simply tossing a bucket overboard, and hauling it back by means of a stout rope attached to the handle. Then, with the aid of buckets and ordinary brooms, brushes or mops, he usually succeeds in making things tolerably clean.

If the ship is coming into port and the captain wishes the decks to look particularly white, Jack must go down on his hands and knees and scour the decks with certain articles called "holystones."

Now, holystones are not treasured fragments of some classical shrine, but common looking pieces of sandstone about the size of a brick, and it is not too much to say that poetry abandons the nautical mind when the holystoning process becomes necessary.

The operation is always long and laborious, and the only respite he has from this odious task is in polishing tarnished brasswork, or being ordered aloft to attend to some troublesome sail or bit of running gear.

Consequently, by 8 o'clock, when he is relieved by the "forenoon" watch, he has had sufficient exercise to get up an appetite for breakfast such as is rarely equaled or surpassed by anything human.

This meal, year in and out, consists of a liberal supply of a hot, black beverage called coffee, which is stewed to distraction and sweetened, if at all, with molasses.

Then, there is a ship's bread, porridge, or "burgoo," and a species of hash called "lobscouse," which nobody but a hungry sailor was ever known to successfully digest. Jack, however, is providentially no epicure, but a gastronomic genius who dispatches everything to satisfy an organic craving with goat-like facility and relish.

He then fills his pipe, spins yarns or returns to his unambrosial bunk for a nap, while his shipmates, the "forenoon watch," are busy making things snug on deck and aloft.

Now, the duties incumbent on this watch are multifarious, depending mainly upon the state of the weather. If it is calm, they are very easy; but in case of a storm or a sudden blow, the "forenoon watch" has its hands full.

Yards must be constantly trimmed, according to the direction of the wind, sails furled and running gear looked after; and, in addition to a seaman's regular duties of setting and shortening sail, there is always plenty of sail mending, rope splicing, spar scraping, oiling, varnishing and painting to do, to say nothing of the dirty work of tarring the standing rigging and ropes occasionally. Then every man must take his turn or trick at the wheel, which is always a monotonous and extremely dangerous duty in bad weather.

At 11:30 the men who composed the "morning watch" are called to a dinner of hot pea soup, boiled pork and a piece of another kind of meat, usually designated as "salt horse," and supposed to be salted beef, but it would be a difficult matter to persuade the ordinary sailor that it ever formed a portion of the anatomy of a cow or steer.

To relieve the monotony of this diet, he is occasionally treated to a dessert of "plumduff" or "stick jaw puddiug," which is highly relished by all.

This sumptuous meal is then washed down with coffee, and Jack, feeling like a new man, goes on deck as one of the "afternoon watch," which relieves the "forenoon watch" at 12 o'clock.

This watch is employed on deck with duties similar to those engaged in by the watch it relieved, and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon gives way to another watch.

Generally speaking, the men have four hours on duty and four hours off. But if this took place with undeviating regularity, it is evident that one set of men would always be on duty during the best part of the night—an arrangement that would be manifestly unfair. In order, therefore, that one watch should not have the long night's duty, there are what sailors call the "dog watches."

These watches are the hours between 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 8 o'clock in the evening.

The afternoon watch, accordingly, go below at 4 o'clock, and come on deck at 6, when they have two hours' dog watch. At 8 o'clock they go below again, and thus, by means of these dog watches, the crew of a ship gets alternate nights of duty on deck.

In moderate weather everything is usually made snug aloft between 6 and 8 o'clock in the evening, when Jack's day's work may be considered ended. If not on watch, he can smoke his pipe, sing a song, dance a horn-pipe or jig to the accompaniment of a violin, harmonica, accordion or some other form of music—there usually being some one among the crew who possesses and plays one of these instruments—or enjoy himself in any other rational manner.

But if, during the next few hours, or in the course of the night, the barometer goes down and the weather looks ominous of a gale to windward, he has to turn out of his snug corner in the forecastle at a moment's notice when he hears the boatswain shout, "All hands shorten sail!"

This is one of the worst features of Jack's life, for, nine times out of ten, it is blowing great guns when he gropes his way up on deck and crawls up the shrouds, and you can form no idea of the perilous momentum of a vessel's pitch until you have been on her upper yards or jib-boom, trying to reel or furl sails in a heavy sea.—Golden Days.

The Educative Force in Methodism.

From its beginning Methodism has been a pronounced educative influence. Its first announcement of doctrinal peculiarities challenged the mind of England from the highest to the lowest conditions of society. Prelate and laborer alike answered the unostentatious, but none the less peremptory, summons. To be able to read the New Testament to see if these things were true became a passion with many of the unlettered. Mechanics and carters became students immediately on being "admitted to class." Every Wesleyan chapel became a sort of school-house. Many believe the Sunday-school itself to be of Wesleyan origin. The need for school-houses was soon felt, and the idea of matching the chapel with a night class for miners and others was an early conception of the Methodist reformation. Kingswood is a survival from the ample first-fruits of this plan. And it has been so throughout the Methodist cycle, that its devices for evangelization have all taken the form of educative influences. This course of necessity, for it is itself the product of the most pronouncedly intellectual movement of the eighteenth century, a movement which, through the traditions of Oxford University, sends its roots back to the fellowships of that old seat of learning, which in the sixteenth century welcomed the great Reformation to England in the learned person Erasmus.

The now accepted ideal of the highest education is of a culture in rudiment and expansion which will bring out the emotions and the intellectual faculties in equal proportion. It is as much the function of the schools to teach the pupil to feel as to think; but for the most part the first has been ignored, or was never discerned, as a need, and the other is stressed to the extent of making men and women into mere mental machines, repositories of ideas imparted by rote. Knowledge has been acquired without reference to show how or when it is to be used, and nearly always without the idea of sympathy or relationship. The church has sought to remedy this lack by establishing and maintaining schools under its own patronage. The schools have resulted in the development of a larger and more sympathetic kind of culture: but it may be that the plans followed too generally adhere to the secular standards always in vogue. What is needed, and what must come in the future scheme of education, is a means of applying knowledge as fast as acquired. The human sense must be developed at every step of teaching, and every stage of that teaching must be illustrated by a practical application in service, labor or ministry. Engineering must be made real by actual surveying, grammar by actual speech, economics by actual service, theology and charities by actual teaching and ministry. No school, not even a church school, affords such means of teaching to-day. Yet it must be seen that nothing is ever really learned until it is demonstrated in fact. This may be said to be the highest practical quality of Methodism: that its faith and doctrine are to be worked out in the life, illustrated and made real in the school of experience. The present plans of the church, looking to the correlation of its activities from the children in the Sunday-school, the youth in the Epworth League, and the maturer of years in the other offices of service, must, with the evangelical and personal spirit of her theology, bring the results to which her commission points.—Epworth Era.

As to Some Sharks.

The shark has been for 200 years the subject of the most exciting ocean adventures. His eccentricities of appetite, his rapacity, and his disposition to attack everything within reach, have given him the leading part in all fish stories of the sea.

Fifty years ago it was related that a woman's workbox, which had fallen overboard, was recovered from the stomach of a shark. Captain Hall, of the good ship "Alceste," reported that he found in the stomach of a shark, baskets, shavings, ducks, hens, and buffalo hides. This was official. So, too, was Captain Hall's later report of having found in a shark a tin canister filled with old coins.

The master of a sailing vessel next came forward with a story that his pilot, having fallen overboard, he discovered a few days later the pilot's right hand and wrist, a goat's head with horns nine inches long, and a turtle's head in the stomach of a captured shark. In another case officially reported some sailors threw overboard a red hot brick, wrapped in some old cloth, and it was instantly swallowed by a shark, though without fatal results.

In none of the older stories, however, did the shark play the part of a messenger as reported from Cape May under date of June 20. This story is to the effect that Mrs. George Cummings, of West Cape May, wrote a message, put it into a rubber-corked beer bottle, and threw it into Delaware Bay. After twelve months had passed she received a letter written by the captain of the British warship "Thunderer" in answer to her message in the bottle. The commander wrote that while off the coast of Portugal, a shark was caught, and when it was cut open, the bottle was found inside of it. The note being noticed in the bottle, it was opened and the message read.—Inter-Ocean.

PREJUDICE HABIT SOAP

Why Do so many women still use soap? PEARLINE is so much better for every kind of washing and cleaning. One reason is habit. They're accustomed to it and don't think of anything better. Another reason is prejudice. Neither reason is good. PEARLINE is worth looking into. It saves labor, saves money and is harmless. 668

Proved by Millions

The Preacher and His Theme.

Preaching is not an art, to be so studied and practiced. No character less becomes the pulpit than a mere professional. The preacher must, above all, be an earnest, sincere man, impelled by a sense of duty, which is ever to his thought the calling and will of God. He must come before his people, not to please them, but to bring to their consciences a message from God. The preacher of today, like the prophet of old, should be able to rest his utterances on the divine authority, saying, "Thus saith the Lord God."

Granting, first of all, singleness of purpose to serve God, and a sense of God's call to preach the gospel, all aids to make the message effectual should be invoked. Mr. Wesley wrote sermons carefully. It is said he practiced gesticulation before a glass. He cultivated a pleasant speech. He taught his preachers to be careful about their dress, and to cultivate gentle manners. It is the duty of a man, even as a member of society, to make himself agreeable to his neighbors, so far as manners are concerned. It is especially the duty of a preacher, as Paul charges, to "be courteous to all men."

The manner of presenting his message is important to the preacher. A good physician does not study to make his medicine nauseating. If the portion must be taken, make some of it as little offensive as possible. That should be the preacher's rule. Rudeness is not moral courage; it is evidence that right moral feeling is lacking. Abuse is not manly anywhere. It is contemptible littleness in the preacher, and degrades the pulpit. If you ever fling abusive epithets at a man, make it a point of honor to give him a chance to knock you down, and don't get behind a pulpit and invoke the sanctities of religious worship for protection.

It is generally an error to devote the pulpit to specific themes. The best work of the preacher is in strengthening the religious conscience by such discourses as bring men to realize their relation to God and the claims of his law. The grandest trees are those that were never touched with a pruning-knife. One may attack specific sins or urge specific reforms, and find that after it all the spiritual force of his church has been weakened thereby. In specific methods of work, or how a principle, accepted, is best expressed, the preacher can never be dictator or leader. The better work is to intensify religious conscience, granting as large liberty as possible in the matter of personal conduct. There is such a thing as leading an army too far from its base of supply. A prayer meeting is not so strong a thing as a public demonstration, a procession with flags and drums, but it may be far more beneficial in a righteous cause. The throne of grace is the Christian's base of supply; and, although we hold that grace is given for work, yet certainly, when true worship ceases, true work will cease also.

One says, "The preacher can not rely on his learning or his oratory to do his work." That depends upon the work he would do. If it is the preacher's aim to draw a crowd and win praise, he may succeed by these means. But those are not the forces that save men's souls; yet certainly learning and eloquence are to be valued. Granting that the message delivered be a true gospel message, eloquence and learning will give it the most effect, and we must think that the divine call rests lightly on any man who does not bring all possible aids, not only of the closet, but of the study also, to make the call effective. "Study to show thyself approved of God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

Intelligent men are led to disbelieve the truth itself, when that truth is presented in illogical and unbelievable connections. The ignorance of the ministry is responsible for the indifference toward the church exhibited by many intelligent men.—Arkansas Methodist.

A Consecrated Sixpence.

An humble Scotch woman had lived for many years on porridge, that she might give to missions the cost of her comforts and luxuries. One day a friend gave her sixpence to "buy a chop," as he said. She looked at it a while, and then she said, "I have got on very well on porridge so far, and I think I'll just stick to it." And so the sixpence went for missions. A minister was telling of this at a missionary breakfast, and a comfortable woman who was sitting in the chair immediately got up and said, "Well, I declare; I never yet have done without a chop for Christ's sake, and so I shall begin to-day to sacrifice by giving a thousand pounds to missions." Others followed suit, and before that breakfast was over twelve thousand dollars had been contributed for missions. That was the value of a consecrated sixpence. John Howard says, "We must learn to give up our luxuries to supply the comforts of others; our comforts to supply their necessities, and even our necessities to supply their extremities."—Preachers' Magazine.

Sorrow is no time of more loss or bewilderment or inactivity. It is the call to come up higher. "It is the gate into the deeper and wider domain, where spirit and reason and imagination may, by bravely facing their affliction, win their freedom and see into the mystery of God."—Canon Scott Holland.

All the water in waste that runs beside the mill; so all thy thoughts and words are waste which are not to the glory of God. A bee will not sit on a flower where no honey can be sucked; neither should the Christian engage in anything that is not for his soul's good and to the honor of his God.—Selected.

OBITUARIES.

WILLIAM O. MOODY, of Winifred Church, Mathersville circuit, Meridian district, died July 8, 1902; thirty-six years old last April; fourth child of James A. and Helena A. Moody; married Dec. 27, 1899, to Martha Lenora Pickens; he leaves one child. Of a family of twelve children, he is the first to leave. All have grown to manhood and womanhood, and to a live Christian experience. Bro. Moody was a man of few words, but loving and thoughtful in his home and with his fellow-men. Converted in his youth, his was a clear Christian experience; stricken down in the prime of life, yet no one ever heard a murmur of complaint. He leaves a wife and one little girl to mourn one of the best of husbands and fathers. Beloved by all who knew him, he will be greatly missed, and most especially by those who knew him best, comforted, however, that we will soon meet again, where, with all the loved ones gathered around, no more to part. He was buried at Big Rock Church, near which he was raised, July 9, 1902, his pastor conducting the burial service. Brethren, pray for the stricken wife.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

General News.

The United States Census Bureau has issued an interesting bulletin on the canning of fruits, vegetables, oysters, and other food articles. These industries in the United States employ a working capital of about $50,000 000, and some 53,000 wage earners, who receive about $13,000,000 a year, and turn out products annually to the amount of $83,000,000.

Several transports are expected in the next few days to resume cattle trade with Africa, and England will carry fully 100,000 head of stock to the Transvaal.

Emperor William will confer decorations on about 300 Americans who aided in making Prince Henry's trip pleasant.

King Edward's physicians report that his majesty is gaining strength, and the wound continues to heal.

The theft of $30,000 from the vaults of the Masonic Safety Deposit Company of Chicago caused a run on that institution.

The fire in the oil field at Jennings, La., was extinguished by the use of steam.

Children Dying.

At this season of the year, when warm days followed by cool nights and the eating of fruit and vegetables affecting the stomach, bowels, etc., we hear of so many children dying. Give them Dr. Biggers' Huckleberry Cordial, the great specific for all bowel troubles and children teething.

Sold by all Druggists, 25 and 50c. bottle.

NEVER IS TIME more precious than when some member of the family is attacked by colic, dysentery or any bowel trouble. The doctor is distant, but if Perry Davis' Painkiller is near, all danger is soon ended.

Marriages.

July 16, 1902, in the Methodist Church, Verona, Miss., by Rev. Q. A. Oates, father of the bride, Mr. Murrell O. Clark and Miss Coral W. Oates, all of Verona, Lee county, Miss.

June 29, 1902, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. J. S. Noel, by Rev. M. G. Jenkins, Mr. Hearsy McKaln and Miss Lizzie Noel, of Shreveport, La.

Large Sales.

Good value for your money. "We have found your Hughes' Tonic to be one of the best selling Chill remedies that we ever sold. We have sold 15 gross in 8 months, and in selling Hughes' Tonic, feel that we are giving value." Sold by Druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

ROBINSON PETTET Co., (Inc.)
Louisville.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

Summer Tourist Tickets

To all Summer resorts reached by the Queen and Crescent Route will be sold, commencing June 1, at low rates for the round trip, and carrying return limit of Sept. 30, 1902.

The Summer schedules are nearly all now in operation, a few additional facilities to be added by connecting lines on June 1 and June 8, when Summer travel will be in full swing.

The Asheville service, including sleeper from Birmingham, which is attached to train leaving New Orleans at 7:30 P. M., will run daily, commencing June 8.

The dining-car service of the Queen and Crescent Route is maintaining its reputation for excellence, and no effort is spared to make the Summer trip via this splendidly equipped line a thoroughly enjoyable journey.

Famous Institutions.

Prof. J. F. Draughon, proprietor of Draughon's Practical Business Colleges, Nashville, St. Louis, Atlanta, Montgomery, Ft. Worth, Galveston, Little Rock and Shreveport, states that about three thousand students have enrolled at his colleges for personal instructions during past year, and that several thousand are taking his correspondence course of Home Study. Prof. Draughon's Colleges are endorsed by business men from Maine to California. See his ad. elsewhere in this issue, and write for his catalogue. Address as follows: Dept. V N., Draughon's College, Shreveport, La.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia and sick headaches. I was many times compelled to leave work and go home. Our druggist told me to try Ripans. I am now in much better health. I can eat most anything, have no headache and work steady. I also was greatly affected with constipation, and Ripans gave me relief from that.

At druggists.

Gov. Longino, of Mississippi, deserves to be honored by every citizen of his State, and of the whole country, for the noble and immovable stand he took in upholding the verdict of the courts. Two men were convicted of murder in the first degree, and were sentenced to death. Appeal was made to the higher court, and there the verdict of the lower court was sustained. Then appeal was made to the governor for commutation of sentence. The governor's decision was that he could find nothing in the case, nor in the trial, on which to base action. An effort was then made to get the case before the United States Court. This failed also. Then came another and a stronger effort to get the governor to interfere. But amidst the pleadings of relatives and friends, and against secret threats, he stood firm. The ordeal was severe. His heart was moved with pity for the distressed mother and sister, but duty to the State and respect for law triumphed, and the condemned men paid the penalty for murder on the gallows. The law was triumphantly vindicated. We honor Governor Longino.

The increase of the textile manufacturing enterprises in the South is something remarkable. During the three years past 1,369 mills have been erected. Of these mills 950 are located in the South. North Carolina takes the lead. This tendency towards the South is natural, and to be expected. The Providence Journal (R. I.), as quoted by the Times-Democrat, says: "The steady advance in cotton spinning which is going on at the South is likely to continue rather than be checked. It has advantages over the North in this industry in its abundant water power, nearness to the raw material, and freedom at present from many of the labor troubles which are affecting productions here. Living also is cheaper there, and smaller pay goes farther with the help."

More than ordinary interest is now being manifested in Democratic circles, for two reasons. First, Democrats hope to control the House of Representatives in the next Congress, the campaign being now on; second, because of efforts that are being made to unite the Bryan and anti-Bryan factions in the East. Meetings in the interest of harmony have been held. So far but little, if anything, has been accomplished, the anti-Bryan party looking at the movement as an effort at reorganization rather than to bring about harmony. Mr. Bryan, at this writing, is in the East making speeches, and trying to hold the party to the old lines. With what success, remains to be seen. It is too early to predict the result, as the time for the national convention is nearly two years off. Between now and then the issues may entirely change. Much time is being spent in vain.

Strong efforts were made some years ago by Yankees to increase foreign trade in corn meal in Europe by creating a taste for good corn bread. With what success, we are unable to say. Now an effort is to be made to learn Englishmen to love bananas. One of the great fruit companies is to engage in this laudable undertaking. We imagine it will not take long to accomplish the purpose if a cargo or two is distributed freely among the children. They take naturally to the fruit. Where it is on the market it always finds ready sale, and in large quantities. Whether this was intended as a joke on our English cousins, or not, we do not know. We did suppose, until the report was put out, that London was so far behind the times as to be unacquainted with bananas.

King Edward of England, whose illness caused the postponement of the coronation exercises set for June 26, has so far improved as to be able to walk a little, and the coronation will take place Aug. 9. But there will be no such display as was arranged for on the former date. The embassies or commissioners from other countries have about all left London, and those who attempt to make any display will be principally confined to Europeans. The expenses attending the ceremonies are too great to justify another trip to Europe. But the King, no doubt, will receive due recognition from all people, and all will wish him a long and prosperous reign.

The enormous profits earned by some of the trusts indicate great industrial activity and exceeding prosperity for their stockholders. It is evident that these aggregations are securing an undue share of the increasing wealth of the nation. As a result of the high price of products, the people are compelled to pay more than they should for all the materials that enter into construction, for transportation, rents, food, clothing, and for other necessaries of living. A part of the excess of profits should have been divided with the consumer in the lessened cost of what he must buy, and with the laborer in a more liberal share of the product of his labor. —Philadelphia Record.

THE VICKSBURG DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Vicksburg District Conference was held at Phœnix, in Yazoo county, Miss., July 17-20, inclusive, and proved to be a season of great enjoyment and profit to those in attendance. Our experienced and consecrated presiding elder, Dr. J. M. Weems, was on hand, and presided wisely and well. The Doctor evidently has the work of the district fully upon his heart, and is striving faithfully to advance every interest of the church. We were much gratified to find him looking so well after his recent tussle with a severe spell of fever.

The attendance upon the Conference was lamentably small, and, consequently, the people of Phœnix were greatly disappointed that there were not delegates enough to go round. Five pastors were absent, two of them being prevented from attending by personal affliction, and only five laymen were present. Several of the absent pastors failed to send in any report from their charges.

The first day was devoted to a Missionary Institute, during which several carefully prepared and interesting papers were read, and various phases of the mission cause were earnestly and helpfully discussed. The fact was brought out during the discussion that in some parts of the district there is amazing indifference to this momentous work of the church, and the pastors were strongly exhorted to turn on the light and arouse the people to a sense of their duty in this matter.

The following resolutions, signed by Revs. M. M. Black and W. H. Lewis, were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Our church is now engaged in a great forward movement in missionary enterprise; And, whereas, The work of evangelizing the world is the chief duty of the church; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That we, the members of the Vicksburg District Conference, pledge ourselves to do our utmost to arouse our people to the momentous importance of Christian missions, and that we put forth strenuous effort to raise every dollar of our missionary assessments.

2. That, if practicable, a Missionary Rally be held in every pastoral charge between now and Conference, in case one has not already been held.

Rev. W. H. Mounger served as secretary of the Missionary Institute.

On Friday morning the regular routine work of the Conference was taken up, this writer being elected secretary. The reports of the pastors were, on the whole, quite encraging. Finances are considerably behind in several charges on account of the shortage in the crops caused by the drouth. Several pastors reported a gratifying increase in membership. An elegant new church, all paid for, has been built at Carpenter, on the Hermanville charge. Bro. Simpson, the pastor of the South Vicksburg charge, is much elated over the prospect since the sale of the old church and the removal to new quarters. The new church is splendidly located on Washington street, is out of debt, though not yet finished, and bids fair to take on substantial growth. At Bolton plans are on foot to build a new $2,000 church, and success is assured. Our church at Utica has been remodeled since Conference at a cost of $2,200.

Dr. W. B. Murrah, the affable and cultured president of Millsaps College, was a most welcome visitor, and delivered a forceful and masterly address on education. In response to a request for aid in equipping the new dormitory at Millsaps, he succeeded in obtaining cash and subscriptions amounting to fifty dollars.

We were also delighted to have with us Rev. H. G. Hawkins, the energetic and scholarly vice-president of Whitworth College, who made a strong appeal in behalf of that worthy institution. Dr. Cooper and Bro. Hawkins make a splendid team, and, we are glad to report, are meeting with much encouragement. Twenty dollars was contributed by the Conference to Whitworth for improvements and repairs.

Bro. W. T. Griffin, the jovial, whole-souled, and efficient manager of our Orphans' Home, was on hand to represent that noble work, and touched a tender spot in the hearts of all as he told of his experience among the orphans. The collection for the Home amounted to $31. A subscription of $5 per month was also obtained.

The following laymen were elected delegates to our next Annual Conference, to-wit: T. A. Holloman, W. A. Price, A. B. Cling, and W. W. Ellis; alternates: Matthew Harris and Steele Drake.

The license of Rev. Claude Mitchell Simpson, a recent graduate of Millsaps College, was renewed, and he was duly recommended to the Annual Conference for local deacon's orders. Bro. Simpson is a splendid young man, and we predict for him a useful and honored career.

A resolution, introduced by Dr. E. H. Mounger, was adopted, asking that the assessments upon this district by the several Boards of our Annual Conference be made more equitable.

The Word was expounded by each of the following brethren, namely: Rev. Geo. P. McKeown, Dr. W. B. Murrah, Rev. H. G. Hawkins, Dr. E. H. Mounger, Rev. W. H. Lewis, and this writer. Three of the sermons delivered were upon the subject of missions. Dr. Mounger's sermon on church extension was able and edifying, and elicited much favorable comment.

Saturday morning was very profitably spent in the discussion of our Sunday-school work, particularly the "Teachers' Study Circle" movement.

The good people of Phœnix showed their appreciation of our coming in every possible way, and dispensed to us a lavish hospitality. This is the first time in over twenty years that a District Conference has been held in the pleasant and picturesque village of Phœnix, located among the hills of Yazoo, in a "land of milk and honey." Everybody, old and young, came out to Conference, especially to the preaching services. We regretted not being able to remain over Sunday.

We were delightfully entertained in the home of that noble-hearted and cultured layman, Bro. T. A. Holloman, to whom and whose family we are indebted for many courtesies. We also had the pleasure of sharing the hospitality of Bro. Frank Holloman and Dr. A. K. Barrier.

Our next District Conference will be held at Edwards.

M. M. BLACK, Sec.

Corinth District Conference.

The thirty-second annual session of the Corinth District Conference met in the Methodist Church, Corinth, Miss., July 10, 1902, at 9 A. M.; Rev. W. M. Young, P. E., in the chair. The opening religious services were conducted by the presiding elder. H. W. Rees was elected secretary. The roll was called, and a large number of pastors and laymen answered to their names.

The first day was given to the Sunday-school interest. Many valuable papers were read and speeches made showing that our people are fully alive to the interest of this, one of the most, if not the most, important institutions of our church. We believe our Sunday-schools are on a better foundation than ever before. Our superintendents are awake to the importance of having competent and faithful teachers, who are true, genuine Christians; who have a clear and definite experience in grace, and who both know and love the doctrines of their church. From the reports of preachers it is evident that this important phase of church work is receiving special attention, and that there has been considerable growth in the last twelve months. Some thirty new schools have been organized, and the number of pupils has increased at least six hundred. Several schools have missionary societies at work. Several conversions and accessions to the church were reported as the result of work done in the Sunday-school. This is as it should be, and we believe that if pastors, teachers and superintendents would do their full duty, we would witness hundreds of conversions yearly from this great source. Everything indicates that there is better work being done along this line than at any time in the history of the district.

The second day the general interest of the church throughout the district was considered. The work was taken up as the Discipline provides. The reports of the pastors showed the churches in the district to be in a healthy, growing condition, and that we are advancing along all lines. Some of the charges reported their mission assessments paid in full, and the reports showed an increase in the finances of the church. The Committee on Temperance, through its chairman, Rev. B. P. Jaco, made a strong report, which provoked quite a discussion, which, doubtless, will do good throughout the district. It was said by one speaker that tobacco was doing more harm than whisky. The chairman was requested to furnish all of the papers in the district with a copy of the report for publication.

Bro. R. P. Neblett was with us, and spoke in the interest of our Orphans' Home, after which a collection was taken amounting to $115.

Bro. J. M. Wyatt spoke in the interest of the Grenada College, and we feel sure his remarks will bear fruit. The Committee on Education offered the following resolutions in reference to the college, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, 1. That, as Grenada College is the only property we own in the bounds of our Conference fo female education, that we unite our efforts throughout the district to send our Methodist girls to this excellent college.

2. That we heartily endorse the policy and present administration of Grenada College.

L. W. CAIN, Chair'n.

We hope to see many of our girls from this part of the State, who have been going to other than Methodist schools, or out of the State, turning to Grenada College.

Bro. J. D. Cameron was with us, and did some fine preaching on Wednesday before Conference met, his subject being Missions.

Doctor, we missed you and Bro. Bachmau, but the ADVOCATE and other publishing interests were carefully looked after. In reference to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, the Committee on Books and Periodicals said: "The NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, being under the management of our own Dr. Boswell, needs no commendation from us. It should have the co-operation and support of every Methodist family in the Conference. It is one of the best papers published, and is better now than it ever was before. No Methodist can afford to do without the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

We did not have a Bishop with us, but we had one of the best presiding elders in the Conference, who knows just how to preside over a District Conference, and possesses all of the qualifications that are prerequisite to making a Bishop, and he has only to step one round higher up the ladder to become one. Under the supervision of Brother Young and the hearty co-operation of the pastors the Corinth district is fast coming to the front, and the indications now point to the best report at the Annual Conference in her history.

The opening sermon was preached Thursday, at 11 A. M., by Rev. J. B. Randolph, of Guntown. Brother Randolph is a rising young man, and bids fair, ere long, to be one of the leading men of the Conference.

The following brethren preached during Conference: W. C. Carlisle, W. G. Burks, R. M. Davis, J. M. Wyatt, W. M. Young, K. A. Jones, B. P. Jaco, R. W. Evans, L. C. Perry, of Vanderbilt University; J. D. Simpson, and Edgar Blizzard.

After the eleven o'clock sermon at the Methodist Church, Sunday, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered, and the presiding elder said he thought it was the greatest communion he ever saw, and we had a great day. Doctor, I wish you could have been with us.

Myron Chaffey and I. M. Lanning were licensed to preach.

Walter W. Jones, Thomas J. Hopper, Edgar Blizzard, Jno. D. Simpson and William R. Gandlocke were recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial into the traveling connection.

Edward Blizzard was recommended for deacon's orders, and Jno. D. Simpson for elder's orders.

Dr. Jno. Y. Murry, Dr. L. W. Worsham, W. G. C. Gressom and F. E. Ray were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, with Edward Blizzard, L. P., and R. B. Henderson as alternates.

Booneville was selected as the next place of meeting.

It was said by some that, as a whole, it was one of the best Conferences ever held in the district. The attendance was large, and all seemed to be well satisfied with the work.

Corinth maintained her reputation for hospitality, and all of the delegates expressed themselves as having been well cared for.

The pastor, Bro. S. B. Myers, makes an ideal host, looking well after the comfort and pleasure of his guests. He is in high favor with his people, gives general satisfaction, and is doing a great work. He has had sixty-six additions to the church since Conference. May the choicest blessings of Heaven ever rest upon Brother Myers and his people, upon our presiding elder, all of the preachers, and all of God's people, and may this be the greatest year of our lives!

As Others See It.

"Some of the finest work in the world among Baptist people is now being done along and adjacent to the line of the Gulf and Ship Island railroad. Good and substantial congregations are being gathered, and new and elegant houses of worship are being built. This has always been Baptist territory, and at the present rate of progress it is destined to remain so. Amen and Amen!"

I can indorse the above editorial except the last two lines, which shoot wide of the mark; but to miss with only two lines is par excellence for them, I think, all things being considered.

Happily I am in a position to know something of the religious status along this line of railroad, and am aware that this was once "Baptist territory;" but, alas! for that tribe. "Some of the finest work in the world among Baptist people is being done," and that by Methodist ministers.

As everyone knows, the Gulf and Ship Island railroad was built through what was considered a backwoods country, and it is true it was pre-eminently "Baptist territory," and that of the most prejudiced kind. The time has been when Methodism had to apologize for its existence in this "territory," but along with railroads and progress and education and refinement came Methodism, and its growth has been phenomenal. It is only a question of time when the reins of control of church and school will be in our own hands, right here in this "Baptist territory."

Methodism is destined to be the religion, not only of this "territory," but of the whole world. "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach (not only to this territory, but) unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people." (Rev. xiv, 6.) That angel was a fair type of Methodism—the only religion that measures up fully to the requirements.

CENTENARY AND HER EX-PRESIDENT.

BY REV. G. P. WHITE.

I have been a careful observer of Centenary, and intimately associated with her president for the past four years. It is generally conceded by all that Dr. Cooper's indefatigable efforts for Centenary have been abundantly rewarded with visible fruits.

Four years ago everything was in a dilapidated condition, with a very small attendance, and with little hope for future prosperity. To move the college to a more desirable place was the talk. But at this critical moment there was an Elijah, a man of God, in the person of Dr. I. W. Cooper, and the trustees (being guided by the unseen Hand, for I believe Dr. Cooper's presidency was purely providential) placed their hands upon him, and unanimously elected him president; a man of God, full of hope and faith.

Dr. Cooper served as president for four years, and during that time he did a great work for Louisiana Methodism (for which they ought to be appreciative); beautified the grounds, repaired the buildings, built new cottages, increased the attendance near three hundred per cent., but best of all, created new hopes for the institution, and forever laid to rest the idea that Centenary must be moved elsewhere to have success. I trust his resigning and the election of Rev. H. B. Carre will prove to be the best thing for the furtherance of the interests of the college.

The new president is one of our most promising young men, full of hope and energy; a learned man, suited for the position. I pray that he, with his corps of teachers, may wisely build on the foundation already laid, until Centenary shall rank among the first of our schools. But of all who will miss Dr. Cooper, the preachers will miss him most. I do not suppose that any man in the Louisiana Conference held more revival meetings, and with more success, than Dr. Cooper. I regard him as among our best gospel preachers; a man full of the Holy Ghost; a man whose preaching went to the heart of his hearers.

But our loss is another's gain, and I pray, as he goes back to his native State and much-loved Conference, that he may have abundant success.

BOARD OF INSURANCE.

The late General Conference at Dallas appointed a Board of Insurance for the church, and charged it with the duty of making arrangements for the more general and adequate insurance of the church, parsonage, school and other property of our church against destruction or damage by fire or storm. The Board consists of Chancellor Kirkland, of Vanderbilt University, who is its president; Dr. Kilgo, of North Carolina; Dr. Hosmer, of Alabama; Wm. S. Baker, Esq., of St. Louis; Presley Meguiar, president; R. B. Gilbert, vice-president, and Dr. Whisner, corresponding secretary of the Board of Church Extension, and Charles M. Phillips (who is vice-president), Samuel Onerbacker, Presley H. Tapp and Thomas B. Morton, all of whom are well-known and successful business men of Louisville.

The Board is exceedingly fortunate in having been able, within six weeks after its appointment, to make an arrangement with the National Mutual Church Insurance Company, of Chicago, Ill., whereby it has secured to our people not only the very superior advantages in the way of cheap and reliable insurance offered by that prosperous and growing company, but also, after next January, a voice in its management and control.

The company was organized by the M. E. Church through its Board of Insurance, which has functions and powers similar to our own. Its affairs are prudently and conservatively managed by some of the most successful laymen in Chicago. The general manager, Mr. Henry P. Magill, is of fine "Old Virginia stock," and has had many years of practical experience as manager of a large old line insurance agency in the Northwest. Both churches, North and South, are fortunate in having secured for this work the services of a specialist so capable, so well-instructed in the science of legitimate fire underwriting, and, at the same time, so thorough a Methodist.

That the great church which organized and stands sponsor for this growing company has thorough confidence in it, is evidenced by the fact that it has in the last three years placed $15,000,000 worth of its property under its protection, and, as older policies in other companies expire, is increasing this amount at the rate of several hundred thousands of dollars each month.

The net cost of insurance is much less than our people have been accustomed to. The policies run five years, but the premiums are payable in yearly installments, and are very little over one-half the yearly premiums for insurance in the stock companies. The company is purely mutual, and all profits are returned at the end of each year to the policy-holders.

The Board of Insurance earnestly advises and urges all our people to insure their church, parsonage, school and other property in this, which is now our own, official Methodist Insurance Company, and help to make it not only a success, as it now is, but a grand success.

For blank applications and for further information address either Henry P. Magill, general manager, 57 Washington street, Chicago, Ill., or the undersigned. In writing or sending applications to Mr. Magill, always mention that you belong to the Church, South. Very respectfully,

WILBUR F. BARCLAY,
Sec. Board of Insurance.

Crowley District Conference.

The Crowley District Conference convened at Abbeville, La., July 8, at 4 P. M. To the delight of all, our venerable and efficient presiding elder, Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., was in good health, and presided over all the sessions of the Conference. The attendance of the lay delegates was very good. The absence of Revs. Jno. A. Miller, C. T. Munholland and J. J. Kelley was deeply regretted. It was noted that the Conference was composed almost entirely of young men. The sessions and services were attended by large and appreciative audiences. The preaching by Revs. Carre, Parker, Turner, Tucker and Johns was of a high order, and elicited the highest expressions of praise. Quite a number of seekers and several converts were the result of the faithful gospel appeals. It is in no sense disparaging to the other sermons to make especial mention of the sermon of Rev. R. W. Tucker; it was worthy the "sons of thunder" of pioneer Methodism. All were delighted with the preaching, address and presence of Rev. Henry Beach Carre. Centenary is in no peril as long as we keep such a man of learning, zeal and ability as this youthful and progressive president at the head of our college. His wise plans for needed improvement should meet with the heartiest approval and aid from all sections of our Conference.

The reports from the different charges, while not perfect, were of an encouraging sort, and revealed the facts of progress and improvement along all lines.

Rev. A. A. Bernard was recommended for admission on trial in the Annual Conference; also for deacon's orders.

A matter of importance, which aroused interesting discussion, was the missionary needs of our district. No sections of Southern Methodism present a more promising field or urgent need. The great resources of this district—rice, cane, cotton, and oil—are inviting immigrants from all parts of our nation. Many of our own people are filling up these sections. They are clamoring for the church, and we have been doing little to meet the demands. A committee, consisting of Revs. F. S. Parker, R. W. Tucker, and A. W. Turner, was appointed to gather facts, and present these needs to proper authorities.

The encouraging report from the French Mission work, showing the possibilities of that work, came in for its share of attention, and was included in the work of the committee mentioned above. Another committee was ordered to look after the immediate needs of these claims.

The district parsonage was located at Lafayette, accepting their offer of a lot and $400. There being $800 in hand for this cause, an additional $800 was ordered raised by the district, and a Building Committee ordered to make plans and begin work at once.

The delegates to the Annual Conference were elected on the first ballot, as follows: Geo. D. Price, W. L. Doss, H. N. Pharr, and Dr. M. R. Cushman. The alternates were A. M. Mayo and Rev. A. A. Bernard.

A pleasing, yet touching, feature of the Conference was the presentation by Rev. R. W. Tucker, in behalf of the Conference, of a handsome umbrella to our worthy presiding elder, as a token of their esteem and appreciation of his character and services. Dr. Carter's response was filled with words of wisdom and affection for his brethren. No man in our Conference is held in higher esteem than Dr. Carter, and none love him more than the preachers and people of the Crowley district, and it is with deep sorrow that we are forced to give him up at the close of this Conference year. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted, and ordered published and included in the report of the proceedings of this Conference:

Whereas, The current ecclesiastical year must conclude the term of Dr. C. W. Carter as presiding elder of the Crowley district, we feel constrained, by genuine regard for his personal qualities and by sincere appreciation of his services, to make some expression of our regard; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That it is our conviction that the district has made solid profit by the dignified and able administration and spiritual preaching of our presiding elder.

2. That the spiritual tone and character of the work have been most happily and permanently affected by what seems to have been an appointment providentially designed for this period of remarkable material prosperity in Southwest Louisiana.

3. That our preachers and people have been enriched in their lives and social affections by the associations of the past four years with Dr. Carter, as he has been in and out among us in the regular discharge of his official duties.

4. That in the prospect of a severance of the present official relation with the presiding elder of the district, we shall cherish the privilege of maintaining the brotherly love and personal esteem that have grown during this privileged period, and that we shall follow Dr. Carter with our prayers for his continued health and usefulness, at the same time requesting his continued intercessions for ourselves and the work.

WM. SCHUHLE,
R. W. TUCKER,
F. S. PARKER.

The next session of the District Conference will be held at Rayne, La.

The Conference closed with religious exercises conducted by Dr. Carter, in which he stated that this was the best attended and most profitable session of District Conferences during his term.

Resolutions of thanks were heartily and unanimously endorsed expressive of the appreciation of the Conference for its hospitable entertainment by the people of Abbeville. The Abbeville people expressed their pleasure at having the Conference by extending an urgent invitation to meet there again next year.

ROBT. W. VAUGHAN, Sec.

Holly Springs District Conference.

The Holly Springs District Conference met July 10, 1902, in the delightful little town of Potts Camp. The attendance was large. There were nearly an average of five delegates from each charge. All the preachers but one were present. Rev. W. G. Harbin was away recuperating for the Summer's work. The brotherliness and cheerfulness of pastors and delegates, added to the good reports and genuine Southern hospitality of the citizens, made the occasion an exceedingly pleasant one. The able preaching, papers, and the earnest, pointed, practical discussion of our work and its problems, made the occasion a very helpful one.

Thursday, the tenth, was given to the reports and discussion of Epworth Leagues and Sunday-schools. We are sorry to note that only three Leagues were reported from the district, the devotional feature alone having any part in these. Our district is made up principally of rural charges, and in these it seems hard to make the Epworth League wheel go. Sunday-school reports were most encouraging. There were fifty-one schools reported, most of which are prospering; many Children's Day services, and some conversions. May God speed the day when there will be many conversions in the Sunday-school! At 8:30 P. M. Mr. J. R. Pepper delighted us with an able address on "Sunday-school Problems," giving us solutions for difficulties in Sunday-school work. Mr. Pepper is one of the foremost Sunday-school men of the world, able in administration and wise in council.

Reports of the women's societies showed that the ladies of our district are not sitting quietly by, but have caught the sweet inspiration of the resurrection morn, "Go tell." The Holly Springs district is the banner W. F. M. district of the Conference.

A number of brethren from other districts honored us with their presence, viz.: Bros. Porter ("Gilderoy"), Wilson, Dorman, Wyatt, McIntosh, Edge, Bowen, and Prof. Clifton. We were disappointed at not having Bishop Key with us, illness preventing his being present.

Rev. J. M. Wyatt presented the claim of the Orphans' Home, and secured one hundred and forty-one dollars.

The pulpit was filled by Revs. R. G. Porter, M. D. Fly, W. B. Murrah, J. R. Robertson, B. C. Gray, and N. G. Augustus.

Miss Viola Blackburn, returned missionary from Mexico, held a very interesting children's service on Sunday.

There will be reported from this district at next Conference four new parsonages—one for every circuit in the district. Two are already built, and two more will be secured by Conference.

We are expecting great revivals in our district during the season. Our preachers and people are girding themselves for battle, and we feel confident in saying this will be one of the most prosperous years of this district.

Bros. O. P. Armour and W. N. Dodd were licensed to preach.

Revs. G. S. Sanders and O. P. Armour were recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

Rev. D. M. Floyd was recommended for deacon's orders.

Rev. J. R. Robertson was recommended for re-admission into the traveling connection, he having regained his health.

It is a common expression that "our presiding elder is the right man in the right place." He is doing a great work in our district. He seeks to lay well the foundation for time and for eternity. He enjoys the hearty good-will of everyone, the love and esteem of his preachers and people, all of which he truly merits.

J. H. HOLDER, Sec.

Durant District Conference.

The Durant District Conference convened at Goodman, Miss., July 10, at 3 P. M. Effort had been made to secure the services of a Bishop, but in his absence Rev. W. S. Lagrone, P. E., had no trouble in directing the affairs of the Conference. The Conference was delightfully entertained by the good people of Goodman, who dispensed a bountiful hospitality. A number of interesting questions, such as pertain to the Sunday-school, League, revivals, and education, were discussed at length. Christian education, by a combination of circumstances, had the pre-eminence. Nearly all of an afternoon session, at which time rousing speeches were made by Profs. Boyd and Smith and some others, was devoted to the great cause of education, which is now the paramount issue in both Church and State. Never before were there so many contributions of money and thought to any one cause. Besides this session, to which reference has been made, Dr. Murrah spoke half an hour on the needs of Millsaps College, and took a collection of $110 to repair and furnish the dormitory recently donated to the college by Major Millsaps. Revs. J. H. Mitchell and J. M. Wyatt both spoke in behalf of Grenada College.

Rev. J. R. Countiss represented the Orphans' Home at Water Valley, and raised $122.50 in cash and subscription for this deserving institution.

The preaching was good to the use of edifying, and was done by Dr. Murrah, Revs. J. H. Mitchell, H. C. Edmondson, A. J. Foster, J. M. Deavenport, W. S. Lagrone, and J. A. Hall.

The delegates to the Annual Conference are: Col. J. G. Hamilton, J. F. Wilburn, Parham Williams, and Rev. J. A. Hall. Alternates are: J. O. Lanfair and J. L. Porter.

The pastors' reports show that 110 have been received into the church since the Annual Conference, and two of the best charges were not heard from. Out of an assessment of $1,345 for missions, more than $600 is already in the hands of the treasurer. Thirteen charges in the district have raised part of the assessment for missions, and several have raised the full assessment. Two of the preachers serving as supplies have received less than $8 a month so far this year. No wonder some preachers have to have their patches, or sell books, or take some agency by which to supplement a meager salary.

Besides the visitors above mentioned, Rev. G. W. Bachman, member at large, was present selling good books. Mrs. R. H. B. Gladney, district secretary of the H. M. Society, was present, and made an address in reference to her work.

Jesse T. Lockhart and John Wesley Cummings were granted license to preach. J. T. McCafferty and Jesse T. Lockhart were recommended for admission on trial into the traveling connection. Bro. McCafferty is a member of the Legislature from Choctaw county, and is a B. A. graduate of Millsaps College. Bro. Lockhart is a member of one of the best families in the State; was at the State University two years and at Millsaps College last session.

The attendance was not as good as it ought to have been, but the Conference was a success. Much is due Bro. Lagrone for his untiring efforts, and Bro. Gladney and his good people laid themselves out for us. Many blessings on their heads! Every man went home determined to place Durant district alongside of the very best.

Meridian District Sunday-School Conference.

The District Sunday-school Conference of the M. E. Church, South, for the Meridian district, opened its first session Tuesday evening, July 15, in the Methodist Church at Poplar Springs, two miles northwest of Meridian, with exercises by the Poplar Springs school, composed of songs, recitations, prayer and Scripture lesson appropriate for the occasion. The address of welcome was delivered by Miss Ida Curtis, of Poplar Springs, in which she extended a cordial welcome to visiting delegates in behalf of the Poplar Springs school and the community. W. D. Hawkins, of Meridian (district secretary), who presided with so much dignity over the several sessions of the Conference, responded to the address of welcome. W. M. Estes, of Enterprise, was elected secretary pro tem. Several delegates from different parts of the district were present, and excellent papers were read, and addresses delivered, in which the entire field of Sunday-school work was covered and ably discussed.

Revs. H. M. Ellis, of Enterprise; F. B. Ormond and W. W. Simmons, presiding elder of Meridian district, were present, and aided materially in the success of the Conference by contributing much good thought and inspiration.

All expressed themselves as being greatly benefited by the two days' session, and it is thought great results will be had therefrom.

Thursday evening's session (July 17) closed the exercises, and, on motion, Conference was adjourned sine die, time and place of next meeting being left to the committee.

W. F. M. S.

DEAR SISTER MCINTOSH: Our District Conference for this year embraced the fifth Sunday in June, and it met in the hospitable little village of Artesia.

On Saturday, June 28, the Home and Foreign Missionary Societies both held their district meetings. The forenoon was given to the Foreign Missionary Society, and I am glad to say to you that our meeting was above the average. Only two societies in the district failed to send delegates, and quite a number went from several auxiliaries. Thus the attendance was unusually large. Reports were read from each society. Miss Stokes, of Columbus, read a fine paper on the Mary Keener Institute, which was much appreciated. It was full of information, and gave us a fine view of this school and the workings of the same. Miss Maria Ames read an interesting and instructive paper about the Tallulah Hargrove Memorial School at Songdo, Korea. This school lies very near our hearts, because it is our special work, and because of the name so recently chosen for it.

We had with us Miss Hughes, of our China Mission, who made two talks, one being especially designed for the children. China seemed very near as she told us of the work there and the urgent needs. We deem it a great privilege to have had Miss Hughes with us, and we feel that much good was done.

In addition to all this, we had with us Sister M. L. Hargrove, of the Scarritt Bible and Training-school. She made a most helpful talk, and we felt our "hearts burn within us" as we listened. Sister Hargrove is originally from the Columbus district, and we are proud to record the fact.

Some of the brethren came in time for our meeting, and we were glad of their presence indeed.

After the District Conference, Miss Hughes visited Mayhew, Columbus, Macon, and Crawford. I have had letters from all of these places, and it seems that she has taken all hearts by storm. We feel that much good has been done by these visits. She promises to visit other points in the district later. So much for the work here. MRS. T. W. WOODWARD,
Dist Sec.

Home Mission Society.

Notes from W. H. M. S., North Mississippi Conference.

Since the annual meeting in Pickens many encouraging reports have come to the Conference corresponding secretary.

Pickens Auxiliary has voted to become connectional, and has planned to send a bed to the Home in Water Valley. The first subscriptions for the hospital have been given in Pickens.

Greenville Auxiliary will clothe a child in the Home. Gunnison will clothe a child, and also send other contributions to the Home.

Mrs. Dukeminier, secretary of Aberdeen district, is much encouraged by the growing interest in her district. The district meeting was held in connection with the District Conference, with a better attendance than ever before in Aberdeen district. Mrs. Dukeminier reports much kindness on the part of the preachers and presiding elder.

At the Sardis District Conference the Home Mission Society was represented by the district secretary, Mrs. L. C. Short, and Mrs. W. H. Wall. Dr. Sullivan kindly gave them a hearing.

Winona Auxiliary has become connectional. The workers are enthusiastic, and a fine year is expected. MRS. ROBERT SOMERVILLE.

That which is often asked of God is not so much his will and way as his approval of our way.—S. F. Smiley.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

The Home Department.

In view of the importance of the work, and its far-reaching effects in promoting Bible study in the family, we are at a loss to understand why the Home Department is not more popular. There are but few of them in Louisiana or Mississippi, and yet possibly we have as many in proportion as most of the other States of the Union.

The Home Department is designed to reach all that large class of people who, from any cause, either can not, or will not, attend the Sunday-school. It is literally going out into the highways and hedges, and compelling them to come in. It is home mission work of the most effective kind. Whenever a family, or any individual in a family, has been induced to study the Bible regularly, it will doubtless lead them to regular attendance upon the services of the church and Sunday-school, and develop in them the kingdom of God. As much, if not more than any other agency except pastoral visiting, the Home Department, when rightly conducted, will bring the question of personal salvation home to each individual in the community.

Of course, there are difficulties in the way. There is no goal worth striving for where there are no difficulties to overcome, but, in overcoming them, we develop Christian character. And the difficulties are no greater in the country than in the town. A good leader in either place can build up a good and successful Home Department.

It is often difficult to get anyone to act as a Home Department visitor. When such is the case, employ the messenger service. In every Sunday-school, whether in town or country, there are boys and girls who would delight in such work. Use them, and it will not only build up your Home Department, but it will develop them as Christian workers. We know personally of two or three Home Departments that have been built up in this manner. Of course, it is better to have the visitors, when you can get them, who will visit the people at their homes, assist the members with their lessons, and pray with them. But do not neglect the Home Department because you can not get skilled labor, but rather develop your own workers.

In the January number of the Sunday-school Evangel was an interesting story of an old lady in Canada who has taught a Bible class for seventy-five years continuously, and at the age of ninety-six is at it still. In all these years she has never lost her zeal in religious work. And why not? Well, when she first consented to become a Bible teacher, she assumed an obligation that required regular, systematic Bible study. Her promise to teach was also a promise to study, and the promise has been faithfully kept. But while she has been keeping the promise, the promise and the Bible study have been keeping her. We are sure she would admit that if she had not been true to the Book, she never would have been true to her promise. It was her constant, regular study of God's Word that kept her from falling and failing. While she was doing a great thing for her class, it may be she was doing even a greater thing for herself. The point is that the promise she made, the obligation she assumed, were the anchors that held her to God's Word, and gave it a chance to perform its gracious work in her heart and soul, and make her life a blessing to so many for nearly a hundred years.—Evangel.

A distaste for Bible study, says an exchange, is the saddest feature in the life of many a professed Christian. What does it mean? Do we dislike to read letters or articles written by those we love? If you dislike Bible study, the case is serious, and requires careful examination. See to it at once.

We see it stated that Dr. Spillman, who is at the head of the Sunday-school work of the Baptist Church in the South, will devote most of his time the coming year to Sunday-school work in Mississippi.

Memphis, Tenn.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: I am just out of a great meeting at Jonesboro, Ark., where I preached thirty-nine times for our Mississippi boy, R. C. Morehead. We had about forty conversions and accessions, and hundreds of Christians revived.

Bro. Morehead is taking high rank in the White River Conference. He is a good general; has good common sense and untiring energy. He has a good church of six hundred members. I might make my report to you, I suppose, as you have been my presiding elder, and I have been yours. I have preached more this year than I did last—for the last month twice nearly every day; and my time is engaged up to the middle of September. My health is better than it was last year. My general health is excellent. I never expect to be entirely well again, but I am better off than I ever expected to be. I am happy on the way, ready to work, rest, live, or to die. I am satisfied with my relations to the Conference, and ever expect to be. Success to my old friend. J. W. HONNOLL.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

LEAKSVILLE, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: On the twentieth of this month we will begin our first protracted meeting for this season. We are expecting gracious results and a glorious meeting. We hope to have good meetings at every church on the work, and in order for this to be done, I want to ask special interest in the prayers of every reader of the dear old ADVOCATE.

This country is fast being settled up, and many industries are being established in this piney-woods country. In order for the welfare of our Zion to prosper, and the cause of Christ and his holy religion to keep apace with these things, we must have some Holy-Ghost revivals. Will not every lover of the Lord Jesus Christ pray for us while we are battling through the meetings of this season? May the Lord help one and all to pray for us!

We have been getting along fairly well on this work during the year. We have organized one new church with a membership of 20, and more to follow. We are having a hard time of it this year making our Conference collections, the crops being badly damaged by the long drouth. We find the people discouraged, and it's a little hard for us to collect, but we hope by Conference to have everything in full as usual.

May the Lord bless the dear ADVOCATE and its editor, giving to him that knowledge and wisdom that will enable him to continue getting out a good, wholesome, soul-stirring paper as usual.

Brethren, pray for us on the Leaksville work.

Your servant in Christ.
W. L. BLACKWELL.

HARPERVILLE CIRCUIT.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: I will hold my first protracted meeting at Good Hope, beginning next Sunday; am praying for a gracious revival. The finances of my circuit, the second Quarterly Conference, were far ahead of any former report at that date. Since then we have had, and are still having, the most destructive drouth known here in many years. Old corn ruined, gardens burned up, cotton retarded in its growth, and in many places is blooming on the top of the stalk; the water supply running short, pastures dried up, etc. This state of things, I fear, will damage my collections very seriously.

We have had a great deal of fatal sickness; have lost some of my most useful members, but the fatality has been much greater among children than adults. I trust that God may bring good out of all these dark clouds that are hanging over us.

Congregations were never better than they have been on my work.

Will keep the readers of the ADVOCATE posted as to the results of my meetings. Pray for me.

Your brother in Christ,
IRVIN MILLEA, P. C.

Walnut Grove, Miss., July 11, 1902.

MT. CARMEL CHARGE.

MR. EDITOR: Perhaps some of your readers would like to hear from Mt. Carmel charge. We closed a protracted meeting Thursday following the first Sunday in July in Mt. Zion Church, this charge; considered by the entire membership to have been a success. Fourteen accessions to our church, some reclamations, and the church revived, are some of the results. The preaching was plain, pointed, and convincing. Prevalent sins were pointed out; the Savior held up as all-sufficient for every sin. The Spirit honored the preaching; manifestly present in convicting, converting, and sanctifying power. Rev. C. M. Crossly did the preaching, with the exception of one service. To God we give the praise. We believe that this charge is making progress on several lines.

H. B. VANDENBURG, P. C.

The Crystal Springs Camp Meeting, to be held at Henington Camp Ground, one mile from Crystal Springs, will begin Aug. 14, and continue eight days. Rev. B. F. Jones, presiding elder of the Brookhaven district, and Dr. S. A. Steel, assisted by others, will conduct the services. The camp ground is one of the old and well-established institutions of the church, the coming meeting being the thirty-first, and much good has been done on its consecrated soil. It has the best auditorium we have ever seen for camp-meeting purposes. The place is delightful, and we hope the meeting will be largely attended. If Dr. Steel is in the spirit—and we pray that he may be—the people will hear the best preaching they have heard for a long time; the best, we dare say, since the days of Dr. Wheat, who was the best camp-meeting preacher that Mississippi ever produced.

WOMAN'S SPECIAL ILLS CURED.

G.F.P. GERSTLE'S FEMALE PANACEA

Cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; ovarian, uterine and all pelvic irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens and tones all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. There is no other medicine like it or "just as good," none that can take its place and do its work. Accept no substitute; get the real medicine and it will prove to be the right remedy. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for G. F. P. is reliable and will not disappoint.

"For ten months I suffered from various disorders incident to change of life, when I commenced the use of G. F. P., and must say that I found it to be all you recommend. It has certainly been a great help to me."—Mrs. Mary Richardson, Trussville, Ala.

"I had almost given up hope of ever being cured, but through the means of G. F. P. I have been restored to health. I wish that I could tell all women of this splendid medicine."—Miss Cornelia Peterson, Iron City, Tenn.

What G. F. P. has done for these it will do for others.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies' Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

CORRESPONDENTS will please direct all communications, whether on business or for publication, to the Editor, 512 Camp St., New Orleans. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

OBITUARIES not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged for at the rate of ONE CENT A WORD. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

THE PRINTED LABEL on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after two weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. This applies also to those who request a change of address.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, JULY 31, 1902.

THE NEW DISCIPLINE.

The new Discipline will soon be ready for distribntion. Every Methodist home ought to have a copy. No official member can afford to be without one. Some radical changes by the General Conference in May were made, so that the old Discipline does not now contain all the laws of the church. From this date until the first of September we will furnish the new Discipline and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE one year for TWO DOLLARS cash. This offer applies to all who will pay up back dues to date, and renew their subscriptions, as well as to new subscribers who send the money. We ought to have several hundred answers to this proposition. Address,

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

Members of the church sometimes bitterly complain of being neglected by the pastor, going so far as to accuse him of partiality in his visits. These complaints are not always well-fonnded. The pastor may not visit some members as often as they desire, but they shonld bear in mind that he is a busy man, and that while he seems to be neglecting them, he is paying attention to others who stand in greater need of his services. This, at least, is a charitable view of the matter.

We can not be too carefnl in our attempts to qnote Scripture, especially when we rely upon it for proof. A very common error is to try to show from the Scriptures that the people are what the preachers make them, whereas the words qnoted in proof were intended to show that the priest accommodated himself to the people. "Like people, like priest," was the prophet's expression, not, "Like priest, like people." We have known great men to misquote this plain statement.

Because some men always take back seats in church, we are not to conclnde that they are the worst men in the community. We are as apt to be mistaken in that case as if we judged men to be the best Christians because they always sit in the Amen corner. Everybody knows that some very unworthy men take the uppermost seats in the synagogue. Everybody knows that some good men never push themselves to the front.

A man can not reasonably be blamed for modestly setting forth his views, even though they may be contrary to the generally accepted beliefs; bnt when he concludes that he is able to revolutionize sentiment, or to reform the world according to his ideas, it may safely be said that his head is turned. Such a man has but a faint conception of the size of the world, or the strength of hnman convictions.

RELIGION IN THE FAMILY.

One of the great needs of today is more religion in the family, such religion as will enable fathers and mothers to set good examples before their children and instruct them in the way of the Lord. And we might add, we need among us such religion as will force parents to teach their children to be obedient. We are fnlly aware that the religion suggested is well-nigh ont of date, and that one undertaking to practice it would be regarded as Puritanical, and out of harmony with the spirit of the times. But such religion is in harmony with the will of God. That is sufficient for all who profess to be Christians.

It requires bnt a glance to satisfy any thoughtful mind that while, as a rule, Christian parents are exemplary in all that pertains to morals, practicing temperance, godliness, charity, and are liberal in sustaining the church and its various benevolences, they are sadly lacking in the practice of that religion that is best adapted to make indelible impressions on the minds and hearts of their children. Look into this.

What a small per cent. of Christians hold family prayer! How many children will rise up in judgment and say, "I never heard my father pray!" Can anyone imagine a more effective way of impressing a group of small children with a sense of the divine presence, and their obligations to God, than by solemn worship aronnd the family altar? To read the Word of God and bow in prayer naturally impresses children with the idea of the existence of God, his immediate presence, and his superintending care. They also fall naturally into the habit of prayer. The good impressions are never eradicated. They grow with the growth of the children, and are strengthened with their strength. The boy or girl that throws them off and forgets them is an exception. The neglect of family prayer is obliged to tell on the future, both of the family and the church.

The per cent. of parents who habitually and systematically instruct their children in the things of God is also small. There may be now and then those who assist their children with their Snnday-school lessons, which is well as far as it goes, bnt this does not make up for the neglect of direct, personal instrnction, snch as we may rightly snppose was imparted by Abraham to his family, and to Timothy by his mother and grandmother. Snch is the daty of parents. Were there no command to this effect, the fact that the children's interests are involved would lead conscientious parents to instrnct them; but when they know it is imperatively demanded, they can not neglect without imperiling the children's sonls, and incurring gnilt on their own. God's Word is to be received into the hearts of parents, and they, in turn, are to "teach them diligently unto their children."

What is called family government is neglected. Children are not "in snbjection," as was the family of Abraham, who "commanded his honsehold." The little ones are fed and clothed, and in hundreds of honseholds ontside the Sunday-school they have no religions instrnction. Outside the day-school no restraints are imposed. They simply run riot in following the inclination of their own wills. To restrain them wonld be to curb their liberty. That would be contrary to the spirit of independence. It wonld degrade their manhood. To govern them would be undemocratic. Democracy means self-government. Besides, government implies the possibility of disobedience and penalty, and to inflict penalty would be humiliating, and smack of oppression. So men seem to reason. The result is, a multitude of boys and girls turned loose on society to do as they please.

These uninstructed and ungoverned, or misgoverned, children grow up churchless and Christless, and swell the number of the godless, not to say the positively sinful. How many of them are annually added to the hoodlum and criminal classes of our cities, no man can tell. And if, perchance, the good influences of refined society save them from the lower forms of sin, they are lost to the church, and are quite as much in danger of losing their souls as if they were outcasts. And they are greater hinderers to the progress of the truth.

We have not drawn on our imagination. What we have said is sustained in part by reports made to our various Conferences whenever the state of the church is considered. The decay of family religion is often lamented. The absence of children and youths from the public worship tells its own tale. No other tongue is needed to reveal the fact that parents are in full accord with the feelings of the children who let the Sunday-school exercises suffice for all Sunday worship. These things would not be so if parents cherished and practiced a better and purer order of home religion; if they added to their good morals the weight of example; or if they exercised such government as becometh honseholds of faith.

Bnt while there is decadence in some directions, there is life and growth in others. This life and growth prove the vitality and power of the gospel. Were it otherwise, the church would soon be doomed.

POPE LEO'S PLAY.

When Gov. Taft was sent to Rome to negotiate with the Roman Catholic authorities in regard to the friars in the Philippines, a great cry went up throughout the country because our government had established diplomatic relations with the Vatican. This cry was sufficiently loud and general to be heard at the White House, and was only allayed by the assurance from the Administration that the mission of Gov. Taft to Rome was in no sense diplomatic, but of a purely business character. This was donbtless the intention of the United States anthorities, and it is said that the announcement to that effect was a great disappointment to the Pope.

But how is the matter turning out? Gov. Taft, who has been in Rome more than a month, intent on transacting the business in hand, has been interrupted and hindered, and several times compelled to cable to Washington for instructions. He is dealt with in Rome as a regular ambassador, and the negotiations are characterized as "American diplomacy." The conclusion is that while Gov. Taft's mission is not called diplomatic, it is such in fact, and nothing else. The Pope and his "commissioners" are making as much out of the sitnation as possible, and will keep Gov. Taft in Rome, on the one qnestion at issne, for the next ten years, if they can.

That actual diplomatic relations are now existing between Rome and the United States is evident from dispatches received and pnblished. The following extracts from a message cabled Jnly 13 clearly show the trnth of what we say: "If the United States' diplomacy acts energetically, it will obtain all its demands." "Mysterious, hostile influences have been insidionsly at work against Gov. Taft, and have more than once bronght the negotiations to a standstill for the time being." "These have been trying times for Gov. Taft, who is quite unused to the subtleties of Latin diplomacy, and seems to think that brusque straightforwardness is his best weapon." One trouble of Gov. Taft and his colleagues, it is declared, is "their inability to realize that the Church of Rome is not a sort of provincial synod, but a great world power."

Gov. Taft has encountered "the fine Italian hand" literally, and instead of being able to accomplish his business in a straightforward business way, he finds himself thwarted by dilatory tactics, with no other purpose in view (as it appears) than to keep up diplomatic relations and impress the governor with the idea that the Church of Rome is a "great world power." A business mission to Rome is all right, and we recognize the delicacy of Gov. Taft's mission, but diplomatic relations with the Vatican can not be tolerated for a moment. The sooner the business is transacted the better.

A DANIEL COME TO JUDGMENT.

One who is disposed to interpret Wesleyanism for his brethren has declared, if correctly reported, that the Bishops of our church, the great body of our ministry, the official organ of the church, and almost all the Conference organs, the heads of our schools, and the wealthy and influential lay people almost universally, are opposed to the doctrine of entire sanctification as taught by Mr. Wesley and the standards of the church. This statement covers a great deal of ground. It assumes more than is justified by the position which the brother holds. That the church at large does not agree with him in his interpretation of the doctrine is true. That much he had a right to say. More than that he had no right to say, for he has never, as far as we know, been authorized to sit in judgment. He has no right to declare his interpretation of Mr. Wesley's teachings infallibly correct. In doing so he places himself on a par with a large class of ignorant and bigoted men claiming to have the true religion, and go about denouncing all who are not of the "same faith and ardor."

We dare say this man has never made a study of Mr. Wesley's views of sanctification, except in a partial and one-sided way. His judgment has been warped, and, so far from being infallible, he is not a safe counsellor in matters that have to do with theology and the status of Christians. There are other men, more intelligent and more learned, who manifest more of the spirit of Christ than this man, who do not agree with him. We prefer their interpretation, and to follow their counsel. Besides, we have made the subject a matter of study: have looked into Mr. Wesley's "Plain Account of Christian Perfection" as fully as we are able, and do not find that he teaches sanctification after the manner of this brother, who has passed sentence of condemnation on the whole church.

We are perfectly willing for a man to entertain and preach sanctification as he sees it set forth in the Bible and Mr. Wesley's works, but we are not willing for him to put his own interpretation on the one or the other, and require all to accept it, or be read ont of the Wesleyan ranks. Maxfield and Bell, two of Mr. Wesley's own sons in the gospel, got far beyond their teacher and father, and denounced him as wholly unfit to teach and to lead them. They wrought havoc in the Society. We need no duplicates of these men. We want no schism in the body snch as they effected. Let us agree to disagree and work in harmony.

The admirable essay of Rev. W. W. Drake, in our last issue, was delivered by him before the Alumni Association of Centenary College at the commencement in June last.

HAVE WE A SABBATH?

Without having in view the distinction between Sabbath and Sunday, and using the term to designate the "first day of the week" commonly set apart for rest and worship, and by the majority of Christians held as sacred, and protected by law as such, we inquire, Have we a Sabbath? If we look to our Bibles and catechisms, to our theology and our church deliverances, it is very clear that we have. The laws of the land and the decisions of courts take the same view. Biblically, legally, always and everywhere in word we are a Sabbath-observing people. Except in a few States of the Union, we have all the law that is necessary to protect us in our rights and privileges as believers in the holy day.

But how is it in practice? In many places, and by many people, even people professing godliness, we contradict our theory. We say by our actions that Sunday is no more than any other day. With many the day is wholly given over to secular business, and where business is suspended, pleasure takes its place. Within a short period of time the people seem to have undergone a complete revolution, and have given way to the "lewd fellows of the baser sort." In two States which have Sunday laws, Nebraska and Tennessee, on Sunday, July 20, officers undertook to arrest base-ball players, and in both instances the law was defied, and the officers resisted, the mob claiming that the people upheld the players. These are only two instances of many in which our Sunday is desecrated. How can it be otherwise when hundreds and thousands of Christians do just as bad, if not worse? They take long excursions on the railroad, buy and read the Sunday newspaper, entertain, and attend public amusements, and habitually absent themselves from public worship.

It has been held and preached all along that the observance of the holy Sabbath is the bulwark of our civilization. We have said that where Sunday is ignored our civilization will begin to decay. It is no trouble to see that we are not as near a fully civilized people as we were ten years ago. The neglect of our Sabbath is telling on us. It behooves Protestants to be on their guard. The leaven of continental Sabbath desecration is at work. Beer kegs, athletic parks, Sunday pienics, and Sunday theatres are getting in their work.

A PRAYER OF ST. PAUL.

One of the special and peculiar prayers of St. Paul was to be "delivered from unreasonable and wicked men." He insisted that the Thessalonians intercede for him to this end. He was greatly troubled. These "absurd and evil men" (Revised Version) were in his way—blocked the progress of the gospel. Some of these hinderers were professed Christians, and perhaps on that account to be the more dreaded. None of troublesome classes are named in connection with his prayer, unless those who "walked disorderly, and worked not at all, but were busy-bodies," are to be so classed. There were others: for example, those who declared that the resurrection was already passed, and overthrew the faith of some. To this class belonged Hymeneus and Philetus. It is probable also, that, like St. John, he encountered Diotrephes, who loved to have the pre-eminence in the church. And he declared positively that Alexander the coppersmith did him much harm. Then he met Judaizing teachers who preached that men must keep the law of Moses in order to be justified. Aside from those who were in the church, he was troubled by disputers and persecutors, and so-called scientists who withstood the truth, and that large class of Jews who had a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge.

Human nature has not changed since the days of St. Paul. The phases of opposition encountered by the modern pastor have multiplied, and in some respects increased in intensity. They proceed from the same source, and give the church as much trouble as did the unreasonable and wicked men who withstood and troubled the apostle. Every preacher to-day who loves the church, and is jealous of its integrity, and desires its success, must be on the alert—as wise as serpents and as harmless as doves. Fortunate is the pastor who does not have to contend against opposition or prejudice, who does not have to face criticism or walk in front of backbiters, who does not fall into the hands of false brethren, and whose ministry is not counteracted by the worldly-minded, or those whose zeal has run away with their judgment.

Some are unreasonable who are not wicked. They are absurd in their prejudices and exactions. They are to be pitied and petted. Like the poor, they will always be with us. We should make up our minds to bear with them, and, as far as possible, carry their burdens.

THE TRI-STATE CONFERENCE.

The Tri-State Epworth League Conference is now in session at Seashore Camp Ground. The meeting is well attended, fully twice as many being on hand as were present last year. The workers are much encouraged. We will expect a full report after the close of the Conference.

PERSONAL.

Prof. Thos. Carter, president of the Tri-State League Conference, was the first Leaguer to arrive, and has given the Conference undivided attention.

Rev. T. C. Wier, of the North Mississippi Conference, is spending a few days at the camp ground, enjoying the breezes and the fishing, and the brethren are enjoying his company.

We had the pleasure, last week, of meeting Dr. J. W. Rush, of the Alabama Conference. He is spending a short vacation at the Seashore, and quietly taking in the services of the Tri-State Conference.

Rev. J. H. McCoy, pastor of First Church, Huntsville, has been elected editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate, to succeed Dr. H. Urquhart, deceased. Brother McCoy's father was once editor of the same paper. We welcome him to the fraternity.

Mr. Percy Bell, of Belle Prairie, Miss., has been in the city a week or more receiving treatment for deafness. He is a Methodist—a reader of the ADVOCATE from childhood, and interested in the welfare of the church. He honored us with a call, which we appreciated.

Drs. J. D. Hammond and H. M. DuBose are attending the Tri-State League Conference at Seashore Camp Ground, and are delighting and edifying the people with their preaching and lecturing. Both preached Sunday last, Dr. DuBose at 11 A. M., and Dr. Hammond in the evening.

Dr. John Mathews, of McKendree Church, Nashville, is quietly resting at some country place. He is taking this rest at the solicitation of his Official Board, the "first entire rest he has sought for fifty-seven years." We have not a harder or more constant worker in Southern Methodism than Dr. Mathews.

We deeply sympathize with our Brother A. W. Langley and wife in the death of their lovely daughter, Elizabeth Belle, who passed away at Olive Branch, Miss., on the twenty-second day of July. She had just come to womanhood, and was an earnest and faithful Christian, with promise of great usefulness. May the Lord comfort the hearts of the bereaved father and mother. Rev. N. G. Augustus has furnished us a memoir which will appear as soon as possible.

Sam Jones Camp Ground.

The notice of warning from Rev. T. W. Adams, P. E., and Rev. W. G. Forsythe, P. C., published in the ADVOCATE, of July 10, demands the publication of the following from Bishop H. C. Morrison.

In a letter to me, March 14, 1902, Bishop Morrison wrote, "Will the fact of the camp ground being attached to Gloster interfere with its use as a camp ground, or militate against its success in this respect?"

. . . Should any attempt be made to interfere with the design of the camp ground in any way, let me know it, and I will disconnect it, and place it as it was last year. I do not think that will be necessary, however; yet, should it be, I will relieve the case at once in that way.

April 15, 1902, I received the following telegram from Bishop Morrison, which he authorized me to publish in the ADVOCATE:

Louisville, Ky., 9.35 A. M., April 15, 1902.

Have replaced the camp ground just as it was last year.

H. C. MORRISON.

The above will, no doubt, quiet the fears of the intimidated.

FROM THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

According to announcement by Rev. J. A. B Jones, president of the Sam Jones Camp Ground Association, made in the ADVOCATE, June 26, the camp meeting will begin Aug. 8 and continue ten days.

All traveling and local preachers, and all laymen, are invited to attend and participate in the services.

The usual courtesies by the Y. and M. V. R. R. have been accorded the association. One fare for round trip from Jackson, Natchez, Vicksburg, Baton Rouge, and all intermediate stations. Tickets on sale on and after Aug. 6; good for return to Aug. 20.

Camp Meeting.

The thirty-first annual camp meeting will begin Thursday, Aug 14, 1902, on the Herington Camp Ground, one mile from Crystal Springs, and continue eight days

The presiding elder of the Brookhaven district, assisted by the pastors of the Brookhaven district, and Rev. S. A. Steel, D D., of national fame as a preacher and lecturer will conduct the services. The recent improvements on the grounds and building, and the spacious hotel and restaurant, warrant the assurance that all who come will find ample accommodations at very moderate rates.

Ministers of the gospel are earnestly invited, and will be provided for free of expense.

The usual reduction of fare on the I. C. R. R. will be given during the meeting—one fare for the round trip between Canton and McComb and all intermediate stations.

The usual entrance fee of fifty cents will be required—tickets good during the meeting. Daily tickets, twenty-five cents.

A cordial welcome is extended to all to enjoy with us this annual "Feast of Tabernacles" at this delightful and famous camp ground. We most earnestly appeal to all Methodist families within reach to take part in the success of this camp meeting by attending thereon and showing an interest in the results to be accomplished.

Chair'n Ex. Committee.

REV. C. D. ATKINSON, EDITOR.

Epworth Leaguers—Notice.

The following pledges to the Centenary-Mansfield Fund have, up to this date, been paid to me, and have been forwarded to the State treasurer, Bro. C. B. Hicks, at Grand Cane, La.:

A Friend	$100
Felicity League	15
Rayne Memorial	15
First German	15
Lake Charles	10
Burgundy	5
Total	$160

Let all Leagues redeem their pledges at once, as the work at Centenary must be begun immediately, in order to be ready for the opening of the session. Bro. Carre is working hard to get everything in readiness, and will appreciate your earnest efforts to help him.

The vote on the Tri-State Memorial is as follows:

Yes: Carrollton, Jackson, Second Church, Baton Rouge; Burgundy, Dryades, Felicity, Homer, Lafayette, Rayne Memorial; total, 9.

The vote of the Benton League stands, X; a sign which I can not interpret.

It was not intended, I think, that Junior Leagues should vote. Only one has done so. Its vote is registered, however.

The vote thus stands 9 for and 8 against, with the Benton vote in doubt.

District Conference.

The date of the Meridian District Epworth League Conference, at Enterprise, Miss., is announced for Sept. 9–11. It is the purpose of the officers of the Conference to prepare an interesting and profitable programme, and they ask the hearty co-operation of every pastor in the district. If we can get this co operation—and it certainly is not an unreasonable request—we will have a profitable Conference indeed; one that will revive the dead chapters, and build up the work among the churches that have never felt the quickening influence of a live, wide-awake Epworth League.

Every pastor in the district, whether they have a League or not, is urged to send one or two delegates. A delegate from each church would not be objectionable. We believe this would be productive of good, and with a rosing, enthusiastic Conference in September, the pastors would roundup their year's work with an ease they have never before experienced. This may be too prophetical, but we believe the Lord will direct the results if the proper effort is put forth to accomplish this end.

Will the pastors kindly bear this in mind, and at the earliest possible date appoint or elect their delegates, and forward the names to the district secretary, Miss Ida Curtis, Meridian, Miss.?

Arrangements have been made to have Dr. F. M. DuBose and Rev. H. G. Hawkins present.

Two Black Marks.

Old Auntie Pettibone was sick. She sat at the front window of the little cottage where she lived alone, looking very woebegone indeed, with her shoulders wrapped tightly in a shabby plaid shawl, and her head bundled about with an old white stocking. The portion of her poor black face which was visible was drawn into lines of pain. She watched the passers by mournfully for a while, but though several cast quick glances at her, no one cared to stop and ask old auntie what her trouble was. But very soon Jerry Dare came spinning past on his bicycle on his way to school. Old auntie's face brightened up, losing its tense lines as she rapped loudly on the window-pane and frantically motioned him to stop. But Jerry, with a brief glance in her direction and a muttered exclamation about an "old bother," pursued his way faster than before.

His schoolmate, Clint Warren, who was walking briskly along on the opposite side of the street, also was attracted by old auntie's rapping. He glanced back at her disappointed face in the window, wondering what she had wanted with Jerry Dare.

"Maybe she's sick, with her head tied up so fnnny," he soliloqnized, as he slackened his pace a little. "Jerry might have stopped to see what she wanted when she motioned him to, I think. If she is black, she's got some feelings."

But he did not glance back again. He was obliged to hasten on, for he had no bicycle to wheel him rapidly to school, and he was in more of a hurry than usual this morning, making up the time he had spent before leaving home in pacifying baby Sue, who had fallen and hnrt her foot.

His bright face was somewhat clouded at Jerry's misconduct and the picture of old auntie's disappointment, and at the next corner, where he had to wait for the electric car to whiz past, he delayed longer than was necessary.

"Pshaw," he said inwardly, giving the strap holding his school books a tighter tug as he started across the street. "It's not my mix. If I had gone back to find out what's the matter, I'd be late, and I haven't had a black mark for tardiness this year. Neither has Jerry, and he'd come out ahead at the end of the year."

But old auntie's mournful face had influenced him deeply, and he couldn't shake off the feeling of pity which had taken possession of him.

"Maybe she is sick, and hasn't anybody with her. She looked awful lonesome," he found himself thinking as he sighted the schoolhouse. But as he reached the gate and was about to enter the schoolyard he surprised the boys congregated there by suddenly wheeling about and running back with rapid strides in the direction of home.

"Yon'll be late, and I'll beat you," he heard Jerry yell after him. Still he did not slacken his pace until he reached old auntie's door all ont of breath. She was sitting at the window, but was holding her head in her hands. She rose in answer to his knock, and as she opened the door her big black eyes expressed considerable amazement at sight of the little man standing there.

"I thought maybe you were sick," he stammered. "I saw you motion to Jerry. I felt sorry 'canse he didn't stop, and came back to see if you were sick, you know."

"Bress the chile!" ejaculated old auntie, her black eyes bright with tears, as she dropped into her seat again. "If you isn't a born gen'leman, then I knows nuthin' about 'em. Poor old auntie is sick, honey, clean done up with neuralgy, an' Jerry's ma's waitin' for me to do up all their fine linen. I washes fur 'em, you know. Oh! oh!" she broke in with a moan, "it kotches me straight in the eye sometimes," adding a moment after: "An' I wanted to ask Jerry to ride an' tell his ma I couldn't come; but he never pays no 'tention to pore old black auntie. It takes a born gen'leman to do that."

"I'll run back and tell her," put in Clint, eagerly.

"Bress you, honey," old auntie cried, gratefully, wiping her eyes on the fringe of her shawl, "I wonldn't let you take your time from school no more nor nuthin', only his ma'll think I'se foolin', and won't give me the wash no more. I isn't in no way to lose it, fur it's mos' all I has to liv' on, honey. There isn't enuff pervisions in the house this minute to coax a mouse or rat around."

"O, I'll go right away. And I'll stop and tell my mother you're sick and need things." And before old auntie had a chance to open her mouth again he was out of the house speeding away up the street.

He left his message at Jerry's home, and a few minutes later was breathlessly enlisting his startled mother's sympathy in old auntie's behalf.

"You'll go, won't you, mama? You always go to see sick folks, you know. And have John take her a great big basket of things. If there's not enough in the house," he added, as he hurried away, "you can take what I'd eat at my dinner—I can get along without it. I've got to rush now; I'm late, I guess."

But though he ran every step of the way to school, the last bell had rung before he reached there, and the black mark he disliked so much was placed against his name.

Mrs. Warren made her preparations for a visit to old auntie without delay. Her heart was very tender as the "big basket of things" was being packed.

"Old auntie shall be well supplied with the best the house affords," she murmured softly, "and the dear boy will not have to miss his dinner, either."

A short time after, when Aunt Pettibone had been refreshed with some warm tea and nice toast, and was resting her aching head on the bag of hops which Mrs. Warren had opportunely placed in the big basket, her gratitude found audible expression:

"That chile's a born gen'leman," she said repeatedly. And as Mrs. Warren was about to take her departure after administering some soothing-drops and making everything about her comfortable, she broke out, gratefully:

"Please tell him for me, Mis' Warren, he's hoisted me out o' dark waters. Ole auntie'd done gone lonesome an' hungry an' sick all day but fnr that bressed chile's white heart!"

When Mrs. Warren told Clint at noon about old auntie's gratefulness for her relief from pain and hnnger, he fonnd his last vestige of regret for the distasteful mark his manly act had bronght him vanishing.

"I'm prond of it!" asserted Mrs. Warren, earnestly. "I'd rather have that mark against your name to-day and feel your heart was clean than to have Jerry's unmarred record for prompt attendance and the black mark his heart is disfigured with because of his nnkind, discourteous act."

Be Tidy.

"Yes, it pays to be particular in little things," said Mrs. Jones to Elsie, who had just finished dusting the parlor. "See, dear, you forgot the piano entirely, and I do not think the music cabinet has been touched.

"You see, dear, I want you to grow to be a useful and tidy woman. To some it is a natnral habit, with others it is acquired, learned after years of perseverance."

Elsie laughed and replied: "I do not think you will have much trouble training our little Elizabeth. Everything must be in its proper place, and the child is really not happy until it is there. You remember when she was sick last Spring she had places for everything and would follow us with her eyes, protesting if we did not place them there. One day I placed her napkin ring on the bureau. 'Put it on the stand, Elsie; it belongs there,' she said."

"Do you know the chief charm about that yonng friend of yours, Anna Jarrett, who calls here so often? Even Tom has noticed it, and father speaks of her always as 'that nice little girl.'"

"Yon know Anna is very pretty," said Elsie.

"Yes, dear, I know, but that is not where her principal charm lies. The girl is always so fanltlessly neat that, meet her where you may, you are always sure to look after her again. Take that dress she had on to-day; it was of ordinary material, but it was neatly made and there was not a spot or speck of dust on it. Her hands were gloved, and when she uncovered them I noticed her nails were fanltlessly kept. The neat little tie about her neck did not wrinkle or slip from its proper place. There had been a high wind, but her soft brown hair was in perfect keeping with her attire. My eyes fell upon her shoes; they were like the rest of her attire."

"I wonder what there is about Anna Jarrett," said Tom, "there are never any rough or loose ends about her."

"That is just it," I said, "and is the secret reason of her looks. One button off, one untidy glove, one spot on the dress, and the pleasing effect would be lost.

"It is easy enough to cultivate the habit now, dear, but by and by, if you neglect it, it may become one of the lost arts. You must not begin by wearing your hair in a loose and tumble down fashion, your gloves out at the fingers, your shoes with buttons lacking or improperly laced, your collar fastened with ordinary pins, visible to every eye, and your veil with a hole over the nose and chin.

"You see, dear, I want to teach my daughter the good old-fashioned rules of tidiness, so that she may never blush or be ashamed to meet the most critical observer."—Sara V. DuBois, in Christian Intelligencer.

The Little Kitten's Rescuer.

Not long ago an Englishman went to a neighboring stream to drown a kitten. His dog followed him, and when the kitten was thrown into the water the dog rushed in to rescue it. He carried it up onto the bank and wagged his tail proudly, as much as to say: "Wasn't that brave of me?"

The man hadn't the heart to scold the dog, and he did not want to drown the kitten, but he had so many cats at home he did not know what to do with them, and he felt that he could not keep another. So he threw the kitten into the water again—and again the dog swam in after it.

When the man threw the kitten in the third time, the dog, as resolute to save the little helpless life as the man was to destroy it, swam with it to the other side of the pool, ran all the way home with it and deposited it before the kitchen fire. From that time the dog kept constant watch over the kitten. The two were inseparable, even sharing the same bed.—Selected.

What's In a Name.

Bobbie was wearing his first trousers and was as proud as a boy has the right to be under such circumstances. He felt himself a man indeed and was very anxious to be acknowledged as such. But his elders were unappreciative. Uncle Harry had poked fun at him in a quiet way, even going so far as to inquire what "those things" were. So Bobbie went to Aunt Helen for consolation.

"Why, Bobbie," she exclaimed when she caught sight of him. "how grand you look! I never saw you dressed like that before."

A HELPING FUR.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them find the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special rates of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

Very many of our subscribers are behind in payment, and the time of many more is just expiring. Please send what is due. If you can not send the whole, send part. We need the money. Please do not wait another week!

EMMA ELIZA, daughter of R. W. and Susanna M. Burton, was born Jan. 31, 1876, near Newton, Newton county, Miss. On Dec. 31, 1901, she was married to John E. Taylor, then of Hattiesburg, and passed to her reward April 28, 1902. She was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1890, at Lake Camp Ground. In 1894-5 she was a student at Whitworth College. The writer came to know her intimately during her father's illness and death in 1899. As the acquaintance grew, the more was she esteemed for real worth. In August, 1900, she accepted a position in the faculty of Whitworth College, and most faithfully did she perform her duties. Hers was a life of self-denial. Since my first acquaintance till the time of her death she was constantly working for the welfare and comfort of others. Her convictions were deep, and what she thought to be right or wrong was to her a matter of conscience. To her friends she was faithful and true. When, on the evening of Dec. 31, she was married, her friends rejoiced with her in the hope of a long and happy life. Everything seemed to prophesy happiness for the future. All were thinking of the bright morning; nothing to mar the voyage of life. Two splendid Christian lives united, possessing health and strength, and, from a human view point, everything necessary for a splendidly happy and useful life. This was a case, however, where it is literally true that "in the midst of life we are in death." About the middle of April they moved to Jackson, Miss. She was taken suddenly ill, and all that the most skillful physicians could do was done to restore her to health. The last hours of her stay on earth were devoted to the interests of her friends and loved ones. She was not afraid to go, expressing herself as willing. Her only desire to live was that she might contribute to the happiness of those she loved, showing in death the sweet spirit of self-denial that characterized her life. The soul of a faithful, good woman left its earthly tabernacle on the early morning of April 28, 1902. A bright, joyous life has passed from this world. By her request her body was taken to Lawrence, and placed by the side of her father and mother to await the morning of the resurrection. God's ways are past finding out, yet we know "he doeth all things well." Those "whom he loves he rebukes and chastens." It is hard for the husband, the sisters and brother to give up one so kind and faithful; yet God knows best. May he bless and comfort the bereaved husband and loved ones! M. L. BURTON.

Died at his residence at Plain Dealing, Bossier parish, La., June 8, 1902, after a lingering illness, Hon. L. L. SANDERS, aged fifty-nine years. Bro. Sanders was reared in the State of North Carolina by Baptist parents, but, on coming to Louisiana a young man, he became seriously concerned about religion, and, after a careful investigation of the distinctive doctrines of the different churches, he became a member of the M. E. Church, South, and ever afterward was one of her most reliable and faithful official members, joining heart and hand into every responsible and important work, which was so faithfully and worthily discharged. Bro. Sanders was happily married to Miss F. A. Walker, unto whom were born only two children—a son and daughter—both of whom survive him, and both of age. One (the daughter) followe in the footsteps of her affectionate father, while we sincerely hope that the mantle of the sainted father may fall upon the son. Bro. Sanders was for a number of years, and up to the time of his death, an honored member of the State Legislature, unto whose memory, by that honorable body, the very highest tribute of respect was paid. He was also an honored member of the Masonic order, by whose impressive and ancient rites his remains were laid to rest. A devoted wife and children, and a sorrowful preacher, and numerous relatives and friends, shall miss him. May God grant such another for Plain Dealing!

M. G. JENKINS.

H. H. WYNN, son of Green and Elizabeth Wynn, was born in Kemper county, Miss., Jan. 27, 1843, and died near Acona, Miss., May 1, 1902. His parents moved to Holmes county, Miss., and settled near Durant when he was one year old. He was left an orphan at thirteen, after which time his home was with his brother, W. C. Wynn. At the beginning of the late Civil War he enlisted with the Fifteenth Mississippi Regiment, and made a good soldier. For fidelity and conrage he was made captain of his company. He was twice wonnded, once severely, at the battle of Shiloh, from which he never fully recovered. He was captured at Fishing Creek, and carried to Camp Chase, Ohio, and was there until May, 1865. In 1867 he was married to Miss Lizzie Purdom, of Durant, Miss., who died in 1876. Feb. 14, 1884, he was married to Mrs. Mattie Cowsert Bean, who lives to monrn his death. Early in life he professed religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, and remained a faithful member thereof to the end. He was a member of the Board of Supervisors of his county at the time of his death. His last illness was short, only a few days, and he fell "asleep in Jesus." A good man and true has gone from us. In the death of Bro. Wynn, Holmes county has lost one of her best citizens, and the church one of her most loyal sons. He was a good neighbor, a faithful friend, and a devoted husband. Those who knew him best loved him most. May God bless his weeping wife, sorrowing step-son, and lonely brother!

His pastor,

W. D. MCCULLOUGH.

Mrs. ELIZABETH CARNES (nee McDonald) was born May 22, 1834, and died Jan. 1, 1902. Sister Carnes professed religion in early life, and united with the Methodist Church at Nebo, in Jefferson county, Miss., at the time of her conversion and lived a consecrated Christian life till she left us for her home above. She suffered much, being afflicted with cancer on the face, which caused her death. It was my privilege to visit her a short time before her death. She was cheerful and happy, calmly awaiting her release. Her faith was unwavering. She knew Him to whom she had committed her trust, and His grace had never failed. Her last days on earth were perfect peace. It can be truly said of Sister Carnes that she was true and faithful in every relation and station in life to which she was called. As a child, she was obedient; as wife, she was loving and true; as mother, she was loving and watchful for the higher and best interests of her children; as a church member, she was zealous and true to her vows. "She hath done what she could."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

Patent Thumb Index, 35 cents extra.

Whitworth Female College,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

Next session opens Sept. 17, 1902. Unusual advantages offered by this historic institution. Buildings commodious and in good repair. Hot and cold water in dormitories. Electric lights in every room. Twenty teachers and officers. Course of study comprehensive and thorough. Our facilities in the Departments of Music, Painting, Elocution, Bookkeeping, Typewriting and Stenography are fine. Charges moderate. For catalogue address L. W. COOPER, President, or H. G. HAWKINS, Vice-President.

BELMONT COLLEGE For Young Women, Nashville, Tenn.

"Location and Environment Unrivalled in the South."

Suburban and city life combined. Electric cars to north entrance. Attractions of park persuade to outdoor exercise. Ten schools in the hands of skilled specialists. Schools of music, art and elocution employ methods of best conservatories in this country and abroad. Diplomas conferred by schools. Lecture courses studiously selected. Best lectures, concerts, recitals, etc., in city, liberally patronized. Christian influences. Students from forty-two States and Territories. Send for handsomely illustrated blue and brown catalogue, and other college literature. Early registration necessary to secure room.

Principals: Miss Hood, Miss Hagon.

Blackstone Female Institute.

Owned and Controlled by the M. E. Church, South. Faculty of 25; 274 Students last session: number of Boarders year by year since establishment—59, 58, 88, 136, 147, 153, 176, 212—A Continuous and Extraordinary Growth. Modern brick building 260 feet long; water on every floor; electric lights. Campus of 25 acres. Value of plant, $70,000.

THREE COURSES. {For Diploma of Graduation. For Randolph-Macon Woman's College. For Teaching.

EXPERT TESTIMONY.—I most heartily endorse the BLACKSTONE INSTITUTE as giving most excellent instruction under most helpful Christian influences. Its Certificates are accepted at our College in lieu of entrance examinations. Too much can scarcely be said for the wise and energetic management of the Principal. The School is worthy of all confidence.

SPECIAL NOTICE FOR COMING SESSION.

The Institute has been filled from its establishment. Increased patronage has followed every enlargement, and applications have to be refused for lack of room. The Principal does not desire to take as many boarders as were in attendance the past session. In order that proper advice may be given to parents, and proper care be exercised in the selection of pupils, all persons desiring to engage rooms should send at once for a Catalogue and for an Application Blank, to be filled in by the pupil, showing age and preparation, and to be returned to the Principal. Rooms should be definitely engaged by AUGUST 28TH at the latest. Rooms are assigned in the order in which applications are received.

For Catalogue and Application Blank, address

Rev. JAMES CANNON, Jr., Principal,
BLACKSTONE, VA.

SESSION OPENS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1902.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia and sick headaches. I was many times compelled to leave work and go home. Our druggist told me to try Ripans. I am now in much better health. I can eat most anything, have no headache and work steady. I also was greatly affected with constipation, and Ripans gave me relief from that.

At druggists.

General News.

Confederate veterans decided to entrust to an executive committee of twenty-one all plans and matters appertaining to the entertainment of the reunion visitors next Summer.

There was rioting at the polls in a primary election in the first congressional district of New Jersey. One man was killed and several wounded.

Ten thousand dollars has been donated for a mission home in Washington, to train Catholic priests as missionaries to non-Catholic sections.

PLEASE, MR. DRUGGIST, give me what I ask for—the one Painkiller, Perry Davis', I know it is the best thing on earth for Summer complaints. So do you. Thank you: There is your money.

A Sure and Perfect Cure.

Does this strike you? "My wife and child were afflicted with chills and fever from August to December. Nothing did them any good until I obtained a bottle of Hughes' Tonic. They used three bottles, and have not had a chill since. Am convinced of its value, and consider it a sure cure for chills and fever." Sold by Druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

A Free Test

Of a Newly Discovered Remedy that Destroys the Germs of Disease and Is Destined to Revolutionize the Treatment of Diseases of the Lungs and Passages.

Dr. M. Beaty, the eminent Throat and Lung Specialist of Cincinnati, for the past 25 years, has discovered a new and powerful Antiseptic Medicated Air treatment, which when inhaled, or breathed into the Nose, Throat and Lungs will positively and thoroughly destroy every Catarrhal germ, all Tubercular bacilli and every Consumption microbe in the lungs, or in the blood. The last free test included 100 patients, in different stages of disease, all of whom are now well or nearly so.

Dr. Beaty has decided to try a larger number of cases in August and has made this offer free to all who make application at once. The doctor will send free medicine to any one suffering with Nose or Throat Catarrh, Chronic Cough, Asthma, Weak Lungs, Chronic Bronchitis, or Consumption. This is intended to prove the genuine merits of the treatment and costs nothing.

The question of child labor is receiving attention in the South. Political parties are looking into it, adopting "planks," and will, no doubt, create such a sentiment as in due time will put an end to it. The Democratic Convention of South Carolina recently pronounced against it, and Texas has followed, demanding "the enactment of a law prohibiting the employment of children under twelve years of age in factories using machinery." It seems strange that the law has to be called to the aid of public sentiment to put a stop to a thing so evidently injurious to the health and general welfare of small children as confining them at constant labor for ten and twelve hours a day in cotton mills, for it is here they are mostly employed. The newspapers of the North are quite as much (if not more) interested in the matter as the papers of the South. They should be, for Northern capitalists, who largely control the cotton mills of the South, are as much to blame for the employment of little children as Southern capitalists are. The New York Post says: "At bottom the real reason for the continuance of this iniquity lies in the sordid selfishness of the mill owners, and the fear of each State that it will lose its Northern mills and Northern capital if it enacts remedial legislation." This matter is worthy of the most serious consideration of our statesmen and students of social questions.

There have been two disturbances of late in the athletic world. Base-ballists have been much agitated over the disobedience of one or two members of the Southern League in playing a man contrary to orders. The offense was so serious as to be carried to the courts for settlement. The aggrieved parties applied for an injunction restraining the League teams from playing in any game with a team employing the offenders. The matter has not yet been settled. This is something new, and we allude to it only to show how strennous men are in maintaining their rights when money is involved. It must be understood that professional base-ball playing is a business—a big paying business—and, as demoralizing as it is, as a business it must be protected by the courts. Of course, there is nothing narrow-minded in the institution of the law suit, although it is intended to restrain the liberty of a base-ball magnate. The other disturbance grew out of a prize-fight in San Francisco on July 25. The fight was a hard and bloody one, both brutes being severely "punished"—that is, both were bruised and mangled, one having the small bones of one hand broken, and the other suffered a broken nose. Both came out as bloody as two fighting dogs. No sooner had the fight ended than it was characterized as a "fake," and excitement ran high. The most excited man of all was the mayor of the city, who was present and witnessed the bout from start to finish. As mayor, he proposes an investigation. And for what? Not for the punishment of the two fighters, should they be proven guilty. No, no; not that. The loser has been punished enough already. He had bones broken, and received only a little more than $9,000 for his part in the fight. The victor was also punished enough. He received $16,000, or more, but he got a broken nose. What, then, is proposed as a punishment if the fight is shown to be a fake? Why, his honor, the mayor of San Francisco, says he will issue no more permits for prize-fights. He will punish the citizens of San Francisco, and the whole sporting fraternity of the United States, for the sin of two men who, in morals, do not know their right hands from their left. Great is the mayor of San Francisco!

There has been excitement and rioting in France over the closing of sectarian schools in obedience to a law recently passed requiring such schools to take out a license, or disband. Some schools promptly obeyed the law. Others declined, and many of them will be compelled to close. The fight is between the clerical and the anti-clerical party. The reason, if we understand the situation, is because of the undue influence of the Roman Catholic clergy in political matters. The same spirit was manifested last year in China, and gave rise largely to the Boxer movement. It was the same in Manila. It was the same in Italy, and resulted in the overthrow of the temporal power of the Pope in that land. It has been that way for ages, and will always be that way as long as the Church of Rome entertains the idea that she possesses temporal as well as spiritual authority. The great excitement at last accounts had subsided, because it was understood that the schools would not be forcibly closed at present. The anti-clerical element is strong, and will stand by the government in enforcing its demands.

As in France, so in England just now is excitement on an education bill just passed by Parliament. Only in this case it is the Evangelical Protestants that are disturbed. The bill proposes religious instruction in the schools, and that the citizens be taxed to sustain the schools of the churches; all denominations to have a share of the funds. This is decidedly a backward step, and does not meet with the approval of the Nonconformist Churches. It pleases immensely the Roman Catholics. The vote for the bill stood 230 votes for and 189 against. The bill met with strong opposition in the Commons, and will be much more strongly opposed by the people. We gather an idea of the strength and intensity of the opposition from the words of one of the leaders, who declared that the majority in the House "did not reflect the opinion of the country, and that if the government did not know this, it would soon learn it. The speaker said Mr. Balfour, the Premier, demanded unconditional surrender, but that he would never get it; that the education bill was the negation of popular control, and a violation of every prineiple of sound finance, whether imperial or loyal. He also declared the country did not love clericalism, and that the new clericalism imposed by the education bill was loved by the country least of all. He said that the Liberals would fight the issue to the bitter end."

THINGS NEW AND OLD.

BY DR. T. B. HOLLOMAN.

To the egotistical boaster Sam Jones facetiously says, "You ought to travel." Nothing so broadens our ideas and conception of things and men as mingling with new scenes and new faces, and to the close observer there is a positive education. One not only becomes more interested in the history and geography of places, but feels that with a little effort he could rival the masters in the story of travels.

Leaving our home in the early morning of July 16 for Sour Lake, Texas, we were destined to pass over not only new fields, but those which are now attracting the eyes of our entire nation and the world. Though suffering bodily pain, we were in frame to enjoy the trip, because of the great victory won by the Prohibitionists just the day before in the city of Jackson.

With the exception of now and then a familiar face at some depot, the run to New Orleans was without incident. We were impressed with the great injury to the corn crop because of the long-continued drouth. One hour in New Orleans gave plenty of time for transfer to the Southern Pacific depot. At eleven o'clock we pulled out of the depot at Algiers, bound for a trip of three hundred miles over a country of which we had heard from our boyhood, but had never seen—the Attakapas region, the land of the Cajan. Cotton holds but a small place along this entire route. For miles upon miles nothing to be seen but rice and sugar cane. The former has received a great impetus in the last few years. The system of irrigation was a very interesting sight to me. Those with whom I talked were all enthusiastic in their expressions of a great future. The question of water having been solved, and the systems being now perfected, the future is truly bright. Immigration is rapidly coming in, and much hitherto valueless land is being redeemed. The principle of water supply for irrigating is either a direct charge in money, or a toll of two sacks of rice per acre, thus putting it in the power of the poorest to secure the benefits. Recent rains had greatly revived the hopes of the growers.

All along we were on the lookout, that we might, if possible, get a glimpse of some of the brethren, but all in vain, until the day had nearly ended, when the genial R. P. Howell, with family, came aboard. His run, however, was all too short for a fellow who had not met a congenial spirit for a whole day.

We heard well of our former neighbor, W. R. Tucker, and were glad to know of his success.

At Jennings our attention was called to a tremendous cloud of smoke, which we were informed was an oil well which was burning, and which continued to baffle all efforts to extinguish.

The very announcement of Beaumont reminded us that we were in the oil regions; for who that reads has not heard of Beaumont? Gushers, oil wells, derricks, drills, and price of oil lands is all one hears. The conviction seems to be that oil underlies all this region, and tens of thousands of dollars are being invested. I heard two gentlemen discussing the price of lands, and you can imagine my surprise when for land in the woods five thousand dollars an acre was named. Within a quarter of a mile of the hotel where we are domiciled there are five flowing wells and three more being bored. The excitement is contagious. Everybody is interested to know when the next well will be "brought in," and when it is announced, "A gusher! a gusher!" none are too sick to go.

Sour Lake, like other sanitariums, has a wonderfully sympathetic population. Eight miles from the railroad, there is nothing here but the hotel and wells. Dr. Mud and Mr. Johnson run the sanitarium.

At the Camp Ground.

No cards, no profanity, no dancing, no saloons, the Seashore Camp Ground is God's acreage. The cottages are cozy, home-like, and pretty. The moral average is extraordinary; given to hospitality; skillful conversationalists abound. Coquettish in Summer raiment are the young maidens. A variety of harmless amusements are in easy access of the genial-souled. With two great cities flanking the lake-shore, the Seashore Camp Ground should be the Chautauqua of the South. Nature has dealt so generously with this section of country that the lamented Maurice Thompson loved to call it the "Land of the Mid-Winter Garden." In a quick drive is Back Bay, into which pour the Biloxi River, Fort Bayon, Davis Bayou, and the lovely waters of a river with an unspellable Indian name. Jefferson Davis' "Beauvoir" is in a few minutes' ride. Deer Island, Horn Island, Cat Island, Ship Island, Ocean Springs, Biloxi, are within easy reach of the sight-seer. Above all:

"The seal the seal the open sea!
The blue the fresh, the ever free!
It plays with the clouds, It mocks the skies,
Or like a cradled creature lies."

The environs are peculiarly rich in a profusion of wild flowers, mosses, ferns, palmettos, and ornamental trees and shrubs. The biologist who will properly work up the life-forms on the borders of the Gulf has a field of marvelous possibilities, and a well-written book, giving popular information as to the curiosities of the sea and the woods, would have an immense sale among the tourists who would like to know the life-habits of the things he never saw before.

The greatest defect of the camp ground is its largeness of opportunity and shortness of funds. It ought to be a stock company, run on purely business principles for Christ's sake. The trustees ought to make money out of it; nothing they need so much as money. A hotel with 300 feet frontage, three-story, with a high-grade restaurant, is an imperative need. The thing is too big for primitive methods. It has become a Summer home. The camp meeting is only a calendar-parenthesis. At the camp meeting seventy-seven preachers were present; many of them seeking rest and finding none. Each month, with appropriate intervals for rest or recreation, should have something like a Sunday-school of Methods, a Tri-State League, a Camp Meeting, a Preachers' Institute on "How to Do Things, by Men Who Have Done Them;" so that, instead of resting and rusting, it would be recreating and refreshing oneself for more arduous labor. There is no spot where an itinerant is shown as much of genuine kindness than here. "Here a preacher is somebody."

For gracious and graceful entertainment we are under personal debt to Mesdames Hale, Clark, Ronaldson, Perrin, Tauner, Van Hook, Stewart, Galloway, McClure, and Miss Wilkinson. The memories of their pleasant and profitable hospitality arise like incense from some fair neighbor's garden.

The spiritual uplift by hearing and communing with so many godly people—noble laymen and itinerants not a few—can not be expressed in type or reduced to manuscript.

H. W. RICKEY.

Letter from Birmingham, Ala.

BY REV. M. H. WELLS.

The death of Dr. Urquhart, editor of our Alabama Christian Advocate, is mourned by thousands of attached friends. His life was irreproachable, and hence he was an influential citizen. So far as I have been able to gather the facts of his life, he made a record any man might boast of, and such as gave him "an abundant entrance" into the company who have "washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." In his children he is well represented and honored. They have a generous share of sincere sympathy. The Publishing Committee has named Rev. J. H. McCoy as his successor, and he has accepted the position. He is now serving our First Church at Huntsville for the fourth year. He is easily the foremost preacher of the younger set in our Conference. In certain lines he is not excelled in the Connection. In the opinion of this writer the pulpit is his throne, and hence he will make a mistake in accepting the offer. This is written with all due respect for the tripod. No doubt but that the committee did the best thing for the friends of the Advocate. If he shall show the genius of his lamented father as an editor, the future has in store for him great honor and praise.

Our city and surrounding country is enjoying great material prosperity. Never in its history has it attracted so many good people and so much capital. The real estate transfers reach millions every month. Dealers in building material say the demand is large and for the best. We are certain to be a "future great."

All the denominations are active and aggressive. Our preachers and people are at the head of the procession, and keep on the firing-line. One of the most successful meetings held here during the year was at St. Paul. Rev. Theo. Copeland is the useful and popular pastor. His people were ready for the good message of Rev. J. A. Bowen, who assisted him. It is known all over the country that Bro. Bowen has a full message for saint and sinner. He is a pronounced success as pastor, preacher, and revivalist. Through him the people are served and saved and God honored. Under the live ministry of Bro. Copeland, St. Paul is fast forging to the front rank among charges.

Our farmers complain of the long drouth. As a class, they are rather hard to please, but this time have good cause for being despondent. Crops are hardly up to the average; health good. Success to all who work for our Lord and the salvation of the people.

Millsaps College.

I have recently had the opportunity to attend several District Conferences in different sections of our State. To say I enjoyed the privilege is to express it very mildly. For genuine good fellowship commend me always to Methodist preachers. I do not believe a nobler class of men can be found on this earth.

My observations at the Conferences impressed me specially with two things: There was greater prominence given to the benevolent enterprises of the church than I have seen before, and a greater manifestation of spiritual life in the congregations attending public worship. Was there a necessary connection between the two? I think so.

Our friends will be interested to know that the prospects for our next college session are very encouraging. We are prepared to offer greater advantages than ever before, and it ought to be the best year in our history up to this time. We are sending out a great many catalogues and circulars of information. In this matter our preachers can aid us greatly by sending names of persons who ought to be interested and informed.

Dr. Muckenfuss, who has filled the Chair of Chemistry and Physics for the past eight years, has accepted a position in the University of Arkansas. He will carry with him to his new home the best wishes of a wide circle of friends. The work he has done at our college during these early years of its history will always be remembered to his great credit. No man ever served an institution more faithfully. We shall soon be able to announce his successor. We already have assurances that we can command a chemist of eminent ability and remarkable success as a teacher.

Jackson is now in the throes of a municipal campaign. Those of us who are out of town and can't vote are not less interested on that account. With two Methodist stewards as candidates, we ought to get a good mayor. The character of our city government means a great deal to us now. The spirit of improvement is everywhere. It is inspiring to see the house-building going on in every section of the town. The paving of the streets, now in progress, presents a busy scene. And then our magnificent new Capitol stirs the pride of every Mississippian. The architecture is just about perfect.

That our Epworth League Secretary should have criticised adversely the bird on the dome, subjects him to criticism. To mistake an eagle for a vulture indicates that he "can not see afar off." What more appropriate than that the national emblem should crown the great structure! Before a great while the corner-stone will be put in place, and we want a great crowd of patriotic Mississippi boys here to witness the ceremonies.

Fund for Superannuated Preachers.

A measure which had been formulated by Mr. W. F. Vandiver, a lay delegate of the Alabama Conference, and which had the purpose of creating an endowment fund to be used in support of superannuated preachers, their wives, widows, and children, was introduced at the recent session of the General Conference of the M. E. Church, South. After thorough and favorable consideration of the matter by the Finance Committee, a paper was presented to and adopted by the General Conference, which provides in detail for the establishment of a permanent endowment fund for the benefit of said superannuated preachers, their wives, widows, and children.

The trustees of the M. E. Church, South, to whose custody the fund is committed, at a recent meeting instructed the president of the Board of Trustees to prepare a paper for publication in the Christian Advocates and for presentation to the Bishops, setting forth the importance of this cause, and urging Bishops and Annual Conferences to stress this claim at the forthcoming sessions of said Conferences. The Board of Trustees also requested Dr. Tigert, the Book Editor, to represent this cause, as he might have opportunity, at the sessions of the Annual Conferences which he attends this year. The preachers on stations, circuits and missions are enjoined to take collections for this cause in every congregation.

This cause appeals to the sympathy and the benevolence of the church. It is proposed to raise at once, as the minimum, one hundred thousand dollars for this sacred purpose. This business requires haste. The friends of the measure should devote themselves to the cause without reservation, and should apply themselves to the work with energy and zeal. The cause should not die of inanity. The purpose of the church should be realized in this behalf. Let all concerned work and pray.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION VII.

That the commission was so understood by the apostles as embracing infants, is clearly enough seen in the reply that Peter made to them, who were "pricked in their hearts," after hearing his sermon on the Day of Pentecost, when they asked, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" Peter replied: "Repent, and be baptized, every one of you. . . . For the promise is unto you, and to yonr children." (Acts. ii, 38, 39.)

In this passage there are only two questions to be settled: First, To what "promise" does the apostle refer? Secondly, What is the meaning of the term "children"?

The Baptists contend that "the promise" in the text is that referred to by Joel (ii, 28, 29), and not to the Abrahamic covenant. Of course, they mnst avoid all reference to this covenant, as it admits children, and entitles them to baptism and church membership.

We shall prove, however, that the text does not refer to Joel, but to the Abrahamic covenant. Peter's sermon in the second chapter of Acts, from the seventeenth to the twenty-first verses, does refer to Joel, as stated; but the text, which is contained in the thirty-eighth and thirty-ninth verses, is no part of the sermon, but merely an answer to the qnestion, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" (Verse 37.) By reference to Joel, nowhere do we find a satisfactory answer to this question. The answer given by Peter contains stipulations Joel never nttered. We will compare the prophecy of Joel with this answer of Peter. In the prophecy of Joel there are two promises; one, that the Holy Ghost should be ponred out npon them, and the other, that a miraculous effect should be produced thereby. When this was done, they asked, "How hear we every man in our own tongue, wherein we were born?" (Verse 8.) Peter replies, "This is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel." (Verse 16.) Now, this is all that Joel prophesied, whereas "the promise" alluded to by Peter in the thirty-ninth verse embraces "repentance," "baptism," "remission of sins," and the "gift of the Holy Ghost." It, therefore, can not be the one referred to by Joel.

1. From the address of Peter to the Jews, upon the great subject-matter of the promise made to Abraham, namely: Christ Jesus. Thus, "Ye men of Israel, hear these words: Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles" (verse 22), "whom God hath raised up" from the dead, and who ascended into heaven, according to the prophecies. "Therefore, let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." (Verse 36.) "Now, when they heard this, they were pricked in their hearts, and said, . . . Men and brethren, what shall we do?" (Verse 37.) Peter answers in the language of the text, "Repent, and be baptized," etc., and assigns as reason for doing these things, "The promise is unto you, and to your children." It is well understood that "the only promise of salvation ever made to man was secured in the covenant with Abraham and his descendants, the Jews. Jesus Christ, then, of this covenant, he here preaches to them as having fulfilled the promise, and that promise he assigns as reason of duty." He emphasizes this in chapter iii, 25, 26, where he says: "Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying unto Abraham, And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed. Unto you first God, having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you, in turning away every one of you from his iniquities."

2. The resemblance between this promise and that in Gen. xvii, 7, "To be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee." The resemblance lies in two things: 1. Each stands connected with an ordinance, by which persons were to be admitted into church fellowship—the one by circumcision, the other by baptism. 2. Both agree in phraseology: the one is, "nnto thee and thy seed;" the other is, "unto you, and your children." Everyone knows that the word "seed" means children, and that children means seed, and that they are precisely the same. From these two strongly resembling features it can not be donbted that the snbjects expressed in each are the very same. Only to serve a purpose conld it be doubted.

3. From the fact that it is the only promise characterized by way of distinction as "the promise." Notice some examples: "Of this man's 'seed' hath God, according to his promise, raised nnto Israel a Savior, Jesus." (Acts xiii, 23.) "And we declare unto you glad tidings, how that the promise which was made nnto the fathers, God hath fulfilled the same nnto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again." (Acts xiii, 32.) "And now I stand and am judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers." (Acts xxvi, 6.) "For the promise, that he should be the heir of the world, was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the law, but through the righteousness of faith." (Rom. iv, 13.) "And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." (Gal. iii, 29.) "And this I say, that the covenant, that was confirmed before of God in Christ, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, can not disannul, that it should make the promise of none effect." (Gal. iii, 17.) Other passages conld be cited to the same effect, bnt it is unnecessary to do so. These qnotations show "the promise" referred to by the apostle, viz.: the "promise" made to Abraham, which "promise," Paul tells ns, "the law, which was four hnndred and thirty years after, can not disannul."

The Pastor vs. The Preacher.

BY REV. J. M. WEEMS.

In a most impressive talk in the Preachers' Meeting in Meridian, and only a few months before his death, Dr. C. G. Andrews spoke these words: "In the retrospect I sometimes think I have magnified the work of the pastor at the expense of that of the preacher; or that, if I had given more time to a preparation for the pulpit, and less to my people in their homes, I might have been a better preacher. But whether or not this reversal of the order of my life would have resulted in more good to the cause of the Master, is not sufficiently clear to become a conviction."

One had to know the man to appreciate these words as they fell in clear and measured emphasis from his lips. Of all the men whom I have known, none ever appeared to me more fully imbued with the spirit of the words, "He must increase, but I must decrease." That he possessed the ability and the training to make of himself a master of assemblies, no one who knew him will question; and that he sacrificed personal ambition for usefulness in the cause of Christ, is equally well known. It is not the purpose of this statement to convey the idea that Dr. Andrews was not a strong man in the pulpit; only that he could easily have been much stronger than he was had his ministry been one of self-seeking.

But as I saw and understood his life, the question that seemed only half answered by his words was a closed one. For four years we had worked together alternately as pastor and as presiding elder, and I knew his work. It had been my good fortune to labor in one or the other of these relations with the leading men of the Conference, and not one of them ever drew greater numbers to his ministry, nor made better reports of his labors.

The answer to the question that naturally arises at this point is found in the fact that Dr. Andrews was a pastor, and that his visits among his people were for the purpose of doing his work faithfully. No man enjoyed the social side of life more than he, and few were so well and roundedly equipped for it. But these two duties were ever held by him to be distinct. Not that he forgot to be the consecrated Christian anywhere, but there were never any unseemly breaks in his methods. As pastor, he knew his people's spiritual condition, and their thoughts and efforts for the Master. The member whose thoughts, prayers and efforts took in the whole community found in him a congenial spirit. At the same time the mother whose life seemed shut in by the four walls of her home, and whose efforts for the Master were largely confined to the salvation of her own children, found in him a heart, faith and hand always helpful.

He knew his people, and they knew him, and their coming together for public worship was a heart-to-heart talk over real conditions, that gave to each added strength for the conflicts of life. Was it not just these conditions that enabled the Master to send word to John, "The poor have the gospel preached unto them," and that caused the Master to say, "I was hungry, and ye fed me"? After all, what is the great preacher worth who declaims eloquently to empty benches, while the multitudes go starving into hell? Or the pastor in the community who is not seeking diligently after the lost sheep?

I try hard not to live in the past, and to look hopefully into the future; but does not our church need to seriously heed the exhortation of Paul to Timothy, "But watch thon in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry"? If the accentuation given to the great cause of education in these last days is to fill the heads of our young men with the hope that they are preparing themselves to be Bishops, or to fill other great places alone, they will be disappointed, and what is to become of the masses for whom Christ died? And, then, what will become of Methodism? More than at any former day do we need pastors and teachers—both in one—for these times.

Letter from Rev. W. B. Lewis.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: I have just finished reading the last issue of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, which came this morning. It was like meeting and conversing with a dear old friend in a far-away country, and it put me in the humor of writing a few lines for its columns.

But you are prepared to ask, "What are you doing in Virginia?" Having had two sharp attacks of sickness in the Spring, my stewards took it into their heads that I needed a rest in some quiet place away from my charge. Without my knowledge, and while I was in bed, they presented the matter to my congregation, and it was determined that I should have a vacation. As they followed up this proposition with the means to take a vacation on, it made an impression. At our late District Conference we licensed Prof. S. W. Lipscomb to preach, and he kindly consented to remain in Yazoo City in my place until I should return. So I arranged to take a trip, and rest from my labors for a while, to recuperate my wasted nervous energy. But where shall I go? My heart turned toward this place. My eldest daughter, the wife of Rev. E. E. Harrell, of the Virginia Conference, whom I had not visited since she was married—more than sixteen years ago—lives here, her husband being the pastor of this church. So I determined to come to South Boston. We—that is, Mrs. Lewis and I, for my stewards, in their thoughtful care for my comfort, insisted that she should accompany me—arrived here two weeks ago this morning. I am improving every day, and expect, in a few weeks, to return to Yazoo City in perfect soundness of health. The climate here is not very different from what it is in Mississippi—only a little cooler; but I am having quiet rest, and that is what I need. Have been much edified reading Bishop Keener's "Garden of Eden," Dr. Tillett's "Studies in Christian Doctrine," and Bishop Candler's "Christus Auctor," since I came here. Have had the privilege of preaching twice—once here in South Boston, and once in Houston, the capital of this county, seven miles from this place. But here is a kind letter from my physician, Dr. Blundell, who protests that they sent me here, not to preach, but to rest and recuperate.

South Boston is a town of about 4,000 inhabitants, full of enterprise, and growing. The Methodist Church here has a membership of, perhaps, 300, and a good house of worship, and a comfortable parsonage. The new secretary of the Y. M. C. A. is a Mississippian from Senatobia. He has just arrived to take charge of his office. I had a delightful half-hour's talk with him in the rooms of the association a few mornings ago. His name is Varner, if I mistake not, and he is preparing for the ministry. I also had the pleasure of meeting a Mississippi lady, a few days ago, from Greenwood—the wife of Dr. Jordan. They have recently married. How dear to my heart is my own Mississippi! And it is refreshing to meet anyone from that grand old Commonwealth.

But this letter is all too personal, and if you dump it into the waste-basket, I will not think less of you for it.

May God bless the ADVOCATE, its editor, and its readers!

Truly and fraternally,

W. B. LEWIS.

The Sunday-School.

"The Sunday-school is the 'shibboleth' of the age. Consideration of the children is in the air all around, and thank God that it is so. The hope and progress of every nation lie in the children. The legislators of to-morrow are in the cradle of to-day, and if the nation is to be elevated, purified, and refined, the child must be purified."

Every intelligent and thinking mind will at once see the truth of the above statement. I am glad that the church has come to recognize the great importance of the work of the Sunday-school, and is bestowing upon it more thought and labor than at any time in its history. The Sunday-school is doing a wonderful work to-day, for a great many parents have turned their children over to the Sunday-school to receive their religious training and Bible instruction. How necessary it is, then, for those who have this work in hand to be qualified and competent to do this teaching and training work, for if there is one calling in this world that will not bear poor, flippant, careless work, it is that of the Sunday-school teacher, and yet how much of the Sunday-school work is mere makeshift.

Frequently it is the case that those who have been intrusted with this work are not only not qualified to teach, but will not measure up to the standard, morally and spiritually. I have given this work some thought and study; have labored in both city and country schools, and find the principal deficiency, especially in the village and country schools, is incompetency on the part of the leaders, not because they are deficient in intellectual and business qualifications in every instance (for a great many are school teachers and men of large affairs), but are lacking in Sunday-school knowledge and management, and frequently wholly indifferent and careless of the work, and do not realize its great importance, or feel the weight of the office and the responsibility resting upon them.

And now the point and main purpose of this article is to call attention to the action of the Baptist Convention, recently in session at Water Valley, in appointing a field secretary to do teaching and training work among the Sunday-schools. This is a step in the right direction, and the very step I have been advocating for our church for several years. Institutes and conventions are good as far as they go, but reach only a very few that ought to be reached, and generally those that are somewhat advanced in Sunday-school work. The surest way, and that which will accomplish the greatest good, and produce the best and most lasting results, is to go right down to each school, and teach and train the workers. Those members of the Sunday-school Board of the North Mississippi Conference whom I met while engaged in holding Institute meetings in that Conference, last Fall, will call to mind that I stated that such was my idea of the work that ought to be done, and that Institute meetings, for a few central points, would not accomplish the work they desired. This work, of course, will necessitate time and the expending of money, but it will be money well spent and worth the labor, and could be made self-supporting. Some one has said, "A thing that is worth doing at all, is worth doing well." Here is the way the step taken by this convention is spoken of:

"What is considered by many as the most important single piece of work done at this meeting was the election this morning of a field secretary of the State Convention Board. It is a new departure in this State and with this convention, but in the States where this class of work has been carried on it has proven eminently successful. The duty of this new officer will be to go into remote places where there are no Sunday-schools, and teach, preach and organize them, and to assist those already organized, but whose efforts have grown weak. The office carries with it a salary of $1,200." D. S. HARRION.

Paulding, Miss.

DEAR BRETHREN: From three important sources we are requested to publish in the ADVOCATE the following prepared list of pamphlets and leaflets which are published by the Board of Missions for general and free distribution, for the benefit of the pastors who desire them, and will take the pains to distribute discreetly. They will be sent in any reasonable quantity to any pastor on receipt of order, with the name and number desired postpaid. Address Rev. W. R. Lambuth, D. D., Nashville, Tenn. Otherwise, order a sample package. These are valuable contributions to the cause of missions. They strengthen faith and brighten hope for the final and universal victory of the cross.

Giving the people the proper information, and inspiring them with the joy of giving and the joy of service, will come very near solving the money and mission problems of to-day. Our Conference Board urges with fervency and zeal every pastor to make a liberal distribution of literature, and hold mass meetings in every church, or charge, to the end of educating the people in the doctrine of missions, and securing their liberal offerings to the cause and to the settlement of the assessments in full. The use and observance of the mass meeting, with the accompanying distribution of literature, and the help of neighboring pastors and workers, with their sermons and addresses, are proven to be the greatest and best aids for bringing all our people up to the minimum standard.

The Board earnestly request the presiding elders to encourage and direct, where needed, the pastors along the line of the mass-meeting efforts, and aid them in the selection of literature suitable for the respective charges, and to assist them in the making and arranging and executing programmes.

Our domestic mission operations are assuming more important proportions every year. The fields are being studied as never before, and the best information is needed and sought, and the peculiar conditions of certain portions of our fields demand our best efforts. Present demands call for 100 cents on the dollar of our assessments, and the demands are increasing rapidly.

Clip and preserve this list, and after carefully studying your people, order a variety to suit their peculiar characteristics and needs.

Holly Springs District Conference.

MR. EDITOR: I wish you could have been with us at our District Conference at Potts Camp, July 9-14. It would have given your fatigued mind and body needed rest, and a pleasant time with old friends, and, if you had enjoyed it as most of us, a spiritual uplift. I think it the best Conference I have had the pleasure to attend. A good attendance, and the best attention I ever saw. We had expected Bishop Key, but he was unable to get there. In his absence our presiding elder presided with ease, grace, and dignity. All the interests of the church received careful consideration. The reports from the various charges show gratifying progress. Under the wise and efficient leadership of our beloved presiding elder, Bro. N. G. Augustus, Holly Springs district is on the up-grade. Bro. Augustus is in favor with his preachers, laboring and co-operating with them in building up all the interests of Christ's kingdom. He is the right man in the right place. I regard him as one of the best presiding elders I ever saw.

The preaching was of a high order, except one sermon by this scribe. Bros. M. D. Fly and "Gilderoy" preached two sermons each that were very fine, edifying, and spiritual.

Bros. J. M. Wyatt, W. M. McIntosh and W. B. Murrah were present representing their respective schools. These are schools of which we ought to feel proud.

Bro. Murrah made a talk on education that is not excelled by anything I ever heard along that line.

There are many other features of which I would like to speak, but this article is, perhaps, nearing the waste-basket now.

We were entertained royally by the good people of Potts Camp. May the Lord abundantly reward them!

Revival at Fitler's, Miss.

On Sunday, the thirteenth instant, we closed a splendid meeting at Fitler's Landing, in the Mayersville charge, which resulted in a goodly number of conversions, five accessions to the church, and in a general revival of the membership. The Holy Spirit was manifestly present in the services each day, and many of the flock were led closer to Christ. The meeting lasted just eight days. Rev. J. G. Cammack, the faithful pastor at Rolling Fork, was with us for two days, and rendered very efficient service. During the last five days we were assisted by Rev. T. H. Dorsey, of Arcola, Miss., who proved himself to be an earnest, forceful, consecrated preacher, and a revivalist of no mean order. In fact, all who heard him were completely captivated by his preaching.

A church is not like an ocean steamer, where a few can do the work of running the machinery, preparing the food, and taking care of the staterooms, while most are passengers enjoying transportation. It is rather like a Roman trireme, where each rower did his share of work—a broken oar, an unshipped oar, a sleeping rower delayed the boat.—Dr. O. P. Gifford.

Teacher Supply.

One of the live questions for superintendents to solve, during the warm Summer months, is the question of teacher supply. So many of the teachers take a vacation that their number is often depleted to such an extent that the superintendent is caused great anxiety and trouble. In nearly every school, and on nearly every Sunday morning during the entire year, the classes are called together to recite, when it is found that some classes are without teachers. During the Summer months the absentees are more numerous than at any other season.

We presume that in the great majority of schools there is no remedy for such a state of affairs, because teachers are human, and are often providentially kept from their classes. We mention the subject only to urge upon the teachers the importance and necessity of sending the superintendent word, so that he can provide a substitute before the time for recitation arrives. It often happens that half the time that should be given to recitations is passed before a teacher can be supplied for all of the classes. This could be remedied if the superintendent knew, when he called the school to order, what classes would be without their regular teachers that day. Then, by the time the classes were called to recite, he could have a teacher selected for each one, or know what classes to combine for the day under one teacher.

Many teachers are too thoughtless along this line. Upon all such we urge reform, in the best interests of the school, and to save the feelings of the faithful superintendent.

How to Construct a Service.

A superintendent in any well-regulated school should not "trust to the inspiration of the moment" to arrange an order of service, but he should begin to prepare, early in the week, a programme fitted for the lesson for the coming Sunday. This can be done, and is done by Superintendent B. F. Johnson, of the Broadus Memorial School of Richmond. He sees to it that every person to take part is notified in time for preparation, whether it be for the opening prayer, or a reading of a portion of Scripture. In this way the exercises are rendered in the best and most effective manner. Mr. Johnson is the head of a large publishing house, but he finds time to devote to such work. He writes: "For years in our Bible school I have worked by programme, and I find that it prevents one from getting into a rut. By noting down the people who are expected to pray, to make a chalk-talk, to sing, we shall in our minds run over the entire membership of the school, endeavoring to bring new faces to the front, and the larger the number of people in a school who can take some active part, however brief, the greater the interest. I am superintendent of a Bible school that was organized a few years ago in a tent. Later we built a frame shanty, which is now every Sunday morning packed to the doors. This school has never, since its organization, been opened five minutes behind time. We endeavor to make a special feature of the worship before the study of the lesson, invariably having two or three prayers, and as many spiritual songs as we can get in. In our school we find that it helps greatly to constantly change the reading of the lesson. Sometimes the teachers and officers will read one verse, sometimes the male voices, sometimes the female voices, and sometimes the lesson is read by classes. Thus we alternate during the reading of the lesson. When a superintendent endeavors to prepare a programme every Sunday, he will find it necessary to do a good deal of careful thinking, and to incorporate a good many new and fresh ideas in his work that would otherwise not be utilized. We try to insist on every member of our school taking part in the exercises. Thus we generally get our people thoroughly warmed up, aroused, and interested, before the time appointed for the study of the lesson."—Sunday-School Times.

From Yazoo City.

"Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into the harvest." This was the command of Jesus. Surely the world has not come so near Christ as to nullify or abrogate this command. More than one prayer has been offered in the Yazoo City Methodist Church in obedience to this command. Christ says, "According to your faith be it unto you." When the Christian has prayed, hoped, and trusted, there always comes the feeling of exultation when some kind Providence shows the fulfillment of hopes long cherished. It need not prove strange or surprising, therefore, when it is known that there was almost a "shout in the camp" on Sunday night, the sixth of July, 1902, as Brother Lipscomb stood in the pulpit of the Yazoo City Methodist Church and preached his first sermon as a licensed Methodist preacher. Our joy was made unspeakable when this godly young brother stated that after he had fully settled the question of his call to the ministry he cast about for a church home from whence to go out into the Lord's vineyard, and finally settled the matter in behalf of Yazoo City. It was still more gratifying when he assigned as his reason the good the church here had done him in his spiritual life. Brother Lipscomb had taught in the public schools of our city, but for a year has lived elsewhere. He returned his church certificate to this charge a few months ago, and having been recommended by our Quarterly Conference, was licensed at the District Conference of the Jackson district at its session just held at Flora. Owing to the contemplated vacation of our pastor, Rev. W. B. Lewis, Brother Lipscomb consented to come here and serve this charge during the pastor's absence. So we were permitted the pleasure of hearing the first sermon of our "own boy." Never fond parent was prouder of a noble son than were some of us at this first sermon of our young brother. Without embarrassment, without any show of excitement, without a word of cant or fulsome word, but with a deep, earnest soul-poise, he gave us an earnest, well-spoken sermon on the words, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God;" and "the kingdom of God is righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Ghost." Following the sermon, the congregation responded freely and heartily to the proposition to extend to Brother Lipscomb the hand of love and friendship while praying for God's blessing on his life and labors.

The beautiful, consecrated life of this young brother, and the happiness felt by us that we are honored in being able to claim so great a part in the great work he has espoused, furnish my excuse for this personal notice.

Keatchie, La.

Dear Dr. Boswell: On Sunday, the twentieth instant, I closed a meeting at Longstreet, La., one of the appointments on this work (Keatchie and Logansport), of eight days duration, in which one soul was happily converted, and the membership greatly revived. At this point we have a great many young people, and almost all of them members of the church. I was assisted by Revs. Caraway and Jarratt, local preachers. Both of these brethren did efficient work, and preached to the edification of the people. On Thursday night the presence of God was powerfully manifested, and many were made to rejoice.

Our third Quarterly Conference was held on the nineteenth and twentieth (Saturday and Sunday), and our presiding elder, Rev. J. T. Sawyer, was with us, preaching with power the old-time gospel. Truly the Lord was with us, and it was good to be there. Bro. Doss, a "Student Volunteer campaigner," was with us also, and made us a stirring talk on the subject of missions. He greatly delighted his hearers. He also distributed some missionary literature, which will, no doubt, be productive of much good. Two were received into the church, and we closed the meeting with a collection for missions, which amounted (in cash and subscription) to fifty dollars. We thank God and take courage.

Yours in the work,

Booneville Circuit.

Dear Dr. Boswell: As I have not contributed to the Advocate, I will give you a few notes. We have been kindly treated by the good people of Booneville circuit. We have eight appointments, and a fine people. We expect to hold meetings at each appointment in the charge, and expect great success.

My first meeting was at Double Springs. We commenced there the second Sunday in July; had a splendid meeting. There were thirty-seven conversions, nine accessions, and the church and community wonderfully revived. The Lord was with us in power. My work is in good condition all round. Bro. B. P. Fullilove was with us at Double Springs, and did nearly all the preaching. Bro. Fullilove is good help. I can recommend him to anyone needing assistance. We are very thankful for the blessings received.

May the Lord bless the Advocate and its editor!

Yours for Christ,

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and New Orleans Christian Advocate together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1902

THE NEW DISCIPLINE.

The new Discipline will soon be ready for distribution. Every Methodist home ought to have a copy. No official member can afford to be without one. Some radical changes by the General Conference in May were made, so that the old Discipline does not now contain all the laws of the church. From this date until the first of September we will furnish the new Discipline and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE one year for TWO DOLLARS cash. This offer applies to all who will pay up back dues to date, and renew their subscriptions, as well as to new subscribers who send the money. We ought to have several hundred answers to this proposition. Address,

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

A few weeks ago Brother Bailey, of the Baptist, declared that "the Methodists have a woman preacher 'over in Georgia now evangelizing aronnd,'" and that he had "heard of others." We referred the matter to the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, of Atlanta. Dr. Lovett, in the issue of that paper of the twenty-third ultimo, says: "We never heard of a woman being licensed to preach by the Sonthern Methodists of Georgia. We have had some of the good 'sisters' going around . . . . giving, as they call it, 'Bible readings,' bnt we have never known a Sonthern Methodist woman to have a license to preach." It will be hard for Brother Bailey to find women preachers in Sonthern Methodism.

Pnblic talkers, as well as those who express their private opinions, miss the mark, and show that they do not see or appreciate the distinction between the church and individnals who belong to the church, when they assert the church's responsibility for the failnre of any reform movement. It is quite handy to make snch a charge, and thus excite the contempt of some who have little respect for the church, but there is no truth in it. The church has defined its position on every important matter, and advised what course to pursne. It has no power to coerce its members. That fact seems to be overlooked by zealons orators.

Two causes operate to make a man a judge of his brethren. One is the spirit of Pharisaism, the other, an over-estimate of his ability — self-righteonsness and egoism. Both are condemned by the Word of God; and to us it seems incomprehensible that a man claiming to be intelligent, and to be moved by a desire to promote brotherly love, shonld deliberately set up his judgment as infallible and condemn all who fail to fall into his way of thinking. Yet now and then we have an exhibition of snch infallibility.

ABOUT HERESY.

Nowadays there is no such thing as a "damnable heresy." No matter how far one may depart from the letter and spirit of the Word, or from the accepted teachings of his church, he is not to be charged with heresy. He is only an "advanced thinker"—a man of liberal views, and not to be disturbed. The "heresy hnnter" is at a discount, and those who prefer charges and prosecute a case, are narrow-minded, bigoted Pharisees, influenced by the spirit of the Inquisition rather than the spirit of the gospel. So the world says, and the world largely influences the church, and it comes to pass that men who repudiate cherished and vital principles go nnchallenged.

Why is this so? It is not solely because it is impossible, under present conditions, to successfully prosecute a charge. It is rather because of a spirit of liberalism, sometimes interpreted as charity, generated under the idea that a good character atones for all sorts of heretical notions and teachings. This is not surprising, since so many persons have come to believe that it makes no difference what a man accepts and teaches, if he is honest. To criticise and condemn false views for the pnrpose of checking them is denounced as against the spirit of the age, and looked npon as an attack on the individnal. So, one whose opinions and teachings are at variance with the doctrines of his church must be allowed to retain his place in the pnlpit, or the professor's chair, simply because he has a good character. That principle pnt into practice would require ns, as Methodists, to receive into our church and ministry well-recommended Presbyterian or Baptist preachers without reqniring them to certify their agreement with us in doctrine and discipline. It would require us to accept a Roman Catholic, with all his false and superstitious notions concerning mass, and purgatory, and prayers for the dead, and prayers to the saints, and the counting of beads, and whatever else pertains to the doctrines and practices of Rome. More than this, it would allow us to receive into fellowship a skeptic or an agnostic, shonld he present a certificate of good character. All this is folly, and, put into practice, would rnin any church in Christendom. The very announcement by any church of the acceptance of such a principle wonld sonnd its death-knell as a sonl-saving agency.

That there is ground for thought on this subject, not to say occasion for alarm, is evident from the repeated protests in certain quarters against those who demand the removal of false teachers from our pulpits and professors' chairs. Several instances might be cited of recent origin. The latest cry is against the action of the Committee on Nominations of the English Wesleyan Conference in declining to present the name of Dr. Beet for re-election to the position he has long held in one of their theological schools. This action was taken because Dr. Beet has been teaching and pnblicly proclaiming doctrines contrary to Wesleyan standards. He denies the inherent immortality of the sonl, and also the fntnre eternal punishment of the wicked, and yet he is vigorously defended by leading Wesleyan papers, and by a few on this side of the Atlantic. Notwithstanding his heresies, it is argued that he should retain his place as an instructor of youth. If retained (the Conference is in session at this writing, and we will soon know the result), it will be equivalent to giving him the privilege of tainting Methodist theology, which, in time, will ruin Methodist life and character. This great teacher can transmit his poisonous doctrine, but he can not transmit his admirable character. If Methodism stands for sound doctrine, we must have men in our pulpits and schools who both know and love them; not men who undermine them, and make heretics of our preachers and people.

SOMETHING REFRESHING.

The Texas Baptist Standard is not the standard under which all Baptists rally. That is to say, it is not thoroughly "Landmark" in all particulars. It is a good Baptist paper, nevertheless, and in doctrine orthodox. The editor, Dr. J. B. Cranfill, often has something good to say. So does Dr. J. B. Gambrell, a regular correspondent. So do other correspondents. The article by Rev. Robert Morris Rabb, of Buffalo, N. Y., in the issue of July 17, is no exception to the general rule. His ntterances concerning "The New Testament Idea of the Church" are refreshing. They are liberal, and, with one or two exceptions, in full accord with the sentiments of evangelical Christendom. Some of them we have seen distinctly repudiated by brethren of his faith and order.

This writer recognizes what our Baptist brethren are pleased to call the "local church," but he does not lose sight of the "general church," or the "church at large." He says:

"Much stress is laid by Baptists upon the idea of the local, or community, church. Its autonomy is seldom allowed to pass ont of sight. We have reason to fear that in our occupation with the purely local idea of the church we often rob ourselves of the enlarging sympathy enjoyed by those who recognize the more general nse of 'church,' and consequently enter into a broader fellowship with Christ's people. The local church is only a constituent of the church at large."

The doctrine here set forth is perfectly consistent with our Lord's statement in Matt. xvi, 18, "Upon this rock will I build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." If there is nothing but the local church, wholly independent and self-governing, then our Lord has a multitude of churches, no one of which has any connection with another, and the sacred historian should have said, "Upon this rock will I build my churches, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against them." But Matthew is not so translated, and Mr. Rabb declares that "it is against his (Christ's) church in general that the gates of Hades shall not prevail." And he argnes that it is the snm of the local churches that makes up the general church, and asks: "Can anyone be in the general church, and not be in the local church? Can anyone be in the local church, and yet not be a member of the general church?" Indeed, the writer comes dangerously near acknowledging the existence of what is called the "invisible church." He says it is proper to use the term "if you know what you mean." We quote what he says on this point:

"Where we use the word 'invisible' we certainly mean to use that word in a spiritual, in contrast with an ocular, sense. You can not see the relation I sustain to Christ; neither can I see the relation you sustain to him. That relation is spiritual and invisible. The invisible church consists of all who sustain a saving relation to Christ, of all who are truly his redeemed ones. But our eyes do not tell us as we look the churches over, or the world over, just who these are; so that we have come to speak of the real church, the body of true Christians, as 'the invisible church,' for the simple reason that it is the spiritual body of Christ not certainly and wholly discoverable to the eye of flesh in the fact of its spiritual relation to Christ."

Again, Mr. Rabb gives utterance to other sentiments not received among "Landmark" Baptists. He repudiates the idea that the validity of baptism depends on succession, holding to the belief that there was a period when baptism (by immersion, of course) was not practiced. He thinks it is enough to know that John got his right from heaven, and ventures his belief "that, if immersion was resumed after Luther's time," the church now has "the same right to resume it that John the Baptist had when he first practiced it." But this is not all; he strikes at the very vitals of the Baptist Churches when he declares that "authority to administer baptism comes from heaven, and not from men." He has not "made it contingent on any bishop's or church's authority." He is bold in his affirmation:

"Holding strictly to the New Testament, a church's vote has nothing whatever to do with baptism, either in the matter of the candidate or the administrator. When a minister of Christ is requested to administer the ordinance, and is convinced that the person desiring baptism has surrendered his soul to Christ, it is that minister's duty to baptize that person on the authority of heaven."

All this is refreshing. The church is making progress. Amen!

A MONGREL METHODISM.

We refer to the proposed Methodism in Japan. We regret very much to apply to any organization of Methodism such a term, bnt we know no other that answers the purpose. The reasons for such an organization do not seem to us to be sufficient. One organization in the empire may be necessary to enable the church to hold property. The brethren over there say it is. That granted, it does not necessarily follow that Southern Methodism should sacrifice its essential features, and enter into a compact with half a dozen minor sects, in order to form a separate and indepeudent organization, and bind the church at home to support it.

We call it a mongrel Methodism because it is made up of every form of Methodism in the empire, some of which are not in sympathy with Episcopal Methodism. One of these organizations is the outgrowth of enmity to our episcopacy, which from the beginning of our American Methodism has been the glory and strength of our church. How these elements are to combine and harmonize we do not know. True, we are told that the basis of union is mutual concession—each party giving up something on the one hand, and accepting something on the other. This might be considered worthy of note, if all the bodies interested were on an equal footing in every respect, but we have presented to us the spectacle of two strong, controlling organizations, the M. E. Church, and the M. E. Church, South, yielding to the demands of feeble churches that are the offshoots of these strong bodies. We do not look upon this as an act of magnanimity on the part of these two churches, but the giving up of vital points without sufficient reason.

It does not appear from all we can learn that this union is at all essential to the saving of souls in Japan, but effected purely as a matter of business, viz, to enable the church to hold property.

We wonder if this is an intimation of what we may expect as to the form of world-wide Methodism when all the orders come together. If it takes this mongrel form in Japan, why not in China? in Brazil and Mexico, in the Philippines, and finally in the United States and Canada? If it is good Episcopal Methodism to be thus disintegrated and absorbed in Japan by influences that have been at work for seventy-five years or more, it is equally as good in any part of the world; and four-fifths of the Methodists in the United States must give way to the followers of O'Kelley and the United Brethren, both of whom repudiate our peculiar and distinctive form of episcopacy.

If Episcopal Methodism is worth contending for and preserving in the United States, it is worth establishing in Japan and all other missions of our church. And there is absolutely no more reason for forming a union in Japan, on the bases presented, than there is for forming a union with Baptists and Presbyterians, save for the one reason presented, viz., to enable the church to hold property. And were this essential, rather than see our beloved Methodism mangled, or our church enter into a compact to form a mongrel church, we would give our members in Japan certificates of good standing and let them go where they please.

What will be the effect of this union? The answer is, a separate church, governing itself, bnt dependent on the home churches for support. It can no longer make a legal claim on the funds of our Mission Board, and, if the Board makes appropriations, it makes them to support members of a body that has no connection with the church. Episcopal supervision, so far as our church is concerned, will cease; else, if given, we will have the sight of the Bishops of one church presiding over the Conferences of another church, and appointing its preachers to work. And if our Bishops preside, so must the Bishops of the M. E. Church. But, of course, none of the Bishops of our church or the M. E. Church will preside, because the mongrel church will have a "figure-head," called bishop, of its own.

But the edict has gone forth. The blow to Episcopal Methodism is heavy. We pray that we may survive.

A NEW WAY OF PUTTING IT.

It is said of a prominent preacher who has been engaged for a long while in other than pastoral work that he will re-enter the pastorate at the ensuing session of his Conference "if circumstances are favorable." That is a new way of putting the matter with regard to one in the itinerancy and subject to appointment. We doubt whether our brother editor meant exactly what he said. Circumstances do not control. If the preacher's health is not sufficient to justify him in undertaking the labors of a pastor, he is in the hands of his Conference and may be placed on the superannuated list, or he may locate; but, unless he secures a position to which he may be legally appointed, he is in the hands of the episcopacy, and will be assigned to a pastoral charge whether the circumstances are favorable or unfavorable.

If the editor meant what he said, and wrote wittingly, then we have at least one man in our ranks who does not hesitate to let it be known that, as to his work in the pastorate, he is governed by circumstances. That is to say, if the charge to which he is assigned suits him, he will accept it; if it does not, he will decline it. Of course, the matter will not be left in doubt up to the announcement of the appointments. He will let his wishes be known in advance, and the authorities will govern themselves accordingly.

We trust the statement of our brother editor is based on a misapprehension. If it is not, and we have properly interpreted it, we have evidence of a symptom of decay in our itinerancy. To what extent this disease has affected our body we do not know. But whether to a greater or less extent, it is contagious, and if allowed to work out the natural result, the ruin of our God-honored system will be effected. If our statements in this connection are not justified by our brother editor's words in reference to this particular case, they are justified by the refusal of others to do the work assigned them simply because the circumstances were not favorable.

A Word to Correspondents.

We ask our friends who have sent us communications to be as patient as possible. We have more matter for the paper than we can print for a long time. All of it is acceptable, bnt such is the amount on hand that some of it may never see the light. We will do our best.

PERSONAL.

Rev. W. W. Drake went last week to the Adams Camp Ground to assist Rev. W. J. Ferguson in a meeting. With what success we have not learned.

Rev. F. S. Parker and wife, of Crowley, are spending a short vacation at Seashore Camp Ground. They came in a couple of days before the close of the Tri-State Conference.

Rev. Richard Wilkerson, of Aberdeen, spent four or five days at the Tri-State Conference. He lectured once and preached once. Both efforts did credit to his head and heart, and were well received by his hearers.

Rev. W. H. Nelson, one of our young preachers studying at Centenary College, was the gate keeper at the camp ground during the camp meeting and the Epworth League Conference. A more watchful and efficient one the trustees never employed.

"Elect women" were much in evidence at the Tri-State Conference, lecturing and leading devotional services. Among them we name Mrs. Mary L. Hargrove, of the Scarritt Bible and Training-school; Miss Emma Tucker, of Nashville; Miss May Mayo, of New Orleans; Mrs. H. B. Kells, Miss Daisy Davies, and Miss Mabel Wheeler.

The scholarly series of Bible studies presented at the Tri-State Conference by President Carre, of Centenary College, were greatly enjoyed. Whether his hearers always understood him, or agreed with him or not, they were interested and benefited. Many highly spiritual lessons were inculcated. President Carre is a teacher.

Rev. J. L. Jordan, superintendent of Seashore Camp Ground, though a new hand at the business, and having many interests to look after, was quite equal to the work required. He was polite and attentive, and fully earned the good-will of all the guests. As far as we have heard, he executed all the rules and regulations of the camp meeting association.

A letter from Bishop Smith to Dr. W. H. LaPrade, in answer to the invitation of the Methodists of the city to make New Orleans his home, thanks the brethren very kindly for their consideration, and expresses the hope of visiting the city before deciding where he shall reside. We are sure the Bishop can meet no heartier welcome anywhere than in New Orleans.

The marriage of Rev. Thos. Carter, professor-elect to the Chair of New Testament Greek in Vanderbilt University, to Miss Alice Burt Sandige, of New Orleans, is announced for Wednesday, Aug. 6. The happy couple will go East for a month or six weeks, and return to Nashville in time for the opening of the Fall session of the University. May their lives be long and happy.

Dr. H. W. Featherstun, the newly-elected president of the Seashore Epworth League Assembly, is thoroughly interested in the work, and will give to it his earnest and best endeavors. No one connected with the movement is more zealous. With increased facilities at the camp ground, and the encouragement given the assembly by the trustees, we expect the movement to increase greatly in interest and numbers.

The officers for the Seashore Epworth League Assembly for the ensuing year are as follows: President, Rev. Dr. H. W. Featherstun, Moss Point, Miss.; first vice-president, Rev. H. B. Carre, Jackson, La.; second vice-president, Miss A. M. Schlater, Mobile; third vice-president, Mrs. A. F. Watkins, Centerville, Miss.; treasurer, Miss Mabel Wheeler, Birmingham, Ala.; secretary, Dr. John T. Crebbin, New Orleans; Junior League secretary, Miss May Mayo, New Orleans; counsellors Rev. C. D. Atkinson, New Orleans; Miss Carrie V. Schwing, Jackson, La.; Miss Alma Leftwich and Dr. J. W. Rush, Alabama; Miss Carrie Foose and Dr. T. C. Wier, Mississippi.

The Sam Jones Camp Ground.

The ADVOCATE of to-day has a remarkable communication from Rev. J. A. B. Jones, giving the result of his labor with Bishop Morrison in the interest of the Sam Jones Camp Ground Association. Bishop Morrison had this correspondence with Bro. Jones without writing me a line. He has not till yet notified me by letter or telegram of any such action. I claim to be the agent of the Bishop in the Natchez district, and, as such, I should be officially notified by him of his action affecting the work in this district.

I wrote Bishop Key, informing him of the rumor that Bishop Morrison had detached Sam Jones Camp Ground from Gloster, but that he had not notified me. Bishop Key wrote me that I should assume that it had not been done if Bishop Mrrison had not notified me.

I regard Bro. Jones' interference with my work as unjustifiable. What has he to do with the work of the church in the Natchez district? I wrote him not to come into the Natchez district and coondnot services unless he was invited to do so by the pastors in the district or by myself. I hereby serve public notice on him to that effect.

I deny that "the fact of the camp ground being attached to Gloster will interfere with its use as a camp ground, or militate against its success." In this denial I voice the sentiment of every presiding elder who has served the district, and every pastor who has served the Gloster charge, with whom I have talked concerning the matter, except Rev. J. A. B. Jones. It must be under the control of the church to serve any good purpose. "Have replaced the camp ground just as it was last year," is Bishop Morrison's telegram to Bro. Jones. Then the camp ground is a part of the Gloster charge, for it was last year.

When Rev. P. A. Johnston was presiding elder of the district, he decided that the camp ground was in the Gloster charge, and that the Gloster pastor was in charge of the services there. Rev. D. F. Gnice informed me of this action.

When Rev. L. S. Jones was presiding elder, he had, so he tells me, the fourth Quarterly Conference of the Gloster charge to elect a Board of Trustees for the Sam Jones Camp Ground.

When Dr. Hunniontt was presiding elder, he had the Gloster Quarterly Conference to fill vacancies in the Sam Jones Camp Ground Board of Trustees.

I hold it a part of the Gloster charge. Bro. J. A. B. Jones had the same view of the matter last year, for he reported it to the Annual Conference as property of the church in the Gloster charge. He was then the pastor of the Gloster church. What can Bro. Jones say about his report? I don's understand how he can afford to repudiate his own report.

No Bishop can detach property of the church and put it out of the jurisdiction of a Quarterly Conference. To make a detachment from one work genuine and valid, he must attach it to another work. This Bishop Morrison did not propose to do, but left it where it was last year. That certainly was in the Gloster charge.

The announcement is given by the Executive Committee of the proposed approaching meeting, Aug. 8-18. Two, if not all three, of these men are members of the old rebellious faction of the ex-Sharon Church. Rev. J. A. B. Jones, while pastor of the Gloster Church last year, denounced these people for their rebellious attitude to the church. They refused to recognize him as their pastor, or take any part in his services. He had much to say to me as his presiding elder, about them, denouncing them as disloyal. These people, in defiance of Bro. Jones' protests, ran their rebellious meetings. They continue that rebellious course. They have lately had a meeting, employing a preacher of another church to conduct the services. I hear that the preacher said much against our church, and against the Bishops and presiding elders.

Now, these are the people whom Bro. Jones would have to take a leading part in running the Sam Jones business. Bro. Jones told me last year that all that was keeping the Sharon members from leaving our church was their hold upon Sam Jones Camp Ground.

Jno. F. Cassels, secretary of the association and member of the Executive Committee, has in his hands the Quarterly Conference Records of the Gloster charge back of 1899. I have demanded them of him through the present recording steward. He said he would not surrender them without an order from the Sam Jones Camp Ground Association. This will show the animus of the association. They hold in the hands of their secretary our church records.

Jno. F. Cassels, after some expostulations from W. Y. Webb, agreed to turn them over to us, but has not done so yet.

The Sam Jones property belongs to the church, and not to the association, and I shall be true to the church.

I most emphatically demand that all preachers, traveling and local, and laymen refrain from participating in any leading part in the services held there Aug. 8-18. No preacher who is loyal to the church can afford to encourage such by his presence. T. W. ADAMS, P. E.

Preachers' Meeting.

The regular meeting of Aug. 4 was given to reports. All the pastors were present except one. Additions: Werlein Mission, 3; Carrollton, 2.

Every pastor who attended the Epworth League Conference at the Seashore spoke in high praise of it.

Rev. W. W. Drake has just returned from Adams Camp Meeting, near Summit, Miss. Reported 20 conversions.

Prof. T. Carter was present and made a most interesting talk. He spoke in high praise of the Conference just closed at the Seashore.

Dr. LaPrade's morning congregation during this Summer has increased 20 per cent.

Dr. LaPrade read a letter from Bishop Smith, who stated he would visit New Orleans before he decided the place of his episcopal residence.

Rev. H. B. Carre, president of Centenary College, was present, and made a talk as to the prospects of our college. He expects to put the buildings in fine condition.

C. D. ATKINSON.

The following resolutions were offered:

Whereas, Our brother and colleague in the Christian work of New Orleans, Rev. Thomas Carter, is about to leave for another sphere of labor; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the New Orleans Preachers' Meeting, express deep regret that his immediate connection with New Orleans Methodism is to be severed, and that we assure him that his personal influence as a Christian teacher and minister of the gospel will be greatly missed.

Resolved, That we assure him of our continued esteem and love, and of our constant prayer that he may be eminently useful in the work to which he feels providentially called.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co. Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Frightful Slaughter of Plume Birds.

It is announced that the algret, which has never ceased to be more or less fashionable, will come into greater demand than ever during the coming Winter. It is proved extremely difficult to influence the wearers of these heron's plumes, and the consequent slaughter of the beautiful birds has gone on at an appalling rate. The egret, once an abundant bird in Florida, is now one of the rarest inhabitants. The trade is now supplied for the most part from South America. The number of egrets killed in Venezuela in 1898, according to the official reports of the British consul, was 1,500,000. These figures will not represent the entire slaughter, however, since the feathers are taken from the bodies of the parents when the young are helpless in the nests, so that the wiping out of a heronry means the death by starvation of hundreds of young birds. The delicate plumes, beautiful as they seem to any one ignorant of the method by which they must have been obtained, rightly stamp the wearer as strangely ill-informed in these times of many books and many lectures, or else utterly lacking in sympathy for man's most charming and most defenseless fellow-creatures.

Frank M. Chapman says of the matter: "No form of feather adornment has been and is more harmful in its effects than the wearing of 'agrets,' or heron plumes. These dainty, graceful feathers, unlike the distorted skin of some poor humming bird or warbler, carry with them no suggestion of death, and many a woman on whose bonnet they are placed is wholly ignorant of the unspeakable cruelty the taking of these feathers entails.

"Aigret plumes constitute the wedding dress of the several species of white herons or egrets, and are worn only during the nesting season. The birds are exceedingly sociable in disposition, and when breeding gather in colonies or rookeries, often containing hundreds of pairs. The plume-hunter, having discovered a rookery by watching the birds as they fly to and from their nests, surveys the ground, learns the lines of flight followed by the birds, and the perches or lookout stations they usually frequent when returning to their homes. Armed, preferably with a small rifle, he then secretes himself in a favorable position. The birds now have families to provide for and are active throughout the day. As they return with food for their young they rest a moment on the lookout perch, offering an excellent mark to the hunter concealed below. The bird falls, the slight report of the rifle does not alarm others that soon follow, and within a few days most of the parent birds have been killed, while the nestlings, lacking their care, die of starvation.

"The method is simple—any boy with a gun can become a plume-hunter—but so effective that at the present rate of destruction the herons will soon succumb to it. A Florida plume-hunter once told the writer that with two or three assistants he had killed 300 egrets in one afternoon; another boasted that he and his party killed 130,000 birds (mostly plume-birds) during one season. Having practically exterminated the egrets in Florida, plume-hunters have turned their attention to other parts of the birds' range; advertising in local papers, offering large prices to native hunters, and organizing expeditions to explore the coasts and inland marshes from our southern boundaries to the Argentine Republic.

"To prevent the killing of birds throughout this great region is obviously impossible, and laws which alone prohibit their destruction are valueless. Until, therefore, laws are passed forbidding the wearing of aigrets, the salvation of the herons rests solely in woman's hands. Can any humane woman, knowing these facts, wear in her bonnet plumes, which are an undeniable evidence of her approval of merciless slaughter and indescribable suffering?"—The Presbyterian.

Monkey Got the Jam.

A sweet little story concerning a pet monkey and a pot of jam is vouched for by a Johns Hopkins University man now residing on McCulloch street, says The Baltimore Sun.

It was in the country and all on a Summer's day that the family monkey was seen scudding homeward literally drenched in raspberry jam. He was pursued by an irate neighbor with uplifted broom, but once safe on the home plot, he swung himself lightly into the nearest tree and peacefully listened to her tale of wrong.

It seems the neighbor had some hours before been making jam, a bowl of which sat cooling on a table beneath the trees. This the monkey spied, but had scarcely started liberally helping himself to it when he was discovered. With loud outcry and the broom the lady started toward him, when the mischievous beast, knowing his minutes were numbered, hastily overturned the bowl on the table. Then, rolling himself joyously in it several times from head to heels, he scampered beyond her reach. During the recital of her woe, and, in fact, for the remainder of the day, the monkey sat scraping the sweetmeat from his body and licking his paws with glee.

The President's Dog.

A little incident, which somebody about the White House witnessed the other day, is significant both as an illustration of certain traits in the character of President Roosevelt, and as an example to his admirers. There has been an impression among certain of his critics that he believed "the strenuous life" to consist chiefly of hunting and killing animals, but though a mighty hunter, he is not merely a Nimrod, as the following occurrence shows:

It was a rainy, dreary day soon after Mr. Roosevelt's return to Washington, and after a busy morning the President and his Secretary started out for a walk. Just outside the door lay a homeless, friendless dog, as close to the wall as he could get, his body curled up into the smallest bunch to avoid the rain and possible observation.

As the two men emerged from the door he looked apprehensively to see if a kick or a stern "Be off with you now!" would compel him to beat a rapid retreat. But nothing of the sort occurred. Mr. Roosevelt's expressive face took a pitying and kindly look, and bending down, he stroked the animal's head and pulled him by the ears gently.

"Poor doggie, haven't you any master?" he inquired. Then he went back into the house, and the dog, with instinctive understanding of the situation, trotted close at his heels. The President ordered the waif a meal, and it is said that that dog will be the dog of the White House during his administration.

Mr. Roosevelt is not one of those sportsmen who are satisfied with popping away at tame pigeons when he wants the excitement of killing a dangerous wild beast. It will be a good thing for his admirers to remember that the man who led the charge up San Juan Hill was quite as ready to befriend a homeless cur as to hunt cougars and grizzlies. —Caldwell News.

Small Ponds for Water Lilies.

It is surprising to see what can be accomplished with aquatics in a fair-sized yard at a total cost of $10 to $25, especially if you do it yourself. There are over two dozen kinds of water lilies in common cultivation which are perfectly hardy, and at least eight varieties commonly, but erroneously, known as the Egyptian lotus, which can be wintered out of doors, if covered with leaves. They represent white, pale and bright yellow, flesh-pink, rose and rosy carmine, with intermediate shades. The cost of plants is not great.

The main item of expense is for the construction of the pond. If you can excavate to a depth of two feet and find a clay subsoil, the expense will be reduced to a minimum, but if the sub-soil is composed of sand or gravel, it will have to be covered with a layer of clay and rich earth. Of course, a cement bottom is desirable, but a clay bottom well "puddled" (that is, trampled when wet) will be satisfactory, and much cheaper. A depth of two feet at the center will give plenty of water. If the pond is less than 12 feet across, a plank can be thrown across, which will make all gardening operations easy. The hardy species can be grown in natural ponds.

As to soil, one would naturally think the muck of lake or river beds would be just the thing. But it is not. The best is a turfy loam, inclining to heavy, and thoroughly rotted cow manure, two parts of the former to one of the latter, and, where possible, it should be composted some time before using, and turned over well to thoroughly incorporate the manure.

Water lilies can be planted any month from April to October. The spring-planted tubers, if well treated, will give flowers the first year.—Country Life in America.

He Is Looking for You.

"Hello, little stranger! what is the matter?"

The rough-looking wagoner softened his voice in speaking, for the child in the road was crying.

"I am lost! I can't find my father," sobbed the child.

"Is he a big man with a long white beard?"

"Yes; that's my father."

"It's all right, then, because he is looking for you. Keep right along, and if you don't find him, he'll find you."

And the child dried his tears and sprang into the road again, for, if his father was looking for him, of course, he could not fail to be in his arms again after a while.

Dear boy, dear girl, if you are trying to come to Christ, take courage. He is looking for you, too, and, if you only persevere, you are sure to meet him in the way and to hear his gracious voice saying, "Come unto me."—Exchange.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

Mrs ANNE FLOURNOY VINSON was born in D. Kalb, Miss., Nov. 8, 1841, and passed to her reward from her home in Scooba, Miss, June 17, 1902. She was the daughter of Hon. Henry Watkins Flournoy and Miss Martha Barksdale, of Virginia. Sept. 19, 1867, she was happily married to Mr. A. G Vinson, who, with three daughters and two sons, mourn the loss of the devoted wife and precious mother. In early life she was brightly converted and united with the M. E. Church, South. She was as simple as a child in her faith, firm in her convictions, and courageous in all her purposes to do and stand by the right. To her there was no place like home, and to that inner and sacred circle was given the best service of her life. She was indeed a most devoted and affectionate wife, a loving and tender mother, a kind, compassionate friend, and will be sadly missed by husband, children, and a host of friends. Personally, of queenly mold; intellectually, of a high type; socially, congenial and pleasant, she lived her life not in vain. Her last illness was of several months' duration, during which time she suffered much; yet not a murmur or complaint was heard from her. She had long since entered into that blessed state of grace in which she fully comprehended the meaning of that Scripture which reads, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God." Our Scooba home will not be as it has been, but we thank God that though we can not call mama back, we can go to her. She was buried near her lovely daughter, Lucy, who had only gone ahead a few months. Oh, what a meeting when over the river the angel of death shall carry those left behind! May God's grace graciously sustain the heart-broken husband and sorrowing children, and assure an unbroken family in heaven! Is the prayer of the bereaved son-in-law. W. J F.

Miss ADA M. LUCAS was born in Chicago, Ill., Oct. 28, 1875 and died in great peace in New Orleans, July 14 1902. When about eight years of age Ada moved to Mexico, N. Y., where she passed her girlhood. After graduating from the Mexico Academy she took a special course in Library Economics at Syracuse University, being graduated in 1897 as a librarian. She filled positions in the libraries in Syracuse, N. Y., and Elmira, N. Y., resigning the latter place to go to San Antonio, Texas, where she resided until May, 1900, when she came to New Orleans with her mother and brother. Miss Ada became a member of the M. E. Church while yet a child. Soon after coming to New Orleans she joined Rayne Memorial M. E Church, South, and was at once recognized as an earnest, consistent, and active Christian. In the Epworth League, the Young People's Foreign Missionary Society and the Sunday-school she was exceedingly useful. Sweet-spirited, intelligent, and willing to serve, she was helpful to an unusual degree. As daughter and sister, she was the light of the household, unselfish in her devotion, carrying the Spirit of her Lord into all the duties of life, and all its pleasures as well. Her early death is a most severe affliction upon her loving mother and brother, and a loss, a serious loss, to her church. Her death was peaceful. She passed quietly away without fear, full of loving trust in Christ. Life was dear to her, the future bright, her plans made for usefulness and happiness; but she was ready to go when the Master called, for she knew his voice.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Whereas, In the lamented death of JOHN C. JONES on the thirty-first of March, last, the Masonic fraternity, of which he was a member at Dalby (Lodge No. 265), and had been a consistent member of the fraternity for the last fifty years, and had served in every official capacity in the lodge, has lost a most valuable member; And, whereas, He had lived a consistent member of the M. E. Church since very early in life, and had served in several responsible positions in Jackson parish during the last fifty years, among which was that of clerk of court and as deputy under each of his successors in office up till the time of his death; And, whereas, His motto has ever been, "Strict compliance with all moral, religious, and civil duties," which caused him to take a bold stand for right and truth; therefore, be it Resolved, 1. That in his death we have lost a most valued friend, a brother, father, and a noble man, and that we deeply sorrow in his death.

2. That our hearts are filled with sympathy for the bereaved family of the deceased, and that we can only point them to the All-wise God of the universe, who rules all things well. He can give them solace; he will richly reward them that diligently serve him.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, to the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, Monroe Bulletin, and Jackson Independent.

Respectfully submitted.

Little PATRICK HENRY LIPSCOMB, son of J. N. and Mamie Lipscomb, died at Anguilla, Miss., on June 11, 1902. The remains were brought to Flora, Miss., and interred in the old family burying-ground. He was born July 30, 1896, being five years ten months and eleven days old at his death. He was a bright, amiable and sweet-natured child, and a favorite of all who knew him. He had learned, in his short life, to be very helpful to the loved ones of the home, and would always run to meet the fond and loving father, and thus sweeten the tired steps with a smile and a childish welcome into the home. While this precious little child lived it gladdened the hearts of all in the home, but now that sweet little mission on earth is ended, and the hearts that were glad are now filled with sadness. But the shortness of life is no indication that its mission is ended, for the memory of that little body, and the sight of the sacred spot at the old home where it was laid to rest, will open fountains of love for Him who doeth all things well as nothing else can do. May the Lord comfort the bereaved family in this very sad hour! May they strive to meet little Pat, and their other dear little one who went a few weeks before, in the bright, bright world beyond, where they shall be raptured forever and ever as blessed babes in the paradise of God!

J. R. JONES.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

Saves Time, Health and Money.

Time is money. "I have used Hughes' Tonic with the best success, and have recommended it to friends, who say it always cures. In cases where months were formerly lost from occupation, by taking this Tonic, chills and fever are kept off, thereby saving time, health and money." Sold by Druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

ROBINSON-PETTET Co., (Inc.)
Louisville.

We will, until further notice, send the "Short History" and the ADVOCATE one year, to all subscribers, new or renewing, for TWO DOLLARS cash, the subscriber to pay cost of sending the money. If checks are sent, ten cents must be added. The price of the history is sixty cents. It will be mailed postpaid. We would like to have many orders on this proposition during the dull months of the Summer.

Very many of our subscribers are behind in payment, and the time of many more is just expiring. Please send what is due. If you can not send the whole, send part. We need the money. Please do not wait another week!

On Aug. 16 the Texas and Pacific Railway Company will sell round-trip tickets to St. Louis at rate of $12, and to Chicago for $15. Tickets limited for return to Aug. 31, 1902.

Here Is Your Chance.

The Queen and Crescent Route takes pleasure in announcing to residents of the territory served by its splendid fast trains that on Aug. 16, 1902, it will sell round-trip excursion tickets, limited for return passage to Aug. 31, to the following resorts and cities, and at the very low rates enumerated below from stations on the New Orleans and Northeastern and Alabama and Vicksburg railways:

Chicago and return	$15
St. Louis "	12
Cincinnati "	14
Louisville	12
Old Pt. Comfort and return	18
Hot Springs, Va., and return	18
Deer Park, Md., and return	20
Asheville and return	14
Hot Springs, N. C., and return	14
Roanoke, Va., and return	18
Norfolk, Va., and return	18
Niagara Falls and return	20
Lake Chautauqua and return	20
Virginia Beach and return	18

The above list of very low rates makes it possible to visit at a slight expense either the prominent cities of the North, the mountain resorts of North Carolina and Virginia, the Atlantic sea-coast, or the inland waters and majestic Falls of Niagara.

Ample train accommodations will be afforded, and the class of service will be fully up to the high standard already established. If you have not felt that you could take a Summer trip because of the expense, this opportunity, unparalleled heretofore, must certainly give you a chance to get a few days' respite from the drudgery of ordinary duties, and afford you an opportunity to recuperate wasted tissues, or to enjoy to the limit the pleasure of a trip.

Particular attention is called to the very extensive list of points to which these low-rate tickets are to be sold. Never before has so liberal an arrangement been offered.

For full particulars, time schedules, etc., apply to your home ticket agent.

It is suggested that you make your arrangements as early as possible, so that we may know how many will go, and thereby be able to furnish necessary facilities. Sleeping-car space, etc., can be secured at once.

Glances at the World.

The great strike of miners in the anthracite coal region of Pennsylvania, which has been on for more than a month, and without any prospect of coming to an end, has greatly disturbed business in other cities besides those of Pennsylvania, and has been the cause of loss of millions of dollars, both to the miners and to the owners. There has been much disturbance, the striking miners interfering to keep men from work who desired to do so. Once or twice soldiers were employed to keep the peace. The miners have long since exhausted their means, and are being supported mostly by contributions from other labor organizations. It requires many thousands of dollars a day. How long the strike will be maintained, nobody knows. The owners seem to be determined to resist the demands of the miners, and the miners seem determined to hold on to the bitter end. The situation emphasizes very plainly the necessity for a court of arbitration, or some compulsory means of putting an end to such destructive strikes.

The merits of the great strike we do not fully understand, but we feel sure that where so many men have quit work, and subjected themselves and their families to such suffering, there must be a grievance, not fancied, but real. On the other hand, it must be that the mine owners feel that the demands of the men are excessive, else they would not sacrifice so much in maintaining their position. There must be middle ground. This could be determined by judicious and disinterested men. Surely such men can be found.

Of course, it is no easy thing to submit to arbitration. One side or the other is likely to lose all that is in arbitration, for arbitration does not mean compromise; but no sort of judgment can be worse than a prolonged and bitter strife such as is on in the anthracite region. Perhaps this needs qualification, for a committee of arbitration in a case recently rendered a decision which shows that it is possible for a party to suffer at the hands of the judges. Two non-union men were employed at Albany, N. Y., as motormen on the street railway. The union men at once demanded their discharge, and because the company declined to discharge them, the union men struck. A Board of Arbitration was agreed upon, and they decided the matter in short order. Their decision was that the two men who were objectionable to the union should be discharged, on the ground that "their continuance in the employment of the company would be a source of constant friction to their fellow-employees, and would be detrimental to the best interests of the company." Such decisions as that virtually place corporations in the hands of the unions, and make arbitration a subject of ridicule. But let us hope that all arbitrators have more judgment and sense of fairness than the one just named.

The poor old Pope of Rome has once more had his hopes dashed to pieces. It is said that he was sadly disappointed that Governor Taft did not come to the Vatican as a diplomatic representative of the United States, but as a plain business man for business purposes. He and his court tried hard to play the diplomatic role, but Gov. Taft would have none of it. He cut short his visit, and proceeded to Manila, notifying the Vatican that the business would be concluded at his own seat of government, and he might have added, in his own way, for, notwithstanding the politeness of Gov. Taft, the friars will be removed. We think Rome sees this, and will acquiesce. But the Holy Father is in another trouble. This time it is in France, and over the schools. It is the same old trouble—a desire and purpose on the part of Rome to control education, and, with education, to connect sectarian instruction. In the struggle now going on, it is not the purpose of France to break up the Roman Catholic schools, but to register them; and the law, if we understand it, which applies to all congregational schools, requires schools to be licensed by the State. Such schools as decline to recognize and obey the law are to be closed. Many of them decline, and hence the trouble. But the State is stronger than the Church, and fearing that great trouble will ensue, Cardinal Rampolla is reported as in favor of "temporizing with France," by which we suppose is meant, assuming for the time being an attitude of conciliation. Evidently the papacy is losing its hold on the French people. It is well.

Cuba seems to be in trouble. Congress failed to pass a relief measure, either by way of reciprocity or reduction of tariff, and, in consequence, it is said the sugar producers will not be able to cultivate and market their crops. To prevent disaster, the Cuban Government has been seeking to float a loan in the United States to the amount of thirty-five millions of dollars. It is doubtful whether the loan can be secured. There are two obstacles in the way. One is, lack of faith in the Cuban Government, and the other is, the "Platt amendment," which, it is said, forbids anything of the kind. Now, it is stated that "the Cuban Government is neglecting the sanitary measures adopted by Governor Wood in Havana and Santiago, and that outbreaks of yellow fever are feared. The excuse given for this neglect, imperiling not only those Cuban cities, but also our own Southern ports, is that the failure of Congress to make tariff concessions has deprived Cuba of a market for her sugar, thus cutting down imports in exchange and reducing customs revenue." But the figures as to revenue receipts appear to be against Cuba. They indicate that the government is fully able to continue the sanitary work. Under the Platt amendment the United States has the right to insist that Cuba observe the law, and the administration will certainly insist, should the health of Cuba, or our Southern ports, be imperiled.

Observations.

BY DR. T. B. HOLLOMAN.

Five hundred miles from home, and among strangers; yet not among strangers, for there is a certain bond of union which we all must acknowledge, and kindred spirits will find each other; so I have met with only kindness from all and sympathy from many. The purpose of my coming is to try the virtue of these waters and the efficacy of the treatment upon that most harassing trouble, sciatica. For the scientific definition I leave my readers to the books and physicians, to those who have never suffered (and I devoutly hope that none of my readers may). I can better give an idea by comparing it to a constant toothache as long as the leg—never ceasing, never remitting. From the annoyance of a dull, heavy throb to the acuteness of a two-edged sword piercing to the dividing of the joints, one cries out, "Sleep, sleep; oh, for rest in sleep!" With that nobility of spirit and depth of true sympathy which, I think, is possessed by Methodist preachers as, perhaps, by none others, my brethren said to me, "Go, and we'll do your work;" so, with abiding consciousness of my obligation to them, and an inexpressible gratitude, I am here seeking relief.

SOUR LAKE.

These springs are near the Southern Pacific railroad, about three hundred miles west of New Orleans. Nature has made here deposits which, for the relief of suffering humanity, can not be denied. As Dr. Mud (see later) says, "Remedies from the foundations of the earth." Why the owners have given so little attention to the proper and more satisfactory arrangements of the sanitarium, I fail to understand.

DR. MUD.

No resident physician, no chemist, the medical department is turned over to the wisdom (?) of Dr. Mud entirely, to whom you report, and from whom you get your prescription. This famous personage is an old, infirm negro, whose name comes from his knowledge of where to get certain kinds of dirt and make them into a soft mud. One feels, when he comes before him, that he is burlesquing a noble profession and doing violence to his common sense.

TREATMENT.

The treatment is unique. In addition to drinking the waters, the patient plasters himself over with this mud, waits until it dries, and then washes it off in one of the pools prepared. So I go back to the sports of my boyhood, of once every day making a mud man, setting him up to dry, and then washing him away. "Backward, turn backward, O time, in your flight."

INDUSTRIES.

Over the nine miles which we came from the depot to the springs there was very little evidence of population or thrift. The stock business, which, until recently, occupied these people, has ceased to be, and the land is of such character as to make farming unprofitable. Those with whom I have talked say it is the finest of rice land, if the water question could be met. Ah! there's the rub. Living water is not to be had, and artesian is too expensive.

OIL FIELDS.

The seekers after oil have found this place, and there are within a half mile square ten or a dozen wells. If the evidences of oil, as shown to me, are to be relied upon, there is an enormous supply beneath the earth here. The indications are flat round mounds like plates turned upside down on a table, and based upon these indications and the discovery of oil adjoining, lands are held at fabulous prices. The collecting of the oil is simple. Simply collecting in shallow ponds and running by ditches into a large pool dug out in the earth. From these pools pumped into large pipes, which conveys to destination. It is an interesting sight to see an engine run by burning oil. And on the railroads it is a delight; little smoke and no cinders. The engineer steps out of his cab with as white collar and cuffs as if he had not been in charge of the train.

GUSHERS.

When a well is about to be "brought in," there is intense excitement; a gusher is hoped for, but if it proves only a pumper, "well, that is better." Such is man's disposition to comfort himself. "All is not gold that glitters;" so all is not oil that gushes. Gas, water, mud, and that's the end. One famous one, "Mt. Pelee," blew up with fearful wreckage to plant and machinery, leaving only a big hole in the ground. All holes do not pour out oil, and one can imagine the disappointment when there has been a clear loss of every dollar put in.

WEATHER.

We have had unmistakable evidence during the past three days that it can rain in Texas when it tries. My, what thunder and downpours!

With thanks to you, Mr. Editor, for the papers received to-day, I must close this already too long communication.

SOUR LAKE, Texas, July 26, 1902

The Baptist Church and Evangelists.

I was much impressed with the action of the Baptist State Convention, which recently met in Water Valley, Miss., in electing a State evangelist. They selected the finest man they could lay their hands on, and propose paying him a salary of one hundred dollars a month. As I understand the duties of this evangelist, he is not only to aid his brethren in the organized churches, but is to travel throughout the destitute sections of the State with a view of organizing Sabbath-schools and establishing appointments. This is the first time I remember of this church taking a stand like this, though many self-constituted evangelists have been abroad on a similar mission. This was a wise move on the part of our sister church, and will be followed by far-reaching and lasting results.

A striking illustration of the effect of this move may be seen in the Campbellite Church of the State of Mississippi. A few years ago there were thousands of Mississippians who did not know there was such a church; but where is the Methodist minister in the State to-day who has not met the State evangelist of this church, or come in contact with his work? There are to-day many churches where a few years ago there was not a member. This is the result of the very same kind of move just taken by the Baptists. At one time the Presbyterians put a man in the field, but did not keep him there long enough to accomplish much.

We, as a church, need this office badly. There are destitute sections of our State needing attention. There are weak charges needing help. In some places we have lost communities which to-day might have been Methodist, had we entered them. In other places the way is opened, if we will go. In other places we need to confirm what we have, or, to use a Pauline expression, "establish the churches" already organized.

In answer to all this, it is said the pastors ought to do that work, and if they did their duty, all this work would be accomplished. I answer:

1. The pastors of the Methodist Church are just as faithful and diligent as the pastors of any church in the world, and, considering the price a Methodist preacher pays to be an itinerant, his devotion is unparalleled. It is an injustice to say all this needed work would be accomplished if the pastors did their duty.

2. Many of our "station" preachers have from three to four services to attend every Sabbath in their own churches, besides numerous week-day services, and a multiplicity of duties to attend to besides; yet many of these men find time to get out into the surrounding country to hold services for the people, often paying their own living bills. Our men on circuits have from four to eight appointments each month, and from three hundred to five hundred members scattered over a territory from three hundred to one thousand square miles, every one of whom expects to be visited; yet many of these men find time for extra work. The pastors can not do this missionary work.

Brookhaven District Conference.

On Tuesday afternoon, June 24, 1902, quite a number of the preachers and laymen of the Brookhaven district gathered in the little city of Bogue Chitto, and after partaking of the hospitality of the home of that prince of laymen, Bro. B. E. Brister, were conveyed on his private railroad to Auburn, where the session of the District Conference was to be held. On the arrival of the train Bro. W. J. Ferguson, the pastor of the Adams charge, assisted by a number of the good laymen, took charge, and soon we were in the carriages being conveyed to our temporary homes.

On Wednesday morning, the twenty-fifth instant, under the tabernacle at Adams Church, Rev. B. F. Jones, the presiding elder, called to order the Preachers' Institute. The entire day was devoted to the reading of carefully prepared papers and interesting discussions of the fundamental doctrines of the church, and when late in the afternoon the Institute adjourned, all were impressed with the fact that the day had been one of great profit.

The next day was devoted to the work of the Sunday-school Institute, and the work of the school, and the best methods of carrying on this work, were discussed by those who had been previously appointed.

On Friday morning the District Conference convened, over which the presiding elder presided. The usual standing and special committees were appointed. All of the pastors, except three, were present, and nearly every charge was represented by one, or more, laymen. There were also a number of local preachers present. During the entire session, which lasted two days, prominence was given to the preaching of the Word, and each session was marked with the presence and power of the Holy Spirit. The brethren were bound together with the cords of love, and though at times the discussions were animated, still we realized that we were one in Christ.

The reports of the pastors were encouraging, and showed an increase in spirituality, evidenced by an increase in the attendance upon the preaching of the Word, the ordinances of the church, and the support of the institutions of the church. All the pastors seemed to agree that the district would pay the Conference assessments in full, and thus put the district in the front ranks. A number of new churches and some parsonages had been erected during the year, and in other charges old debts had been liquidated, and the homes of the preachers made more comfortable.

The Conference granted license to preach to S. N. Young, J. B. King, W. A. Hays; and recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial, H. T. Carley, W. A. Hays, and S. N. Young.

The lay members elected as delegates to the Annual Conference are: J. E. Carruth, H. G. Godbold, B. E. Summers, and E. H. Wentworth, with B. E. Brister and N. E. Alford, alternates.

Prof. A. H. Shannon was present, and presented the claims of Millsaps College, while the interests of Whitworth Female College were laid before the Conference by the ex-vice-president and business manager, Rev. M. L. Burton, who also spoke in behalf of the Orphans' Home at Water Valley.

Bogue Chitto was selected as the place for holding the next District Conference.

Resolutions of thanks to the pastor and church at Adams, and to all others who had assisted in making the Conference such a decided success, were adopted.

When we left the place where, for several days, we had associated with each other, and together communed with the great Head of the church, we felt that we had all been strengthened and prepared for better service.

To the presiding elder, who had previously arranged all the programmes, very much of credit is due for profitable season enjoyed; and the preachers of the Brookhaven district are more than ever convinced that the Bishop made no mistake when he appointed B. F. Jones presiding elder.

A Plea for Seashore Camp Ground.

BY MRS. FANNIE MINOR MONTGOMERY.

I trust that my old friend and young brother, H. W. Rickey, will pardon me if I take exception to his article in the ADVOCATE relative to the change he would make in the purpose and aim of Seashore Camp Ground. The founders of that beautiful institution of our church had primarily in view the salvation of souls, the building up of the Master's cause, and the spread of his kingdom. All else was of secondary and unimportant consideration.

Brother Rickey would change this, and would substitute a Summer Chautauqua, or, in other words, a place of worldly recreation and amusement, for to this it would speedily and inevitably descend. Does our brother know? Can he possibly be aware that one of the leading lecturers of C. L. S. C. has for a subject this season, "The Development of the Drama—The Elizabethan Theatre"?

Can the great Methodist Church be so false to her noble trust, her grandly beautiful commission, as to set such Baal worship as this before the young of her flock? If so, she will share the curse which overtook Baalim when he perished among the enemies of Israel.

Nearly twenty years ago our lamented brother, John O. Keener—worthy son of an honored sire—warned the people of God of the danger of turning Seashore Camp-Ground from its God-given mission; and to-day his voice is ringing in my ears, crying, "Woe to the tendency! woe to the tendency!"

"Woe to them that call evil good, and good evil; that put darkness for light, and light for darkness; that put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter!"

When you meet with neglect, let it rouse you to exertion instead of mortifying your pride. Set about lessening those defects which expose you to neglect, and improve those excellences which command attention and respect.—Selected.

INFANT BAPTISM—No. 12.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION VII.

Now, in what sense must the speaker have understood the sentence in question, "The promise is to you, and to your children"? "In order to know this, we must consider who the speaker was, and from what source he received his religious knowledge. The apostle was a Jew. He knew that he himself had been admitted in infancy, and that it was the ordinary practice of the church to admit infants to membership. And he likewise knew that in this they acted on the authority of that place where God promises to Abraham 'to be a God unto him, and to his seed.'" (Edwards) I appeal to the candor and intelligence of anyone: How was it possible for the apostle to understand his words in any other sense than this, in the absence of any explanation to the contrary by the Savior?

But in what sense must his hearers have understood him when he said, "The promise is unto you, and your children"?

"The context informs us that many of St. Peter's hearers, as he himself was, were Jews. They had been accustomed for many hundred years to receive infants by circumcision into the church; and this they did, as before observed, because God had promised to be a God to Abraham and his seed. They had understood this promise to mean parents and their infant offspring, and this idea was become familiar by the practice of many centuries. What, then, must have been their views, when one of their own community says to them, 'The promise is unto you, and your seed'? If their practice of receiving infants was founded on a promise exactly similar—as it was—how could they possibly understand him, but as meaning the same thing, since he himself used the same mode of speech? This must have been the case, unless we admit the absurdity, that they understood him in a sense to which they had never been accustomed." (Edwards.)

The apostle and many of his hearers were well acquainted with Jewish proselyte baptism also, and well knew that it was administered to infants. Furthermore, they were aware of the fact that the Lord had substituted this baptism in the room of circumcision, as the initiatory rite into his church, without uttering one word forbidding its application to infants. How, then, could the apostle have uttered, and the people received the words, "Repent and be baptized, . . . for the promise is unto you, and to your children," in any other sense than that both they and their infants were to be baptized? It is the veriest nonsense to assume any other hypothesis. "Add to all this the fact that they were taught by Christ himself, and the apostles afterwards; that their same church was yet in existence, was not destroyed or annulled, and that they had never heard as yet of any change being effected in reference to their children. How could they, then, believe otherwise than that their 'little ones' still had a place with them in church privileges and blessings? Add, also, that amongst the varied objections the Jews brought against the Christian system, so called, they never once held or urged that children were excluded," which they, no doubt, would have done with even greater vehemence, as it was an innovation and encroachment upon their church relations, than did its first opposers way down in the fifteenth century, and the Anti-Pedobaptists do to-day, because infant baptism had been practiced for thousands of years before they came into existence. This, of itself, would have been an insuperable obstacle in the way of the Jews receiving the gospel. Their silence, then, gives additional force to the fact that children were still held as proper subjects of church relation, and, consequently, to the signing and sealing rite of the same.

We repeat here what was said in a former section. "When a positive institute is connected with a promise, all who are contained in the promise have a right to the institute. If parents must, therefore, be circumcised because they are included in the promise, then, as infants are included in the promise, they, too, must be circumcised. . . . Then, if parents must be baptized because the promise belongs to them (and Peter said they should be baptized, because the promise belongs to them), then must their infants be baptized, because the promise belongs to them also." (Clement.)

What more positive institute would any require to establish a fact than that contained in the words of Peter when he said, "Repent, and be baptized, . . . for the promise is unto you, and to your children"? Here are the facts. God made a covenant with Abraham which contained a promise. (Gen. xvii, 1–14.) This same covenant was renewed with Isaac (Gen. xxvi, 3, 4), and also with Jacob (Gen. xxviii, 10–15). This promise is designated, by way of eminence, "the promise," by Peter himself. (Acts xiii, 32, 33) Abraham was admitted to this covenant of promise upon his "faith" (Rom. iv, 3–11), and his infant Isaac was also admitted, but without "faith." (Gen. xvii, 7–14; Gal. iii, 16.) There was a "sign" and "seal" to this covenant, which was circumcision, and Abraham received it at ninety years of age (Gen. xvii, 24), and Isaac at eight days old (Gen. xxi, 4). This "sign" and "seal" was for all his children. (Gen. xvii, 10.) His children are the "faithful" adults and their "children"—the same classes as those with whom the covenant was first made. (Rom. iv, 11–13.) No class has been expelled, neither man nor male-child, but females have been added. (Gal. iii, 27–29.) Neither has "the promise" contained in the covenant, in any sense, been annulled (Gal. iii, 17), for the "law," which was added four hundred and thirty years afterwards, was only "added because of trangressions" until Christ, "the promise," should come and set it aside, he having "fulfilled the law." (Gal. iii, 17–19.) Hence the promise, and those to whom it was given, still abide, and only its sign and seal is changed to a fuller and more comprehensive one — baptism. (Gal. iii, 27, 28.) Now, Peter, whom we have seen calls the covenant of promise made with Abraham, "the promise" (Acts xiii, 32, 33), says to the people, "Repent, and be baptized, . . . for 'the promise' is unto you, and to your children." He positively means that "the promise" made to Abraham and to his infant offspring, conveying to them the salvation and blessings in Christ, which was sealed to them by the rite of circumcision, is also to "you, and to your children," which now is to be sealed by the rite of baptism. I assert that this amounts to a demonstration that infants are entitled to the initiatory ordinance of baptism. Nothing but stubbornness, or a desire to serve a purpose, could make one fail to see this in any other light. There is not a court of law or equity in all this land that would hesitate in rendering a verdict for the affirmative upon this evidence. It is fully established according to rules laid down by Mr. Greenlief in his "Laws of Evidence."

"O foolish" Anti-Pedoes, "who hath bewitched you, that you should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth, crucified among you?" (Gal. iii, 1.)

The Primary Class, the Teacher, and the Methods.

BY MISS CORA HARRINGTON.

The primary class of the Sunday-school is oftentimes considered of little importance, while it should be regarded as the first class in every respect. In our day-schools the primary department receives special attention; the teachers are selected with great care. Our Sunday-schools should give this department the same place in importance. The foundation work of the higher classes begin in the primary class, which is composed of the tender buds of the Sunday-school. That these little buds may blossom perfectly requires the sunlight of a perfect teacher. It is here that the second part of the subject comes, "The Teacher."

To teach at all is a work of grave responsibility, but to teach the Bible to childhood in the one formative period of life is a peculiarly sacred vocation. Dr. Hamill says, "The teacher who is not a Christian in deed and in truth discredits the sacred place he holds, and daubs with untempered mortar." But how often we see the teachers who, in "deed and truth," are not Christians. They may be fitted ever so well in the educational lines, which is necessary in the making of a good teacher; yet, should their union with Christ be incomplete, they are not fit for the sacred duties of a Sunday-school teacher, and especially a primary teacher. In this department, as in no other, the little folks often take their teacher as their model. Then how careful should we be in our lives before them.

The first thing I must do when my class is given me is in some way possess the love of the class. Unless you have won the love of your pupils, your work will be hard. Let me have the sweet, pure affections of a little child; then I can lead them to Christ. Be a faithful friend to each in the class. Let them know by your constant kindnesses to them that you are interested in them all the week as well as on Sunday morning while in the class. Be a thorough-going, intelligent, faithful church member, exercising much self-denial, and thereby set before them a good example.

A teacher's best work is along the line of training—training to Christian character. Especially is this true of the primary teacher. This training is a noble and far-reaching work, an opportunity and responsibility unsurpassed. So the wise Sunday-school teacher must study the temper and dispositions of his pupils, and find along what lines of training his work must proceed. Study their home surroundings, visit them in their homes, and interest the parents in your work, and secure co-operation with your plans.

Dr. Hamill speaks beautifully of the duties of the teacher when he says: "A teacher must be the 'shepherd of his flock.' He carries, or ought to carry, the marks of the Good Shepherd upon him. He knows his sheep. He finds pasture for them. His sheep know his voice, and are known of him, and follow him. What Christ was to the twelve, the teacher must seek to be to his scholars—teacher, comforter, friend, overseer, pastor."

Now, let us consider the last part of the subject, "The Methods." Of course, for the primary work the story-telling method is best of all. The teacher carefully prepares the lesson with the needs of each little heart in mind; then reduces it to a very simple story within the understanding of the class. She uses pictures, blackboard drawings and objects to aid in the understanding and interest of the story. The children should be required to repeat the story, that any corrections may be made. The teacher must bear in mind that this method can be abused by letting her imagination take the story beyond the Bible. As far as possible, let the story be as it is in the Bible, and let accuracy of statements be one aim of the teacher.

It must be remembered that it is with children as with plants—some mature and ripen much earlier than others. Keep this in mind while preparing the lesson, and feed the more mature and active minds with sufficient food; but do not give them the greater attention—the dull ones must be drawn out. Study to catch their attention by surprises. Each lesson should be thoroughly drilled, singly and in concert, over and over, until the lesson is well understood, and the two most important things—the subject of the lesson and the Golden Text—is firmly rooted in the pupils' minds. Go beyond the concrete things of the lesson into the spiritual; have the lessons take hold of the tender conscience; then you will have reached the goal of all true teaching. Let us strive, most of all, to be able to say at the last, as Christ did the night before he died: "While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them are lost."

Daleville, Miss.

Missionary Institute.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: A very enthusiastic and largely attended Missionary Institute was held in the Methodist Church at Itta Bena, under the auspices of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. The attendance was good, the attention was excellent, the singing was truly congregational, and we hope the good accomplished was far-reaching. Itta Bena, notwithstanding the fact that there are two evangelical churches, with two Sunday-schools, two prayer meetings, two Epworth Leagues, and one B. Y. P. U., two Ladies' Aid Societies, and two Woman's Missionary Societies, with near 400 white inhabitants, the greater portion of whom belong to the church, still is far from being truly missionary in belief and practice. Too often we hear those old, long-since-exploded, silly and puerile objections to missionary enterprises, such as: the heathen standard of morality far exceeds our own, and that we have no more right to interfere with the heathen in his faith and practice than the heathen to interfere with us in our faith and practice, and others too childish to mention. However, we believe that the missionary spirit is steadily growing, and we expect to wipe out the disgrace of remaining contentedly in Class "G," as shown in the table of Comparative Statistics, 1901, and to take our place in Class "A" in our next annual report.

On the occasion of which we write, several very strong papers on live missionary questions were read. Miss Mattie J. Emerson's paper, "The Meaning of Missions," was thoughtful, logical, and convincing. In words well chosen the meaning of Christ's last command was enforced, and the duty to "Go" or "Send" was laid bare before all. We are sure that this paper was not presented in vain. Mrs. Lawrence, a good Episcopal lady, who enthusiastically labors with our good women in all their missionary enterprises, presented a paper, "The Missionary Conscience," followed by "The Teacher's Value in the Foreign Field," presented by Mrs. Edwards, of our own church. These papers were strong and forceful. Other papers were read, "What Great Men Think of Missions," and "The Cost of Converting the Heathen," by Mr. J. F. Cowell and Miss Henri Reese, respectively.

The Epworth League hour was profitably spent in hearing "The Present Crisis," "God in the Crisis," "Questions and Answers on China," and "Scriptural Authority for Missionary Enterprises" papers ably written, forcefully read, and carefully listened to.

The pastor preached morning and evening from Gen. xlii, 21. We are convinced, Mr. Editor, that the Prophet Hosea's lament, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge," is eminently true of us to-day. The missionary cause to-day suffers for lack of knowledge. As a rule, people, when they are made to understand the real meaning of missions, do not reject, but heartily co-operate with the pastor in his missionary endeavors. And also the missionary spirit of a people will rise no higher than the missionary spirit of the pastor of that people. The writer has in mind a pastor, now gone to his reward, who was sent to serve a work away back from all railroads and towns, and where contentedness in ignorance reigned supreme. For years not a single dollar had ever been raised for the foreign missionary cause, and the very mention of sending money to the Chinese was sufficient to arouse an antagonism that at times assumed dangerous proportions. This faithful pastor began, the first of the year, in the homes to explain the meaning of missions, and when the Conference year closed he was able to report "all assessments in full," together with revivals in every church, and a new parsonage without one dollar of indebtedness. The reason for all this is apparent. First, that pastor was truly imbued with the missionary spirit; and, second, he gave his people facts—facts that alone can put to flight the allied armies of ignorance.

We hear a great deal about "a missionary conscience." A missionary conscience is impossible where missionary knowledge is lacking. Our supreme duty, then, is to instruct, and a missionary conscience will as surely follow as effect follows cause.

"45,460 members assessed 30 cents, and paid 22 cents per member. Assessed 24 cents, and paid 17 cents per member for foreign missions. Assessed 6 cents, and paid 4 cents per member for domestic missions. 71 per cent. of assessment paid during year 1901; 68 per cent. of assessment was paid during year 1900."

While the per cent. of assessment paid during the year 1901 shows an increase over the per cent. of assessment paid during the year 1900, still, is it a voice of approval whispering in the pastor's ears, "Well done, good and faithful servant"? or is it a voice declaring, "O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you and suffer you"?

There are peculiar obligations devolving upon the ministry, and future missionary success depends upon how faithfully the ministry meets and discharges them. The hopes of the world are fixed upon the faithful preacher, and the cries of millions of Christless souls are daily poured into his ears. Let the people, then, know the heathen's need; let them hear the heathen's cry, and feel the heathen's woe, and we verily believe that the church of God will go down upon her knees in renewed consecration, and the heathen will be claimed as the rightful heritage of our Lord.

Brethren, "the assessment for foreign missions is the minimum" of the church's ability. Let us far exceed it. Fraternally,

W. E. M. BROGAN.

The Rescue Mission.

The Whosoever Will Rescue Mission, No. 608 Bienville street, New Orleans, La., have their doors open every night. They begin their services at 7:30 P. M. Religious services are conducted by some minister or layman, with the assistance of a band of men and women Christian workers who are members of various churches. They are always ready to sing and pray when called upon by the superintendent, and never ashamed to stand up as a living witness to testify what Jesus Christ has done for their souls, and how happy they are when they live close to Jesus. These testimonials are every night, and this mission is the only place in New Orleans where a child of God can go any night in the week to an old-fashion class meeting, and stand up as a living witness for the Lord Jesus Christ. If strangers who are passing through this city, and stopping over night, will come to the meeting, they will be surprised to see the results of this mission work. The congregations every night are of a mixed class of people: rich and poor, young and old; some dressed very neat, and some dressed very much in worn and torn clothes, and have seen hard and rough times.

It is surprising what honor the Almighty God has bestowed upon this mission. Why, almost every night from two to twelve men come up and kneel around the altar, and say: "Pray for me; I am tired of living this unhappy life. Oh, I want to find this Jesus you all sing and speak about. Do you think that there is any hope for me? I have sinned so long, and feel as if there is no hope." When these men kneel around the altar the Christian men and women come down from the platform and kneel beside them, and begin to pray to the Almighty God, in the name of Jesus, that the Holy Spirit will help them and forgive them; that Jesus may dwell and reign in their souls; and while they are upon their knees they sing a song, which makes it very impressive to a looker-on. There are a great number of converts from the mission who have gone away and stood firm, and also quite a number have remained in this city, and are making a good, honest living, and hold some very prominent positions.

The superintendent of the mission at present is C. M. Fush, an old resident of this city, and has always worked in missions. His assistant is Will T. Tuttle, a convert of three years, and he is hard at work trying to lead others to Jesus. The superintendent seems to be a man of faith. He has openly stated that Jesus Christ must honor this mission, and in his name do we plead for guidance through the Holy Spirit, and we must prove that God answers prayer. The superintendent has determined that he will not ask any person for money or clothing to carry on the mission, but simply by faith call upon the Lord Jesus for support, and he will touch the hearts of the people. He wishes to prove that the Bible is true, and God will honor his Word, as said Isaiah: "Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it can not help. For the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee. Fear not; I will help thee. Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? When thou seest the naked, that thou cover him, and that thou hide not thyself from him. Then shall thou call, and I will answer and guide thee continually." Upon these promises the superintendent has his faith, and feels satisfied that the Lord Jesus will help the mission, spiritually and financially. Shelter is given every night to a number of persons free, and in a very short time the superintendent says the good Lord will open the way, so we can give these poor boys and men a cup of coffee and a piece of bread every morning before they go out looking for work. He thinks it will be the means of destroying that craving for drink in the morning.

A WELL-WISHER.

Porterville, Miss.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: I have just closed a six days' meeting at Burton's Chapel. The Holy Spirit was with us, and great good was done. The entire church is revived, and family altars have been erected. We received four by baptism, one by profession of faith; baptized eight children; twenty-five professed conversion. The three last days of the meeting we had a real pentecostal scene at each service—men and women falling down at the altar, pouring out their very soul to God in prayer, in behalf of their sons and daughters. Brethren, pray for us.

News Items.

Mrs. Gross Alexander has presented the copyright of her book, "The Life and Work of Lucinda B. Helm," to the Woman's Board of Home Missions. This is a very generous gift, as it is at all times salable and invaluable to our work, since it gives the whole history since its organization. Before it is republished it will undergo revision.

At the recent called meeting of the Board, Miss Helm was requested to visit the Home Mission Societies of the Pacific coast, and carefully investigate the various schools maintained in California by this Board. She left for San Francisco, July 15.

A communication was received from the Woman's Home Mission Society of the Northwest Texas Conference, requesting the Board to locate a Deaconess Home at Waco, pledging to raise $1,500 this year. The pastors of Waco seconded the request, offering $1,750 now in bank, and pledging themselves to raise the remainder, making the full amount of the Deaconess Home, $5,000.

Miss Mary Helm, Miss Bennett, Mrs. R. W. McDonell, Mrs. J. D. Hammond, and Miss Maria L. Gibson, of the Scarritt Training-school, were appointed to draft By-laws and working plans for deaconesses and Deaconess Homes.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves?

In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility.

How are they expelled? By

which also builds up the system that has suffered from them.

It is the best medicine for all humors.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Be Accurate.

While there is always room for differences of opinion concerning the interpretation of many portions of Scripture, yet writers for Sunday-school periodicals ought to be accurate when they attempt to state facts. They ought also to guard against strained interpretations, or symbolizing that which was not intended for symbols. In every lesson text there is plenty of spiritual food without spiritualizing that which is only historical fact. Teachers also ought to guard against these two things.

We are led to say these things because of many inaccuracies we have found in the comments in different periodicals on the lessons for this quarter, in the plain statement of facts. For instance: One writer for little children said that the tabernacle court was just twice as large as the Bible text says it was. And for strained interpretation, commend us to the author of a popular series of studies on the Bible, who makes the story of Jonah typify the history of the Jews during the past, as well as making it a prophecy of their future. This is an extreme case, but we think there is too much symbolizing.

Writers for children, as well as every Sunday-school teacher, even in the primary departments, should be accurate where accuracy is possible. Be plain, be accurate, use simple language, and aim at the heart and not the imagination.

Use Your Talents.

Last Fall a young lady who had graduated at one of our best American colleges with honor came home to live with her father, who was the pastor of a little church in the suburbs of a large city. This bright young girl, alive to the tips of her fingers, thoroughly equipped for good work, looked eagerly around her to find what she could best do to help her father and the church, and to make herself of service and blessing to the community. She quickly decided that, for one thing, she could gather in a class of young women about her own age into the Sunday-school. She set to work, and, one after another, she gathered about her a group of girls, until there were twenty-two of them. Then, as the year was drawing to a close, and special religious interest was being awakened in the church, she was deeply impressed that no one else had quite as good an opportunity to win these young women to Christ as herself. She gave herself over to the task. She visited each one of them personally, and used all the powers of her good native endowment and her splendid education, consecrated as they were to the service of God, to persuade these young women to dedicate their lives to Christ. The result was that on Sunday morning, the first Sunday in the new year, at the morning service, that young teacher went to the altar with all that flock of twenty-two girls about her; and they knelt before the altar of the church, making an open confession of Christ as their King and their Lord.

Was there ever a more beautiful piece of work than that? I have written about it because I feel constrained to lay the emphasis upon the privilege of the Sunday-school teacher as a winner of souls. It seems to me that many college men and women who are desirous of working for God and serving humanity, let Sunday-school teaching go by without appreciating the splendid chance there is in it for real service. Surely there was no other work to which this young woman could have consecrated even her fine abilities, that would have done so much good in the same time.—Dr. Banks, in Sunday-School Times.

We notice from the reports of District Conferences that several of them had a Sunday-school hour. This is a hopeful sign. It shows increasing interest in the matter of set curing better methods of work. A discussion of Sunday-school subjects at our District Conferences not only tends to secure better methods, but it helps create a better Sunday-school sentiment. And, after all, a better sentiment is what is most needed. Whenever there is a good Sunday-school sentiment in a community, that community will get and use the most approved methods of work.

McComb City Mission.

At Navilla School-house, about three miles southeast of our city, there is a neighborhood of some forty or fifty girls and boys between the age of fifteen and twenty-four, to say nothing of the smaller children. The older ones seem to be at ease in Zion. These boys and girls are nearly all sinners, or were until that godly man, Rev. J. W. Chambers, opened on them Monday, July 21, with the assistance, once a day, of Rev. Edgar, of Whitestown. The Methodists were six strong a few years ago at the Mission Sunday-school. We are glad to report nineteen now. The superintendent was the only man that would pray for us, and last night, at the close of service, he asked for the children who would and had prayed in public to stand up. There were nine girls and three young men. Bro. Chambers, on Wednesday night, asked how many could answer the question, "Is your heart right with God?" either by speaking or giving him their hand. Twenty-two spoke out, and thirty gave him their hand.

Bro. Boswell, it was indeed touching to hear young ladies and boys at the altar, through Bro. Chambers' invitation to come and ask God for what they wanted: "Father, give me a pure heart;" "Oh, God, save my papa." Mothers speaking, begging for themselves and their children; yes, for we were one of them. We know there was joy; yet sorrow lingers still in some hearts.

We don't know how many ministeres there are like Bro. Chambers, but we do know that he follows close in the steps of Jesus, not only in teaching, preaching, and singing the Word, for we know he goes down in his pocket and carries the lame to the inn, tells the owner to take care of them, and says, "When I come again, whatever you spend more, I will pay you." We know it. Then he goes out where there is no money, and holds a few days' revival; walks from house to house over the thick pine straw, preaching, and singing and begging the lost to come to Jesus and be saved.

This is the result of our meeting: Ten new members, aged from eight to fifty-four; eighteen praying in public; about sixty, all told, revived, and seventy-eight on Sunday-school roll. We have no church-house, but watch us. We are indeed poor in money, but we have the promise to our little flock.

Rev. Ira B. Robertson, Aug. 1, 1902, writes: "Dr. Boswell: The Lord is with us in saving power. I have just closed a protracted meeting at Mt. Vernon, where I was efficiently assisted by two local preachers: Bro. M. Ferral, of the Brookhaven district, and Bro. J. B. Anders, of Natchez district. They did good service. There were ten accessions, several conversions, and a general spiritual uplift. We are advancing on Homochitto charge. To God be all the praise."

Louisiana Conference.

Wesley Circuit.

Dear Advocate: We have just closed three meetings on Wesley circuit—at Wesley, Carroll Creek, and Holly Springs. All of these meetings were signal victories for the Lord Jesus. The people at the last two places say that it was the best service that they have had there in ten years. Bros. Dare, Hayes, and William Hebert are strong preachers of God's Word, and God answered by fire. Sin found no quarters, and many who had the idea that religion meant going to church, and nothing more, came to the altar, and begged for and found mercy. The Word of God was given the people without any fanciful stories of mothers and loved ones in heaven, but they made Jesus to be lovely, and sin and uncleanness to be exceedingly sinful and unclean. Men would be glad to get to the altar alive. Praise God for about twenty-five souls saved. Bro. Hayes is a unique character, delivering the Word in a way that moves men. Praise God for young men on fire for God, who are clean from formality and tobacco. Oh, God, give us a multitude of such young men as Bros. Hayes and Hebert. Many precious souls are hungry for the Sanctifier, and we are looking for many to touch the touch-stone of power. We have had twenty accessions this year.

We begin our meeting at Campti next Wednesday.

Our camp meeting at Davis' Springs will be opened by Bro. Sawyer on Aug. 24, and will close Sept. 7.

About forty-eight per cent. of our salary paid up to date.

Winona District.

The work within the bounds of the Winona district is in hopeful and growing condition. We have had, and are having, good Quarterly Conferences. Our District Conference was an enjoyable and helpful occasion. Two Bishops left little for the presiding elder to do. The preachers and people of the Winona district are a loyal and a royal set. They are true to our Conference and connectional interests. Missions hold a foremost place in their esteem and efforts. Christian education commands their hearty sympathy and loyal devotion. They have paid in cash to the Twentieth Century Fund more than three thousand dollars.

From its foundation Millsaps College has been well patronized, comparatively speaking. This year we have the promise of twenty-five girls for Grenada. The college—its policy, its course of study, its president, its faculty, its business manager—have the fullest confidence and approval of preachers and people in the Winona district.

TO THE LADIES.

Freedom from aches, good general and special health and bodily vigor, tend to render you happy, contented and attractive—to make life worth living and fit you for pleasure of that.

What's the use of dragging things—you experience only half alive to all opportunities and enjoyments? Why do many of you do it? Is it because you think there is no cure? Then you are very much mistaken. Women are made much alike—all are subject to or liable to the same drains, pains, aches and nervousness. These ills come to many—may come to all.

G. F. P. has cured thousands of them, will cure the others if given a chance to do so.

"I had suffered for a year and three bottles has restored my health entirely. Physicians and the many female remedies used had no effect upon me whatever, but G. F. P. I owe my life. You have my permission to publish this letter that other suffering women may know of this wonderful remedy and be cured."—Mrs. Carrie Richardson, Grace, Miss.

One of the nicest facts about G. F. P. is that it cures women's special ills in the privacy of the home without offensive examinations or expensive treatment—there is no offended modesty and no wasted money.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea

is the best remedy in the world for the cure of all the diseases to which the female sex is peculiarly subject. It is not a new remedy, but on the contrary it is a very old one, being the prescription of a famous German physician who used it many years ago with such marvelous success that its formula has been carefully preserved and handed down to the present generation as a female tonic that has stood the test of time and trial without a single failure being recorded against it.

This medicine is sold by nearly all medicine dealers at the uniform price of $1.00 a bottle or six bottles for $5.00, but in case you cannot get it from your dealer it will be sent to you at the above prices, all charges (prepaid, if you send the money to

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THE NEW DISCIPLINE.

The new Discipline will soon be ready for distribution. Every Methodist home ought to have a copy. No official member can afford to be without one. Some radical changes by the General Conference in May were made, so that the old Discipline does not now contain all the laws of the church. From this date until the first of September we will furnish the new Discipline and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE one year for TWO DOLLARS cash. This offer applies to all who will pay up back dues to date, and renew their subscriptions, as well as to new subscribers who send the money. We ought to have several hundred answers to this proposition. Address,

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

The Sunday-school is largely, if not principally, relied on to train the young in the teachings of the Scriptures, and to make of them such characters as will bless the church and the world. But, if after all, it does not turn out a better class of men and voters than those who never attended a Sunday-school, the institution is worse than a failure. This thought was admirably and forcibly presented by Hon. T. M. Evans, in the Tri-State Epworth League Conference, in an address on Christian Citizenship. Sunday-school superintendents and teachers have a serious and responsible work.

Just why some preachers will declare that success always attends the efforts of a Holy-Ghost baptized man, and claim themselves to have the baptism, and yet utterly fail to arouse a sleeping sinner or an indifferent Christian, or why they tell one congregation what great things transpired under their ministry at a distant place, and fail to produce a single sign before the congregation to which they are talking, are things we are unable to understand. We are inclined to think that if such preachers would claim less and boast less, they would have more success.

Some people feel very keenly the sins of other people, but are scarcely conscious of their own shortcomings, to say nothing of their open, or secret, sins. It is impossible for them thus loaded to help others mend their ways. Our Lord said to such, "First cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye."

The best man in the world is only a sinner saved by grace. His holiness is as nothing compared to the holiness of God. Hence, with consistency, he may continue to plead for grace and purity, and say: "Every moment, Lord, I need the merit of thy death." When he gets beyond the need of such a prayer he is in a dangerous state. He needs to get back to first principles.

HOLY LIVING.

The call to holy living was never more imperative than it is to-day. Wickedness abounds in high places and low, and is increasing to more ungodliness. Formalism has, in many places, supplanted spirituality, and the love of many has waxed cold. Holy men are called for as witnesses to the truth and power of the gospel.

We do not mean to assert that there is a demand for a separate sect in the church to expound or to exemplify the subject of holiness. No set of men can make themselves specialists of this character without making the impression that they are separatists; and our observation is, that such efforts, as a rule, are detrimental rather than helpful. It is the duty of all Christians to lead holy lives, and they should be so impressed.

There need not be any trouble on this subject. The gospel is plain, not only as to the means and agency of securing a clean heart and a right spirit, but how men must live so as to secure the divine approval, and recommend the gospel which they profess. No matter what a man's views are, if he has the witness in himself and leads a holy life in all godliness and sincerity before God, he is bound to be recognized as a true disciple, and accorded his place among the saved.

Holy living is preceded by consecration to God—consecration of the whole man, soul and body, and consecration of everything that a man possesses. This every man does at the threshold of his Christian life when he consents to be saved. This is reasonable. God expects it and demands it. It is impossible for anyone to enter into the kingdom and enjoy its blessings, and hold back any part of the price. It is all or nothing. The Lord will not have a divided heart. "No man can serve two masters."

The manner of living is clearly defined. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment, and the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets." Love is the bond of perfectness. We are to walk honestly toward them that are without, and laying aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset us, we are to run with patience the race set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith. We are to deny ourselves of all ungodliness and worldly lust, and live soberly and righteously before God. We are to do good to all men, especially to them who are of the household of faith, and under no circumstances forsake the assembling of ourselves together. Leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, we are to go on to perfection. In a thousand different ways these directions and exhortations may be exemplified by one whose heart is right with God.

A PERPLEXED BROTHER.

A brother, writing to the Christian Advocate (New York) from a point in Illinois, is much distressed on account of the exodus of the negro from the M. E. Church. He has special reference to those who go from the South to Chicago with church letters. These, he says, "are compelled to go into African Churches." There are two reasons for this: One is, the M. E. Church has not accommodations in Chicago for her colored members. In all that great city there is but one church for sheltering these luckless sons and daughters. Another reason is prejudice against the negro, which will not allow him to join the church of the white people. This, the brother says, "is in reality and truth just as impossible and impracticable (in Chicago) as in New Orleans." Even mixed Conferences seem not to be tolerated, for this one church in Chicago, in order to be properly served, is included in one of the Southern negro Conferences, the district to which it is attached reaching "clear up from Kentucky, by way of Indianapolis." As there are no accommodations for the colored members of the M. E. Church in Chicago, and as they are not welcome in the white churches, they must, of necessity, join African Churches.

To stop this exodus, our brother in Illinois says, is "scarcely less important to the future of Methodism and Protestantism than that she (the M. E. Church) should win back to her pale the Southern white man." He thinks the negro is the chief, if not the only, obstacle to the union of Northern and Southern Methodism. He would solve the perplexing matters in this way: Have no mixed churches, districts, or Conferences. He frankly acknowledges that these are impracticable. His view is correct. It accords at least with public sentiment, North and South. Next, he would have the General Conference of his church to appoint the Bishops to episcopal districts for four years, and hold them to strict account. If they do well, they may be returned or changed. "Thus," he says, "we can and will select negro Bishops." We fail to see on what ground he bases this conclusion. It would be just as easy under present arrangements to elect negro Bishops as under a rule that would require a Bishop to remain four years on the same field. There has not been a General Conference since 1868, or, for that matter, since 1848, that a negro could not have been elected a Bishop, if the M. E. Church had wanted one. To have separate churches, Conferences, and negro Bishops, this brother thinks, will stop the exodus, and ultimately bring back those who have left the church for lack of these things. Maybe it would. But, is that not a humiliating statement? Is it not about equivalent to saying: Our negro members are with us largely for place and power—for the loaves and fishes?

But the most important thing in this matter is to win back the Southern white man "to the old church." Just how confining Bishops to given districts for four years in succession can result in the election of negro Bishops, we are at a loss to know, or how both these together can "reconcile the Southern white Methodist to organic union," is quite as much a problem that we are unable to solve. If every colored person in the M. E. Church were to leave it to-day and join some African organization, there would still be insuperable barriers to organic union. Not the least of these barriers is the assumption that the M. E. Church is the old church. Notwithstanding the deliverances of the Cape May Commission this "old, mother church" idea is used to work on ignorant and credulous souls. We are surprised that a man who has standing sufficient to command space in the Christian Advocate should assume so much, and defy the facts of history.

We can not see that the reunion of the Northern and Southern Church is "important to Methodism and Protestantism," nor can we see that the holding of the negro in the M. E. Church is a matter "scarcely less important." Soon after the close of the war the M. E. Church, South, set off and set up her colored members under the name of the Colored M. E. Church in America, deeding to them without cost all the houses of worship built for their separate use. This separate organization has not in any sense harmed these colored Methodists. They have maintained as "high standard of morals and purity" as the negroes of the M. E. Church. As a class, they are as well educated, and to their credit, be it said, as a church, they do not meddle with politics. They maintain fraternal relations with the M. E. Church, South, are at peace with all men, and have greatly prospered.

The Christianity of the New Testament as preached by Southern Methodists is to-day what it was when handed down by Wesley and Asbury. The Lord has blessed us, temporally and spiritually. He has also blessed our brethren across the line. Both churches have much to be thankful for—nothing of which to complain. In the language of Senator Hanna, "Let us keep on letting well enough alone."

A DEMURRER.

Many persons take a pessimistic view of the moral condition of the church and the world, and declare everything out of order and going to the bad. This is because of a superficial study of conditions, or because they look at things from a standpoint that discloses only evil. They see no good anywhere except in their own narrow horizon. Everything is bad that does not chime in with their own ways and notions. This is not according to reason.

Let us give one or two illustrations. This for example: The church is made a pack-horse on which is piled all the reform movements of the day, and, if these reforms are not effected, the orators blame the church. And some do not hesitate to say that the church is as bad as the world. Certain measures for reform have been advocated for many years, and they have not yet been effected. Is the church to blame? Is the church to blame because prohibition of the liquor traffic, either statutory, constitutional, or by way of local option, is not universal? Some so declare. But what are the facts? Has not every evangelical church in the United States placed itself squarely on the side of prohibition? How much further can any church go? There is not one that has power to enact and enforce prohibition in any form. The best that can be done is to endorse the sentiment, and enjoin total abstinence on its members. This has been done, and we demur to the statement so frequently made that the church is responsible for the liquor traffic, and could shut up every saloon if it would. It will be in place to blame the church when it is invested with authority to take in hand the reins of government.

Again, the church is charged with indifference to the cause of missions, and this indifference is attributed to the lack of piety and the lack of knowledge. We enter a disclaimer. No subject to-day commands more attention in the church than missions. It is literally foremost in all our assemblies, conventions, associations and Conferences, and there is not a congregation in all the land that does not hear of it first, last and all the time. It is vital, and our Sunday-schools and Epworth Leagues, our pastors and our men and women, are fully aware of it. That individuals here and there, too many of them, know little, and care nothing and do nothing, is all too true. But the church is alive and active.

All such talk as we hear may do for "campaign thunder," as the politicians say, and serve to arouse a slumbering conscience now and then, but more good will be done by telling what the church has done, and is doing, and proposes to do, than by berating it for shortcomings and sins of which it is not guilty. Let us cease to weaken the hands of the bearers of burdens by charging them with indifference. Let us rather quicken their zeal.

MINISTERIAL VACATIONS.

Much silly writing is committed to type every year on the subject of ministerial vacations. Our Lord is cited as authority. He said on one occasion to his tired disciples, "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place and rest awhile." That is all the authority that is given, but anybody can see, by looking at the connection, that it was an invitation to accompany him to a quiet place, away from the multitude, where they might have a few hours for rest and recuperation, "for there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat." There was no hint of a month, or more, of time recommended for vacation.

We think it a good plan for all who work, whether with their hands or their brains, to rest awhile. It is a good thing even for a dull and lazy man to get a change of air and diet, especially if he is a preacher. But it provokes a smile of disgust to read of the serious exhortations to all preachers to take an annual vacation, and to cease all manner of exertion, mental and manual, during the time. It is amusing, in view of the fact that some take vacations for rest and recuperation, who do not know what mental exertion is. Perhaps this is putting it too strongly, for it may require as great an effort on the part of some men to produce and deliver a great bulk of foolishness as it does others to produce profound and soul-stirring discourses. We doubt it. But let them have their vacations. At the same time, we suggest that when called on to preach during the vacation, they keep quiet about seeking mental rest.

LYDIA AND HER HOUSEHOLD.

A Note of Sadness.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our beautiful little brown-eyed Ruth slipped away from us last Monday morning just before dawn of day, after a weary illness of nearly twelve weeks. What a blessing she was to the home, and how we did hope she would get well!

"Upon our dreams her dying eyes
In still and mournful fondness lips"

As we bore her to the Eastern Cemetery to lay her away beneath the sighing pines, it was suggested, "This is the end of all the years of hope and watchful anxiety and care;" but the thought that our darling had gone home to One who loves her better than we love her ourselves, revives every aspiration, for we shall meet again. Heaven is certainly richer now, for the Lord gathered a choice lily when he stooped down into his garden last Monday morning. We trust we are looking the right way for comfort.

We have had sickness at the parsonage home almost the entire year on account of which my labors have been unsatisfactory to myself. But this is a kind people, and they have ministered to us while they were not being ministered to. Pray for us.

Your brother, JNO. D. ELLIS.

Help to Worthy Girls.

In order to assist poor, but worthy girls, the authorities of Whitworth College have decided to give free tuition to a limited number of young ladies who could not attend college without such help. This leaves to be paid only board and $8 of minor fees for the whole session. Let applicants furnish from pastor or Sunday-school superintendent testimonial of good character, including statement that such help is needed.

Address,

I. W. COOPER, Pres't.

Brookhaven, Miss.

PERSONAL.

Rev. P. R. Knickerbocker, of the White River Conference, and his brother, Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker, of the Northwest Texas Conference, are sojourning a while at Seashore Camp Ground.

Rev. W. H. Coleman, of McEwen, Tenn., has been appointed to Jackson, La., by Bishop Key at the suggestion of the presiding elder, Rev. H. B. Carre having been elected president of Centenary College.

We again call the attention of our lady readers out of the city to the Purchasing Agency of Mrs. B. I. Preston. See her card in another column. Write to her for anything desired. We believe she will give satisfaction.

Dr. S. A. Steel lectured in Carrollton, Miss., on July 26, to a large audience. The lecture was greatly enjoyed. He preached to an immense congregation, in Carrollton, on Sunday morning. For an hour he swayed his audience.

A note from Dr. Murrah, president of Millsaps College, informs us that Dr. J. M. Sullivan, who has been connected with the college for several years, will take charge of the Chair of Chemistry for the next session. Prof. Sullivan is a Ph.D. of Vanderbilt University.

Rev. H. C. Brown, of Terry, Miss., writes of the illness of his wife, who is a great sufferer. She has been in the Touro Infirmary in New Orleans for some time past, but at present is at Madisonville. She will return to the infirmary soon. Bro. Brown has the prayers and sympathy of his brethren in his distress.

Rev. A. D. Miller writes us that he will hold a meeting at Harriston, Miss., beginning Aug. 14, and that Rev. W. D. Bass will do the preaching. Brother Miller asks the prayers of all good people, and invites all within reach to attend. He is hopeful, and we pray that his greatest expectations may be realized.

We had the good fortune, last week, to make the acquaintance of Rev. J. H. McCoy, editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate. A half hour in his company was refreshing. He has just entered upon his work as editor. His father had charge of the same paper for four years. We hope he may succeed as well, and we believe he will.

Rev. J. R. Countiss, appointed to Grenada station in place of Rev. J. M. Wyatt, who has entered upon his work as business manager of Grenada College, writes us that his "reception by the church was cordial, and the prospect encouraging." Congregations are good, and the prayer meeting largely attended. May great success crown our brother's work.

Prof. A. H. Shannon, after spending a month, or more, at Seashore Camp Ground, and at his old home near Ocean Springs, has returned to Jackson, Miss., where he will occupy a chair next year in Millsaps College. If any brother purposes taking a vacation, and would like to secure some one to fill his pulpit during the time, let him correspond with Brother Shannon.

A card from Rev. T. L. Mellen informs us of the bereavement of Brother Jno. D. Ellis and wife in the death of their daughter, Ruth Vivian, who passed away early in the morning of Aug. 4, after an illness of more than eleven weeks. The funeral was conducted by Brother Mellen, assisted by Rev. J. W. Crisler. We deeply sympathize with our brother and sister in their affliction. They sorrow not as those who have no hope.

Columbus District Conference.

The opening sermon of the thirty-second session of the Columbus District Conference was preached by Rev. T. L. Foster, June 28, 1902, in the new Methodist Church of Artesia, Miss.

Saturday was given to the Woman's Foreign and Woman's Home Mission Societies of the district. The papers, addresses and statistics were both interesting and encouraging. A cordial welcome was given Mrs. Hargrove, of Scarritt Bible and Training-School, and Miss Elizabeth Hughes, returned missionary from China. The Conference greatly enjoyed the talks and addresses of both these faithful women.

Sunday was a good day for both Artesia and the Conference. At eleven o'clock Bro. Lewis, of Columbus, preached an excellent sermon, followed by the dedication of the nice new church that stands a monument to the zeal of Bro. Duncan and the liberality of the people of Artesia. Bros. Brown and Mitchell preached at the afternoon and evening hour respectively, which, of course, means the preaching was good, and of a high order. Special prominence was given to religious exercises throughout the whole Conference, and the services were sweet and spiritual.

The reports of the various committees showed a forward movement on all lines of work in the district, and in the face of almost a failure in corn and cotton last year, and another corn failure this year. The amount paid for the support of the ministry far exceeds last year at this time.

Bro. Bachman was in evidence with smiles, books, bills, and exhortations, all of which were greatly enjoyed by the Conference. Our Orphans' Home was represented by Bro. Counties, and a good collection was taken. Rev. J. M. Wyatt, business manager of Grenada College, gave the Conference a stirring speech on Grenada College. We are solid for Grenada College up this way. The Committee on Education made a flattering report of both Millsaps and Grenada Colleges.

Resolved, That we pledge Grenada College our hearty co-operation, and that we join the Board of Trustees and business manager in their effort to fill the college this Fall.

If you want a Conference royally entertained, put a man like Duncan with a people like those of Artesia, and you have the component parts of the thing needed.

BANDERA, TEXAS, April 2, 1902.

Dr. D. M. Bye Co.:

My cancer is cured up after using one month's treatment of your Combination Oil Cure. At first I could not hardly believe it was getting better when my folks would say it was. I had so little faith in it. But, thanks be to God, it has cured me and saved me untold suffering. I will heartily recommend it wherever I go. Very gratefully,

J. A. NEATHERLIN.

Age, 71 years.

The Combination Oil Cure for Cancer, Tumors, Piles, Eczema and all skin and womb diseases was discovered by Dr. D. M. Bye. Thousands have been cured within the last ten years. Readers having friends afflicted should cut this out and send it to them. Free books and papers will be sent to those interested. Call on or address DR. D. M. BYE CO., Lock Box 462, 171 Main street, Dallas, Texas.

A Call for Help.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: I have a lady friend who is tottering with age. Her beautiful Christian life is an inspiration to the living. To be with her and hear her talk of her Savior and her church (Methodist) is beautiful and inspiring. This good lady is reduced in circumstances, and I want to make her a present of a nice purse, and I believe every good Methodist will assist me in doing so. I withheld name for the present. I will start the list with $2.50. This is not a matter of charity, but for one who needs assistance for a while, and then her noble spirit will ascend to her Father's throne, where she will be rich (not of worldly goods), but rich with the treasures laid up for her eternally in the heavens. There she will ever bask in the sunlight of her Father's throne.

Good Methodists, let us make up a nice purse and send to her for a birthday present. Send amounts to Dr. Boswell, care of ADVOCATE.

Yours, J. D. WHITE.

Home Circle.

An Unexpected Question.

One morning about twenty years ago a lawyer on the way to his office stopped outside a barber's shop door to get a "shine."

The little bootblack who plied his trade there was no stranger to him, although he knew him only by his street name. This morning the boy was unusually silent. The lawyer missed his bright remarks, and began to rally him a little, when suddenly the boy looked up in his face, and said:

"Mr. Bartlett, do you love God?"

The lawyer was an upright, self-respecting man, but neither a church attendant nor much given to religious thought, and he took the question at first as an attempt at a joke on the part of the boy; but he soon found it was meant in all seriousness. No one had ever asked him the question before in quite the same way, and it staggered him.

"Why do you ask me that, Bat?" he said, after a rather awkward pause. "What difference does it make to you?"

"Well, I'll tell you, sir. Me mother an' me's got to get out; for the place we live in'll be tore down pretty soon, an' a feller like me can't pay much rent. Mother does all she can, but you see there's three of us, an' me grandmother's lame. I dunno what to do. Yesterday I heard two men talkin', an' one of 'em said God would help anybody that loved him, if they'd tell him they was in the hole. I thought about it 'most all night, an' this mornin' I made up my mind I'd lay for somebody that knew him well enough to ask him."

The lawyer was embarrassed. All he could say to the threadbare little bootblack was that he had better ask some one else. He had better keep inquiring, he told him; for in a city of so many churches he would surely find the sort of person he wanted. He thrust a dollar into the boy's hand, and hurried away.

But all that day he found his thoughts reverting to the bootblack and his strange question. "A fine position for an educated man in a Christian country!" he said to himself. "Struck dumb by an ignorant street arab! I could not answer his question. Why not?"

The lawyer was an honest man, and his self-examination ended in a resolution to find out the reason why. That evening he went for the first time in many years to prayer meeting, and frankly told the whole story, without sparing himself. From that day life had a new meaning for him, and a higher purpose.

A few days later, at a conference of ministers of different denominations in the same city, the lawyer's strange experience was mentioned by the pastor who gave him his first Christian welcome. Immediately another minister told of a young man in his congregation who had been awakened to a religious life by the same question put to him by the same little bootblack. The interest culminated when a third declared that he had a call from the bootblack himself, who had been brought to his study by a man who had appreciated his unexpected question, and knew how to befriend him.

Such an incident could not be allowed to end there. The boy was helped to good lodgings, and to patronage which enabled him to provide better for his "family." At last he had found somebody who loved God; and in time he had learned to love him himself, and "know him well enough to ask him." Opportunities for a decent education was opened to him, and he showed so much promise that his lawyer friend took him in, first as an office boy, and finally as a student.

Many would recognize the bootblack to-day if his name were given, not only as a member of the bar in successful practice, but as a church member and a worker in Sabbath school. He loves boys, and the few who knew that he was once a bootblack understand his interest in little fellows who need a friend. Helping them is for him loving God in the most effectual way.—Youth's Companion.

The Slatting Sister.

"She spends force enough in slatting to run a dynamo, and she doesn't know it."

"In what?"

"Don't you know that good old English word — not 'slattern,' though the two are near akin, but the active verb 'to slat'—to throw things about carelessly, or to handle recklessly? Its synonym over here is often nervous prostration; the two are interchangeable. A Shaker taught me the word.

"I was at the Shakers for a little stay, resting and ciphering out their ways; and as I sat reading one morning, Sister Catherine came in with an expression which was as near to irritation as I had ever seen on her placid face, but smiling as she caught my look. 'It's just a slatting sister that has to be brought to reason and doesn't see the need,' she said, and, seeing it was a new word to me, she went on: 'We have a slatting brother now and then, but seldom. It is chiefly a woman's way. One of the first things taught here to every new-comer is how to open and close a door noiselessly, yet quickly. Most people think nothing about it. We have to, for in a community where everybody lets the doors fly the noise would be unbearable. But that is the simplest form of slatting.

"'This sister, a new one, couldn't understand what difference it made. She handled everything on the slatting principle, and so had cracked and nicked several dishes, our first experience in that line for over a year. So they told me, and asked me to give her our thought about it. I watched her, unnoticed, at first. Her motions were all sharp twitches and jerks. If she handled food or liquid, it spilled over, and she set everything down with as much noise as its nature admitted. I have told her it is as bad for her as for us, and she begins to understand, but it is ingrained. She will have a hard fight to come to peaceful methods, as she must.'

"I knew in that moment that the slatting sister had met her match. When those delicate lips set and said 'must,' things moved; yet she had great patience and gentle tact, and both worked here.

"A year later I saw the no longer 'slatting sister.' Her energetic, noisy swiftness had taken on smoothness and silence, and her face looked years younger. Since then I watch even more than before. It is the vice of most Americans, from the conductor and his 'Step lively!' slatting us into cars like so many cattle or bags of potatoes, down to the grocer's boy, as he flings packages, or the painter, who slats his brush and sends paint flying where it does not belong.

"Within the house the maid and the mistress seek, it would seem, to extract the utmost noise from everything they touch. The dishes rattle and clash and come out nicked or cracked; the flatirons sound alarm on the stove lids; the dishpan turns going as it goes into the sink or hangs up on its nail, and when everything has been made to yield its quota of distraction the mistress sits down gasping, and wonders why she is so tired, and why the children are so noisy and careless. It is because they have been brought up on the slatting plan, and our innumerable swinging, teetering, uneasy boys and girls are one fruit of the method. Motion can be silent and swift, too. The Greeks knew it; but for us it is left to the Quakers and the Shakers, and, alas! they are a diminishing number.

"The wisest forms of what we call 'mental cure,' in their insistence on silence are potent workers against the slatting principle. Sound health, deep breathing, free motion, are hardly less so. In short, a reposeful manner and atmosphere means the balance of all forces, the harmonious working of all powers, and this is the goal to aim at."—Helen Campbell, in Congregationalist.

All Kinds of Kites.

Boys fly kites nowadays just the same as their fathers did when they were young, and their fathers' fathers, but they are different kinds of kites. The very newest kite of all—it is just out this season—is called a toy flying-machine. Its inventor claims that it "is the easiest and highest flying type of kite known." It has four wings, which extend from a common centre. In each wing is a diamond-shape opening. These flying machines come in various sizes and in different color combinations, but all very gay and brilliant, so that the kites look very pretty sailing high in air. Of paper, they cost from 5 to 50 cents; of muslin, 50 cents.

What is known as the keel kite is shaped like the conventional kite, but has no tail. At the base is a keel-shaped arrangement to the centre of which is attached the string. It comes in paper in different colors and costs 10 cents.

This is the age of science, and even children's playthings, the educators tell us, should be based on scientific principles. Thoroughly up-to-date are the scientific kites known as box-kites. They are of many kinds. Red is a popular color.

There is what is known as the Blue Hill box kite. This is described as the invention of H. H. Clayton, chief observor at Blue Hill Observatory, near Boston. It is used at this weather station, and at other stations, for sending up instruments in making observations. Kites of this type have attained the wonderful height of 9,200 feet, nearly two miles.

Box-kites are of various sizes and cost from 50 cents up. The naval Blue Hill box kite is one of the most popular. A very pretty effect is secured by tying box-kites together at the corners of each cell, in pairs, triplets and quadruplets, or you can fly a tandem of three.—Selected.

The Gingham Nest.

"Mamma," said Edie, coming in from school, "our teacher wants each of us to bring her a piece of one of our school dresses, to put into a quilt. Can't I give her a piece of this new gingham dress?"

"Yes, certainly," said mamma; "and I know of another place where some of your dress might be welcome. Some very little bits."

"Where?"

"Mrs. Robin Redbreast is building a nest in the pine tree; and, if you take this handful of clippings and scatter them about under the tree, she may be glad to weave them in."

Edie did so; and Mrs. Robin made good use of them. After the nest was done, Edie could look up and see the bits of red and blue; and she called it a "gingham nest."—Exchange.

"Don't bother your father to-night," advised the mother. "He is tired and cross."

The little one looked surprised.

"Must I let him alone?" she asked.

"Yes."

"He doesn't let me alone when I'm cross."

"Well, that's different," explained her mother.

"I should think it was different," retorted the little one, "but I don't see why it should be. I get a spanking when I'm cross."—Chicago Post.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

We will, until further notice, send the "Short History" and the ADVOCATE one year, to all subscribers, new or renewing, for TWO DOLLARS cash, the subscriber to pay cost of sending the money. If checks are sent, ten cents must be added. The price of the history is sixty cents. It will be mailed postpaid. We would like to have many orders on this proposition during the dull months of the Summer.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

OBITUARIES.

Died at his home in Sabine parish, La., May 2, 1902 J. D. SANDELL, who was born Feb. 23, 1855, making him at his death over forty-seven years old. In his death his church and community have sustained a loss that will be hard to fill. Darins, as he was called, was a man of deep conviction, and one whose judgment was always consulted by his neighbors. He was stern and uncompromising with wrong-doers, and was not afraid to speak his convictions on any one and all occasions. He was one of the main pillars of his church. Bro. Darins had the cares of a widowed mother, with five children, from early boyhood, his father dying when he was quite young, and while they were left in destitute circumstances. Darins proved himself equal to the task, and succeeded in aiding his mother to raise her children to be respected members in society and workers in the vineyard of the Lord. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in early life, and ever afterwards lived a consistent member of the same. He was married, March 2, 1882, to Miss Anna Davis, and to this union was given five children. Four are living, and one had preceded its father to the better world. Bro. Darins was a man, indeed, we all miss; one whose wise counsel we can never listen to any more, but his exemplary Christian life will live, though he be dead. He was calm and composed in his sickness, submitting himself into the hands of the good Lord, and thus he fell asleep in Jesus. He leaves a dear companion, four children, a precious mother, and many other relatives and friends, to mourn their loss, but we weep not as those who have no hope. We believe if we are faithful to the end, we will meet again in the sweet by-and-by. May the Lord sustain the bereaved ones!

Committee: Wm. Sandell, J. E. Lee.

Died near Magnolia, Miss., Nov. 19, 1901, OTIS ARGYLE POWELL, son of J. W. and Eliza Powell. He was born Oct. 17, 1877, and the years of his earthly life were twenty-four. This noble young man just entering upon a life full of promise and meetness became the victim of disease, which gradually, but surely, fastened its terrible coils about him until death came to his release. For four long, weary years he patiently suffered the will of God; always submissive, always cheerful and ready, "knowing Him whom he had believed, and that He was able to keep that which he had committed to Him." Otis was a noble type of Christian young manhood. He had always been a dutiful son, a devoted brother and true friend; hence he was greatly beloved by all who knew him. He became a member of the Muddy Springs Methodist Church at twelve years of age, and was ever faithful, serving the Lord according to his ability until summoned to his heavenly reward. Loved ones left behind mourn, but not as those without hope, for they anticipate a joyful reunion in the "Father's mansions" some day. God bless the bereaved father, sisters and brothers, and preserve them blameless until the coming of the Lord Jesus. PASTOR.

ANNIE FAY, eldest daughter of Mr. E. Clovis and Mrs. Lelia Hinds, was born in Booneville, Miss., May 26, 1895, and answered the call of Divine Providence which removed her from her happy home below to her heavenly home, July 21, 1902. These seven years of sweet child-life were all too short. All who had the pleasure of knowing this retiring nature clothed in modesty, bright with cheer and fragrant with good-will, always welcomed its presence. Her coming was never heralded by the blast of trumpets, but she always burst in upon you in the power of surprise possessed by a great soul. How many times has her sweet morning greeting or evening hail made glad the heart of the writer! Her life shall be an inspiration to us. We laid her away in the presence of a large concourse of people, numerous friends, and bereaved relatives. God and the angels looked on our weeping, and listened to her rejoicing spirit around the throne. She has gone. Thank God for her life. We must go, too. May God bless those who sorrow because she is not, and so lead them that they and we all shall one day be reunited in heaven!

BEN P. JACO.

JAS. E. HUDSON was born at Florence, Ala., Dec. 4, 1826. He moved to Mississippi at the age of sixteen, where he spent the remainder of his life, dying at his home in Panola county, Miss., July 8, 1902. He joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of thirteen, of which he made an active, consistent member. He was for a number of years steward; and a good steward he must have been. He was an honored citizen, a good neighbor, an affectionate husband, and a kind father. He was noted for his sociability, hospitality, and cheerfulness. He seldom looked upon any other than the bright side of the questions of life. Through his protracted illness of eighteen months, or more, he was patient and cheerful. The most natural expression of his face was that of a smile. He assured the writer and others several times during the latter part of his illness that his prospects for the future were bright. He left a wife and six grown children to mourn his death. No man was ever more beloved by his family, or more tenderly cared for by them and his neighbors, than he. May God console his bereaved family! is the prayer of their pastor,

T. H. PORTER.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

For the first time the angel of death has entered our ranks and called a beloved member to her eternal rest. In her home she was a beautiful, shining light, and, as a follower of Christ, she was a zealous worker, ever willing and ready to promote her Master's cause. It can truly be said of her, "She hath done what she could." Since it has pleased God, in his wise and unerring providence, to remove from our midst our former president, ADA LUCAS; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That the Young People's Foreign Missionary Society of Rayne Memorial Church has lost a faithful and efficient member. In this bereavement we recognize the hand of the Almighty, and bow in submission to his will.

2. That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to her sorrowing family, and pray that God's grace may be given abundantly to them in their affliction.

3 That these resolutions be spread upon a memorial page of our records; that copies be sent to her family, and to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

Owned and Controlled by the M. E. Church, South. Faculty of 25; 274 Students last session; number of Boarders year by year since establishment—29, 58, 88, 136, 147, 158, 176, 212—A Continuous and Extraordinary Growth. Modern brick building 260 feet long; water on every floor; electric lights. Campus of 25 acres. Value of plant, $70,000.

THREE COURSES. { For Diploma of Graduation. For Randolph-Macon Woman's College. For Teaching.

EXPERT TESTIMONY.—I most heartily endorse the BLACKSTONE INSTITUTE as giving most excellent instruction under most helpful Christian influences. Its Certificates are accepted at our College in lieu of entrance examinations. Too much can scarcely be said for the wise and energetic management of the Principal. The School is worthy of all confidence.

SPECIAL NOTICE FOR COMING SESSION.

The Institute has been filled from its establishment. Increased patronage has followed every enlargement, and applications have to be refused for lack of room. The Principal does not desire to take as many boarders as were in attendance the past session. In order that proper advice may be given to parents, and proper care be exercised in the selection of pupils, all persons desiring to engage rooms should send at once for a Catalogue and for an Application Blank, to be filled in by the pupil, showing age and preparation, and to be returned to the Principal. Rooms should be definitely engaged by AUGUST 28TH at the latest. Rooms are assigned in the order in which applications are received.

For Catalogue and Application Blank, address

BLACKSTONE, VA.

SESSION OPENS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1902.

General News.

The reciprocity treaty with Cuba, providing a reduction of 33 per cent, is virtually completed, and will be submitted to the Senate when an extra session convenes in December.

Gens. Botha, De Wet and Delarey will arrive in England next Saturday. Mr. Kruger is trying to dissuade them from accepting British hospitality.

New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio capitalists have purchased a tract of 350,000 acres of land in Cuba to produce sea island cotton.

One man was killed and forty persons were injured in a church at Leslie, Ga., where a Baptist Church was struck by lightning.

Only a Mask.

Many are not being benefited by the Summer vacation as they should be. Now, notwithstanding much outdoor life, they are little if any stronger than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well. What they need is what tones the nerves, perfects digestion, creates appetite, and makes sleep refreshing, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Pupils and teachers generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by this great medicine which, as we know, 'builds up the whole system.'

Marriages.

July 9, 1902, in the Methodist Church, Morton, Miss., by Rev. G. S. Harmon Mr. George M. Calhoun, of Hattiesburg, Miss., to Miss Susie Ratliff, formerly of Poplarville, Miss.

July 31, 1902, at the Methodist parsonage, Morton, Miss., by Rev. G. S. Harmon, Mr. Hiram H. Hester to Miss Effie Rhodes, both of Scott county.

July 20, 1901, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. N. F. Hoffpauir, Mr. W. H. Norrid to Miss Ada O. Wiggins, both of Loves Lake, Red River parish, La.

July 20, 1902, in the Methodist Church, Brushy, Miss., by Rev. T. J. O'Neil, Mr John Knox Moffett and Miss Loma Brown, all of Brushy, Miss.

July 22, 1902, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. D. Fairly, by Rev. T. J. O'Neil, Mr. Jarome Taylor, of Merrill, Miss., and Miss Sadie M. Fairly, of Basin, Miss.

July 21, 1902 at the M. E. Church, South, in Arcadia, La., by Rev. H. O. White, Mr. E. E Davies and Miss Nora Prothro, all of Arcadia, La.

July 24, 1902, at the home of the bride's father, Hon. O. L Kennedy, near Gnntown, Miss., by Rev. J. B. Rendolph, Mr. Henry J. Allen, of Memphis, Tenn., to Miss Madia J. Kennedy.

Aug. 3, 1902, at the residence of the bride's parents, near Pelahatchie Miss., by Rev. C. C. Griffin, Mr. R. S. Sutton, of Brookhaven, Miss., to Miss Jennie McGuffie.

MAKE IT VERY PLAIN to your dealer that you know there is no substitute for Perry Davis' Painkiller for external use from neuralgia to a mosquito bite and internally for all bowel disorders.

On Aug. 16 the Texas and Pacific Railway Company will sell round-trip tickets to St. Louis at rate of $12, and to Chicago for $15. Tickets limited for return to Aug. 31, 1902.

We have received the new catalogue of the Tulane University of Louisiana, in New Orleans, just received from the University Press.

An examination of its contents show that the year just closed has been one of the most notable and successful in the development of the University. The teaching force and the attendance have been the largest in all her history, being 86 teachers and 1223 students. The opening of the dormitories during the year has filled a long needed want, and makes it now possible for a student to attend the University at a minimum cost. It is estimated that $175 will pay the expenses of a scholarship student in the Academic Department for a session, and the Bureau of Self-Help will do all in its power to assist students of limited means to help pay their way through. There are a large number of scholarships open to Louisiana boys, and it is the declared policy of the University that in the academic colleges no boy, if properly prepared for college work, will be turned away from inability to pay tuition. We note that the attendance of students from the country parishes is steadily increasing.

Here Is Your Chance.

The Queen and Crescent Route takes pleasure in announcing to residents of the territory served by its splendid fast trains that on Aug. 16, 1902, it will sell round-trip excursion tickets, limited for return passage to Aug. 31, to the following resorts and cities, and at the very low rates enumerated below from stations on the New Orleans and Northeastern and Alabama and Vicksburg railways:

Chicago and return	$15
St. Louis "	12
Cincinnati "	14
Louisville "	12
Old Pt. Comfort and return	18
Hot Springs, Va., and return	18
Deer Park, Md., and return	20
Asheville and return	14
Hot Springs, N. C., and return	14
Roanoke, Va., and return	18
Norfolk, Va., and return	18
Niagara Falls and return	20
Lake Chautauqua and return	20
Virginia Beach and return	18

The above list of very low rates makes it possible to visit at a slight expense either the prominent cities of the North, the mountain resorts of North Carolina and Virginia, the Atlantic sea-coast, or the inland waters and majestic Falls of Niagara.

Ample train accommodations will be afforded, and the class of service will be fully up to the high standard already established. If you have not felt that you could take a Summer trip because of the expense, this opportunity, unparalleled heretofore, must certainly give you a chance to get a few days' respite from the drudgery of ordinary duties, and afford you an opportunity to recuperate wasted tissues, or to enjoy to the limit the pleasure of a trip.

Particular attention is called to the very extensive list of points to which these low-rate tickets are to be sold. Never before has so liberal an arrangement been offered.

For full particulars, time schedules, etc., apply to your home ticket agent.

It is suggested that you make your arrangements as early as possible, so that we may know how many will go, and thereby be able to furnish necessary facilities. Sleeping-car space, etc., can be secured at once.

Glances at the World.

The American school plan is commending itself to others besides Americans. The plan is based on the entire separation of Church and State—that is to say, the church has no voice in the management or teaching of the public schools. It is on this plan that the administration is establishing schools in the Philippines, where heretofore they have been, under the direction of the church. This is one thing the Roman Catholics of the country are protesting against, charging that the government, in establishing these schools, is seeking to proselyte from the Roman Catholic to the Protestant faith. This charge, however, has been definitely answered. Spain, it is said, is seeking to model her schools after the American plan, and this is the work which France is definitely undertaking to do now. All schools are to be closed that do not conform to the law. These schools are under the direction of the church, and are said to be hot-beds for inculcating sentiments in opposition to the republic. Hence the determination to close them or reform them. But while France is taking this forward step, the British Parliament is endeavoring to take a backward step by bringing the schools more under the influence of the church, which in this case means the Church of England. The movement, as we stated a few weeks since, is meeting with stout resistance, and it now appears that the influence of the various Christians—Methodists, Baptists, and others—will defeat the law, or so far modify it as to be of little advantage to the English Church.

One of the most disgraceful and unprovoked riots of recent years occurred week before last in New York. A leading Jewish rabbi had died, and a large number of his friends, in procession, were accompanying his remains to the tomb. When opposite the Hoe printing-press establishment the employees, without warning, attacked the mourners, throwing iron missiles from the upper stories into the crowd. This infuriated the persons in the procession, and they turned upon their assailants and, it is said, broke every window in the great building. The police were called, and it was with difficulty that the riot was stopped. The intimation is that the policemen rather sided with the Hoe operatives, and maltreated the Jews. None were killed, but many were beaten and bruised. It seems incredible that in this country, with its enlightenment and religious toleration, a quiet and orderly people can not proceed to the grave with their dead without being subject to persecution. Our Jewish fellow-citizens, though differing from both Protestants and Roman Catholics in religion, are as peaceable and law-abiding as any class of people, and are entitled not only to respect, but to the protection of the law. Every man engaged in the attack on these inoffensive people ought to be punished. If they were aided and encouraged by the police, then the police should bear their share of the punishment.

Indications are that the motive power for railroads in the future will be electricity. High speed is demanded. From twenty-five to forty miles an hour is too slow. From eighty to one hundred miles is what is desired. Such high speed is possible with steam, but to maintain it requires the best possible equipment, not only in the way of engines, but in road-bed and rails. The experiments that have been made, it is said, demonstrate that to properly equip and maintain a road for steam at anything beyond fifty or sixty miles an hour, would be unprofitable to the owners. So the conclusion is, that the steam roads have about reached the maximum of speed. With electricity much greater speed can be made on the road-beds as they are, but for the greatest speed the rails must be heavier. It was demonstrated a few weeks since that on rails about sixty-five pounds to the yard, one hundred miles to the hour could not be maintained. A little over ninety-nine miles was made, but the rails and ties were too light for such a strain. In an experiment soon to be made over a road leading from Chicago, it is hoped to show that 125 or, possibly, 150 miles an hour can be made. If the experiment proves a success, the future of electricity as a motive power on railways is assured.

The coronation of King Edward of England was a notable affair in English life. The ceremony was postponed on account of the serious illness of the King, from June 26 to Aug. 9. The preparations for the first date were the most ample ever made for the coronation of a sovereign. People from all over the world expected to attend, and many were already in London. The disappointment was great, and what was expected to be a time of great joy was turned into a season of grief. The civilized world was anxious. The King rallied, and was sufficiently strong when Aug. 9 came to undergo the ordeal without any great fatigue. Nearly sixty-five years had passed since an English sovereign had been crowned, Queen Victoria, the mother of King Edward, being his immediate predecessor. So very few living Englishmen ever saw one of their rulers crowned. The new King, now more than sixty years old, comes to the throne with the good wishes of Christendom, and it is hoped that he will follow in the footsteps of his illustrious mother.

Prayer is so mighty an instrument that no one ever thoroughly mastered all its keys. They sweep along the infinite scale of man's wants and God's goodness.—Hugh Miller.

Preachers in the Fifties.

BY REV. H. ARMSTRONG.

I can not get my consent to leave off sketching ministers that I knew in the fifties until I sketch "Uncle Zeke Turner." In this sketch I can not write of profound attainments in literature and theology, nor of fiery eloquence, nor of overwhelming unction in preaching, but simply sketch an unsophisticated, harmless old gentleman.

Uncle Zeke was a "Hardshell" preacher, which fact illuminates this sketch greatly. He boasted that he had no "book larnin'," and seemed to be proud of his rough and uncouth appearance. Uncle Zeke was of medium height, slender, and well advanced in years. His hair was half white, and so long that it troubled him in preaching by falling over his eyes. His grizzly beard is hard to describe. He never trimmed it, and it was all the way from one to ten inches long. His voice was anything but musical. Just think of the sharp, grating noise of the peacock, or the filing of a cross-cut saw, and you will have an idea of his voice. In addition to a harsh voice, he talked as if he were gasping for breath, which rendered his preaching more unattractive. I heard him once when he thought he would have singing before preaching; so he gasped out, "He dies! the Friend of sinners dies!" one line at a time, and at the end of each line he would gasp, "Sing, brethring." No one sang, and he had to proceed without singing.

Uncle Zeke made many ridiculous blunders before the public, but seldom seemed to be the least embarrassed. He undertook to preach once in my hearing on Elijah's controversy with the prophets of Baal, and read his text: "How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow him; but if Ball, follow him." In one of his public services he undertook to rend something for the edification of his auditors, and got along pretty well until he came to the word strategem. Here he halted, and frowned, and apologized: "Brecthring," said he, "I feel my want of larnin'. I don't know nuthin' about grammar, and I am not much on the pronounciu' of words, but, to the best of my jedgment, this word is straighteu Jim." I chanced to be at one of his services on a hot afteruoon in July, 1853. Uncle Zeke was very thinly clad. His neck was unbound. He had on no vest, and yet he seemed to be suffering from heat. His subject was the holy calling. (II. Tim. i, 9.) He preached that one had only to wait the Lord's good time, and he would be called if he was of the elect. Notwithstanding his hard doctrine, he raved and pawed the air, as though he believed eternal destinies hinged upon human agency. He would foam at the mouth, and choke up like an infuriated beast. There was a nice, refined lady, with her nine-year-old daughter present. The child had been taught to take a seat on entering a church, and to keep it until the service was over. She took her seat this time with some more little girls near the box pulpit, but before the sermon was half over the little girl got up and took a seat as far from the pulpit as convenient. Service over, the mother called on her child to give a reason for her disobedience. "Why, Mama," the daughter replied, "Uncle Zeke was spitting all over me."

Everybody liked Uncle Zeke. They laughed about his quaint and odd ways, but had a high regard for his truth and honor and kinduess of heart. He meant well, and he had been in close touch with Jesus. He was a pastor, and I remember being present at one of his Saturday services. A young man applied for membership, and the pastor questioned him the most rigidly. Said he, "My young friend, did you ever feel yourself a lost sinner?" "Yes, sir." "Were you greatly burdened on that account?" "Yes, sir." "Has that burden been removed?" etc. Being satisfied with the experience, Uncle Zeke, with tearful eyes and trembling voice, gave him his hand, and said, "God bless you, my brother!"

The Need for Evangelists.

The need for evangelists is greater than the need for deaconesses. The historical precedent for evangelists is greater than the historical precedent for deaconesses. The Scripture warrant for evangelists is greater than the scriptural warrant for deaconesses. I have nothing to say against the deaconess movement—never have. I have always felt, said, and tried to act, Let the church use every agency possible for the salvation of souls. If one agency don't work, or seem to meet the case, try another. I simply use the deaconess as an instance, because it has been incorporated into our polity, and the so called evangelistic movement has been, and is to-day, looked on in many quarters with great disfavor. We should take hold of this evangelistic move for two reasons:

First. Because we need it, and we need it for two reasons:

1. Because of the unoccupied territory of our Conferences. In the Mississippi Conference—within the bounds of which I have the honor of residing—there is more unoccupied territory than is commonly supposed. In the Forest and Seashore districts, jointly, there is a strip of country, embracing about one thousand square miles, practically destitute of the gospel. At the last session of the Mississippi Conference the wide-awake, far-seeing, indefatigable, progressive presiding elder of the Forest district took steps to occupy this territory, but there is much of it yet unoccupied. In the Natchez district there is a strip of country, embracing at least one thousand square miles, practically, if not wholly, destitute. In the Brookhaven district there are at least one thousand square miles which ought, by all means, to be entered. Here are at least three thousand square miles destitute of Methodist preaching, portions of which are entirely destitute, as far as I have been able to learn, except by Mormon elders and the most primitive kind of Primitive Baptists. Some of this territory could have been taken for Methodism, and can yet be taken, if we will go to it. I do not include any territory contiguous to pastoral charges, and which might be served by the pastors in connection with their regular work. We haven't a pastor who can serve this territory, and it would be cruel to put any man in these fields without guaranteeing his salary. An evangelist could go into these fields, survey the country, and do for Methodism what the Baptist evangelist is to do for the Baptist Church, viz.: organize Sunday-schools, and, where practicable, establish preaching-places, planning for pastoral oversight.

2. We need the evangelist to aid in the development of our mission points already established. In the Mississippi Conference there are thirty-four charges receiving aid from the Domestic Mission Board. To my certain knowledge, some of these charges have been receiving aid for at least twenty years. If a child should live to be twenty years of age, and could not walk, could not even stand alone, wouldn't we conclude something was the matter? Why isn't the same position tenable in church work? It isn't in the scope of this paper to go into the cause of this state of affairs, though it isn't hard to find. Suffice it to say, Here is where some of the best work of the evangelist can and should be put.

To all this somebody is ready to say: Let the presiding elder do all that; it is his business. If he does his duty, all this territory and these weak charges will be looked after. I answer: It will not be done. The presiding elders are not doing it, for they can not do it. In the Vicksburg and Natchez districts, Mississippi Conference, there are fifteen pastoral charges each; in the Jackson and Brookhaven districts, each nineteen; in the Meridian, twenty-one; in the Seashore, twenty-three; in the Forest, twenty-four. The number of churches runs from forty-two in the Vicksburg district to ninety-four in the Meridian. How can a presiding elder, with only forty-five Sundays in the year, hold from sixty to ninety-six Quarterly Conferences, and do more than touch this vast territory? This touch isn't always magic, either.

We should take hold of this evangelistic movement:

Secondly. Because it is here. It indicates energy, power, spiritual dynamics, the which, if restrained unduly, will result in harm, but if properly conserved and directed, will result in one of the most potent evangelical agencies of our church. Try to restrain and unduly control the vitality, nervous energy of a boy, and you will have, in nine cases out of ten, a wrecked moral character; but conserve and properly direct this superabundant vitality, and in nine cases out of ten, or ninety-nine out of a hundred, you will have stalwart manhood, the pride of the home, a blessing to humanity. We have tried the restraining process; let us try the conserving and directing process for a while.

Whitworth College.

MR. EDITOR: A friend of Whitworth College is going to give either one of the $600 lots, or paint the two brick buildings. The Pearl River Lumber Company and its president, Capt. A. E. Moreton, have donated $60 of fencing material. Mrs. Hawkins has raised $50 for furnishing "The Retreat." G. L. Hawkins has given $50. The Vicksburg District Conference, and the congregations at McComb City, Yazoo City, Hattiesburg and Columbia, have furnished nearly $100 for building and painting the new fences. Therefore, nearly $900 worth of permanent possession is being added to the Whitworth property. Add to this the $600 lot given at commencement by L. L. Lampton, and the $900 worth of science and other equipment given by Rev. M. L. Burton, and we have about $2,400 of additions to this excellent property of our church. This, considered in connection with the fact that there is not a dollar of indebtedness upon the grounds and buildings, is highly gratifying. And yet two other lots are needed to complete the ownership of the college in the east campus. These lots are held for the college, to be deeded whenever the funds are ready.

Our prospects are fine for a splendid crowd of young ladies present at the opening of the session, Sept. 17.

Millsaps College Notes.

At the beginning of our next session, Sept. 24, we enter the second decade of our history. It is proposed to celebrate the occasion with appropriate ceremonies. The president of the college will review the history of the institution for the past ten years, and addresses will be delivered by Major Millsaps, representing the Board of Trustees, and by Dr. A. F. Watkins and the Rev. R. A. Meek, representing, respectively, the Mississippi and the North Mississippi Conferences. It will be important, therefore, that all students shall be on hand the opening day.

We are getting things in order for the next session as rapidly as possible. Founder's Hall is going to be a very inviting home for students, and it would be well for those desiring accommodations there to make application at once by writing to the superintendent, Prof. A. H. Shannon. Subscribers to our furnishing fund are earnestly requested to make remittances at once. Those who subscribed at the District Conferences will send their contributions directly to me, as I have the subscription lists in my possession. We will be saved from embarrassment and delay if friends will act promptly in this matter.

The question was put to me not long ago, "Will Millsaps College never stop asking for money?" I answered frankly, "No." Let the friends of the college understand this thoroughly. A growing college will develop new demands constantly. Each of our State institutions secures from the Legislature every time it meets large appropriations for general improvement purposes. What the State gets by taxation we can only get by direct appeal to our people. We would be reckless to the point of criminality if we did not take proper care of the large amount of property we now own in buildings and grounds. Improvements must be made from time to time, and we shall always have demands for enlarged equipment. And then in the matter of endowment we have simply made a beginning. If we are to do anything worthy of our great church in this department of Christian endeavor, our people must reach the point where they will invite rather than object to appeals in behalf of our educational institutions.

W. B. MURRAH.

Edward McGehee College for Girls.

This old-time Methodist institution, located at Woodville, Miss., will enter upon its forty-first year Sept. 11. It was donated for a Methodist school in 1861 by the late Judge Edward McGehee, one of the old landmarks of Methodism in Louisiana and Mississippi, and is most properly named in his honor. The college is beautifully located in a magnificent natural park, in a healthy region, at an elevation of 450 feet above the level of the Mississippi river, and distant twenty miles from that stream. The social advantages of Woodville are unsurpassed by any town in the State. Wilkinson county is among the oldest in the State, possessed of wealth, and noted for its refined and cultivated society. The college has railroad connection with the Y. and M. V. R. R., and is the only Methodist institution in this section of either State. The standard of study is high, and the instruction is very thorough. Under its present able management it has been very successful, and next session additional room will have to be provided to meet its increased patronage. The entire faculty consists of teachers trained in the highest schools of the United States, with ample experience, and this has placed the college course upon a high plane, and given an elevated tone to its social features that is readily perceptible. And it is emphatically a Methodist school, as every member of the faculty is an active worker in the Methodist Church, and, therefore, well worthy of Methodist patronage. The president, Miss Georgia Swanson, will be glad to furnish any references or information or catalogues on application to her at Woodville, Miss.

Sunday-School Convention.

The Mississippi State Sunday-school Convention is composed of delegates from all Protestant Sunday-schools and County Conventions. Each Sunday-school is entitled to one delegate, and each County Convention to five. Ministers of all denominations are honorary members. All Sunday-school workers are welcome, and are urged to attend and get the benefits of the meeting. The convention will open at Winona, Aug. 26, 1902.

The people of Winona invite all to come, and will extend a hearty welcome to those who do. All who expect to attend are requested to send their names to

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION VIII.

The custom of the apostles was to baptize families. This was perfectly natural, because infants had always been admitted to church membership, and, therefore, entitled to the initiatory ordinance. In the New Testament we have three families mentioned by name, whom the apostles baptized, viz.: The household of Stephanas, Lydia and her household, and the jailer and all his. The mention of a family, or household, naturally suggests the idea of children of different ages, yet under parental control, for such is the normal family, and such, we may say, is the average family in almost any country. So great, in fact, is this presumption that he who denies it lays upon himself the task of proving the contrary. A person is presumed to be innocent of crime, though numbers are guilty, until he is proven to be. That is, the normal condition of all persons is one of innocency of crime until proven guilty; so, likewise, the normal condition of a family is that with dependent children, until the contrary is shown.

In the face of this fact, the opposers of infant baptism are compelled to argue, and without producing the least shadow of evidence in substantiation of their pretentions, flaunt into the faces of its advocates their "ipse dixit," disclosing nothing but balderdash. They have tried to make capital of the fact that only three cases of family baptisms are distinctly mentioned in the New Testament, as though that amounted to anything. While this is true, the number compares favorably with the other individual baptisms mentioned. Among the vast multitudes baptized by John, only one is named, and that one is Christ. Among the many thousands baptized by the apostles, besides the three families, we find only two names mentioned—Crispus and Gaius, by Paul. The number of names mentioned as having been baptized by the fellow-laborers of the apostles are three—the eunuch and Simon Magus, by Philip; and Saul, by Ananias. How many parents are mentioned as having been baptized whose children were not also baptized? There was Saul, but he had no children. There was the eunuch, but we know he had no children. There was Simon Magus, but we do not know whether he had children or not; we do know he was a bad man. There are two left, but whether they had children or not, we do not know. We see, then, that the baptism of families compares favorably with the other baptisms recorded. To what tricks the opposers of infant baptism will resort, simply to keep little children out of the church!

Here, then, we have three families, not selected for a purpose, nor specially described as being unlike the average families, in which baptism was administered. The record, to say the least, is very loose, and well calculated to mislead, if it is not lawful to baptize the average family; and more particularly is this true when we take into account the habits and customs of the times, when family baptisms, by proselyting, including infants, were very common, and very familiar to all the people.

When Paul baptized Stephanas, he baptized also his family. The term, "oikos," means family, as distinct from "oikia," household. The apostle notes the distinction between these two terms. Thus he baptized the "oikos," the family (I. Cor. i, 16), of Stephanas; but he speaks of the "oikia," the household (I. Cor. xvi, 15) of Stephanas, as addicting themselves to the ministry of the saints—that is, as Watson remarks, "of communicating to the poor saints; entertaining stranger Christians, which was an important branch of practical duty in the primitive church, that in every place those who professed Christ might be kept out of the society of idolaters; and receiving the ministers of Christ." This service could not, of course, be rendered by the "oikos"—wife and little children—of Stephanas, but was done by his "oikia"—household—composed of the servants of the family.

Says Dr. Summers: "This plain view of the subject explodes the notion that all the members of the family of Stephanas, baptized by St. Paul, must have been adults, because, forsooth, six or eight years afterward they are spoken of as addicted to the ministry of the saints. It is not said that this service was rendered by the 'oikos,' the 'family,' of Stephanas; nor is it said that the 'oikia,' the 'household,' of Stephanas was baptized by the apostle."

We next take the case of Lydia, recorded in Acts xvi. Turn to, and carefully read it. Now, who do you find were baptized? Can there be found any mention made of anyone but "Lydia and her household"? Are any "journeyman dyers," servants, brethren, or anyone else mentioned as belonging to her establishment? Is there an account of anyone's heart being opened but Lydia's?

"Baptists tell us that she came on a trading voyage from Thyatira to Philippi, to sell purple; yet the text does not say so. The text says she was from, or of, Thyatira, and 'was a seller of purple.' And, now, to get into her family some one else besides her children, they say she had 'journeyman dyers.' Now, look at the contradiction—'error' is always contradictory. She comes from Thyatira to sell purple, yet she must needs bring her 'goods' from that city to Philippi, and put up a 'dying establishment,' to prepare her cloth for sale. Only on a 'trading' excursion to Philippi, yet putting up a dyer's factory! Does it look reasonable? Baptists are great people to require others to stick to the text as it is in the Bible; so we require them now, and here, to stick to this text, and show us where it is said that Lydia was on a trading excursion; and where is the proof that she put up a dyer's establishment; and where is the proof that she had any journeyman dyers." (Jas. A. Clement, in Bap. Pret. to Ant.)

But they are not agreed among themselves. Some, apprehensive that the "journeyman" idea will not destroy the force of the text, suppose that the brethren spoken of in the fortieth verse of the same chapter constituted her household. This would be true if the Bible said so, but it does not say so. This is but the product of a watery imagination. It is amazing what shifts the opposers of infant baptism will make, and how they will torture the Word of God in order to leave infants out of the church, as though they were so many serpents. They actually add to and take from passages, as we find they have done in this instance. And when they fail in this, as a last resort, like the cuttle-fish, when attacked, stirs up the mud in order to blind its pursuers, will blind the people by meaningless terms. It need not surprise us if they are not agreed among themselves.

There is not the slightest intimation that any "journeyman," or "brethren," were baptized with Lydia. There is no mention made of anyone believing, or anyone's heart being opened, but Lydia's. Now, upon her faith she and her household—her family—are baptized. Nothing is said about any adults being baptized upon their faith, except Lydia, and surely they were not baptized upon her faith. Baptists claim that none should be baptized who are not "called;" so this knocks in the head the pretentions that adults were baptized upon the faith of Lydia. But, as little children are "called," for Christ said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not," Lydia's little children—her family—were baptized upon her faith.

As Mr. Clement justly observes: "All this parade about Lydia's husband, etc., is for 'buncombe.' If the sacred historian had told us about her husband, we could have known something about him. If she had children, she had a husband, or he was dead; or she was not what she ought to have been. The Bible says, Lydia and her household were baptized. The Bible speaks only of 'her faith.' If her household believed, why did not the sacred historian mention that fact, as well as that Lydia believed? If her household believed, was not their faith of as much importance, and as worthy to be noticed, as hers?"

Now, take all the foregoing facts, with the fact that the Greek word used here is "oikos"—family—expressing little children, and we must conclude that upon the faith of Lydia, that both she and her little children were baptized, like Abraham and Isaac were circumcised upon the former's faith.

A Reminiscence.

BY AN OCTOGENARIAN.

The Conference of 1856 met at Kosciusko amid downpouring of rain that might well aspire to be akin to Noah's flood that turned the world upside down. Many of the preachers were never able to reach the seat of the Conference. Dr. C. K. Marshall got as far as Canton, telegraphed his greetings to us, and returned home. The Aberdeen branch not having yet been built, Kosciusko was without railroad connection. From that Conference we were sent to what was then called a double station, a work of two appointments, one being the county seat, the other a scholastic village near by. On inquiry we found we had a pleasant appointment. Returning home, we were taken sick, and remained in bad health the entire Winter. When Spring opened we went to our work, and found it all that had been recommended. We found the people educated, intelligent, refined, and very social, but, unfortunately for them and us, in a very lifeless condition, religiously. On inquiry we found they had not had a revival of religion for several years, and we had only about a half-dozen members, male and female, that seemed to take vital interest in the church. Soon after our arrival we met our predecessor, and in him found our first clerical pessimist. He believed the Lord had cast him into the wilderness state, and was going to keep him there until he thoroughly disciplined him. At first we adjudged him the victim of a degree of lunacy, but before long had reason to believe that the little god, Cupid, was the author of all his troubles, striving to make him believe that the word "Yes" was the only antidote to all his ills. In arranging our work for the year we gave to the county seat the first and third Sundays, and to the village the second and fourth Sundays. In this village we had a male college established and now liberally patronized. We kept up our appointments at both churches regularly, getting acquainted in the meantime with the church and the world, and hoping and trusting and praying the Lord to meet with us at every appointment. The only appreciable improvement that we could see, however, was in the gradual increase of attendance.

On the second Sunday in May, at the eleven o'clock service, we had proof positive that the Word was accomplishing the work wherunto it was sent, and at the conclusion of the service we invited penitents, and quite a number came forward. We conducted altar service the usual length of time, and dismissed, announcing service for the night. At night we had quite an increase in the congregation. We preached and invited penitents, and quite a number came to the altar. Next day, meeting Rev. Whitfield Harrington on the street, he approached us, smiling, and said, "Bro. ——, did you expect the Lord to speak in tones of thunder to you last night, and say, 'Protract that meeting'?" We replied, "No." He said, "Why did you not do it, then?" We replied: "This community is composed of two classes—an agricultural and a literary class. We thought a protracted meeting at this time would inconvenience them very much. Besides, my brother, the Lord is not confined to protracted meetings, but will meet with and bless his people at any time they are prepared to receive him."

This was the only time that we ever saw a revival of religion fully sustained by stated appointment. In this case, for the space of three months the fires on the altar of the Lord never went out.

The semi-monthly appointments were crowded every time. The character of the meeting having spread through the country, brought many to the scene. How many conversions resulted from this revival we had no means of ascertaining, for parties from the surrounding country, coming in, fell under its influence, were converted, and joined their home churches. We only know that the village church register was greatly enlarged. A good old brother from a distance came into the house one day. Approaching us, he said, "Ah, my brother, I felt the presence of the Lord as soon as I entered the church."

We strove to serve our county-seat congregation with equal fidelity, zeal and energy; but, from some unknown cause, our labors were not successful. At the usual time we gave them a protracted meeting of one week duration, aided by Rev. Whitfield Harrington. We preached alternately at eleven o'clock and at night. The church seemed somewhat revived and built up, but not a penitent came to the altar, and but for two circumstances connected with this meeting, we should not have mentioned it. One was a Jew under conviction—a thing we had never seen. On entering the pulpit one day we saw a note lying on the book-board. We found it an invitation from a sick lady to visit her after service. This we did, finding her living so near the church that she could hear much of the service. This lady we found married to a Jew. She was very ill, and gave us her history. She had been reared by religious parents; had enjoyed religion, but was now in a lifeless condition. The Jew, her husband, lay on the bed behind her. After getting her history we talked encouragingly to her, read the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah, knelt at her bedside and began to pray for her. Very soon she began weeping aloud, and as the prayer progressed, she became more deeply affected, and began to shout. The Jew, not being able to restrain himself any longer, began weeping aloud, and giving other evidences of a deep conviction. The prayer went on, how long, we know not, but, when ended, the lady was shouting, and the Jew was giving evidence of intense excitement, calling on the God of Abraham to have mercy upon him. After saying to them all that we thought necessary, we withdrew, and never saw them any more. The other circumstance alluded to was what is called the laughing exercise. This we had never seen before, but had learned much of it from our now sainted mother. In her day she saw much of it, and said it was attended with what was called the jerks, in which every limb in the body was violently contorted, and the clubs of hair falling from the ladies' heads would pop like little whips. While holding a church meeting one day—a love-feast, if we recollect correctly—this exercise fell upon us. We think every Christian in the house enjoyed it. It manifested itself by a soft, sweet, gentle laughter; some throwing their heads back, others burying their faces in their hands. Not a word was uttered, nor an exclamation heard. This laughter continued about twenty or thirty minutes; then ceased suddenly in everyone. We have witnessed three separate and distinct manifestations of the presence of the Holy Spirit: First, in conversion—this is simply a baptism of love attended with a sweet assurance of sins forgiven; second, this laughing exercise—this is a baptism of joy and enrapturing delight, the soul being filled with joy and the intellect with delight. These two emotions have perfect control of the risible nerves, and they control the muscles engaged in laughter; hence the laughing exercise. The physiology of laughter is the same at all times, regardless of the character of the laugh. This is an instance amongst others in which the law of nature and the law of grace are one and the same, proving incontestibly that the God of nature and the God of salvation are one and the same God. In this simple truism lies logical force sufficient to storm any fortress erected by infidelity. Third, the pentecostal baptism. This is an avalanche of divine power coming down, as of a mighty rushing wind, accompanied with the sublimest and sweetest sound that ever fell upon human ears, coupled with the awful assurance of personal contact with Omnipotence, Omniscience, and Infinite Love. No language, living or dead, has any words, and no rhetoric any figure, to convey the slightest conception of this wonderful outpouring, except those used by the apostles. Christ commanded the disciples to tarry in Jerusalem till this power should be given them. On that day the Holy Ghost took charge of Christ's church, and added three thousand souls to its membership. Since that day he has been in all ages the power in the church. It was this that gave to the apostles the phenomenal power they possessed, and it is this alone that will impart power to the pulpit, and that is what it needs to-day. One sermon delivered under its influence will do more for the church than perfunctories innumerable. According to the ante-bellum regime, a stationed preacher was required to preach three sermons each Sabbath—two to the whites and one to the blacks. This itself was an over-tax on him, but, in addition to this, our peculiar circumstances required us on every other Sabbath to conduct two altar services. This was more than our system could bear, and we sunk under it, both our nervous system and pulmonary tissue giving way under the strain. For several years we were utterly disqualified for pulpit service, and it finally led to our location.

LETTER FROM KENTUCKY.

MR. EDITOR: When I passed through New Orleans the last of February, on my way to Southern California, to die or to get better, I had no thought it would be so long ere you chronicled my departure, or published a letter from me. In kindly mentioning my condition and the object of my California trip, you said you would expect a letter from me when I had reached my destination and had rested up. I can truly say that my affliction has not allowed me the "rested" feeling. I was, however, greatly benefited by my stay in California, and the medical and other attention I received while there. My dropsical affection progressed until it became very oppressive, and it was not opportune to operate on me until the last of May. My general condition seemed more favorable to the operation; so I was taken to the Pacific Hospital, of which Dr. W. M. Lewis (formerly of Greensburg, Ky.), my physician, was president, and was tapped May 26. I was greatly relieved, but it was expected that, ere long, I would have to be operated on again, possibly several times; so I concluded I would try to reach Kentucky during the hot weather, and before a recurrence of the trouble. So I started June 23. I took the long journey in rather easy stages, stopping about a week in Trinidad with M. Lenhart and Gid. Roberts, in Pueblo three days with A. Royal, a day and night with our preacher at Colorado Springs, Rev. E. E. Carrington, and two days with Cousin W. L. South in Denver, Colo. Starting again July 10, stopped three days in St. Louis; saw most of our city preachers; spent a night with my presiding elder, Rev. Geo. E. Foskett, in Henderson, Ky., and a day and night in Owensboro with Bro. N. B. Cooke, reaching my eldest daughter's, Mrs. W. T. Gregory, on the seventeenth. I stood the trip very well; better than was anticipated by those best acquainted with my condition. I regain strength very slow, and but slight improvement in flesh; still I am very glad that there is but a slight dropsical indication in my lower limbs, and none in my body; so I have hope that the operation will not soon have to be repeated. There is no probability, however, that I can early take up the work again. I will likely have to content myself with a superannuate relation. I find this trying, as other brethren before me have found it; but, in justice to the church, and as the only prospect of prolonging my days, I must submit.

I am as much as ever interested in our church, her literature, her institutions, and her work, and must say, in particular, that I have a growing appreciation of your paper. You have the editorial instinct, and you are occupying an interesting field. The unique city of New Orleans will continue to be an important factor in this great nation, and in our church operations, and the section of your patronage will continue to be an important section of the South, and of the whole country. I am glad to mark the solid reading your columns afford.

In passing from section to section I see some changes wrought by time, and the commercialism and secular training of the age. In formal Christianity there is certainly a great falling off; Sabbath observance, and even attendance on the social meetings and public services of the sanctuary. But it's the fashion of the cultured to say that these are not of the essence of Christianity, while they express a very high regard for Christ, especially for his moral code and his life of charity. There are certainly some religious symptoms and sentiments in regions not usually considered Christian. This is better than nothing, and may be more consonant with the times, but I must confess a relish for the old-time religion that was marked by fervor and enthusiasm, and by emotion and demonstration; and yet I find myself ready to say there is sometimes more noise than is necessary, and too much stress put upon feeling; yet surely religion is an experience attendant on a principle.

I am glad to see the church so wrought up on the subject of missions, but we are becoming increasingly lop-sided in our machinery and manipulation. We are talking of the multiplication of missions and missionaries to the ends of the earth, and at the same time of calling in the home missionary where there is no prospect of making the work self-sustaining, as if in the very nature of things even some parts of the country that have not only been self-sustaining, but productive, will have to go back on the lists again. Where the high lands and hillsides have washed away, and the bottoms have become impoverished, the people can not do what they did, and woe will betide the church that turns them out to grass and to die. Let us love our neighbor that's near as well as the one that is across the sea.

We are trying to hold our own as a church in the matter of schools, but we need to strike a better pace. The educational side of Christianity is an expensive part of it, but a necessary part, and the church that neglects it is doomed to take a back seat. The mind must be trained, not alone in Christianity, but amid and under Christian influence.

GEO. NEEDHAM.

Garfield, Ky.

Baton Rouge District.

Just in from the Denham Springs Camp Meeting. It was universally admitted that it was the best camp meeting ever held on the grounds, spiritually. Fully twenty-five had professed conversion when I was forced to meet another appointment. Revs. Turner, Kleinschmidt, Robt. Randle, Fontaine, C. C. Miller, J. L. McManus, L. S. Jones, of Port Gibson, Miss., and the pastor, with the presiding elder, were the ministerial force who did the preaching. The crowds were not so large as at other meetings of the past, but the order and results were far better. No doubt some one will give you a fuller report of the meeting.

The work on the Ascension mission is still moving on, with all other appointments heard from on the district.

Brother McClendon, on Franklinton circuit, reports a fine revival at one of his churches.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease.

It originates in a scrofulous condition of the blood and depends on that condition.

It often causes headache, and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the vocal organs, disturbs the stomach.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

This great medicine has wrought the most wonderful cures of all diseases depending on scrofula or the scrofulous habit.

Fearful Arraignment of the Liquor Traffic

A SERMON ON

TEMPERANCE,

By the Rev. George R. Stuart,

CLEVELAND, TENN.

Coworker with the Rev. Sam P. Jones.

The author has had numerous calls from all over the country for this sermon. In order to meet this demand he had it published in pamphlet form. He proposes to use the profits of the sale in the interest of the cause for which the sermon was preached.

It is sold by the single copy for 10 cents; by the 100, at 7 cents per copy; by the 1,000, at 5 cents per copy.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Rally Day.

The value of a Rally Day to a Sunday-school depends largely upon advertising and personal solicitation. Of course, a good programme must be prepared, and the exercises must be interesting, but unless it is thoroughly advertised and talked up, it will be like hiding your light under a bushel. The object of Rally Day is to reclaim those who have dropped out during the Summer months, and to interest and draw into the Sunday-school those who have not before attended.

The time is at hand when preparation for Rally Day should be begun, if the day is to be observed. It will require labor, and sacrifice of time, if the day is to be made a success, but the results to be obtained will amply repay the effort. Without earnestness, zeal, and enthusiasm, the work of the school will drag; but when a school has these elements of success, preparation for Rally Day will be a pleasure, and not a burden. "It may be held late in September or early in October, according to local conditions. The exact date is unimportant. The spirit, purpose, and achievement of the day are all-important. Its tonic value in Sunday-school work has been so thoroughly tested and proven that the Sunday-school that omits it from its year's programme throws away a golden opportunity."

A neatly-printed invitation should be issued a week or so before Rally Day, and either mailed, or, perhaps, what would be better, use the little boys and girls of the school as messengers to carry the invitation to every family in the congregation, and not forgetting those families or individuals which have no church affiliations. Have the invitation bright, attractive, and persistent.

One of the best invitations we have seen was that used by a St. Louis Sunday-school last year:

RALLY DAY.

——— Methodist Sunday-school.

Next Sunday, ——, at — o'clock, is our Sunday-school Rally Day, and we desire to make it memorable in our history.

It is the beginning of our Fall campaign, and we need to start all together under the banner of our dear Lord, Jesus Christ, battling courageously and enthusiastically for righteousness and truth.

The officers and teachers cordially invite you to be present. Will YOU come? If it is rainy, COME. If it is hot, COME. If you have company, COME and bring them. Ask father, mother, sister, brother, neighbor, EVERYBODY, to come, and we will rejoice together. Exercises that will be interesting to all will be provided.

In the interest of the young, very sincerely yours,

———, Pastor.
———, Sup't.

In the programme have a definite, harmonious plan, giving emphasis to some one thought that will not be easily forgotten. The following was used by a California school:

9:30—We Will Scatter Sunshine. School.

9:35—Prayer. Perfect Silence. Doors kept closed.

9:45—Sunshine talk by the pastor.

9:55—Song, I'll Be a Sunbeam for Jesus. Primary Department.

10—Song, There's Sunshine in My Soul To-day. School.

10:05—Retire to classes for study. Reception of new scholars and visitors.

10:30—Song, Sunlight, Sunlight. Announcements. Secretary's report. Closing prayer.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

HARRISTON CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our third Quarterly Conference for Harriston circuit, Natchez district, was held at Mizpah Church, Aug. 2 and 3, and our ever-faithful presiding elder, Bro. T. W. Adams, was at his post promptly, and full of zeal and labor for the Master. He preached for us three times at Mizpah, and once at Harriston. Splendid sermons, all of them; and much good was accomplished. We secured our Conference collections in full for Mizpah Church, in cash and good subscriptions. Many thanks to Bro. Adams for his help, and to the people for their liberality, and may God bless them all. The stewards made a very good showing, and especially since it is the hardest time of the year. Mizpah Church, where the Conference was held, has paid up to date everything. God bless them, and he will.

We followed the two days of the Quarterly Conference with three days of protracted service; preaching done by Rev. L. S. Jones, of Port Gibson. People who know him can judge of how well it was done. Suffice it to say, I would not have changed it if I could. He was also looking for girls for his (our) college. Do hope he may be full to overflowing. God bless his ministry and his college work. We had a nice and successful meeting at Mizpah. The church much revived, and six accessions to the membership, and six received a month before at the same place, makes twelve recently received. Pray for us.

God bless the ADVOCATE and its editor. A. D. MILLER.

Lorman, Miss.

DALEVILLE, MISS.

Our meetings to date, beginning on Thursday night, July 17, at Daleville, with the able assistance of Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, of the North Mississippi Conference, we continued until the following Thursday, at 11 A. M. We had exceedingly fine preaching from start to finish. We had a fine meeting; church revived, and one accession. The people are about all in the church at this point. I predict a bright future for Lipscomb.

Our next meeting began at Bethel, July 27, under the earnest and effectual preaching of Rev. W. W. Moore, professor of Cooper Institute. He did able preaching, and we took nine members into the church, and the church was graciously revived. Bro. Moore is a faithful, effectual preacher.

Our third meeting began at Linwood, Aug. 3. Bro. V. V. Boone, of Lauderdale, came to us on Monday, and preached with power and effect from then until Thursday evening, when we closed one of the best meetings ever held at that place. The church was graciously revived, and twenty souls received into the church. Bro. Boone is an able, deserving preacher.

I pray the blessings of God upon these brethren and their families, and their respective fields of labor.

We began the year with the motto: Fifty accessions, the church revived, and the collections in full. We still expect to reach that mark with the help of God and our good people. Pray for our success.

P. H. HOWSE.

TRYPE, MISS.

MR. EDITOR: We had two protracted meetings and a quarterly meeting on Providence circuit in July. Saturday night before the second Sunday we began at Monticello, with Rev. M. L. Burton to do the preaching. We closed Wednesday night. We heard nine sermons. They were such as to build up and strengthen Methodism and Christianity in our midst. Bro. Barton has grown very much as a preacher in the last ten years. We were all delighted to have him with us.

The third Sunday and Saturday before was our third quarterly meeting at Providence. The presiding elder gave us three good sermons. He is a willing worker, for he preached every time we asked him. The attendance, attention, and reports, were good.

The fourth Sunday we began at Bahala Chapel, with Dr. Peebles to do the preaching. He preached ten sermons in four days. He is one of the universally useful men—untiring and good in all directions. He gave us some wholesome doctrine—not at all second blessing—and a telling sermon on water baptism by special request. He is doctrinal and revivalist, writer, book seller, and a pulpit man of great power. There were four accessions of promising young people, and one infant baptized, and a general quickening among the members.

Kindly, C. MCDONALD.

HARPERVILLE CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I have just closed my first protracted meeting for this charge, which was held a Good Hope. The meeting lasted six days, beginning on Sunday and closing Friday night. Bro. M. L. White, of Carthage circuit, was with me after Sunday, and did all the preaching after his arrival. We had a good meeting; only one accession. However, the meeting was very profitable to Christians, and we had a real good revival meeting, and the church was greatly revived. Bro. White is a strong preacher, and his preaching was well received, and, I feel sure, will bear good fruit later on. We had large congregations from beginning to end, especially at the night services.

A portion of the country contiguous to Good Hope has been without rain for nine weeks. Old corn is literally ruined, and they are cutting it down for fodder. The cotton crop is very seriously damaged; gardens and pastures dried up; water supply running short.

IRVIN MILLER, P. C.

Walnut Grove, Miss.

AUBURN, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We closed a most gracious revival at Adams last Sunday. During the eight days there was not a cold or indifferent service. Some thirty or forty professed conversion or reclamation; five united with the church on profession of faith. One dear old man of some years was brightly converted and joined the church. Many of our best and truest members were wonderfully strengthened and blessed. Bro. Drake is fine help. He did some most faithful and efficient work. We remember him only to love him. May the Lord spare him many years! We consider Adams in good working condition. Bro. Paul May, pastor of the M. E. Church, gave us good service during the meeting. Adams will meet all obligations.

Love to you and yours. God graciously bless you in your great work.

Your brother in Christ,
W. J. FERGUSON.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

CORRESPONDENTS will please direct all communications, whether on business or for publication, to the Editor, 512 Camp St., New Orleans. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

OBITUARIES not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged for at the rate of ONE CENT A WORD. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

THE PRINTED LABEL on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after two weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. This applies also to those who request a change of address.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 21, 1902.

THE NEW DISCIPLINE.

The new Discipline will soon be ready for distribution. Every Methodist home ought to have a copy. No official member can afford to be without one. Some radical changes by the General Conference in May were made, so that the old Discipline does not now contain all the laws of the church. From this date until the first of September we will furnish the new Discipline and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE one year for TWO DOLLARS cash. This offer applies to all who will pay up back dues to date, and renew their subscriptions, as well as to new subscribers who send the money. We ought to have several hundred answers to this proposition. Address,

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

Liberty does not mean that God has relinquished his ownership in man, and turned him loose to follow his own vain and perverse ways. The Lord is not thus indifferent to his welfare, but is ever watchful, and ever seeking to keep him in the right way. For any abuse of his freedom God will hold him to a strict account. He can not escape the consequences of his own evil doings.

God's estimate of man is indicated by the rank he has given him in creation. He is only a little lower than the angels, crowned with glory and honor, and to him is given power and dominion. None but one who is dead to human instinct, and is regardless of his obligations to God, will abuse his manhood or ill treat his brothers. To fulfill his mission according to the will of God will finally raise him to a level with the angels who have never lost their first estate.

There is nothing wrong in money or money-making. On the contrary, it is perfectly right, if one has the right view of the use of money, and employs the right means to obtain it; but everybody knows that the man who gives himself wholly to the love of money, and has no scruples as to the methods of getting it, becomes sordid and selfish and godless. He is not happy himself, and adds nothing to the happiness of his fellow-men. His gold will weight him down to destruction and perdition.

The demand for a revision of the law governing the Holy Sabbath is really a demand for a revision of the whole code of morals. But it is not altogether a revision that men want. It is rather a desire to get rid of the law entirely. To say that after thirty-five hundred years men do not understand the law concerning the Sabbath is a reflection on human intelligence. To say that it needs amendment or revision to accommodate its demands to the present age is a reflection on the divine wisdom. "Thou shalt remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

SCHOOL ENDOWMENT.

How to put educational facilities within the reach of all the people is a problem. The question of secular education has been solved by the State. The people are taxed, and children have free access to the schools, from the primary department to the finishing course in the university. In other words, the State schools are endowed. The question of cost, save for board and lectures in the professional departments of the universities, is eliminated.

But State schools can not, in the very nature of the case, satisfy the conscience of the church. They are good as far as they go, but they do not go far enough. Religious instruction of a sectarian or denominational character is forbidden. This is as it should be. But so fearful lest children be biased in favor of one doctrine over another, the State forbids religious instruction altogether. This makes State education wholly secular. Roman Catholics do not hesitate to designate such schools as godless, and, ostensibly for this reason, they oppose the public-school system. But their opposition is useless, for, so long as these schools are maintained at public expense, the man who has no children to educate paying as much (or more, if he happens to be a man of means) as the man who has half a dozen, or more, they will have a hold on the public conscience.

The church can not allow the education of her children to be turned over entirely to the State. In the formative period of character, when the heart, as well as the mind, is to be instructed and trained, the impress of the church must be felt. She must educate her sons and daughters. There is absolutely no other way to preserve the Christian household and the Christian citizenship of our country. The very fact that the State schools ignore all religion is well adapted to impress the young with the idea that religion is useless, or, at best, has but a secondary place in life. True, it may require several generations to make the impression general, but in due time its logical result will be worked out. Two things now hinder. One is the Christian school. The other is the law which requires men and women of good moral character for teachers. This law results in placing first-class instructors in the schools, the majority of whom are professing Christians. These teachers, though not allowed to give religious instruction, nevertheless, teach by example.

What can the church do to compete with the higher schools of the State? There is but one answer. Our schools must be endowed. The charge for tuition in all literary departments must be eliminated, and such facilities afforded in connection with the schools as will bring living down to the lowest possible figure. Free tuition will not attract and hold pupils if boarding-house keepers, or the managers of boarding departments of colleges, demand high prices for regular board, and require pay for extras besides. The margin for living and for extras should not be large enough to make up for the loss of tuition. Ample endowment would leave no place for this. We once met a youth who had applied for admission into a school which was supposed to give both tuition and living free. On making inquiry, he said he found that, after paying for all the extras, the cost would be more than he would have to pay for a good, fair education at home, and he did not enter. We do not vouch for the truth of the young man's statements, but they go to show that there is no economy in going to a school that requires a student to take so many extras, and at such prices as will more than counterbalance free tuition. Ample endowment ought to obviate everything of this kind.

Again, our schools ought to be sufficiently endowed to give officers and professors more than living salaries. Many of our best schools are hampered at this point. They have instructors thoroughly competent, but are unable to properly compensate them. In some instances, if we are rightly informed, nothing but loyalty to the church, and devotion to the institutions where they are engaged, hold them to their places. There is constant dread lest they leave, and the institutions be compelled to run the risk of employing inferior professors. This ought not to be the case, and would not, if our schools were amply endowed.

We sometimes feel ashamed when we read of rich men giving to schools five hundred thousand or a million of dollars, which schools already have endowments reaching into the millions, while our own schools, doing work for us that no other schools can do, are struggling for existence. Our two colleges, Centenary and Millsaps—worthy schools—are doing excellent work with the facilities in hand; but both need endowment. Five hundred thousand each would be little enough. A full million each would be none too much. Oh, that our rich men would think of this, and build monuments for themselves on the grounds of these two institutions. And the time seems to be approaching when our schools for girls must have as much attention as our schools for boys. Patronage alone, even with extras, will not keep them alive in competition with State schools. In this article we present the great need of our schools without any suggestion as to how the need is to be met. If there be those who can give a word of exhortation — a word that will excite interest and action — let them say on.

THE CHURCH OF THE FUTURE.

We read much nonsense concerning the church of the future. Some men, peering into the distance, think they see it clearly outlined. "The wish is father to the thought," for no such church as they describe has its foundation in the Word of God. Certainly there may be an apostasy, and such an organization as is predicted may materialize, but it will lack all the essential elements of the church of Christ, and be wholly unworthy of the name.

Among the visionaries who have dreamed and given expression to their night-thoughts is the Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, who tells us that the church of the future "will have no written creed." Thought will be unfettered, and worship will be "useful and free work." Dogma will not dominate, and the people will govern themselves. There will be no rules of restraint; appeal will be made only to "the social conscience." In other words, the church of the future will be an anarchy, pure and simple. If there is to be any Christ in it, Mr. Bigelow does not make any mention of the fact. The church of the future is to be of man's creation. It is not to be even so much as an evolution from the New Testament Church.

And yet Mr. Bigelow's dream seems to be based on the spirit of creed revision which has lately possessed the Presbyterian Church, the result of which, he says, "is evidence of the silent and peaceful revolution of thought that is redeeming the world." But whether the Presbyterian Church by revision is getting nearer to the truth as expressed in the Scriptures, or revising itself out of a creed so as to get rid of dogma, the writer does not tell us; the latter, perhaps, as he evidently holds that to be creed-bound is to be chained to death. The fact that those who reject written creeds, and hold only to the Bible, giving it their own interpretation, are the most uncompromising, not to say intolerant, of all believers, seems to have been overlooked by the builder of the future church. But we forget the Bible is the creed of Christ, which all Christians are bound to accept and obey. It will not do to hold the church of the future to the Bible. Men are to be free, and appeal is to be made only "to the social conscience." The Bible is scarcely up-to-date now with many. When the church of the future is fully established, it will be a dead letter.

Away with all such folly! The church is built on the truth, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. With Bible in hand, and Christ to inspire and lead, the church of the future, like the church of the past, will prosecute its soul-saving mission. It will be along the lines laid down in the New Testament, with its principles unimpaired and unadulterated; and it will be just as efficient as the church of the past, for the "gospel is the power of God unto salvation," yesterday, to-day, and forever. Let us be zealous for the safety of the ark, but not afraid. God will strike down the man who dares to touch it with a view to its overthrow. The church will abide!

PREACHING FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

Preaching the certain and eternal punishment of the wicked does more than stir up the critics. It rouses the wrath of those who plead for the fatherhood of God without respect to his character as a righteous administrator of law. These are free thinkers without knowing it. They are heretics of the first water. Some of them are as intolerant as Pharisees. The heresy declared by Dr. Beet has brought a few of them to the front. On the other hand, it has confused a few feeble souls. One man says he can accept the scriptural proposition that God, through Christ, will give eternal life to all who believe, not only because it is asserted, but because "God has furnished him a witness, strong as the evidence of his conscious existence, that the record is true." But because Dr. Beet has declared that "God has not plainly revealed what disposition will be made of the impenitent dead," and because he has no conscious testimony on the subject, he does not know what to do. How easily some men are balked!

Without entering into an argument to prove the eternal punishment of the finally impenitent, we may be permitted to say that, so far as the record shows, our Lord preached the eternal punishment of the wicked as plainly and emphatically as he did the eternal salvation of the good. This seems to us so clear we feel justified in saying that any sort of argument strong enough to overthrow faith in the one will necessarily undermine faith in the other.

The punishment of the wicked has all along entered into the preaching of evangelical Christendom, and has never been a hindrance to success. On the contrary, much of the success of the gospel is due to the faithfulness of the ministry in proclaiming the terrors of the law. Men have not yet ceased to be moved by the fear of punishment. This is old-time doctrine, and may be regarded by many as a relic of barbarism, but it is true nevertheless; and there is just as much necessity for preaching the fact to-day as at any time in the past.

The modern pulpit does not reject the doctrine, nor has it altogether ceased to preach it, but it has ceased to emphasize it as of old, and the world at large, we fear, has ceased to dread it. In consequence, many are resting, as the old preachers used to say, in carnal security. Many of us, as preachers, need to ask ourselves whether or not we are declaring the whole counsel of God.

To eliminate from our creed the doctrine of future punishment is about equivalent to denying the existence of divine government. To say that God will punish the wicked, but limit its duration, is to encourage hell-redemptionism, thus inducing men to live in sin through the hope of a second probation. The foundations must be destroyed before Methodists can accept such doctrines. As Methodists, we can afford to remain true to the standards.

WHERE ARE THE BOYS?

We propound a serious question: Where are the boys? The time was in our Sunday-schools, public worship, and other places of a religious character where the young congregated, boys and young men were as numerous as young women and girls. It is not so now — at least, it is not the case where this editor is in the habit of going. In our towns and cities it is absolutely painful to note the absence of young men from the congregation. Boys from five to twelve years of age are seldom seen. At a recent popular meeting extending over eight days, and largely attended, fully three-fourths of the attendants were women and girls. What religious interest was manifested by the unconverted was on the part of the women, with perhaps one or two exceptions. The same may be said of other meetings — even those conducted wholly in the interest of young people. At a recent assembly of this sort, which called together more than one hundred at various times, less than five per cent. of young men, except young preachers, attended or took any part in the exercises. Where are the boys?

One must be blind who does not see in this state of things something to alarm and arouse. It has often and long been said by the worldly and indifferent that "religion is fit only for women and children." Such a sentiment, of course, does not obtain in the church, for it is still true that a large proportion of the membership is made up of men and boys. But the fact that young men and boys are more and more neglecting the church is a bad symptom. It indicates a wrong somewhere. Let those who are wise, and know what Israel ought to do, institute an inquiry.

Observe, we have not tried to answer our question. We have given the facts as we see them. We leave parents and Sunday-school teachers, League workers and pastors to give an answer. Some of these are responsible. Where are your boys?

Sunday-School Convention.

The twenty-third Annual Convention of the Mississippi State Sunday-school Association will be held in Winona, beginning August 26. The notice received is accompanied by the programme of exercises, which we are unable to print for lack of space. The secretary, Mr. A. E. Ledyard, is in correspondence with the Southeastern Passenger Association with a view to securing reduced rates, and he asks all delegates to obtain certificates showing payment of full fare at starting-point.

To Brethren Interested.

We deeply regret the trouble some of our brethren are in over the Sam Jones Camp Ground in the Natchez district. We are receiving more matter on the subject for the ADVOCATE than we can print. We beg the brethren to hold up. With the request of Brother J. A. B. Jones, and the personal explanation of Brother J. F. Cassels, in this issue of the paper, we shall dismiss the matter from our columns until the question at issue is settled. Then, if so desired, we will print the history of the case. As the matter now stands, brethren can not write without getting excited. Appeal has been made to Cæsar. Let Cæsar settle it.

PERSONAL.

Rev. G. W. Davis, of the Texas Conference, passed through the city last Saturday on his way to Cleveland, Miss., where he will assist the pastor, Dr. J. W. Price, in a meeting.

Rev. H. C. Edmondson has been blessed with a revival on his work, the Chester charge. A good meeting resulted in seven conversions, and an equal number added to the church. He will hold other meetings. The prospects are good.

Rev. C. T. Stepp, of Kentwood, informs us that his church was injured by lightning on July 10, but has been repaired at a cost of fifty dollars. Also says: "We are about ready to begin building a parsonage, and desire to have it completed by the first of October."

We are very sorry to learn of the continued feeble health of Rev. W. D. Burroughs. He has been confined to his bed for several weeks. This is a great affliction, as he expected to spend a month at Seashore Camp Ground. We fear now he will not be able to do so.

Our pen slipped last week when we alluded to Prof. J. M. Sullivan as having been connected for several years with Millsaps College. We should have said Centenary College, instead of Millsaps. He has occupied the Chair of Natural Sciences in Centenary for twelve years.

Rev. W. S. Shipman, of Minter City, Miss., is at Seashore Camp Ground, where his wife and children have been sojourning for more than a month. He has lately been engaged in building a new parsonage. The workmen were putting on the finishing touches when he left. It will be ready for the family when they return.

Rev. W. L. Duren, supplying the place of Rev. R. J. Allen on Vaiden circuit, has made a good start. He is treated kindly by the people, who attend upon the services in gratifying numbers. He has held one meeting, assisted by Rev. J. C. Park, with good results. Twenty-one members were added to the church, fifteen of whom were on profession of faith.

Rev. Geo. H. Thompson, of Lumberton, adds the following sad words to a business note: "Our home has been under the shadow of sickness for some time. My wife has just recovered from an attack of typhoid fever, and four of my children are in bed with the same fever." We sympathize with our brother, and pray that the suffering ones may be restored to health.

Rev. H. G. Hawkins, vice-president of Whitworth College, sends us the following note: "The next session of Whitworth College opens Sept. 17, and on the following Sabbath, Rev. F. N. Parker, of New Orleans, preaches the opening sermon. A friend to the college and to Christian education has given the money for painting the two brick buildings, known as 'Margaret Hall' and 'The Institute,' the work to be done right away."

Mrs. A. M. Williams, wife of our preacher at Gunnison, Miss., has lately enjoyed a visit to kindred in Alabama. The thoughtful ladies of the church kindly furnished the means. We congratulate our brother and sister on the success of their daughter, Miss Lily, in obtaining a diploma from Wesleyan College, at Macon, Ga. the oldest chartered college for women in the world. We thank Brother Williams for an invitation to visit his charge. We would gladly go, but at present it is quite out of our power.

North Mississippi Conference Notes.

It is dry and hot in these regions. The long and severe drouth has been broken in most parts by good rains, but it is still on us here. Corn and cotton crops are varied. In some parts they are real good, in others middling, but generally very short. Nevertheless, the people are trustful that they shall continue to dwell in the land, and have food and raiment. This scribe has been taking Summer vacation in attending Woman's Missionary meetings, District Conferences, touring with a beloved presiding elder, and helping the brethren in meetings.

He is just home after an itinerary of eighteen days—a week and a half with Bro. Graves on Tyro circuit, at Free Springs and Mt. Vernon; and several days at Love Station, Coldwater charge, Bro. Thames, P. C. On arrival at the latter place, on Wednesday evening, I found Bro. Babb in charge of the meeting. Bro. Thames having taken sick on Tuesday, was compelled to go home, and was unable to return. Bro. Babb did good service until Friday evening, when he had to go home and leave this writer to continue until Sunday night. In these several meetings there were a few accessions to the church, the membership was revived, song books were put into the churches, many copies of the Holy Scriptures, with other good books, were put in circulation; besides, much good in other respects was, doubtless, accomplished. A club for the Children's Visitor was raised at each church visited, a few subscriptions for the Sunday-school Magazine were taken, and a few sets of the Bible Teachers' Study Circle were sold.

So "Leroy" may see that we have somewhat of the "office," and are doing something of the work that he "sees the need of in our church." We antedate the Baptist movement, of which he writes, several years. By the way, he has a misconception of the work projected by the Mississippi Baptist State Convention. It is solely for the promotion of Sunday-school work and not for evangelizing at all, according to the common understanding of that work. The man selected for the work is not a preacher, but simply a consecrated Christian worker, who will, doubtless, do much good in his sphere.

Arrangements are being made for the holding of two Sunday-school Institutes in October, viz.: at Oxford and West Point. The dates will be given later.

The country preachers are all engaged in protracted meetings, and some of the town preachers are helping them. What better way for a station preacher to take vacation than to go out into the near-by country and aid his brother circuit preacher in meetings where he can get off his stilts and preach, sing and pray himself and others happy? No better evangelists than they.

Sam Jones Camp Ground.

I earnestly request those who desire to know the truth to wait a time with patience until the facts are published which will demonstrate the true status of the Sam Jones Camp Ground Association, vindicate the conduct of the undersigned, and clearly reveal the true animus that culminated in an injunction to prevent the sixteenth annual camp meeting under the present management, fifteen having been conducted in strict conformity to the usage and Discipline of the M. E. Church, South.

Pres. S. J. C. G. Association.

Personal Explanation.

EDITOR OF NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE: Replying to the article in the ADVOCATE, of Aug. 7, from Rev. T. W. Adams, referring personally to myself, I have this to say: That W. Y. Webb did make, first, two demands of me—one was for the old Quarterly Conference Records, and the other was to give him the names of the trustees that now hold the Sam Jones Camp Ground property. I told him that I would not give up the Quarterly Conference Records, except it be to him to whom they belong; and after he said he was the recording steward, I never refused. The evening I told him I would bring them I was in bed sick, and since the article came out so severely censuring me, it has made the distance from his house to mine, and from mine to his, just exactly the same. I never said or thought of saying that I wanted an order from the Camp Ground Association to turn over these records. I said this when Mr. Webb changed the last demand to a request; then I said that if he would promise me that they would not go into law with the association, that I would give him any information that was in my power to give; but should he refuse to do this, then I would refuse to grant his request, unless ordered to do so by the association.

Respectfully, J. F. CASSELS.

Wesleyan Female College, Macon, Ga.

This college, which has the honor of being the oldest college in the world for women, is one of the very few institutions in the South that are doing real, high-grade college work. The teachers in its Literary, Music, Art and Elocution Departments are all specialists, and have been carefully selected from two continents.

The institution had nearly four hundred students last year, and did not have a vacant room in its Boarding Department, though a new thirty-thousand-dollar dormitory, accommodating one hundred additional students, had just been erected. Another big overflow is in sight for this Fall, and the trustees have authorized the erection of another building. Young ladies who desire admission to this time-honored institution will do well to write to the president, Dr. J. W. Roberts.

The Wesleyan has seven large rooms devoted to the Department of Natural Science alone. Its chemical laboratory is one of the finest in the South. The college is fortunate in this respect, for every educator knows that natural science can not be taught without proper apparatus and equipment.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

BRIGHT OLD AGE.

Sunday, July 27, was a cheerful, happy day in Senatobia. We had with us that Nestor of North Mississippi Methodism, Rev. Amos Kendall. Though a superannuate, and on the "bright side of seventy," he preached for us morning and night. His physical and mental vigor and charming optimistic spirit abide with him through the ripening years of his pilgrimage, and he preaches with his wonted power. His visit and ministry among us was a veritable benediction to the community. In the morning service, as he dwelt upon and enraptured his congregation with a telling description of "Enoch's Walk with God," there certainly came over the audience a rush of mellow and heavenly memories as they thought of his long, useful and devout life which had been "hid with Christ in God."

There have lived few men whose lives have been steadier, purer, truer and nobler than his. The mention of his name is like the sound of a gospel trumpet. It has inspiration, hope and victory in it. His name is associated with honor and truth, the highest social esteem and purest, tenderest brotherly love in thousands of homes. There is not the suspicion of a mark upon the fair escutcheon of his good name. If you were to count the years, and speak in the language of men, you would call Bro. Kendall an old man; but if you mark his zeal, his hope, his good cheer, his buoyant joy, and youth-like aspiration, his freedom from carping cares and senile perplexities, distractions and melancholy, you find the kindling fires of immortal youth still burning in his blood and bone. How beautiful to grow old with grace and sunshine in the spirit! But this is the exception. I could wish it were the rule. Cicero confessed that the years had soured his spirit and left their dark shadow upon his life. Plato and Aristotle found their philosophy but a dim candle to light and guide them through the dark mazes of coming and unseen years. Great old Horace, with his matchless genius and poetic fire, could not refrain from the depressing idea that man in all his glory is but a football of fate and a wretch of delusion. Pliny writes of the crocodile, "that she grows to her last day," but man weakens and withers and fails in the midst of his years. But these blind, old heathen had not heard of him who is "the resurrection and the life." Bro. Kendall is sweet-spirited, optimistic, cheerful and happy. May God bless all our superannuates with this frame of mind, and thus make them to grow and flourish like a cedar in Lebanon, and "they shall bring forth fruit in old age."

NOTES FROM GRENADA.

In these sultry dog days it is extremely refreshing to note the enthusiastic determination of every one connected with Grenada College. The Building Committee is rapidly completing the handsome $12,000 annex; the Board of Trustees are planning and advertising energetically; the president and business manager are actively canvassing for girls; while most of the faculty are taking special courses, in addition to the regular college training that each has had, in order to be strictly up to-date in their several departments. Four of the teachers are spending the Summer studying in the famous Assembly at Chautauqua, N. Y. One would go far to find a faculty of more uniform ability. With fine common sense the Board of Trustees elected a first-class teacher for each department, and refused to dupe the public by making a "fad" of one subject, taught by a crank of unpronounceable name. Such booms are usually boomerangs. The Christian character of these teachers is such as to commend them to parents sending their girls away from home. They are helpful and strengthening to the church and to the moral sentiment of the town.

The people of Grenada are proud of the college, and look forward to the opening with great pleasure. With other buildings and equipment, a stronger faculty and more vital relation to the church than ever before, backed up by men who make personal sacrifice of time and money for its success, Grenada College is launched upon a glorious future. Parents who value merit and desire that their daughters shall have the best of training, mentally and morally, should give it their patronage.

WEST POINT.

DEAR ADVOCATE: We have had a great meeting in this place. Our pastor, Bro. Meek, as steady as an ox and as quick as a cat, easily brought the other pastors into the tent and into the meeting. Cards are cheap, and fiddlers are hunting a job. God surely drew a line between the church and world. Over one hundred professed religion one night: eighty-four at another service; at several others the number went over fifty. Hundreds were brought to God and back to God. Fine folks in West Point. Whoever helps Meek one time will want to again. Whoever knows him will love him. I will be in Tennessee at camp meetings for August. Friends may address me at Louisville, Ky., or Obion, Tenn.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

WILSON, LA.

DEAR BROTHER BOSWELL: This will inform you that a good meeting was held recently in Wilson, La., that grew in interest and power from the beginning to the end of the tenth day. The church is very much revived and encouraged in the reception of eighteen new members as a result of the meeting. The prospects of a great revival throughout the entire charge are promising. Our people are looking to, and hoping in God our Savior. The collections are provided for, and will be paid in full—pressed down, shaken together, heaped up and running over—if the latter rain comes. The prospects for a good year in this part of the church I consider good and hopeful. Thanks to Prof. Northcutt for a good day he gave me, and for two good sermons. Thanks to Brother P. S. Petty and family for their prayers and help in songs of praise during the entire meeting. H. W. MAY.

MOORINGSPORT, LA.

MR. EDITOR: I have just closed a gracious revival at Caddo Chapel, resulting in seven accessions by vows and the church graciously revived and built up. Our presiding elder was with us the last day, and preached with power. The stewards said they had the best financial report the church ever made. To God be all the glory.

Home Circle.

Elsie's Puppies.

Elsie Danvers was a little golden haired girl of six, when she went with her family to camp out a few weeks on one of the beautiful Adirondack lakes.

It was all new to them, this life in the forest, where the cooking was done over an open fire, and where one rolls up in a blanket at night, to sleep on the softest of balsam mattresses.

The little camp was situated on a point between two small bays. Around it great hemlocks and pines rose to a height of 90 feet, and a fringe of silver birches on the shore completely screened the camp from view.

One morning Elsie went, as usual, down to the shore to fish for minnows. It was such fun to watch them darting to and fro in the sunshine; but, alas, they wouldn't bite! So after a while she laid down her line, and seeing a pretty path, decided to take a little walk in the woods.

On and on she went, gathering ferns and bright berries, till, all at once, she thought she saw in the distance two small black puppies, frolicking around a great spruce tree.

"Oh, the dear little things," she cried, as she ran toward them, "what fun we will have."

Not long before Elsie started out on her walk, Jim Keene, a lad of 19, had gone out in very much the same direction. He was employed to help around camp, and this morning went to pick up dry wood for the fire.

He had gathered quite a pile, and was just starting to take it back to camp when he heard the sound of a child's voice, not ten yards away.

"Oh, you naughty doggie," it said, and then followed a little squeak, which Jim recognized to be that of a young cub in distress.

A low growl rang through the forest.

Dropping his load all but one stick, Jim rushed to the scene, picked up Elsie with his left hand, and just as the angry old mother bear was about to spring, he gave her a swift, hard blow on the nose. She rose in the air once, then fell backward, stunned, while Jim gave her blow after blow, until she rolled over and breathed her last.

Then he walked back to camp, carrying in his strong arms the bewildered Elsie, who had not once let go of her two black "puppies."

"Jim," the child asked, "what made you beat that nice big doggie so hard?"—Advocate and Guardian.

Her Work.

BY KATE UPSON CLARK.

A mother once said to a popular teacher, who had been adored by her pupils for a score of years: "What a wide and beneficent influence you have exerted, while I have been cooped up at home, managing servants, dosing the mumps and the measles, and patching and darning! How narrow my life looks beside yours!"

"Narrow!" cried her friend. "Think how you have sent forth into the world every morning your husband and your flock of boys and girls, full of health and cheer! What a model home you have created for all your friends to see! It is I who have lived a narrow life rather than you. What is the slight touch which I may have given to a thousand or more lives compared with the deep, determining influence which you have wielded over the half dozen in your home?"

"Is it possible that you can think so?" exclaimed the tired mother, incredulously.

"I know so. I have watched your children in school. They radiate everywhere an atmosphere of love and light, and it was you who gave it to them."—Journal and Messenger.

Life's Best Days.

The late Dr. Richard S. Storrs leaves us this cheering word of testimony: "I had as happy a childhood as falls to the lot of most children, and many a time it has been said to me by those who were visiting at my father's house, 'This is the happiest time in life for you.' I did not believe it then; I did not believe it as I grew older; and I know now that it was not true. The happiest time in your life is to come hereafter. If you try to do that which is right and useful to others, that which is honorable to yourself and that which is for the glory and praise of God, every year of your life will be happier than that which went before it. So do not feel that you are entering an oppressive, grinding, hateful world. Life on earth grows better and sweeter as one goes on in it, and what you are to do is to try to make a success of that life—each one of you."—Selected.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

Very many of our subscribers are behind in payment, and the time of many more is just expiring. Please send what is due. If you can not send the whole, send part. We need the money. Please do not wait another week!

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

CAPTAIN JAMES WATTS.

It was my sad duty to attend at the bedside of our brother, Captain Watts, and witness the various phases of his experience during the slow, but sure, approach of the last enemy. It is, therefore, of the sunset scene that I write. At first his friends did not think him seriously ill, but as the days wore on it became more and more apparent that the end was at hand, until at last the shadows of the evening settled upon him, and he quietly fell asleep. His was the calm triumph of faith which dignified even death itself. The sentiment of Tennyson in "Crossing the Bar" was strikingly illustrated in this scene of death. There was no pain, no struggle, no gasping for breath; he simply went to sleep. I made frequent visits to him all through the period of his decline, and talked with him candidly and plainly. He expressed himself as having no fear, and in the last interview had with him, in response to the question, "How is your faith?" he said, "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day." He was patient in suffering, grateful for all the delicate kindness shown him, and his tender heart responded in tearfulness and deep emotion to the prayers offered in his behalf. Captain Watts at seventy three was a remarkable figure; tall, erect, with scarcely a gray hair in his head, and with a bearing dignified, courtly. He was a typical Southern gentleman of the old school. Being a well-informed man, a close observer of men and things, and having an active brain, he was, in consequence, a fine conversationalist, and, of course, naturally convivial, too much so, indeed, for his own good, at one period of his life. Doubtless, the chief element of his character is summed up in the words of one who knew him well, "He never spoke unkindly of anyone." The law of kindness ruled in his life to an eminent degree. Having sought information elsewhere, that I may present a fair sketch of Bro. Watts' life, it is proper that I should give space for the following satisfactory tribute from the pen of the Rev. O. P. Thomas, of Terrell, Texas, a lifelong friend of our brother and his family:

"Captain James Watts was born in Wayne county, Miss., May 1, 1829, and died in Meridian, Miss., May 24, 1902. He belonged to one of the best families of his State, being the son of Hon. John Watts, who for years was one of the leading jurists of Mississippi. Captain Watts' early training, both moral and literary, was good. In early life he made choice of law as a profession, and began its practice under favorable auspices in DeKalb, Miss. When the tocsin of war between the States was sounded, he raised a company of volunteers, and, as their captain, marched to the front to defend the interests of his Southland. Being a man of rather feeble constitution, the exposures of army life so shattered his health that he was compelled to retire from service before the close of the war. In 1851 he was married to Miss Eleanor Bell, daughter of Dr. Samuel Bell, of Mississippi. From this marriage there were born to them ten children—four sons and six daughters—all of whom are still living. As a father, there were but few like him. As olive plants, his children grew up around him to honor and bless his home. He possessed the happy art of drawing his children to him as with bands of steel, and, if necessary, any one of them would have sacrificed life for him. As a husband, he obeyed the injunction of Paul where he says, 'Husbands, love your wives.' Hence he was gentle, thoughtful, ever considerate of his wife's comforts. Jacob was never more devoted to Rachel than was Captain Watts to his wife. As a citizen, loyal and true; as neighbor, kind and obliging. In early life he gave his heart to God and his name for membership into the M. E. Church, South. In his home God's minister always found a hearty welcome and a pleasant place to rest. Forty-two years ago I came to his home as a young itinerant preacher. I well remember the hearty welcome he and his good wife gave me. From that day a friendship began which soon ripened into brotherhood, ever remaining unbroken. After a lingering illness (at the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. F. Ormond, in Meridian, Miss.), on the twenty-fourth of May, surrounded by friends and loved ones, he calmly and sweetly closed his eyes in death, for the Lord took him to the home of the good, 'where the wicked cease to trouble, and the weary are at rest.' For more than fifty years he and his wife lived in happy and sweet conjugal felicity. Now that he is gone, she will miss him so much. The parting, however, will not be long, for the angels beckon from beyond the river, and she will soon meet him there."

JOHN W. LEWIS.

JOEL P. GILLIAM was born in Jefferson county, Miss., Feb. 5, 1868, and died in Greenville, Miss., April 30, 1902. He was never married. Making a profession of religion in a meeting conducted by Bro. J. P. Drake at old Cane Ridge, in Jefferson county, in 1883, he thus began the Christian life at an early age, and so was steadfast unto the end. It was his habit to study the Scriptures, and he loved to talk about God's love. Realizing that Jesus was his personal Savior, Christianity to him was a matter of business, and both his time and his means were given to the church, in whose services he took delight. Modest and unassuming, he talked but little; yet was he an "epistle, known and read of men." His life was right, and men believed in him. A mechanic by trade, he fell from a building while at work, sustaining injuries that caused his death. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord; . . . that they may rest from their labors." We shall see him again.

A FRIEND.

Miss ELIZABETH BELLE LANGLEY, daughter of our Brother and Sister A. W. Langley, was buried at Olive Branch, July 23, at 10 o'clock. Miss Belle was born Jan. 8, 1880, and died July 22, 1902, being in the morning of young womanhood. Her father knew of her last illness only a day. What a sudden taking off! But blessed is that servant whom his Lord finds watching. In her last hours she said to her mother, "Let me go this time; it is all right." A pure Christian girl has gone to heaven, and her family grieve in this, their first sorrow. Bros. W. W. Bott, J. W. Anderson and J. Robertson, with the writer, performed the last rites amid a large assembly of sympathizing friends. Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth. There is no more consecrated home than that upon which has come this sorrow.

STUDIES IN HIS LIFE AND TEACHINGS.

BY GROSS ALEXANDER, S.T.D.,

Professor of New Testament Exegesis in Vanderbilt University.

The Chapter titles of this book are suggestive of its scope. Some of these are as follows:

THE SUPERNATURAL BIRTH OF JESUS.
THE BAPTISM AND ITS MEANING.
THE TEST IN THE DESERT.
THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

BISHOP HENDRIX'S BOOK:

Skilled Labor for the Master.

12mo. Pp. 326. Cloth. Gilt top. Price $1.25.

"This is a timely and thought-provoking book, written with a holy purpose, and sure of a wide and beneficent mission. . . . The title is suggestive, and every page instructive. . . . One cannot escape the impression that some fervent paragraphs were penned when the devout author was sitting very close to the feet of his Lord."—Bishop Galloway.

BELMONT COLLEGE For Young Women, Nashville, Tenn.

"Location and Environment Unrivalled in the South."

Suburban and city life combined. Electric cars to north entrance. Attractions of park pressed to outdoor exercise. Ten schools in the hands of skilled specialists. Schools of music, art and elocution employ methods of best conservatories in this country and abroad. Diplomas conferred by schools. Lectures courses studiously selected. Best lectures, concerts, recitals, etc., in city, liberally patronized. Christian influences. Students from forty-two States and Territories. Send for handsomely illustrated blue and bronze catalogue, and other college literature. Early registration necessary to secure room.

Principals: Miss Roon, Miss Hanna.

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE, MACON, GA.

Oldest College for Women in the World. One of the few high-grade institutions of the South. A quarter of a million dollars invested in buildings. All modern conveniences. Ideal climate. Proverbially healthful. All Literary Courses of a high order, and advantages in Music, Art, and Elocution. Excellent Academy for pupils not prepared to enter college classes. Students who wish to board in the college should apply early, as we have room for only two hundred and fifty in the boarding department. Expenses low. Fall term begins September 17th, 1902. For catalogue and full information, address

J. W. ROBERTS, A. M., D. D., President.

Oldest Independent Normal School in Virginia.

Students may enter at any time and select their own studies.

THE Shenandoah Normal College Reliance, Virginia.

This Old and Well Established School enjoys an enviable reputation among its cotemporaries. The success of its many graduates and students in the different vocations of life bears practical testimony to the merits of its work.

Departments: Preparatory, consisting of the Common School branches, etc. Teachers' Normal; English; Scientific; Philosophic; Classic; Commercial; Shorthand; Typewriting; Telegraphy; Music, Instrumental and Vocal, including Voice Culture, etc. If you do not find what you want in the above list, write us and we shall promptly tell you just what we can do for you. We offer a wide range of subjects, and can usually satisfy every demand.

Expenses: Tuition, including all studies but Instrumental Music, $1.00 per week. Board, Furnished Room and Light, $2.00 per week. Steam Heat, Winter Term, $4.00; Spring Term, $2.00. Tuition, Instrumental Music, two lessons a week, $10.00 per term; one lesson a week, $5.00 per term. Absolutely no extras for any study in any department.

Location: Reliance is an ideal College community, with beautiful, as well as wholesome environments. No saloons, no doubtful attractions to entice the student away from his work, or to induce him to waste his money. It is a cultured Christian community, furnishing the very best of influences for rectitude and morality. We look after the morals as well as the intellects of our students.

Buildings and Improvements: The College building is a large three-story structure designed especially for the purpose. There are separate dormitories for young woman and young men. The ladies' rooms are carpeted. The dining-room, library, chapel, and recitation-rooms, on the first floor, have recently been papered, which adds very much to their beauty.

Business Education: Our Commercial Department is one of the best in the State. The fallacy of the claim made by some Commercial Colleges, that a Business Department in a literary school can not be made a success, is fully demonstrated by the results of our work. This success is secured by placing this department under a special supervising principal, who is peculiarly equipped for the work, and who gives his personal attention to it.

DR. GRAHAM, PRINCIPAL, Reliance, Va.

A woman's discovery FREE

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg. Kokomo, Ind.

General News.

The slow progress of the negotiations to secure title to Panama canal may delay the beginning of work many months.

Former British soldiers have been applying in large numbers to the American embassy in London for enlistment in the United States Army in the Philippinee.

The diplomatic relations between the United States and Turkey are strained as a result of the Porte failing to carry out agreements for the settlement of American claims.

The committee on postoffice site will collect all information and submit it to a general meeting, so as to be prepared for the visit of Mr. Taylor, of the Treasury Department.

It is asserted that over 100,000 agricultural laborers in East Galicia, Austria, most of them Russians, are now on strike, and that a full fledged rising against the landed proprietors is progressing.

General Chaffee cables from Manila that, in his judgment, an active campaign against the Moros is necessary in order to curb the opposition that has been growing against the authority of the United States.

The Best Medicine Ever Put in a Bottle for Chills and Fever.

The best of all. "I came here with my wife and five children. The first year my family were all down with chills and fever. I tried all the known remedies but without success, until I got Hughes' Tonic, which has cured them entirely. I have kept the medicine in the house ever since. Hughes' Tonic is the best medicine ever put in a bottle for chills and fever." Sold by Druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

Help to Worthy Girls.

In order to assist poor, but worthy girls, the authorities of Whitworth College have decided to give free tuition to a limited number of young ladies who could not attend college without such help. This leaves to be paid only board and $8 of minor fees for the whole session. Let applicants furnish from pastor or Sunday-school superintendent testimonial of good character, including statement that such help is needed.

Glances at the World.

The country, as a whole, was never in a more prosperous condition than at this time. The following paragraph from the Chicago Inter-Ocean clearly indicates the basis of this prosperity: "It is estimated that the farmers of the United States will receive two billion dollars for the cereal crops of this season. It is believed that the crops of wheat, corn, oats, and rye will be the heaviest in the history of the farming States. A few districts have been thrown out of the markets for the year by the heavy rains and destructive floods, but in most of the States the conditions are favorable to the heaviest yield on record. This is not the estimate of speculators, or of the farmers themselves, but of the statisticians and of the railroad managers who are preparing to move the crops. Last year the partial failure of the corn crop was a serious matter to the railways. This year the managers of all the railway lines traversing the wheat and corn districts are making preparations to meet the unusual demand for transportation to Chicago and the seaboard. As usual, prosperous conditions for the farmers mean prosperous conditions for the people at large. A few years ago the question of money to move the crops was always a serious one, but now the money is ready on demand, and will go into the hands of the farmers when they are ready to sell." The figures here given do not take into consideration the cotton crop of the South, which, if reports are true, will be at least an average crop. Nor do they include the sugar and rice. These crops will add many millions of dollars to the farmers of the country. The Inter-Ocean says, "There is no room in the land for the prophets of calamity."

The value of everything nowadays is in dollars and cents. Take what are called our colonial possessions, for example. Nobody thinks of the part they may have in influencing our morals and religion. Only the money to be made out of them is considered. In a commercial point of view they pay. This fact, if nothing else, will induce the government to hold on to them. It may also, in the near future, induce the annexation of Cuba. For the fiscal year just ended Porto Rico took from the United States merchandise to the amount of $10,719,414, compared with little less than two millions in 1897. The shipments to the United States for 1902 were $8,297,422, compared with a little over two millions for 1897. The exports to the Philippines in 1897 were $94,597; in 1902 they amounted to $5,261,867. For 1902 the imports were $6,612,702; for 1897 they were $1,383,740. Exports to the Hawaiian Islands in 1900 were $19,000,000, compared with $4,690,075 in 1897. Imports from the same islands in 1900 amounted to $24,700,429, compared with $13,687,799 in 1897. The exports do not include shipments by the government for the army. In the exports cotton goods and rice take the lead.

The three leading spirits in the South African war—Generals De Wet, Botha, and Delarey—are now on a visit to England. They have been cordially welcomed by everybody, and by nobody more than by King Edward and General Kitchener, to whom the Boers surrendered. The fact that these leaders in a bloody fight should so soon after the close of hostilities visit their conquerors, and that they should be so graciously received, is one of the most significant signs of the time. Fifteen years ago no such terms of peace could have been made between the contending forces. An unconditional surrender would have been the result, and that would have meant the banishment or imprisonment of the leaders. Now, not only generous terms of peace are granted, but in less than three months after the surrender those who met in deadly fight greet each other as friends, and the King himself and the Queen actually take their late enemies by the hand. The outside world may attribute all this to the civilization of the age, but that civilization itself is born of the gospel of Christ. But for the gospel such significant events could not transpire.

The great strike in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania, which 179,000 miners are waging against operators, is now nearing the fifteenth week of its existence, with no indications of a break. The miners are sustained by liberal contributions from the brotherhoods all over the country. At present they have no idea of giving up. On the other hand, the owners are as determined to-day as they were when the strike began. If it continues until cold weather, there is no telling the amount of suffering that will ensue, not only among the miners, but also among the thousands of citizens who depend on the coal for fuel. The price of the coal has already jumped from five and six dollars a ton to nine, and the prospect is that it will go to eleven dollars in the near future. In addition to this, business has been disturbed, and will not resume its normal condition until the mines are again in operation. Strikes are costly.

A Great Victory.

During all this year the interest of every citizen of Holly Springs, and latterly of all Marshall county, has centered around a small, old-fashioned one-story building on a side street in Holly Springs. The front of the building is adorned with a Doric portico, and across the town end of the portico, spanning the sidewalk, is a large sign, upon which, in box-car letters, is the single word,

WHISKEY.

This triumphal arch to rum, ruin, and bad government, was erected on Sept. 1, 1901. The great tents of Sells Bros. shows were spread in Holly Springs that same day. All the old soaks in the county thronged in to see the circus, and to celebrate the triumph of their great god—Alcohol. There were more drunken men on the streets that day than had been seen in town during many years.

The struggle had already begun. Led by Bro. Jno. W. Dorman, the temperance people had contested the petition in the Mayor's Court. When the license was granted they took an appeal to the Circuit Court. From that time for nearly twelve months—until Aug. 9, last—the fight has raged around the saloon with varying fortune.

Bro. Dorman was sent away. The backbone of the movement seemed broken. All spirit seemed to have gone out of the temperance people. Then the old Central Committee was reorganized, and the work was begun anew. A new esprit de corps breathed into the movement and spread itself among men who had never taken any interest in such things before.

Meanwhile the saloon people were at work, and about the same time our committee had re-begun its work of preparing for the Circuit Court, they were circulating a petition for another saloon. In February they published it, and the next day the town was flooded with hand-bills calling the women of the place to prayer at the Methodist Church. There were three of these prayer meetings—one at the Presbyterian and two at the Methodist Church. And then we had a union temperance service at the Methodist Church, in which the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian pastors took part. Bro. McMillan, the Baptist pastor, had just arrived, and although it was his first Sunday in Holly Springs, he called in his night appointment, and came over to the Methodist Church to help us. And I want to say that a more tireless, fearless knight of temperance than McMillan never was. He can talk longer, and say more against the saloon, and with better grace, than any man I ever heard. He was a great addition to our forces, and made votes wherever he went.

Besides these meetings pressure from every side was brought to bear upon the petitioner, and although the town council was more than ready to give him a license, he finally moved from town, and later withdrew his petition.

While we were engaged in this fight the Circuit Court convened, and the fight over the first petition was renewed with redoubled energy. Messrs. Faut and Gary were the temperance lawyers, and Messrs. Smith and Totten represented the saloon men. Later the saloon men called in Hon. W. A. McDonald, of Ashland and Oxford, and Mr. McDowell, of Holly Springs. In the Circuit Court we won, and the saloon was closed. The saloon men appealed to the Supreme Court, and the Supreme Court granted a supersedeas on an ex parte statement. After hearing from the temperance lawyers the Supreme Court confirmed the supersedeas, and the saloon was reopened, and has remained open ever since, pending judgment, which is to be handed down soon.

During the fight in the Circuit Court there was a well-grounded rumor abroad that two young men—minors—had perjured themselves to protect the saloon. This robs one argument—based on the supposition that the Tigers alone make perjurers—of its thunder.

Meanwhile steps had been taken preliminary to circulating a petition for a local-option election. The sentiment of all the preachers in the county of every denomination was ascertained, and they all pledged themselves to do all in their power to carry the county. About this time the writer, worn out by suffering incident to two surgical operations, and the trying ordeal of the lights around the saloon, and the new petition in Holly Springs, retired from the light. Dr. Raymond, president of the N. M. P. College, who had been a devoted and untiring worker, was so engaged with commencement exercises that he could do but little, and the whole weight of the campaign through the county fell upon the shoulders of the presiding elder, Rev. N. G. Augustus. How faithfully, persistently and successfully Bro. Augustus carried forward his Herculean task is shown by the fact that not a box in the county went wet. A steam engine could not be more tireless than he is. A cyclone is no more irresistible. Calmly, steadily, he pressed his purposes with iron will to their fruition, and on Aug. 9, 1902, a struggle that has been going on in Holly Springs for years culminated in the election, and we carried every box in the county, and Holly Springs (which the wets claimed) by 13 votes.

From all sides congratulations have been pouring in. To God, whose mighty arm hath wrought so great salvation, be glory, honor and praise forever more. Amen!

A Review of Our Home Mission Work.

BY REV. J. D. NEWSOM.

Our home missions do not appear to be understood in their real character as mission fields. If our Bishops were ever in touch by actual experience with such work, its reality has largely passed from memory, and they view such work from a different standpoint from that of earlier years. They are led to regard these home fields as in close touch with our present civilization and the refining influence of Christianity. As to place and distance, this may be true, but, further, a sad failure sets in. Our presiding elders, in their visits to these fields, see the work in its best dress and look on its fairest side, and in too many instances fail to get in sympathetic touch with its real character. The preachers-in-charge of these home fields seem, as a rule, to present by report their most favorable points, at times making a community, sometimes a single individual, represent quite a district. And it appears from statistical reports, as shown by church records, that these official reports at times far exceeds the aggregate. It can be shown that in the collections ordered by the Conference that more than three times as much has been assessed to be paid by these missions than the work paid the preacher who served it.

The people of these mission charges have no appreciation of the fact that their pastor and preacher is serving them at a sacrifice. They do not pause to think, or feel to care, that they furnish the mule, and pay the negro boy more to plough him, than they pay their preacher and pastor, who works for them day and night, no Sunday excepted, furnishing his own horse and outfit. At the same time they pay their doctors and lawyers their dues.

These people rarely, if ever, entertain the idea of increasing their subscription in order to obtain a better preacher or a more efficient pastor. Seldom, under any circumstance, are they willing to increase their pay for the support of the gospel. I knew a man, once poor, who prospered in his business. When urged to pay more to sustain the church, he replied in effect, "When I was a poor man, I paid five dollars; now I am rich, I am not going to pay any more." In these regions, though obscure, they are too plentiful. Persons and whole families have left the Methodist Church, and joined other communions, giving as a reason that they were required to pay too much. With such the dollar is more than doctrine.

There are instances where people who have been urged to do more for the support of the gospel and to maintain the church have turned against such urgency, and houses of worship, some of which have church extension money invested in them, have been abandoned to the "moles and bats." In a careful review of our mission work we find that our home missions do not sustain a favorable comparison with foreign missions. Our foreign missions are enlarging and measuring up to self-support, and are making themselves felt in their support of missions. Our home missions in certain sections are unquestionably losing ground. There is a smaller membership, and less is being paid now than formerly in support of the gospel. Some of these sections once occupied by Methodism, as by preemption, are lost to the church for this generation, if not for all time to come. A difference in the outfit of the different workmen for these distinctive fields may help to account for these differences of success. The foreign missionary goes to his field with an allowance well guaranteed to support him. So far as the ordinary cares of life are concerned, he can lay himself out for his work. With the home missionary this is not so. His allowance is not sufficient to maintain him. It may be true that at home he may be able to look to some private resources, but this takes him from his real work, which needs him from house to house, and from person to person, more certainly than city charges or ordinary circuit work requires; and charges can be named where this apology for an appropriation has been withheld, and the preacher and family have suffered for the necessaries of life. This special work is needed from the fact that where the missionary can do but little more than go to the place of preaching and hold service in well populated communities, he preaches to three, to six, to one dozen as the largest congregations served. Then everywhere there is a shameful neglect of Bible reading and homes unprovided with the Scriptures. Every Bible found in some of these congregations might be carried in the old-time "circuit rider's" saddle-bags.

Some of our old-time preachers would be astonished to go from our towns and cities, with the growth of improvement that has come with the times, served by an efficient ministry and faithful pastors, with well-conducted Sunday-schools, to some of these rural districts. He would be appalled at the destitution and ignorance of sacred things. The careless indifference to Sunday-schools and Sunday-school work amounts to an opposition to the cause, while family prayer and Bible reading at the home are almost entirely unknown. The want of home training and religious culture these statements reveal, more than indicate the young to be growing up with a repugnance to the forms of divine worship, to religion itself, and to every advance and offer of salvation.

It may be borne in mind that for decades early Methodism carried on its chief work in these rural districts, overshadowed by no city battlements, more remote as to distance from civil and intellectual culture than these fields are to-day, when you reckon distance. Our early preachers, pioneers of Methodism, spent most of their time amid these surroundings, creating church history and making Methodism great; spending their lives in these vast wildernesses, where the half-wild settlers were found, lodging and preaching in their log cabins. These men compassed their studies in Winter couched down with the family, entertaining them before a log fire, as affording the only light—no taper, no candle, no lamp. Through such experiences as these some of our most eminent men have forged their way, and come to the front, and rose to rank with the great pulpit orators of that or any other day, to wit: H. Bascomb and Wm. Winans; promoting doctrine across the continent, showing that man, in the exercise of his own free will, might accept salvation through the Lord Jesus Christ at his own free choice.

Brooksville Circuit.

The protracted meetings of the Brooksville circuit, North Mississippi Conference, have been very successful, and that work is reported in excellent condition. The beloved presiding elder did the preaching at Soule Chapel, eliciting much praise and, it is hoped, greatly stimulating the congregation. Bro. Mitchell, of Macon, was scheduled to aid the pastor in the meeting at X Prairie, but was sick and unable to be present; hence the preaching was done by Bro. Brown. The results of this meeting were highly gratifying, the entire neighborhood being greatly aroused.

At New Bethel, Bro. Duncan, of Crawford, expounded the gospel, doing it with his characteristic forcible gentleness, with most happy results.

The meeting at Brooksville is said by many to have been the best that community has had in years. The Holy Spirit was manifest, and the membership was quickened to zealous activity; the sequence of fruitage amongst the erring and the backslidden naturally followed. Bro. Hal S. Spraggins, of Starkville, did some most meritorious preaching—indeed, one might characterize it even more superlatively, since it was of a high order from all points of view, and obviously moved by the Spirit. The town was wonderfully shaken, many were converted, many more were moved to reconsecrate their lives to the Master, and the church was greatly strengthened. Bro. Brown, the pastor-in-charge of the circuit, is greatly respected and beloved, and the state of the work is highly gratifying to those who are tenderly concerned in it.

LAYMAN.

Mary Werleln, Gretna and Gouldsboro.

DEAR ADVOCATE: A word or two from this part of the Lord's work, I trust, will not be out of place. Despite the very warm weather, everything seems to be moving on very well. Our congregations are small, yet appreciative. Several members have been received into the church on profession of faith.

Our church at Gouldsboro has recently put in new pews and a bell, and an Epworth League has recently been organized there with eighteen members. The young people are encouraged. May the League be a great blessing to them!

I am more and more convinced that the time has come that a division of this work is a necessity. The cause of our Lord demands it.

Our finances are up to date. All the Conference collections are being looked after. We feel that all will be paid in full.

A ten days' sojourn in the Mississippi Conference, mingling with old friends and former parishioners; also in a meeting with Bro. Crossley on the Walnut Grove circuit, was greatly enjoyed a few days since. I returned feeling much refreshed and strengthened for the work. May the Father's blessings be upon his servants and the work!

LOUIS F. ALFORD.

Eupora and Maben.

Have held two meetings. Results: Good revivals in church and twenty-four accessions. Have one more meeting to hold. Bros. Lagrone, McKeown and King gave us valuable help in the work. Bro. Lagrone held our third Quarterly Conference, Aug. 11. We expect to carry up a good report to our Annual Conference.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION VIII.

Let us note the case of the jailer. When the inquiry was made by him, "What must I do to be saved?" the reply was, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house"—"oikos," "family." Did the apostles mean, in this reply, that all the servants, attendants, and other adult persons, were to be saved upon the faith of the jailer alone? Are the domestics, servants, and other attachees of a house, saved upon the faith of the head of the family? Paul says emphatically to the jailer, that not only he should be saved, but "his house." Is this the way Baptists baptize folks? And would they accept one adult upon the faith of another? Certainly not; so you see they will argue one way and act another. Verily, the legs of the lame are unequal.

Not one word do we find where anybody was baptized but the jailer and his house—family; and there must have been little children, as we do not find where any of them exercised faith.

"One of the following statements must be true—the reader can take his choice: First, the jailer's dwelling-house was to be saved by his faith; or, second, adult persons living in his family were to be saved by his faith; or, third, his 'house' is to be understood, metaphorically, for his children, who were to be saved by the faith of their parent. We confess ourselves incapable of seeing any scriptual and spiritual sense in which the faith of the jailer could save either his 'dwelling-house' or 'adult persons' dwelling with him; while it is certain that there is a very important sense in which the faith of a father converted from heathenism does save his little children. He saves them from the darkness, idolatries, and crimes peculiar to a heathen state; he saves them by placing them in a solemn covenant relation with God, in which he has promised to be a 'God to them' forever; he saves them by bringing them into the Christian church, where there are secured to them all the instruction, watch-care, and other religious privileges of the gospel; he saves them by governing, instructing, and praying for them, according to the direction of the gospel. And if the Word of God can be relied upon, there are but few children thus 'trained,' that, when 'old,' will 'depart from it.' Now, till our opposers can show that the faith of one adult person will thus save other adult persons, we shall consider the point established, or, at least, rendered quite probable, that the jailer's 'house' was composed of 'little children,' which the apostle wanted him to bring with him to Christ." (Inf. Ch. Mem., by Gregg.)

Quite recently, in attendance upon an immersion by the Baptists, we heard the preacher—one of their representative men—in his talk make the statement that one thing, among others, which differentiated the Baptists from the "greater part of the Christian world, was the subject of baptism." Said he, "The Baptists baptize none except those capable of 'exercising personal faith' in Christ, and upon a 'voluntary profession' of this faith." Then, surely they would not fellowship with the "household" of Lydia, and the "house" of the jailer, even if they were adults, because no mention whatever is made of their "personal faith", and "voluntary profession." Whichever way you view it, one thing is certain—that Lydia and her "household," and the jailer and "all his," were baptized, but they did not join the Baptist Church.

If there were no command for infant baptism (but Peter, on the Day of Pentecost, said there was), show me a command against it. The burden of proof here rests on the opposers. In the absence of such a command, there can be no possible wrong in my dedicating my infant to God by baptism, if it seemeth to me best. If I feel that I can better conserve the will of my Maker by bringing my little one into his church with me, what sin can there be? "Sin is not imputed where there is no law." (Rom. v, 13.) Faith, indeed, is a prerequisite to baptism in persons morally responsible, and by which alone they are saved, but not so in infants who are saved without exercising personal faith; hence, "all his" and "her household," were infants, unless faith is not a necessary prerequisite to the baptism of adults. Then, if it is not a necessary prerequisite to the admission of adults to the ordinance, it can not be to infants, and, therefore, they are not forbidden the token.

According to the teachings of the Baptist and Campbellite Churches, little children sustain absolutely no relation to the church of God. All those tender expressions of our Lord and the sacred writers relative to little children, according to them, are uttered, not to them within the church, but without to little "strangers to the commonwealth of Israel." Though pure and innocent under the blood of Christ, they have no place in the family of God on earth, but are treated like "bastards." The true, perfect family honors the unconscious babes as members of the household; and only the adulterers and fornicators disown their little children. This is, indeed, a sad and harsh commentary on the gospel of love and reconciliation!

It were hoped that the Baptists would attach the same meaning to the word "household," as it appears in the passages of Scripture given above, that they do ordinarily. We were on a train some weeks ago when a Baptist preacher, en route to the convention at Asheville, N. C., came into the coach from one to the rear, and, seeing an old lady whom he knew, expressed delight in having an opportunity of making her acquainted with "my little household." He immediately re-entered the rear coach, and presently returned, accompanied by a wee bit of a wife, and bore in his arms two big, bouncing six-months-old boys. Patiently, and, of course, expectantly, did we await the appearance of the nurse, cook, chambermaid, washwoman, porter, lackey, sexton, office-boy, gardener and hostler of that preacher's "household," but they never materialized. Certian it is that common-sense people will think us a fool for expecting these additions, but understanding, as we supposed, quite well Baptist lingo, we felt warranted in doing so. But, alas! most water animals are slippery.

Missions or Sustentation?

BY REV. J. A. PARKER, D. D.

The greatest of all questions before the Methodists of Louisiana is contained in the caption of this communication. That strong speech of Dr. Horace Bishop, delivered before the great Missionary Conference at New Orleans in 1901, must live on in the memories of every Louisiana preacher who was so fortunate as to hear it.

Our Annual Minutes for 1901 show that $2,690.21 was collected for "domestic missions," and paid out in the seven districts in sums ranging from $100 to $480. Turning to the list of appointments for 1902, we find one mission in the New Orleans district, one in Baton Rouge district, one in Crowley district, and one in Arcadia district. There are no missions in Alexandria, Shreveport, nor Monroe districts. There are four missions listed in the Conference, to which it would seem the $2,690.21 was appropriated, making an average of $672.55¼ per mission. This, however, is not the case. Comparatively little of the whole amount—of $2,690.21 went to these four missions. The bulk of it went to complement the support of pastors on charges recognized as circuits—that is, self-supporting charges—which have been on the Mission Board for many years.

There is a remedy for this evil—for an evil it is—and the remedy is a very simple one, though to most of our preachers it is like the "new commandment" was to "the ruler of the Jews"—written in the law, but forgotten.

If four churches are too poor to support a pastor, enlarge the charge till it will support him. Give him six, eight, ten, twenty (if need be). It is useless to say people will not go to week-day preaching. They will go if it is necessary to do so in order to hear the Word. This will be especially true if the services give the worshipers a spiritual uplift. If the preacher comes one round and fails the next, or if he comes every time to scold and complain of his hardships, or to tell his people how to raise their children, or to tell them about Hobab, or who Melchizedek was, or why and how earthquakes occur and storms gather, and that sort of stuff, there will not be many people after one or two visits. When the "man of God" comes—comes with love for God and love for the people—when he gets close to them, and helps them on with their crosses and cheers them on in their trials, they, too, will come, and come any day in the week. I speak from observation. I have seen the result of the two classes of preachers and the two kinds of preaching. "I know whereof I speak."

Among our young, strong men there is an indisposition to be sent to a "big circuit." If the aspiration to serve God and save souls could be sufficiently expanded, it would be otherwise. Two, three or four churches among a rural people is a very small circle within which to win souls. A burning zeal wants to get out into the world. It may be in excess, as in Lorenzo Dow; but, tempered with reason, guaged by a correct understanding of the obligations involved, it will spread out.

This writer has tried all kinds of itinerant work—one church, two churches, three churches, four churches, and circuits having all along from fourteen to twenty-seven churches, or rather preaching-places, and districts large and small. Just what others think of it, I do not know, but for me the "station" is hardest of all, while the four-church circuit is lightest of all. The place for the greatest good is a large district, and, next to that, a big circuit. I do not thus speak because so many years have piled up on me that I am unfitted for circuits which must be traveled on horseback, and over hundreds of miles of territory, but because this is the truth of my experience.

One case in illustration of our folly in dividing our circuits up till they become a source of embarrassment to us. In the Alexandria district there are twenty churches having seven pastors. Three of these charges having six churches are in the larger country towns, and the salaries range from $432 to $777.30, averaging a little over $550 each. In one parish there are five pastors serving twenty-two churches. In another parish, equally as populous, there are only two Methodist Churches served by pastors living outside of that parish. This destitute parish is bounded north and east by the great Mississippi river; west, by the Atchafalaya. Two great trunk lines of railroad run through the parish from east to west—one in the southern portion and one in the northern portion, from end to end of the parish. Protestant people are here and there scattered over the parish. Towns are building up along these lines of road. Protestants are moving in from other parts of the country and opening business. They are asking why there are no Methodist preachers there. What is the answer? We have so many small charges in the Protestant portions of the country which are unable to support their pastors, it takes all our missionary money to support them. Beside this, it takes all our preachers there; so we have none to send to you. Is this the aggressive spirit embodied in the motto of our founder, "The world is my parish"?

This system of management has cost Methodism large tracts of territory in Louisiana. In Terrebonne, West Baton Rouge, Iberville and elsewhere, we have given way to other forms of worship, and lost hundreds of members.

Others seem not to see this matter as I see it. For a quarter of a century I have pleaded for some such change in our methods as will enable us to occupy new territory. We can never expand under our system of contraction. Dividing up circuits so every settlement can have Sunday services, and paying out all our revenues to keep them up, will certainly never enable us to grasp the world for our Lord's inheritance.

"Whom shall we send, and who will go for us" into these missionary places? Scores of our young men in college are ready to go into "foreign lands" to preach the gospel to the priestridden of those lands, and "show them the way of the Lord more plainly." Why will not that zeal work as well amongst people at home who are as ignorant and destitute as to "the way of life" as the people of Mexico or Brazil?

Time to Call a Halt.

BY REV. J. M. DEAVENPORT.

There is a precedent. I know not where it originated, whether among the self-appointed evangelist or the regular clergy—that is obnoxious in the pulpit and hurtful to the church. The custom is becoming universal, inasmuch as it is not confined to any class or station of preachers, but of late years is conspicuously prominent among preachers of all denominations, and it seems the higher the "brief authority" or ecclesiastical standing the preacher has, the more latitude he takes in this unpardonable ministerial breach.

I refer to the prominence given the "ego" by the pulpit of to-day. In fact, so full of this "ego" of what "I did" or what "I would do," etc., are some preachers, that the writer, on a recent occasion, heard the personal pronoun "I" applied by a preacher to himself, and his unparalleled career as a preacher, sixteen times in less than five minutes; and throughout the series of meetings which he was then engaged in holding he kept up this incessant self-parade, and no time during any service for a week did he lose opportunity to impress that "he was the hero of the story," the "crowned victor of every conflict."

I verily believe that if the Lord could have gotten that preacher "out of the way," and Christ as prominently before the people as the preacher had himself, there would have been some convictions, if not a revival. He seemed bent on not knowing anything about "Christ and him crucified." The self-inflated, self-vaporizing preacher is always a "model." The Lord "uses him," or "has done through him," as he has never used or done through man before. He has an endowment, etc., the pastor-in-charge never dreamed of. If the pastor had "this," or would do "that," or if "I was here, I would do," etc., and from first to last he "brags" on himself, and ends his self-centered campaign, leaving about as much impression as a gnat would on the horn of a buffalo. Not long since one of these "ecclesiastical windbags" (I know no better name for them; see Job xv, 2) took occasion to say in the presence of the two hard-worked, ill-paid pastors in one of the most God-forsaken towns in the State, in his invidious invections against the ministry, "that there was not one preacher in a hundred, regardless of denomination, in the United States that spent as much as twenty minutes a day on their knees," endeavoring to leave, of course, the impression that he lived on his. If the well-outlined "creases" in his pants be taken as evidence, he spent hardly so much, or else his pants underwent the tailor's goose daily.

It is time to call a halt when a preacher gets so puffed up or self-inflated that he measures everything and everybody in his own little half-bushel. He should be punctured. If it be "authority," or position, or what-not that inflates him, his authority should be unauthorized, or his perch-pole lowered.

Verily this way some preachers have of "measuring themselves by themselves" is repelling to the truly Christian, and disgusting to the sensible and cultured irreligions. "Not he that commendeth himself is approved, but he whom the Lord commendeth. Let him that glorieth, glory in the Lord."

Entire Sanctification—An Exhortation.

BY REV. W. W. DRAKE.

It is not proposed in this article to treat the subject of entire sanctification controversially. The essential elements of the doctrine, which constitute the common Methodist faith on the subject, will be taken for granted. These elements may be included in the following statement, and are susceptible of ample demonstration from fair interpretations of Scripture. It has always been the Methodist faith that the children of God may, through the operation of the Holy Ghost, by faith in Christ, be cleansed from all inward and outward sin, and made perfect in love in this life. Throughout the Scriptures this doctrine is presented in prayers and promises, exhortations and commands. Laying aside, for the time, all speculative questions as to whether this promised experience is obtained in regeneration, or is developed through a long process of growth, or is bestowed in an instantaneous operation of the Spirit subsequent to regeneration; whether it is certified to the soul by the direct witness of the Spirit; and, if so, whether it is proper to profess it as an experience, we may profitably consider the matter from the practical standpoint of individual relationship to the doctrine. The practical question presents itself: Is it my privilege, in this life, to be perfectly cleansed from all sin, selfishness, pride, anger, covetousness, and filled with perfect love to God, producing all holy tempers, words and actions, and "bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ"? The Scriptures, as interpreted by Methodism, emphatically answer, Yes. The question now arises, Do I now experience such a deliverance from all sin as is described in the Bible as the heritage of believers? In answering this question, we must not rely upon any past experience, whether we believe that regeneration accomplishes the work of entire sanctification, or whether we can refer to some subsequent experience which was supposed to have completed the work; but let us, by careful examination, discover from our present consciousness whether our present experience corresponds to our revealed privilege. If such a candid examination reveals any sinful condition, the immediate and imperative duty is to plunge into the fountain that cleanses from all sin. There is only one consistent position for one who is not conscious of being cleansed from all sin, and that is the attitude of an eager seeker after perfect purity, constantly praying for and expecting the power that "casts out sin and purifies the heart." "Everyone that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as He is pure."

New Orleans, Aug. 16, 1902.

The Wages of Sin.

DEAR DOCTOR: What is there in this world for the man whose days are given to a life that accords not with the will of the Lord, and that is antagonistic to the spirit of Christianity? As one who has experienced the bitter pangs of a life of sin, I can point out the results of living a life of sin, as well as to what level in life sin will eventually and surely bring us to. Let us now draw a pen picture of the results of following in sin.

1. A Christian, happy and comfortable home, loving and affectionate brothers. Friends by the score. In the whirl of society, and influential in daily life.

2. The way we enter, unintentionally, the paths of sin. The grand ball, where we freely partake of wine and champagne. The euchre party (simple gambling). Next, a trip to the races, to the opera; twelve or one o'clock supper with a lady in some fashionable restaurant, not to dwell on the different unmentionable temptations that will surely come to both sexes.

3. Result of the above life? The lady, or gentleman, or both, become habitual drinkers; a confirmed gambler; hard-hearted; loses self-respect, yet still retains his social position, and influences the younger ones of both sexes; eventually becomes financially embarrassed; borrows money from and without the knowledge or consent of his employer, with intentions of speculating, or gambling with the hope of success, with the honest intention of replacing the amount. But, alas! as is so often the case, success does not materialize. He loses the whole amount, with absolutely no way of replacing the money. He becomes despondent, drinks heavier, and, perhaps, commits suicide, or becomes a fugitive from justice, and is eventually apprehended, tried, convicted, and sentenced to a term of imprisonment in the penitentiary, and there, as is so often the case, he becomes a real, hard-hearted criminal, and after serving his time, he goes out into the world feeling rejected, with the awful stigma of ex-convict, with (seemingly) no opportunity of redeeming himself—in fact, he is shunned by his former associates. Then he stops and realizes, What is there in life for the man or woman who daily lives a life of sin? There is not a minute in an individual's life (it matters not how much of a sinner he or she may be) but that the Holy Spirit is knocking at the door of his or her heart, pleading that he turn unto the blessed Savior and receive forgiveness, and sin no more. But, no; he continually delays, and refuses to accept that which will not only give a life in this world replete with joy and happiness, but which will, in the other glorious world, give by far a more beautiful and happier home than we have on this earth. Oh, would that every person could realize that even if they are not guilty of some (open) crime, but only a member of a certain class of society, they are in many instances guilty of some sin, and whether it be great or small, it is sin in the eyes of the great Jehovah.

"Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: but know thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment." (Eccle. xi, 9.)

"Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." (Rev. xxii, 14.)

Pray for me, that I may daily grow in faith; that I may, when free from bondage, cheer a broken-hearted father, mother, and brothers.

A PRISONER.

Bayou Chicot, La.

DEAR OLD ADVOCATE: We have just closed a revival meeting here. Bro. L. L. Roberts, of Lecompte, did the preaching. Much good was accomplished. On Thursday, Aug. 7, our presiding elder was with us, and delivered an interesting sermon at 11 A. M., after which we had a good old-fashioned dinner on the ground, of which there was plenty and to spare. Everyone seemed to enjoy the occasion hugely. At 2:30 P. M. Quarterly Conference was announced; each present officer and delegate in their place, and ready for business. Written reports were read by pastors. The one concerning state of the church was somewhat amusing. It read thus: "The spiritual state of the church is not what we would like it to be; however, we can see some improvement; eight have withdrawn." We have four missionary Sunday-schools each doing good work. Hope to report all collections in full, especially for missions. With our own mite we have raised about sixty dollars, with which some much-needed improvements were made on the parsonage and lot; but much more is needed.

Pray for us, brethren, that much and lasting good may be accomplished, and that my health, while gradually improving, may be fully restored, if it is the Lord's will.

Gunnison Station.

Dr. Boswell: We have newly renovated and painted the Methodist parsonage at Gunnison. Rather I should say, the young ladies of this congregation secured the money, and, with the trustees, empowered the pastor to make purchases, pay bills, etc.; hence, within, chiefly, and without, entirely, the minister's residence of this charge is materially changed. The generous originators of the plan are kind enough to say that it "looks well."

Presiding Elder Dye, of Greenville, has called lately. He indicates "staying qualities" as district incumbent.

I am grateful above ordinary—and so glad—to be well again after a most trying illness.

This worthy people have paid in excess of calls upon the general collections, and the entire sum is very nearly provided for. The usual salary is met to date, and the ladies' missionary work has prospered.

We very gravely need a new church. This, indeed, is our chiefest distress, unless it be in the supremest purpose for which exists the church—the work of bringing the unsaved to Christ. This first problem solved, however, and the second becomes to be less difficult. Of course, the intention is to build at an early time.

Our nearest and good neighbor, Rev. C. H. Pittman, of Rosedale, has been to see us lately, and assisted most acceptably and with profit in special revival efforts. Mrs. Pittman also was, at that time, a much-appreciated caller among the ladies of this church.

A latest happening to this congregation was a Junior Missionary Society "spread," including from the "riot" of five Summers to the sage and much in-demand Dr. J. B. Pease, Sr., who assisted in the service of "trio" and "quartette" by adding his musical skill as a flute performer.

Gunnison has pluck and vim among the children and young people. Forty-two of these first took active part in the programme. This, with the fine audience and excellent support of earnest workers, made an occasion of splendid interest.

The collection—by no means a prominent purpose—was duly apostolic, and cheerfully made up to the amount desired.

Shuqualak, Miss.

Our revival meeting for the town of Shuqualak, which embraced the third week in July, was considered by many to have been the most soul-stirring revival that the town and community have witnessed for many years. It was enjoyed by all who attended, regardless of faith or order. Sinners were convicted and mourners converted after the old-time way. Backsliders, Methodist and Baptist alike, humbly prayed around the altar, and were reclaimed. The entire membership was stimulated and lifted from a dead formality to life and love and liberty. Everybody seems to be on a higher plane of living and loving—loving God more and each other better. Even those who manifested no interest, and claim no hope, felt the holy influence, and were caused to examine themselves in the light of the gospel, and to consider their condition as never before.

I was ably assisted by Rev. W. D. Bass, of Corinth, Miss., who preached fourteen sermons with great liberty and power, to the delight of all who heard him, three of which, The Second Coming of Christ, The Unpardonable Sin, and The Tithe Law, will long be remembered by my people.

The people of Shuqualak have been very kind to me all the while, but there has been more of the staff of life rolled into our home since the meeting than ever before; two barrels of flour at one time (one from a Baptist and one from a Methodist), and other things in proportion—all complimentary. Have had twenty accessions to the church. Praise God, from whom all blessings flow.

Corinth District.

Dear Dr. Boswell: The third round of the Corinth district will soon be completed, and there seems to be more real vital interests in the church than since I came to the district. The preachers are nearly all having good revivals.

Bro. L. W. Cain, of the Kossuth charge, is having great revivals all over his charge. He has recently held a great meeting at Rienzi. He has four Epworth Leagues on his charge, organized this year.

I am just in from Lebanon, where I have been helping Bro. Randolph in a great meeting. He had twenty-two accessions up to Thursday, and the meeting still in full blast when I left. Bro. Randolph has already had about seventy accessions on his work.

Bro. Jaco is helping Bro. Carlisle this week at Black Land, on Booneville circuit. I learn they have a fine meeting.

Bro. Sargent reports fine meetings on Mantachie circuit; specially at Mooreville and Shiloh.

I think there will be the greatest ingathering of members to the church this year in this district for years. The financial interests of the district are good, as compared with other years.

Bro. Jaco has just moved into a neat new parsonage at Booneville. The new church will soon be ready for occupancy at a cost of about seven thousand dollars, and other material improvements are going on.

The crop prospects in this part of the State are splendid; perhaps more corn than ever raised here in any one year before.

The meeting at Thompson's Chapel began at the church, Sunday, the fourth instant, with a prayer meeting conducted by Bro. Miller, a layman in the Baptist Church. I preached at 11 A. M. and 2 P. M. Bro. J. E. J. Ferguson, of the Marion circuit, came to us Monday, and preached two sermons each day for four days. There were 25 or 30 clear-cut conversions, many of whom were in the church; 10 accessions to our church, and several will join the Baptist Church. Men who had been wicked and bad and drinkers renounced their sins, and came to Jesus, and began praying and working for others. One young man said he had been drinking and breaking his mother's heart ever since he was seventeen years old, but now the Lord had pardoned him, and he would never taste it again; and several others made like confessions. These were fruits of their conversion following their profession.

Our woods' prayer meetings were real Bethels. We were made to rejoice because of the salvation of our loved ones. We had some fine workers, and some of the best of both men and women were members of the Baptist Church.

The secret of the success of this meeting was in the union among God's people in prayer and effort.

Prayer meetings were held at private houses Wednesday afternoon, and Sunday at the church, from the fifth Sunday in June until the second Sunday in August. When people will spend whole afternoons in the week praying for a revival, it will always come. We had prayer meetings at private homes every night. God was present in all these meetings. Now we have there a young man's and young woman's and a general prayer meeting. The Sunday-school has been revived, and greater interest in all church work than ever before. They have all gone to work.

My brethren, we could always have a revival if we'd meet the condition, which is union in prayer and effort. To God be all the praise.

Benson, La.

We have just completed the new Southern Methodist Church at this place. It was dedicated Aug. 10. Rev. John T. Sawyer, D. D., our beloved presiding elder, preached the sermon. It was necessary to take a collection to clear the church-building of all incumbrance. The people responded promptly and liberally. The needed amount and over was soon realized by the presiding elder, after which he dedicated the church according to our Book of Discipline.

Yesterday was a day of rejoicing with the Methodists and others of Benson, on account of the new church. Great credit is due to the following enterprising Building Committee for the consummation: Messrs. D. H. Sebastian, J. P. McRee, W. M. Malone. The pastor and all are very much pleased over the matter.

We are carrying on a revival meeting at the new church. Rev. John T. Sawyer, D. D., preached three rousing sermons for us. Rev. Wilson Moore, of Many, La., will do the preaching through the balance of the meeting.

Yours in Christ,

E. L. Cargill.

Dear Doctor Boswell: The Lord visited this part of his vineyard this week, and "shook up the dry bones" at Pine Ridge Church. We began a meeting there Sunday morning, assisted by Bro. McManus, and was reinforced Monday by Bros. Davis and McLendon. The music and singing were of a high order, led by Bro. Inichen and Miss Davis. Thirty-five men and women came over on the Lord's side, and shouted the praises of God. Five additions to the church by baptism, and seven additions by profession of faith; five infants were baptized. The Holy Ghost was with us with remarkable demonstration. Thank God for his love and mercy.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and New Orleans Christian Advocate together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THE NEW DISCIPLINE.

The new Discipline will soon be ready for distribution. Every Methodist home ought to have a copy. No official member can afford to be without one. Some radical changes by the General Conference in May were made, so that the old Discipline does not now contain all the laws of the church. From this date until the first of September we will furnish the new Discipline and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE one year for TWO DOLLARS cash. This offer applies to all who will pay up back dues to date, and renew their subscriptions, as well as to new subscribers who send the money. We ought to have several hundred answers to this proposition. Address,

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

The conquest of one's faults is evidence of a noble and aspiring nature, and when to the conquest is joined supreme love, and a purpose to do the will of God, we see what the Scriptures justify us in calling a perfect man. He is able to bridle his whole body.

The man who goes in search of crosses may find them, but it is not right certain that he will bear them with honor to himself and glory to God. It is only under the burden of such crosses that come to him in the order of Providence that he can properly claim sustaining grace. He will meet with all he can bear in the line of duty without going out of his way to find them.

To glorify God and enjoy him forever is not the chief end of man, unless it be understood that glorifying God includes doing good to our fellow-men. No praise is so utterly empty and useless as that of the man who fails to recognize and supply the needs of a suffering brother. The exhortation to "offer the fruit of our lips" is coupled with the command, "To do good, and communicate, forget not."

Somebody has said, "It is a poor religion that is not good enough to recommend to our friends." It is equally true that he is a poor Christian that does not recommend his religion. One who fails to do so is faithless to his trust. This was one of the first duties our Lord imposed on his disciples. "Ye are the light of the world. . . . Men do not light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

DECLINE OF REVERENCE.

The time was when reverence for sacred things was well nigh universal. Those who attended public worship seemed to feel that the ground whereon they stood was holy ground. God's name was pronounced with the utmost reverence. The individual was more than ordinarily indifferent towards the church and religion who dared to be light and trifling in the house of God. To deal flippantly with the divine name was regarded as next to sacrilege. But reverence has declined. God's house, to many people, is but little more than a school-building or a theatre. They attend, not for worship or spiritual benefit, but to see and be seen, and to be entertained. Many Christians have ceased to kneel in prayer, and many who profess to be disciples scarcely bow their heads. Frequently there is not so much as an air of reverence in the congregation. All this is true, notwithstanding religion is more popular to-day than ever, and more people than ever are pressing into the churches.

What has brought about this decline? Is it the natural effect of the rebound from ritualism and rigid Puritanism to the free and easy, though orderly, worship, and simple doctrines of Protestantism? We do not think so. No such effects followed the preaching and labors of Luther and his co-laborers. Nor did they follow the Wesleyan revival in England or America. For more than one hundred years after the Wesleyan revival began no such things were seen among Methodists as we see now. Indeed, until recently they were not seen among any of the evangelical denominations. Now the evils are well-nigh universal. Several causes working together have produced the result.

1. It has grown out of the effort to popularize religion—that is to say, the presentation of the gospel in such a way as to make believe that it is the easiest thing in the world to get religion and keep it, is responsible largely for the evil. To this end the Almighty is shorn of his majesty, and men are taught to come into his presence as into the company of an ordinary mortal. Christ is presented not altogether as a friend and Savior, but as an equal—a "hail-fellow well met"—and his name handled with familiarity and endearment such as is indulged by persons in the closest intimacy in life. God's law is stripped of its terrors, and sin is nothing more than a slip that can be rectified, and the sinner reconciled to God as easily as a man can make amends for wronging his neighbor. Conviction, such as makes a man feel that he is exposed to and deserves the wrath of God, is never preached. Hence there are no tears of contrition, no exercise of "godly sorrow that worketh repentance to salvation that needeth not to be repented of." We have attended great meetings characterized as revivals, during which never a word was said about the power of the Holy Ghost to convict, never a word about repentance, or entering into the kingdom by way of the new birth. How easy for men to be religious when convinced that they have nothing to do but to believe, and "to plunge headforemost into God." That is an independent way of doing, and the sinner who thus acts is a hero in his own estimation. Reverence in such souls is hardly to be expected.

2. Informality in public worship has helped to bring about the decline of reverence. Our church, though never given to formalism, has always enjoined an order of service. The habit of ignoring the order, and conducting worship in a haphazard sort of a way, by those who did not know any better, or did not care, has begotten the idea that order is not at all necessary. Confusion is the result, and confusion is the death of seriousness. We have seen congregations thrown into confusion over the singing and over the praying, not as the result of an accident, or of ignorance, but of a desire on the part of the officiating brother to conduct the service according to his own notion. In the change of order some stood, some sat still, and some went to their knees at the wrong time. There was giggling all over the house. We have seen the conduct of the singing turned over entirely—even to the selection of the hymns—to the choir, composed largely of well-known sinners. And the choir we have known to turn the service of song into an operatic performance, not the least adapted to inspire reverence. In this connection, germane to the subject, we may say that the habit of allowing unauthorized persons, whether strangers or well-known, to occupy our pulpits and conduct revivals, has caused the loss of respect, both for the ministry and the church.

3. That which has done most damage is the slangy preaching we too often hear. This character of preaching is not confined to the professional evangelist, nor is it heard alone in the great "tabernacles built and dedicated to slang." Some of our most orthodox brethren are guilty, and we hear it in our own pulpits. The more's the pity, for these imitators hear the originals, catch their words and tones and manners, and the smart and cutting things, together with all the slang they hear, are scattered over the whole land. Who has not seen all seriousness hushed and all reverence banished under the influence of such preaching? What preacher has not suffered for months after the close of a great revival held by one of these apostles? Listening to one not long since, the pleasure-lovers and sinners nudged each other, and said, "That is as good as a circus." For the entire hour, where there was not disgust, there was merriment, and reverence was entirely absent. Should we wonder?

Are we not too indifferent to the sacredness of the Lord's house? Do we not deal too familiarly with the Lord's name, and too lightly esteem the conditions of grace? Are not our ideas too lax in regard to the ministry? Are we not guilty of looking upon our preachers as officers of the church, made such by our own actions, rather than as called of God to be his messengers and ministers at his altar? All this indifference, suggested by these questions, has led Roman Catholics, who watch closely all the movements of Protestants, to say that "Protestantism is digging its own grave." And we feel constrained to say, that if Protestantism finally fails, it will be because these vital things of God and his church are neglected.

THE SHIFTY CHURCH.

Shifty is a common word, and often used in a good sense, but it is a strange word to use in connection with a church. Perhaps in our waking hours it never would have occurred to us, but it came in a dream. The impression produced was not at all pleasant. It brought to mind a church which had so far departed from the faith and practice of the gospel as to adopt doubtful expedients, not to save souls and edify believers, but to replenish its treasury, and put itself in the lead. Churches sometimes, by their shifty methods, so far cripple themselves as to cease altogether to exercise any moral influence. As spiritual forces, they decay and die.

Who has not seen a church utterly shorn of its power by the adoption of doubtful methods of raising money? Not that the methods were dishonest in themselves, but that those who adopted them lost sight of the obligation men are under to support the church, and appealed to them on other than scriptural ground. Constant dependence on such methods, whatever they may be, will weaken and ultimately destroy any church on earth. Money in abundance may be obtained, a fine house elegantly furnished may be secured, and everything in keeping with the social standing of the congregation may be purchased and enjoyed, but the whole thing will be nothing but "a whited sepulchre, full of dead men's bones."

We will not say in this connection that every method of raising funds, save by a direct appeal based on personal obligation, is either unlawful or inexpedient. We have seen other methods very profitably employed. They not only resulted in securing means, but in cultivating and developing the social qualities of congregations—a thing that is often very much needed. When such a desirable and important end is in view, and can be attained, there can result no damage to the church from a social gathering, though an entrance fee be charged, or a collection taken. But when entire dependence for money is placed in fairs and suppers, grab-bags and tackey parties, or voting contests and raffles, etc., it comes to pass that God's house is made a house of merchandise, and his cause brought into disrepute, if not contempt.

The same result follows the adoption of doubtful methods of attracting congregations. The preacher is sometimes as shifty as his people. At one time he will make an effort to draw by announcing a sensational theme; then play the clown to a bribed audience. At another time he will attract by advertising a sacred concert for Sunday evening, when, with his hired singers, he turns his church into an opera hall. No evangelical church can long stand a strain like that. In fact, we are much inclined to the opinion that evangelical power has departed from a church before such tricks are resorted to in order to draw the people. A live church, with a live preacher, is never under the necessity of resorting to tricks of any kind to bring the people together. If the church is dead, no sort of tricks will bring it to life.

We have known a few churches, headed by pastors, to proselyte and adopt other unfair methods, especially with strangers who were at all likely to add to their social and financial strength. We call to mind one who was an adept in the use of expedients. He would sometimes exaggerate. In an effort to persuade a couple of young men to attend his church, he said, "We have the best team in town," meaning that his church was both the strongest, numerically and financially, which was not a fact. We call also to mind the outcome of that man's ministry, and the almost utter collapse of his church.

God would have his churches clean and pure in the world, but not of the world. They are the salt of the earth, the light of the nations. If they lose their power with men, they are as useless as salt that has lost its savor—as useless as a light under a bushel, instead of on a candlestick. If some churches we wot of would come back to first principles, and use the elements of success as did the primitive Christians, who "continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking bread, and in prayer," they would receive power from on high, and there would be no need for shifts in order to raise the money needed to carry on the Lord's work.

If preachers would study the gospel, and preach it as did the Master, depending on the Holy Ghost to carry the word to the hearts and consciences of their hearers, there would be no need to work up something sensational, or to depend on sacred concerts to draw the people. A secular journal said some years ago, "Wherever there is a pulpit on fire, there will always be a crowd to see it burn."

Beware of the shifty preacher and the shifty church!

METHODIST WOMEN PREACHERS.

No doubt Brother Bailey, of The Baptist, in his many references to women preachers in the Methodist Church, led many of his readers to infer that the church authorized them to preach. But in his issue of Aug. 14 he acknowledges that they are not preachers "technically," never having been "set apart" for the business "by any act of the powers that be in the Methodist Church." Still he says they are preachers, that he has heard some of them, and heard of some others. If they were not authorized by the church, then, no matter how much they preach, they are not Methodist preachers. That they "received cordial support from what are commonly called Methodist Churches," may be true, but that does not argue the rightfulness of the thing, or that the church sets its approval on women preachers. The church does no such thing. On the contrary, the church disapproves, and the preacher who invites them to hold meetings, or to occupy Methodist pulpits, violates the law of the church, as expounded by our highest authorities.

If the good women who give Bible readings "mount the pulpit," take a text, giving chapter and verse, "and proceed to do just what is called preaching," they abuse their privilege, for they certainly turn what is understood to be a social meeting into public service, and exercise prerogatives which neither the Bible nor the church accords, and which no preacher has a right to grant. We were not aware that the Bible Readers, a self-constituted order, did that way. We did hear of one who went recently to a small church and talked from the pulpit. Whether she or the pastor or the congregation called the talk a sermon, we do not know. We heard of another good woman who took the platform, not as a Bible reader, but as a lecturer to young people on missions. The reporter for a daily paper characterized the lecture as a sermon. That was a mistake.

Brother Bailey desires to know whether we ever heard a woman preach. We answer, No. And he desires to know whether or not we ever heard a Methodist woman preach. Of course, if we never heard a woman preach, we never heard a Methodist woman preach. He also desires to know whether or not we "ever read a report of some of their meetings in the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, written by some well-accredited preacher-in-charge of some well-accredited Methodist Church." We did read several years ago of meetings held by one woman evangelist, but who wrote the reports we do not remember. Neither can we now certify that they were held in any church. Possibly some of them were, but the greater part were held in tents, if we are not mistaken.

As far as we know, our church is clear of women preachers, unless the less than half-dozen Bible Readers are to be classed as such, and the service on their part is voluntary. They are not authorized by the church. But we are a little fearful, as we hinted some time ago. Some of our women who are foremost in support of the deaconess movement, are also forward in occupying the platform. They seem to delight in public talk. With encouragement we believe some of them would preach.

A Word to Kind Friends.

Some time since we made a call for a contribution to help a sick preacher to a month's outing. When the money was put in my hands, I notified him what I had done, and asked him to arrange to spend a month at Seashore Camp Ground. He was too sick at the time to come, and has continued sick all the while. He has now been bed-ridden for more than a month, and thinks he will not be able to make the trip. He is in great distress. He needs help. As the money was raised especially to give him an outing for his health, I do not feel justified in turning over to him the amount in hand without the consent of the donors. If the kind friends do not object, I will remit him the amount. Let those who object, if anybody, write me. Otherwise, I will take for granted that it is all right.

Thanking the friends for their kindness, I am,

Fraternally,

JNO. W. BOSWELL.

PERSONAL.

Rev. W. W. Drake has been out of the city the past week attending a camp meeting in the northern part of the State—not to rest, but to take part in the work.

Rev. W. A. Clarke, Bernice, La., says, "I am now in the midst of the revival season, and hope to send you several new subscribers as a part of the results." We trust he may have great success.

A good sister in her eighty-third year, "tottering with age," sends fifty cents for Bro. J. D. White's friend. Another "Friend" in New Orleans sends one dollar. From another source we have received two dollars. Total, $3.50.

Rev. J. R. Peavy, presiding elder of the Selma district, Alabama Conference, has been resting the past ten days at Seashore Camp Ground. We can not say that he kept cool all the time, for the weather has been unusually hot at Seashore.

Brother H. C. Voss, a prominent Methodist, died in Monroe, La., on Aug. 25. He was well known as a contractor and builder, and met his death by a fall while supervising work on a building. His life was a consistent one. Our sympathies are tendered the bereaved widow and children.

A note from Rev. C. M. Crossley says: "My precious little babe went to God on the seventeenth instant. God's hand has rested heavily on us this year, but in it all he sweetly keeps us. Heaven is brighter to-day than ever before." Bro. Crossley has our prayers and sympathy. He does not sorrow as those who have no hope.

In answer to inquiries concerning documents sent us for publication by request of District Conferences, etc., we will say: Yes, we have them, and many more besides—so many that it is out of our power to print them all. Some of them we will use, maybe, when we are less crowded. This is a personal note to several brethren.

Rev. C. C. Miller, of Alexandria, recently preached a strong sermon on the "orthodox doctrine of hell," at the Rapides Camp Meeting. The sermon, it is reported, was logical and scriptural. It is also said that "the force of his arguments were seen in the response of the audience." Our people are still responsive to sound doctrine. Let us have more of it.

Miss May Mayo, of New Orleans, has been accepted as a candidate for deaconess, and will enter Scarritt Bible and Training-school the next session, where she will remain the next two years. Miss Mayo is the first woman to be accepted in our church for deaconess. Those who are acquainted with her "gifts and graces" say she is eminently fitted for the work to which she has given her life.

Crystal Springs Camp Meeting, Aug. 14-21.

The recent convocation on the old Hennington Camp Ground, at Crystal Springs, Miss., was a very enjoyable occasion and a most glorious feast of the soul. The attendance was excellent. The crowds on Sunday were so large that they overflowed the tabernacle, although it has a seating capacity of over 2,000.

Dr. S. A. Steel was the only preacher from a distance. His work was fully appreciated by the vast congregations, which hung upon his words. Rev. F. M. Keene conducted the singing. No preacher among us is more favorably known or sings with greater power. This means that the music was as good as could be had with the choir at command. The bulk of the preaching was done by the presiding elder and preachers of the Brookhaven district. It was spiritual, edifying. The result was to lead men to repentance, to incite to higher living, to lead on in the way of faith. Very many made profession of having their spiritual strength renewed, many more testified to growth in grace, twelve professed conversion and two offered themselves for membership.

Great harmony prevailed. The preachers were at peace among themselves, and there were no contentions among the members of the association.

A very great number—to the unpracticed eye of the writer, it looked as though it were the whole congregation—came forward on the last night promising God that, by his help, they would do only those things which he willed for them to do.

The writer has never been present in a more solemnly still congregation than that of Wednesday night. Without a song, with only a few words of exhortation, the preacher stood, while around the altar kneeled a great company praying, occasionally someone in their intensity unconsciously praying aloud. As he so stood, over twenty people arose from their seats and moved as near the altar as they could get; there knelt and prayed God for a new heart—a satisfactory Christian experience. It was a time when the Lord was so near that many of the saints broke forth in praise. The Hennington has for many years brought its preachers from abroad. This year they turned the whole matter over to the presiding elder of the district. It is a matter of rejoicing that the results of the meeting fully justify the association in their actions. Thank God, the Methodist preacher is still called of God to do the work of an evangelist.

Palmer Camp Meeting.

Palmer Camp Meeting will begin Friday, Sept. 12, and continue 10 days. Palmer is two and a half miles from Wortham, on Gulf and Ship Island R. R.; is 57 miles from Hattiesburg, and 14 miles from Gulf Port, and is near enough to the coast to make it most pleasant for all who attend the meeting. Beautiful shade, good water, and a pleasant gulf breeze make this camp ground a most delightful Summer resort. Visitors to the camp meeting will get board and lodging for a little less than one dollar a day. Eminent ministers will do the preaching, and we fully expect a Holy Ghost and fire-baptized revival of old-time religion. We are expecting you, Dr. Boswell, to come and take part in the meeting.

Passengers coming via Gulf and Ship Island R. R. will please buy tickets for Wortham. You will get reduced rates; so do not forget to get receipts when you buy your tickets. Hacks will meet all daylight trains except Sunday. We positively will not meet any Sunday trains. Hacks will meet Saturday night trains. We will meet no other night trains. Come one, come all; come everybody to the big meeting. G. W. HUFF, P. C.

Cancer Covering Side of Face Cured by Anointing with Oil after All Other Means Had Failed.

Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Dallas, Texas:

DEAR SIRS—This is to certify that I tried various remedies for cancer on my face and none did me any good, only to aggravate same. I read your advertisement in the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, commenced with your painless treatment, consisting of Oils, and I am happy to say within six weeks I shaved over the affected place. I consider I am cured. Language is inadequate to express my feelings. I am ever ready to answer any and all questions pertaining to your medicine and treatment.

I remain yours for success,

R. L. SIMMONS, Flatonia, Texas.

The Combination Oil Cure for Cancer has the endorsement of the highest medical authority in the world. It would seem strange, indeed, if persons afflicted with cancers and tumors, after knowing the facts, would resort to the dreaded knife and burning plaster, which have hitherto been attended with such fatal results. The fact that in the last eight years over one hundred doctors have put themselves under this mild treatment shows their confidence in the new method of treating those horrible diseases. Persons afflicted will do well to send for free book given particulars and prices of Oils. Call on or address DR. D. M. BYE CO., 171 Main street, Dallas, Texas. P. O. Box 462.

Notice.

The South Mississippi Holiness Camp Meeting at McHenry, Miss., will begin Sept. 26, and continue to Oct. 5, 1902. The most of the preaching will be done by Dr. B. Carradine. Those who come on the railroad get off at Perry. All trains will stop there. The G. and S. I. R. R. will give reduced rates as usual. There is a hotel on the grounds that will give meals for 25 cents. There are rooms to rent on the grounds at a low price, and lodging. We are looking for a great time from the Lord. Let all come that can. A. B. SAUCIER, Sec.

Indian Mission.

DEAR EDITOR: Will you please allow me a little space in your kind ADVOCATE? We can say but one thing. We are happy on the way. God has done more for our Mission during the year 1902 than ever before. If we could keep Brother Donnell and Brother Mellen four more years, you all would hear from the Mission sure enough. They have won the confidence of the Choctaws, and we are so sorry to give them up. We sometimes think we never will have men who will have the Choctaws at heart like Brothers Mellen and Donnell. God be with them wherever they may be sent. I hope I will meet them in heaven. If I don't, I will be found trying. I hope God will send us another Mellen, if there be one in the Mississippi Conference, and another Donnell.

Brethren, remember the Choctaws, will you? Some people think the Mission is a failure, but we do not. We are hoping and trusting in Jesus that the work may be done. Dear brethren, you all are doing it all now, but some day we will help to pay it all back. Don't be slow nor too fast, but be sure. We know somebody is getting tired of the Indian Mission work, but we are still looking to Jesus with faith, hoping and trusting it may be done. When you good white people get to Heaven, the missionaries who have worked among us especially, we will not be far behind, coming singing, "Am I a soldier of the cross, a follower of the Lamb?" When you good people that helped the Indians to find God see that your labor was not in vain, then you will rejoice. When I hear anyone say, "I am willing to help the poor Choctaws," I feel like saying: "Glory, hallelujah! Times are getting better and brighter for the Choctaws."

We have one hundred and sixty acres of land on the Mission, and eight families living on that land. I think that each family should set apart one acre, plant and cultivate thoroughly, and use the proceeds for the Lord's cause. I think we can do this to the glory and honor of God. We ought to give more to the cause of Christ of our time, means and prayers.

Yours for Christ,
SIMPSON J. TUBBY.

Home Circle.

The Ministry of Sympathy.

We meet every day persons weighted with care and sorrow, of which they do not speak. Their business life is apart from the inner life. It is possible to know them and know nothing of their feelings. But observant eyes could not fail to see the shadow and to find the reason for it.

The young clerk with whom you trade every week lost his mother a few days ago. Your evening paper announced the fact, but it didn't tell, what her neighbors knew, that she was the light of the home; that her boys, sometimes discouraged because they got on so slowly in business, took heart again after they had talked with her about it. The young man's eyes glistened when a customer, just as he was turning away, pressed his hand and said he had heard how much his mother had been to her children.

The man who delivers groceries at your back door had a boy and girl ill with consumption for a long time. He has sent them both into a better climate, hoping to save their lives; but it is taking all he can earn and he is afraid he can not keep them there. A word of interest from you might give him new hope. The policeman on your street has been laid up for three weeks, though you have not missed him. He is just taking up his duties again, hardly strong enough to go his round. It would brighten his walk to know that you had thought of him while he was ill and were glad to see him back.

The young woman next door to you has just become engaged. It seems to her that no event ever happened before of such importance, and that no two persons ever cared so much for one another as she and her lover do. But the affair took on an added importance when a neighbor came in to congratulate her. Her heart beat faster, her cheek took a brighter glow, and the world seemed more beautiful than ever. She is more ready to do a kindness to any one than she ever was before, because you are glad in her happiness.

There will be times, perhaps have been already, when you will reach out your hand blindly in the darkness of a great shadow, hoping some one will clasp it. The rude or effusive grasp would bring you only added pain, but you know the delicate touch of genuine sympathy that carries healing with it. If you have known that unobtrusive ministry, give it to some other. If you haven't experienced it yet, learn to give it. Those who need it are close at hand. It may be you can change for them the color of their sky by a word, a touch, a look.—Congregationalist.

The Crow That Wasn't Afraid.

The story of some crows that bothered Farmer Grandpa by digging up his corn is told in Primary Education:

"I believe they laugh at my scarecrow," grandpa said.

"Yes, they do—I heard 'em!" Perley cried. "They got together in a regular conflagration [Perley meant congregation] and laughed out loud—oh, very loud! 'Caw! caw! caw!' If that isn't their way of saying 'Haw! haw! haw!' then I'm mistaken."

But it got to be no smiling matter at all. Things began to look serious, indeed, out in the corn patch. At last grandpa hit upon a device. He came into breakfast one morning looking quite satisfied and happy.

"Got who, David!" dear old grandma asked.

"The crows—every mother's son of 'em! Let 'em dig up my corn rows now if they want to! I've spread that enormous blue umbrella that the whole family used to go to meeting under when I was a boy. I've got it out there in the middle of my corn patch, looking like a giant mushroom."

"Or a circus tent," put in Perley, gleefully. He had been walking all around the corn patch in a triumphal procession of his own.

"I guess they'll laugh o' the inside of their mouths now!" he exulted.

But that noon, at dinner time, Perley came in out of the blazing sunlight with his little red, moist face drawn down lengthily. He waited till after grandpa asked the blessing and filled all the plates. It was hard work to "break it" to grandpa; but, when you had a thing to do, you had better do it before you began on your mashed potatoes and chicken. It was good reasoning, and Perley straightened in his chair.

"Grandpa," he said, solemnly, "there's a crow sitting under that unbrella down in the corn patch. I saw him. He looked real cool and comfortable, out o' the sun."—Zion's Herald.

Queer Rapid Transit.

When your mother wishes to carry you she clasps both arms around you and lifts you up. Then she holds you firmly, and away you go, whither she will.

But some mothers can not do that. When the little bird falls from the nest the mother has no way of carrying it back. When bossie wants her baby to walk she gives a coaxing "Mo-o-o," and the calf wobbles along on its weak little legs. So it is with most animals; there is no way by which the mother can carry the baby; but an exchange tells us the plans for "rapid transit" that some animal mothers have devised.

Pussy is one of these. If you peep at her too often as she nestles her little ones in her bed in the manger, you will find that she has moved them. She is not happy unless her kittens are hidden away from prying hands and eyes. She has no arms to hold them in, and so she lifts them up by the back of the neck with her teeth. Sometimes she will carry them in this way for a long distance. Although it does not hurt the kittens, they do not seem to enjoy it; but that makes no difference to the mother cat.

Another animal that has its own way of carrying its young is the elephant. The mother elephant packs her baby in her trunk. The baby takes hold of her tusks with its trunk and seems to be much happier in its journey than the kitten.

But the queerest of all ways of carrying babies is that of the mother kangaroo. She puts her baby in her pocket. Baby kangaroo may be quietly feeding or playing in the grass, while the mother is watching to see that no harm comes to it. If an enemy appears the mother gives the warning call, baby jumps into her pocket, and away they gallop, six feet at a jump; indeed, when the mother is very much frightened, she has been known to leap twenty feet at one bound. What would you think if your mother could jump clear across your dining-room. When they are in a safe place, baby climbs out again.

After all, baby folks have the very best way of being carried.—The Presbyterian.

A Crusty Old Bachelor.

Not far from our town there lives an old bachelor who is so cross that no one can come near him without being snarled and grumbled at. I wonder if the children can guess who he is? Well, he is a Mr. Pigeon. He began his life by being disagreeable and unpleasant, and consequently leads a very unhappy life.

When he was very young he would have nothing to do with his little brothers and sisters, or anything that looked like a pigeon. He would condescend to associate with the chickens, and these were all his companions, but as he grew older he seemed to care less and less for the companions of his youth, until at last he would have nothing to do with them, so he was left without a friend.

He now spends the declining years of his life in an old henhouse. He sits on the sill over the door in total darkness, and never leaves except when he is very hungry. He can then be seen going over to the barn, where he stuffs himself sufficiently with corn, and goes back to his dark abode. If any one presumes to enter his sanctum, he will grumble and snap and snarl and bite in such a manner that they are glad to get out as soon as possible.

He is a perfect recluse, having drawn himself away from all that is beautiful and preferring to live alone in total darkness, when he might have been so happy living the life God meant him to live out in the glad sunshine.

Now, children, there is nothing truer than the old maxim, "If you want friends, make yourself friendly," so don't shut yourselves from all that is glad and happy in this beautiful world. Begin your life by being kind and pleasant to everybody, and love all that you can, and when you get old there will be no danger of your becoming like the Bachelor Pigeon.—Southern Churchman.

Only holy lives can win the unholy to holiness and heavenliness. The hands that are given to Christ must not do sinful things after engaging in his holy work. The lips that speak his name must not speak wrong words. The feet that run his errands to-day must not walk in the paths of evil to-morrow. The heart that throbs with love at his table must not afterward be thrilled with feelings of passion and hate. If we would be vessels meet for the Master's use, we must have clean hands and pure hearts.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

Very many of our subscribers are behind in payment, and the time of many more is just expiring. Please send what is due. If you can not send the whole, send part. We need the money. Please do not wait another week!

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

RIPANS

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

Mrs. Julia Susanna Folkes was born near Silvers, Smith county, Miss., in 1860, and died in New Orleans at the home of her sister, Mrs. Moles, Thursday, July 31, 1902. She was a daughter of Richard and Martha Barnes, who for many years resided near Crystal Springs, Miss., in which vicinity she grew to womanhood. Her parents were loyal, God-fearing Methodists, and she grew up in an atmosphere of piety. When about fifteen years of age she became deeply impressed religiously, and united with the Southern Methodist Church, whose communion she ever loved, and to which she remained steadfast. On Jan. 12, 1881, she was happily married to Mr. W. F. Folkes, an industrious and successful planter, to whom she proved a noble and faithful helpmeet. Tallulah, Issaqueua county, Miss., has been their home for several years. Three daughters, all of whom survive, were born to them. Sister Folkes was one of the most unselfish and kind-hearted persons I ever knew. She delighted in ministering to others, and was constantly engaged in something useful or helpful, sparing not herself in the doing thereof. Wise in counsel, zealous in service, gentle in spirit, devoted as a wife and mother, true and lovable as a friend, she will be missed in the home of which she was the light and the corner-stone more than words can express. Her death is a heavy loss also to our church and to the community where she lived. Though she suffered much during the last two years of her life, she bore her affliction with Christian fortitude, and she passed away sweetly trusting in Jesus. Her last message to her grief-stricken loved ones was, "I want you all to meet me in heaven." May the blessed Master comfort the hearts of the bereaved ones, and conduct them at last to that heavenly home to which this lamented sister has been translated! The interment took place at Vicksburg, Miss., Aug. 1, the funeral services being held in the Crawford Street Methodist Church. The deep grief of her husband and daughters is shared by three brothers, an only sister, and by a large circle of relatives and friends.

M. M. Black, Pastor.

IN MEMORIAM.

Whereas, In the providence of our Heavenly Father we are called upon to mourn the death of our sister and co-worker, Miss Cornelia A. Watts, who passed to eternal rest on the twenty-sixth of June, 1902; And, whereas, We wish to express in some degree our high appreciation of her worth as a consecrated Christian worker, and especially her ardent devotion to duty in the Sabbath-school; therefore, be it Resolved, 1. By the Sunday-school of the M. E. Church, South, at Newton, Miss., that we recognise the beautiful Christian character of our beloved sister, and esteem in the highest the devotion she gave to our school, both as member and teacher.

2. That, as a daughter, she was tender and thoughtful of a kind father, who welcomed her to the "better land," and devotion to her mother, who waits on this shore, was beautiful; that no truer sister ever lived; that she spoke a kind word for everyone. Her life was one of consecration.

3. That while, by her death, our Sunday-school has sustained a great loss, we realize that it is better because she lived and labored in it. With a holy resignation to the will of her Heavenly Father, and with Christian fortitude complaining not through all her suffering, her departure, though sad to all, has left its benediction upon us. May our Father comfort those whom she so loved on earth, and sustain them in their great bereavement! Expressing our sympathy for the family in their sorrow, we bow reverently to the will of God.

Committee: Meedames Rodgers, Selby, Price, Crisler.

Miss Lucy Polson was born Nov. 25, 1838, and died at Kilmichael, Miss., Aug. 10, 1902. At the age of eighteen years she joined the M. E. Church, South, at Columbiana. Later her membership was transferred to Friendship Church, from which place the entire church membership, and her membership along with the others, was moved to Kilmichael. Here her membership remained to the time of her death. For more than forty-five years she labored for the church she loved, and her life was in every respect consistent with her profession. In her community no one was more beloved than she, for by her faithful, tender, and unselfish ministrations in hours of sickness and sorrow, she won every heart. It is small wonder, then, that when the mists of death gathered about her own couch, there were anxious hearts waiting to serve, loving and tender friends to cheer and comfort her in the hours of her last painful illness, and hands ready with flowers for her bier—a last loving tribute to her noble and consecrated life. Our sweet-spirited sister is gone, and upon those whom she lovingly, tenderly served, rests the obligation to emulate her virtues. May her triumphant death be to them an inspiration, as her life was a benediction! Upon the grief-stricken home from which she was taken, and where most of all she will be missed, and upon the bereaved relatives and friends, we pray God's richest blessings. May they find their greatest consolation in the assurance that the best of all is, she was ready, and may they resolve to meet her in heaven!

Wm. L. Duren.

Mrs. Frances W. Rayner was born in Fairfield district, S. C., Sept. 12, 1817, and passed to her reward from the home of her son, M. L. Rayner, Hickory, Miss., June 29, 1902. In early life her parents moved with her to Holmes county, Miss., and in 1837 she was happily married to Wm. J. Rayner. Of this union eleven children were born, six of whom are still living. Sister Rayner connected herself with the Methodist Church when about twelve years of age, and for nearly three-quarters of a century remained a consistent and faithful member. Having been left a widow very early, the rearing of her little children devolved solely upon herself; but her faith was in Him who had promised to be a husband unto the widow and a father to the orphan. How well she succeeded with the training of her children is attested by the fact that all are worthy members of the Methodist Church, and one is a faithful minister of the gospel and an honored member of the Mississippi Conference. Sister Rayner's Christian life was pure and simple. She made no boasts, no display, but quietly walked with her hand in that of Him whom she knew and to whom she had committed herself. Her life was beautiful, her influence sweet, and her rest is peaceful.

Oldest Independent Normal School in Virginia. . . .

Students may enter at any time and select their own studies.

THE Shenandoah Normal College

Reliance, Virginia.

This Old and Well Established School enjoys an enviable reputation among its cotemporaries. The success of its many graduates and students in the different vocations of life bears practical testimony to the merits of its work.

Departments: Preparatory, consisting of the Common School branches, etc. Teachers' Normal; English; Scientific; Philosophic; Classic; Commercial; Shorthand; Typewriting; Telegraphy; Music, Instrumental and Vocal, including Voice Culture, etc. If you do not find what you want in the above list, write us and we shall promptly tell you just what we can do for you. We offer a wide range of subjects, and can usually satisfy every demand.

Expenses: Tuition, including all studies but Instrumental Music, $1.00 per week. Board, Furnished Room and Light, $2.00 per week. Steam Heat, Winter Term, $4.00; Spring Term, $2.00. Tuition, Instrumental Music, two lessons a week, $10.00 per term; one lesson a week, $5.00 per term. Absolutely no extras for any study in any department.

Location: Reliance is an ideal College community, with beautiful, as well as wholesome environments. No saloons, no doubtful attractions to entice the student away from his work, or to induce him to waste his money. It is a cultured Christian community, furnishing the very best of influences for rectitude and morality. We look after the morals as well as the intellects of our students.

Buildings and Improvements: The College building is a large three-story structure designed especially for the purpose. There are separate dormitories for young woman and young men. The ladies' rooms are carpeted. The dining-room, library, chapel, and recitation-rooms, on the first floor, have recently been papered, which adds very much to their beauty.

Business Education: Our Commercial Department is one of the best in the State. The fallacy of the claim made by some Commercial Colleges, that a Business Department in a literary school can not be made a success, is fully demonstrated by the results of our work. This success is secured by placing this department under a special supervising principal, who is peculiarly equipped for the work, and who gives his personal attention to it.

Dist. Sec.

Hermon Lee Ensign's story of "Lady Lee" in the Woman's Home Companion, for September, tells the life-history of a horse, and is one of the most charming animal stories that has lately been published.

The New England Conservatory in Boston, is not, as many suppose, devoted exclusively to the teaching of music in its various branches. It has for many years maintained an excellent School of Literature, Elocution and Oratory. With the opening of its new and splendid building this Autumn, it has arranged superior accommodations for a new school of Literature, Interpretation and Expression, under instructors of the highest attainments and wide experience. Our American youth are doing far too little in this most important field of refined, but forceful oratory, and the Conservatory acts wisely and in the interest of American progress when it sets the pace for the highest and best attainments in Literature and Oratory as well as in Music.

"Digging Up a Bible City" in the September Woman's Home Companion will be of especial interest to Bible students. It throws some new and startling light on the creation.

Help to Worthy Girls.

In order to assist poor, but worthy girls, the authorities of Whitworth College have decided to give free tuition to a limited number of young ladies who could not attend college without such help. This leaves to be paid only board and $8 of minor fees for the whole session. Let applicants furnish from pastor or Sunday-school superintendent testimonial of good character, including statement that such help is needed.

A woman's discovery FREE

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of hundreds in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

The idea seems largely to prevail that the violation of our wholesome liquor laws is confined to persons of the lowest repute—to keepers of dives and blind-tigers. This is a false notion. Now and then we read of men being arrested who are rated as respectable, keepers of first class saloons. And what is worse, gentlemen of the highest social standing, who form clubs for mutual benefit, seem to have as little conscience in the matter of law observance as the keepers of the lowest dives. Two or three times within the last three months the clubs of Jackson, Miss., where the local-option law is in force, have been raided by the police, and each time secured and turned over to the authorities quantities of liquor. The liquor is dispensed in violation of the law. Thus men who would scorn to be classed as law-breakers are exposed in the very act of breaking the law, and think nothing of it, simply because it is only a liquor law. When men of this class show contempt for the law, it is not surprising that blind-tigers abound. If it is the demand for liquor that forces men into its illicit sale, then the man who demands it, and buys it from an illegal seller, is as guilty as the man from whom he buys. The only difference is: the law holds the seller responsible, not the buyer. When respectable men quit selling in violation of law, we may hope to make the blind-tiger men close out their business.

A case is before the United States Supreme Court, which will be determined early in the Fall, involving the constitutionality of the act of Congress of March 2, 1895, prohibiting traffic in lotteries in the United States. Incidentally, also, it is said, the decision will have bearing on the trust question. "While the opinion will finally determine whether or not lottery gambling can be carried on in the United States, the case has a more important feature, in that it involves the question of whether the right of Congress to regulate is the right to prohibit, and thereby hits the great problem that has been worrying persons in their endeavors to frame a bill that will permit Congress, within constitutional limits, to regulate and control combinations of capital. The issue in this case hinges on the right of Congress to prohibit interstate commerce in lottery tickets, but a decision regarding traffic in lottery tickets can be made to apply to interstate traffic in sugar, beef, oil, and any other trust products." We do not see how the settlement of this question will determine the right of Congress to prohibit the combination of capital for the purpose of dealing in and controlling articles of commerce, unless lottery tickets are to be construed as articles of commerce having substantial value. And certainly the United States Supreme Court can not take that view. A lottery ticket is a very uncertain quantity.

The British Board of Education has just made public a report made by experts on the results of their inquiry into the educational methods of the United States. This report, it is said, has given the British people a better understanding than they have heretofore had of the development and power of America. "All grades and qualities of American education were examined, from the university to the lowest grade public school, and what the Board seem most to admire is the enthusiasm and enterprise discoverable in American education, with its constant multiplication of universities, its generous treatment of all religions, and its successful avoidance of a dominating religious question. While there is no disposition manifested to abandon English methods for American ones, it is freely admitted that much may be learned in England from these voluminous reports, which fill two thick volumes, and are issued by the Board at the moment when Lord Londonderry takes his place at its head." Perhaps if a thorough knowledge of our educational system, with its fine effects, could be made known to the English people generally, it would have some tendency in settling the educational question now agitating the nation.

A short time since it came to the knowledge of Secretary Shaw of the Treasury, that several clerks were in the habit of attending and betting on horse races. He immediately transferred them to departments in which money is not handled. The salary of one man was reduced eight hundred dollars by the transfer. Last week the Secretary ordered the dismissal of another clerk who had connected himself with an organization, and was its treasurer, the avowed purpose of which was to promote gambling on the races. The circular through which the clerk's connection with the organization became known gave the plans by which the stockholders of the concern could reap large returns by playing the races. The circular also, as an evidence of the respectability of the association, cited the fact that the clerk named held an important position in the United States Treasury Department. The promptness with which Secretary Shaw acted in these cases, we doubt not, will be approved by the whole country. Men who gamble should not be allowed to handle public funds.

There has been more trouble in the western part of China with the Boxers. The uprising has not been general, but much damage has been done, and two missionaries—one an Englishman and the other an Australian—were killed at Che Chou. This uprising, and the destruction at other points, occurred about the last of June; since the government has defeated the Boxers, and all is quiet, and the government has removed the magistrate in whose jurisdiction the two missionaries were killed.

The Endowment of Chairs in Centenary College.

BY PROF. J. M. SULLIVAN.

Those who observed and read the article on "The Mission of the College Graduate," by Rev. W. W. Drake, which appeared in the ADVOCATE, of July 24, will, doubtless, recall his reference to the endowment of a chair in Centenary College in honor of the late Prof. G. H. Wiley. I wish to emphasize the importance of this movement which has already been begun by those who feel the need of its early accomplishment, but who are not themselves able to contribute the requisite amount. Several friends of the college are now raising funds, chiefly among the alumni, for the erection of the Wiley Memorial Cottage, to be built on the campus, and form a part of the invested endowment fund mentioned above. Nine hundred dollars in cash and about one hundred in subscription have already been secured, and anyone desiring to help in the erection of this cottage is requested to send cash or subscription to me at Jackson, La.

The large results of the endowment of a single chair are surely not fully appreciated by the Methodists of Louisiana. Not only would it secure the guarantee of a good salary to the occupant of the chair endowed, but also increase the available funds for the support of other departments, about one hundred dollars for each, thus giving the colleges a better hold on well qualified men. This is what our Methodist institutions need first of all, and it is a duty they owe the men who are expected to devote themselves with diligence and progressiveness to the work of Christian education. Some of our colleges that are sustained largely by cash endowments are offering fairly good salaries, and sustaining even more than the seven professorships required by the church.

Any college should encourage its professors to take advantage of such opportunities for study and investigation as will qualify for greater efficiency and yield riper scholarship. The purchase of expensive books, say nothing of the securing of large library facilities and advanced courses of instruction, is a continual necessity for a progressive teacher. With a small unguaranteed salary the professor is forced to keep his own improvement within narrow limits, or to experience a severe self-denial. There are some who believe that our colleges are important institutions, and yet have an idea that a moral man, who knows enough about the text-books used to make the students feel that they have learned what is in the books, and pass them to the next class, is the man to be employed, if he can be kept on the minimum salary. Those of our Methodist people who think that the success of a college lies in a low curriculum, a large number of students, and easy graduation, are not in sympathy with the great educational movement of our church. The history of colleges and universities will show that, as a rule, the larger the endowments and more thorough the courses, the larger will be the attendance; and it is the experience of students that as they advance with good preparation to higher and broader courses, the accomplishment of the task becomes easier, and the desire for thorough education, professional or technical, becomes stronger.

If nothing succeeds so well as success, surely the endowment of a single chair would lead to the provision for other chairs. It is a fact not to be denied that Methodism in Louisiana needs as good a college (not university) as any other State, and I do not believe that anyone will say that the Methodists of this State have done all they can easily do towards the equipment of a splendid college. Centenary College deserves liberal support, not only for what it has been, but especially for what it is to-day and promises for the future. The present curriculum, adopted last year, is excellent in standard and adjustment, and far superior to any of the past; the faculty is competent, and earnestly solicitous for the spiritual, intellectual, and physical welfare of the young people of our State; the new president, Rev. H. B. Carre, scholarly, cultured, and practical, is enthusiastically awake to all the interests of the college. The endowment of two chairs now would be an incalculable blessing to the college, and greatly encouraging to those who are prayerfully laboring to enlarge its usefulness. President Carre has already met with much encouragement, and, while raising endowment, is also securing funds with which to equip recitation and dormitory rooms with steam heat and acetylene light. Work on these improvements will begin this month, and at the same time a number of dormitory rooms will be repaired and furnished, money having already been contributed for this purpose.

If a single Methodist preacher or layman in Louisiana, who believes that Christian education is a good thing, is not in sympathy with the work of Centenary College, he is, to say the least, losing a valuable opportunity for taking part in blessing the young men of the State with the best conditions for their higher education. A Presbyterian friend has contributed $300 to the cottage fund mentioned above. A young preacher in the Louisiana Conference, who was not receiving a large salary, gave $50 last year. He is an enthusiastic alumnus. An alumnus living in another State gave $200. Let the Methodists of Louisiana become more enthusiastic for the better equipment of Centenary, and let all those who feel the importance of this work strive to impress it upon others.

A Thankful Preacher.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Did you ever see anything like this hot weather in all the world? I don't think I ever did. I haven't had a good night's sleep in nearly a week.

I went to Augusta and Isabella last Saturday and Sunday, twenty miles distant. Preached three times while there, and preached in my shirt-sleeves every time. (Quite an innovation for this age of culture and refinement.) Well, I'll tell you how it happened. On my way out there I spent the night with a brother who had a young fellow living with him who was somewhat desirous of donning a preacher's coat; so next morning, when I went out to the lot to get my horse, I threw my coat across the seat of my buggy. Taking advantage of my absence, while watering my horse at a well near by, he walked up to the buggy and began the performance, but made a mistake, and tried to put it on the inside instead of the outside, and before I could persuade him that "Jim-swingers" were made for preachers, and not for four-legged yearlings of the masculine gender, that yearling had so completely wrecked the lower story of said coat as to render it absolutely unfit for service until repairs could be made; so I calmly folded up the remains and quietly hid them to rest between the narrow confines of my buggy, where not even a yearling's eye could see them, and started on my way, meditating upon the reverses of life, and also upon the goodness of God in providing for the comfort of my body by sending that beast to eat up my coat, for I had been wondering all the way how I would ever be able to preach in a coat such intensely hot weather as this.

Those good people did not know it, but I was delighted over the little episode of that progressive bovine, for it did not only add much to the comfort of this preacher's body to preach without a coat on when the thermometer was registering over 100 degrees in the shade, but listen: When I started from that good brother's house that morning he handed me a little piece of green paper, saying, "Bro. Ellis, take this; I'll patch that coat with a five-dollar bill." I thanked him kindly, and went on my way thanking the Lord again for yearlings that would try to put on, or in, a preacher's old coat.

Reaching Isabella, I found quite a crowd gathered to hear the "words of life." After apologetically referring to my somewhat depleted wardrobe, and the cause of my dilapidated appearance, I expounded as best I could. Services over, I started out to cool off, when a good sister, true to her womanly instinct and sympathetic nature, handed me $3.15 to help me replace my yearling demolished coat. By this time I had begun to realize the life-long debt of gratitude I owed that animal, and was not only willing to accord to him my profound respect, but could not think of him but with the fondest of recollections.

From Isabella I went to Augusta, where I was to expound at 3 p. m. At the appointed time I arrived and stood before merchants, doctors, and refined ladies, and related, by way of apology for my untidy appearance, my tale of woe, after which I discoursed on the mind of Christ. (Phil. ii, 4.)

Next morning, when I started for other points on my work, Dr. C, a noble-hearted fellow, and who knows how to sympathize with a fellow-traveler when in trouble by the beast of the field, together with a few others of kindred spirits, presented me with $5.50 more to replace that unfortunate, or fortunate, coat. Well, this was too much. I could bear no more. I broke down. All that I could do was to pray God's richest blessings upon those good people, and to ask him to remember that yearling in very tender mercy. Think of it!—$13.65; the product of one little experiment of a speckled bovine. I hope that yearling's breed may never run out, nor his shadow grow less; and if he could be as great a blessing to them as he has to me, I wish he could live to eat off the coat-tail of every preacher in the Mississippi Conference.

Yours, etc., G. R. ELLIS.

An Interesting Letter.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Presuming that you and your readers would be interested in the good things transpiring in this part of our Lord's vineyard, I beg to contribute a few notes to your valuable paper.

It seems the time has arrived when our faith in the words of the wise man, that "there is nothing new under the sun," must be shaken; and that "truth is stronger even than fiction," is freshly illustrated by reviewing the work which has recently been accomplished on New River, Ascension mission, by Rev. J. L. McManus and his co-laborers. Under the very eyes of the priest, and among his most devoted followers, has this wonder taken place. Bro. McManus boasted that he intended to "make Satan tremble in his boots," and it seems he is holding good his threat. For many consecutive days he, with the assistance of Revs. Botts and Coburn, has held rousing gospel meetings, which drew the people in such numbers that the church-house could not begin to accommodate them. So a large arbor was erected, and still they came in yet greater crowds. Nothing like it was ever seen in that community before. The Holy Spirit seemed to be compelling the people to cry out, "What must I do to be saved?"

Our presiding elder, Dr. Keener, was present, holding his Quarterly Conference. The hearts and homes of the people were open to receive him, and they proved their sincerity by promptly raising his entire salary when called upon.

It seems the old-fashioned custom of shouting is being relegated to the honorable past; but if your scribe mistakes not, something which very much resembled shouting transpired when thirty-odd persons presented themselves for membership.

It is not difficult to know when Bro. McManus has just held a meeting on New River; the smiles which wreathe his countenance tell the tale. In fact, it is slightly whispered around that among all his appointments this field, although the youngest, is his best loved. The cause may be easy or difficult of solution, but the fact remains, nevertheless.

Bro. McManus wisely followed up this awakening, and induced the people to give some tangible proof of their desire to serve the Lord. They immediately went to work and raised quite a large sum to build a straight-cut Methodist Church. You know, Bro. Boswell, "there is no place like home," "be it ever so humble," and, perhaps, you have heard it intimated that two families living together soon lose their love and admiration for each other to an alarming degree. Hence, these facts being forced upon Bro. McManus and his faithful followers, they determined to put their shoulders to the wheel and have no more of this "union church" business, for the peace of all concerned. Perhaps if we were not so intensely human, we could better portray how beautiful a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity; but since that seems to be impossible, Bro. McManus and his band are pressing forward a new building. A prominent Catholic told him when he was ready to build, his purse was open to assist him. That assurance has the right ring, and coming from such a source, it must have great influence. It is to be devoutly wished that the contending elements in the Protestant Churches may not war among themselves to the confusion of all.

This is an immense field of immense possibilities, and, oh! the souls, the souls which are ripe unto harvest. MRS. C. D. SIMMONS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: As I don't annoy you often with my scribbling, I thought I would give you a few dots from the hill country of Judea. We have had a pleasant time this year, though the health of my family has not been good. Congregations have been fine. Crops are splendid; hope runs high.

We have just closed a fine meeting at this place. Bro. T. J. Norsworthy, of South Mississippi, came to help us. Brought his tent, and for thirteen days and nights laid siege to the powers of darkness. As you know, I never staked much on evangelists, but if they were all like Brother Norsworthy, I would say, Give them the right of way. We had a grand meeting; don't know that I ever saw a community more deeply stirred. They came for ten or twelve miles; often as high as eight hundred to one thousand people in attendance. He gave us sound gospel—no sickly sentimentalism—and God owned and blessed his work. There were quite a number of conversions and additions to the several churches. But his grandest work was in stirring the church. He is bold as a lion, yet humble as a child. Oh, how we did enjoy it! We will soon meet up at Jerusalem to attend the feast. May it be a Pentecost!

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION IX.

"Infant baptism is an existent fact. It is general—indeed, almost universal—in the Christian church at the present day. This statement will surprise many, but it is true. The Christian population of the globe is, in round numbers, about four hundred millions. The population of those denominations which oppose infant baptism is about twenty millions. Thus ninety-five per cent. of the Christian world accept infant baptism, and about five per cent. reject it." (Origin of Inf. Bap., by Riggin.)

Since infant baptism exists, and exists so overwhelmingly in the Christian church, when, where, and by whom was it introduced into the church? We have proved to the satisfaction of every candid mind, and beyond the power of refutation, that the church has been essentially the same in all ages of the world's history. We, furthermore, proved in the fourth section of this division that infant baptism was practiced by the Jews, under the former dispensation, from almost, if not quite, their entire history; and that no reason has ever been assigned accounting for its introduction, save the imperative requirements of the law, long anterior to the time of Christ; that this practice of the Jews was in full force at the time the Savior came, and that he took it as he found it, and made baptism the token of the covenant.

Now, we propose to begin at the present time and trace infant baptism back through the past, century by century, by presenting a list of passages mentioning the practice, extracted from works written in each several century, until we meet with Jewish proselyte baptism, where we left it at the time of Christ. Remember, that every passage that we shall produce, so far as we are able to ascertain, shall have been written during the century in which we are establishing the practice. Nor shall we in any instance attempt to prove what the practice was in the fourth century by a writer of the sixteenth or any other century, as do the Anti-Pedobaptist Churches when trying to establish their succession from John the Baptist and Pentecost. But, in introducing our witnesses, we do not thereby endorse all the vagaries they entertained concerning either it or adult baptism. With the views or opinions of these writers on infant baptism or any other matter we have nothing to do. Some of them approved, and some condemned the practice; some spoke of baptism by dipping, some by pouring, and some by sprinkling only a few drops; some favored one dip, some three, and some one pouring, some three; and some held baptism to be essential to salvation, while others did not. Our purpose is only to show that the ordinance has always, in the history of the church, been administered to infants.

A. D. 1898. "The baptism of young children is to be retained in the church." ("Dis., M. E. Church, South.")

A. D. 1820. "In favor of infant baptism the following arguments may be addnced." (Watson, "Institutes," p. 712.)

A. D. 1790. "Dr. Wall observes that all national churches practice infant baptism. Very true." (R. Robinson; Benedict, "His. of Bap.," p. 186, Riggin.)

A. D. 1742. "I believe infants ought to be baptized." (John Wesley, sermon on "Catholic Spirit.")

A. D. 1678. "If I may speak my thoughts, I believe the ministers of the nation would be heartily glad if the people would desire, or be willing to have their infants dipped. . . . Some learned persons who have defended the lawfulness of sprinkling have yet in some respects preferred dipping." (Walker, "Doctrine of Baptism," Wall, Vol. II., p. 216.)

A. D. 1645. "Those that dip infants do not yet use to sprinkle them. Our way is not by aspersion, but perfusion; not sprinkling drop by drop, but pouring on at once all that the hand contains." ("Thos. Blake," Wall, Vol. II., p. 215.)

A. D. 1628. "The baptism of young children is in anywise to be retained in the church, as most agreeable to the institution of Christ." ("Articles of Religion" of Church of England, Wall, Vol. II., p. 148.)

A. D. 1590 (about). "Though in case of grown persons that are in health, I think dipping to be better; yet in the case of infants and sickly people, I think sprinkling sufficient." ("Dr. Whitaker," Wall, Vol. II., p. 218.)

A. D. 1576. "As for dipping of the infant, we judge that not so necessary, but that it is free for the church to baptize either by dipping or sprinkling." ("Musculus," Wall, Vol. II., p. 211.)

A. D. 1551. "Then let the priest take the child in his left arm, and holding him over the font, let him with his right hand three several times take water out of the font, and pour it on the child's head." ("Argenda Church of Mentz," Wall, Vol. II., p. 208.)

A. D. 1545. "Then the minister of baptism pours water on the infant, saying," etc. (Genevan "Form of Baptism," by Calvin, Wall, Vol. II., p. 211.)

A. D. 1533. "Now is there an opinion risen among certain, which affirm that children may not be baptized until they come into a perfect age. But, verily, methinks that they are far from the meekness of Christ and his Spirit." ("John Frith," Wall, Vol. II., p. 162.)

A. D. 1498. "I dare not affirm that any dying without baptism will obtain salvation. For there are some children of holy persons who are not of the elect." ("Peter Martyr," "Summers on Baptism," p. 165.)

A. D. 1415. Let the parents "use their prayers for their infant that is not yet born, that if it be to die before it can come to the grace of baptism with water, the Lord Jesus would vouchsafe to sanctify it beforehand with the baptism of his Holy Spirit." ("Gerson," Wall, Vol. II., p. 116.)

A. D. 1404. "Let the priest make three pourings or sprinklings of water on the infant's head." ("Synod of Langres," Wall, Vol. II., p. 208.)

A. D. 1393. "How shall the infant be damned that is born of faithful parents that do not despise, but rather desire to have their children baptized?" ("Walter Brute," Wall, Vol. II., p. 114.)

A. D. 1370. "But we hold that to be without doubt, that infants that are rightly baptized with water are baptized with the third baptism (with the Holy Spirit) when as they have baptismal grace." ("John Wickliffe," Wall, Vol. II., p. 111.)

A. D. 1268. "They say that a man is then truly for the first time baptized when he is brought into their heresy. But some say that baptism does not profit little children, because they are never able actually to believe." ("David of Augsburg," Armitage; "History of the Baptists," p. 303, quoted by Riggin.)

A. D. 1254. "The Ordibrarians say that Christ was a sinner till he became of their sect. They say that baptism does no good to infants unless they are perfected in that sect." ("Reinerius," Wall, Vol. II., p. 131.)

A. D. 1215. "Some heretics there had taught that it was to no purpose to baptize children, since they could have no forgiveness of their sins thereby, as having no faith," etc. ("Pope Innocent III.," Wall, Vol. II., p. 140.)

A. D. 1178. "They (Albigenses) also affirmed that infants or adults who are baptized by our baptism are saved, and that none can be saved without the same baptism." ("Hoveden," "Summers on Baptism," p. 43.)

A. D. 1171. "We believe that no one is saved unless he is baptized, and that infants are saved by baptism." ("Confession of Albigenses," "Summers on Baptism," p. 42.)

A. D. 1115. "Infants, indeed, since by reason of their age they can not have faith nor the conversion of the heart to God, consequently can have no salvation if they die without baptism." "St. Bernard," Wall, Vol. II., p. 105.)

A. D. 1050. "There is a report come out of France . . . that these two do disannul lawful marriages, and as far as in them lies overthrow the baptism of infants." ("Deodwinus, Bishop of Leige," Wall, Vol. II., p. 125.)

A. D. 1025. "Water baptism is of no use or necessity to any one, infant or adult." ("Disciples of Gundulphus," Wall, Vol. II., p. 139, and McClintock and Strongs' Ency.)

A. D. 950. "Let every infant be baptized within nine days." ("Northumbrian Law," Armitage, p. 246, Riggin.)

A. D. 870. "I have a village in your diocese, and you excommunicated them; and I have an account of how many infants died without baptism, and men without the communion." ("Hincmarus," Wall, Vol. II., p. 124.)

A. D. 860. "In the case of infants that are under the guilt of the sin of nature—that is, their godfathers that answer for them in baptism—is a means of their salvation." ("Hincmarus," Wall, Vol. II., p. 112.)

White unto the Harvest.

BY REV. S. J. DAVIES.

The Son of God drew a most forceful and thrilling figure from the wheat field whitening unto the harvest. He bade his servants not to tarry, but enter immediately and begin the good work, promising like reward of joy to sowers and reapers. Southwestern Louisiana is now one vast field of rice ripe for gathering. It is a vaster field of spiritual opportunity. The reapers are few. We can only touch the borders of these fields so rich in glorious possibilities and promising for future achievement. Almost every preacher on the Crowley district has the work of two men, and some the work of three, lying out before them. I believe they are as faithful and devoted a band as can be found in any mission field, at home or abroad; yet they may not encompass the earth. I am stating the plain truth when I say that almost any one of them can leave his regular place of appointment within his constituted charge, and preach to congregations as large, and sometimes larger, than usually greet him. A town of four or five hundred people springs from the prairie in a year. Buildings of every description abound, but no church spire points to heaven. The people are ready to hear, and the company who are promoting the enterprise will donate the ground, but the missionary is not on hand.

Last Sunday evening I visited a populous country section; preached in a fair-sized school-house to people anxious and eager to hear the Word. The house was packed, the windows were frames for faces, while many listened from the outside.

This is only an incident, which can, no doubt, be repeated again in almost any part of the rice country. One familiar with the labors of a busy pastor knows that his pressing calls to immediate duties preclude the possibility of his doing successful work in these fruitful fields. He can only watch and pray that under God some way may be devised for reaching these unchurched masses. These people are, for the most part, active, energetic, intelligent immigrants—many of them from lands of churches and schools. In close connection with these are the native French, ready and receptive to the gospel when properly approached. There are some misconceptions about this people which should be removed. His French is not a patois. The great body and the literature of this language is good French. For three centuries the native Frenchman has heard the tongue of Racine and Cornielle from the pulpit. The Jesuit priest is a preacher. Of course, there are provincialisms and local terms, as among all people; but the Parisian finds no difficulty in conversing with a man from St. Martinsville. Nor does he lack, as many may think, in nature's gifts or graces. He is abundantly able to take care of himself, and of you, too. In all the busy activities of this cosmopolitan country, Jean Baptiste is holding his own fairly well. Some of these people, converts to Methodism, evince as large a measure of devotion and faithfulness as any.

It will repay the church a hundredfold, within the next half decade, to place five active, experienced men in this field, with means to sustain them. A movement was inaugurated at our recent District Conference to bring this field and its vast possibilities before the Missionary Board.

It is hoped by many that the plan of co-ordinating the Conference Boards with the General Board, as suggested or adopted by the Conference at Dallas, will be fruitful of large results. We have a committee appointed to memorialize the Annual Conference, next Winter in Alexandria, to take some active marches in this direction. Many of our people are interested. May God grant to the church a spiritual vision to know its day and enter upon its work!

Abbeville, La., Aug. 6, 1902.

Forest District.

To the Preachers-in-Charge and Members of the M. E. Church, South, in the Forest District Mississippi Annual Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: The third round of Quarterly Conferences will soon end. Some facts need to be stated and some words of exhortation seem to be pertinent. I pray you give heed.

1. To eat supper and abstain from food till breakfast the next morning is hardly a fast acceptable unto the Lord.

2. With very few exceptions (notably Hickory, Heidelberg, Goodwater, Mt. Pisgah, John's, Saundersville, Zion Grove, Clarksburg, Piney Grove and Rose Hill) the results of the many protracted meetings so far held this year have been sad disappointments to me. The visible results are not what we ought to have had. With doctrines the most systematic and simple and biblical of any denomination in the world, we need only preachers who understand and live these doctrines, and are baptized with the Holy Ghost and with fire, to win souls from sin and Antinomianism to Christ Jesus our Lord. Brethren, the barrenness of many of our meetings ought to send us all into the dust before the Lord, and constrain us to wait in prayer and fasting until we be endued with power from on high.

3. A union meeting with those who refuse us Christian fellowship, or have gone out from us and continually inveigh against our church and government, is not evidence of wisdom—to say the best of it.

4. Through negligence and indifference, and in some cases wicked opposition to missions, many of our Sunday-schools are not yet organized into missionary societies according to the Discipline.

5. Very, very few are the Woman's Foreign Missionary Societies in this district, and still fewer are the Home Mission Societies. For this dearth the indifferent and unconcerned pastors, present or past, are largely responsible. Vain seems to have been my hope that at least one of each of these useful and helpful societies should be organized in every pastoral charge.

6. Not a single missionary mass meeting has been reported to me as held anywhere in the district this year. How soon we seem to grow weary in well-doing! How few pastors have made an active, earnest canvass for subscribers to Go Forward or to the Review of Missions! And some could not spare even a postal card on which to write to Dr. Lambuth, Nashville, Tenn., for leaflets to distribute among the people.

7. Since July 1 the following remittances have been made to W. M. Thornton, treasurer Joint Board of Finance, on account of Conference Claimants' Fund: Rose Hill, $8; Morton and Pelahatchie, $5 (over assessment); Laurel, Main Street, $10; Ellisville circuit, $6.10; Decatur, $12. Seven charges are delinquent—uncredited with a single cent on the treasurer's book! These are Raleigh, Taylorville, Ellisville station, Scott, Forest, Laurel Fifth Avenue and Kingston, and our Indian Mission. Of course, all intend to pay the full assessment, or some part thereof; but some forgot, and some ignored Veterans' Day, which was ordered by the Annual Conference to be observed in March, as well as the treasurer's being required to make quarterly payments to the claimants. To vote for him to make such payments, and then fail to help furnish the money, is to lay on him a task severer and a burden heavier than Pharaoh laid on Israel—to furnish the straw as well as to make the bricks.

8. Since July 1, W. L. Linfield, treasurer Conference Board of Missions, has received the following sums:

Charges.	For. M.	Dom. M.
Morton and Pelahatchie	$20	$36
Shiloh	25	10
Rose Hill	20	11
Harperville	10	5
Newton and Hickory	30	20
Laurel, Main Street	15	5

The Ellisville circuit, having paid domestic mission assessment in full some months ago, is now credited with $1.75 for foreign missions, while the following charges are credited with the following amounts on domestic missions: Forest, $12.50; Laurel, Fifth Avenue and Kingston, $2; Vossburg and Heidelberg, $18; Eucutta, $10. The Vossburg and Heidelberg circuit is the second charge in the district to pay domestic missions in full. Not one has yet paid foreign missions in full. The following charges have no credits this year on the treasurer's books for either foreign or domestic missions: Neshoba, Indian Mission, Decatur, Walnut Grove, Scott, Edinburg and Ellisville station, while some others are credited with very little on either account.

Whatever we do, brethren, must be done quickly. The assessments were made with due consideration of the possibility of drouth, freshets, flood, fire, famine, pestilence, blight, mildew, and every other evil thing. A mere drouth of a few weeks' duration ought not to be an excuse for further discounting the collections, the preachers, or the people. We have failed to honor God with our substance, and he refuses to honor us, and does not give us the thousand souls for Christ. God bless you all. Yours faithfully,

An Opportunity for Doing Great Good.

At the last meeting of our Woman's Board of Foreign Missions, in Charleston, S. C., one of God's own hand-maidens, whose name is withheld, gave $500 each to the Home and Foreign Missionary Societies, provided each society raised $2,000 loan fund for our Kansas City Bible and Training-school. This money is to be used—principal and all, if necessary—by young women anxious to be fitted for the Master's use, and yet not able to meet even the reasonable expenses of this school. During the time the money is used no interest is charged. Afterward, a reasonable interest until the full amount is returned, to be loaned again.

The Home Mission Society had surplus funds, and paid their $2,000 at once, and will, doubtless, have several young women to take advantage of this splendid offer at the coming session. Our Foreign Missionary Society had no surplus funds, but made an approximate calculation, and found that if each auxiliary in Southern Methodism would pay one dollar each auxiliary, not each member—but if the majority of auxiliaries would pay one dollar, it would not exceed five cents per member. There are very few scholarships, and so few Conferences felt able to pay the expenses of a student after meeting their regular dues, pledges, specials; but by this very little from each society, what may not be accomplished? Each year this amount would keep twelve or fourteen girls in our training-school. May our North Mississippi Conference see to it at once that each auxiliary pay one dollar, and those who are able give an extra dollar, for we have some struggling, weak societies, where each member practices self-denial to meet the necessary obligations. Give an extra dollar for one of these societies.

Please raise this money at once, or some young woman will wait another year before entering the training-school. Send to our Conference treasurer, Mrs. G. C. Jones, Belen, Miss.; then you will get due credit.

Yours in the work,

MRS. W. M. MCINTOSH.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT

REV. C. D. ATKINSON, EDITOR.

Seashore Epworth League Assembly, 1903.

The great Conference of '02 has come and gone. One of the unique features of the Seashore Epworth League Assembly is, the work is planned a year in advance. An Executive Committee is elected each year from the Leaguers present, and this committee does most of its work before the Conference adjourns.

OFFICERS OF 1903.

Our new officers are: President, Dr. H. W. Featherstun; first vice-president, Pres. H. B. Carre; second vice-president, Miss Anna Slater; third vice-president, Mrs. A. F. Watkins; treasurer, Miss Mabel Wheeler; secretary, Dr. Jno. T. Crebbin; junior superintendent, Miss Lillian Faith; counsellors: Drs. Rush and Wier, Misses Currie Schwing and Alma Leftwich, Rev. C. D. Atkinson.

A great deal of work of the Assembly was put into the hands of committees.

Music Committee—Dr. Jno. T. Crebbin, Miss Alma Leftwich, Miss Carrie Schwing.

Entertainment Committee—C. D. Atkinson, Pres. H. B. Carre, Miss Schwing and Miss Leftwich.

Traveling Secretary Committee—C. D. Atkinson, Jno. T. Crebbin, H. B. Carre.

Programme Committee—Dr. H. W. Featherstun, Prof. T. Carter, and Miss A. Slater.

Finance Committee—Dr. H. W. Featherstun, J. T. Crebbin, and H. B. Carre.

Publishing Committee—C. D. Atkinson.

BIBLE CLASSES.

There will be two courses in Bible study. The course in historical study will be led by Pres. H. B. Carre, of Centenary College. Pres. Carre has led the thought of this body for the past two years in historical study of the Bible. The devotional Bible study will be led by Prof. Thomas Carter, of Vanderbilt University. The first and last periods of each day's programme will be given to the study of the Scriptures.

SCHOOL OF METHODS.

More periods will be given to the study of methods of League work in '03 than at the last Conference. The thought of the Assembly in this school will be led by Dr. H. W. Featherstun, Mrs. A. F. Watkins, Miss Anna Slater, Miss Lillian Faith, and others.

NOTES.

Prof. T. Carter will deliver six addresses on sociology at the next Assembly.

One evening will be given to an Epworth League social.

Mr. J. B. Gordon, of Georgia, writes he is working up delegations for '03.

NEW ORLEANS EPWORTH LEAGUES.

At a recent meeting of the Union the following officers were elected: President, Dr. J. T. Crebbin; first vice-president, Rev. W. W. Drake; second vice-president, Miss B. Lutz; third vice-president, Miss E. Bentley; secretary, Mr. Veith; treasurer, T. L. McKnight.

Miss May Mayo, junior superintendent of the State, addressed the young people of Parker Memorial on Sunday, Aug. 24, at 5 P. M. By request she delivered the same address delivered at the Seashore Assembly. Miss Mayo leaves this week for Kansas City, Mo., to enter the Scarritt Training-school.

Fearful Arraignment of the Liquor Traffic

A SERMON ON

TEMPERANCE,

By the Rev. George R. Stuart,

CLEVELAND, TENN.

Coworker with the Rev. Sam P. Jones.

The author has had numerous calls from all over the country for this sermon. In order to meet this demand he had it published in pamphlet form. He proposes to use the profits of its sale in the interest of the cause for which the sermon was preached.

It is sold by the single copy for 10 cents; by the 100, at 7 cents per copy; by the 1,000, at 6 cents per copy.

More About Rally Day.

In our article on Rally Day, two weeks ago, we failed to mention that our Board of Missions had gotten up an attractive programme for a Missionary Rally Day in our Sunday-schools, to be observed on the third Sunday in October. These programmes are sent free to every Sunday-school that will observe the day, and we would urge every superintendent to send and get them. They will serve a threefold purpose—put new life into the school for the Fall and Winter work, arouse interest in the cause of missions, and increase the missionary collections.

Get the programmes as early as possible, and make careful preparation for the day. Then advertise it thoroughly, and let the teachers personally invite all the members of their classes who have dropped out during the Summer months, and all others within the sphere of the school's influence who are not attending some other Sunday-school, make it a season for special prayer and personal work, and the results will amply repay all the trouble and work done to make the day a success.

The very warm weather during the Summer months has greatly depleted the attendance on our Sunday-schools. We have no word of complaint against those who take a vacation, because vacations are necessary to health and strength. Neither is it our intention to scold those who remain at home, and do not attend the Sunday-school when the weather is so warm. We simply wish to commend those who bear the heat and burden of the day; we wish to honor those who do not take off the harness during the Summer months. They may be drudges, but what would the world do if there were no drudges? Surely they will be rewarded according to their faithfulness.

There was an article in the Advocate, not long since, written by a brother who advocated putting a field secretary in the Sunday-school work in Mississippi. It would be a fine thing if practicable. We have thought much along that line, not only for Mississippi, but for our three Conferences, but we fear the time is not yet ripe for such a movement in our midst. But we hope to see it done at an early day.

The training-work of a field secretary, badly as such work is needed, would not, however, be his only important work. The building up of a better Sunday-school sentiment is of prime importance, because, when a community or church places the proper value upon its Sunday-school, the people will not be long in seeking and getting the most improved methods, and in insisting that their teachers train and fit themselves for their important duties. By all means let us have a better Sunday-school sentiment. To this end let pastors, teachers, pupils, and all Sunday-school workers, labor and pray.

Belmont Circuit.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I have held three of my protracted meetings. I began at Patterson's Chapel the third Sunday in July, with Bro. W. C. Carlisle, of Booneville circuit, to do the preaching, which was good and effective. We continued there for several days; had sixteen professions, ten additions to the church, and one infant baptized.

I next went to Oak Grove, where I was assisted by Bros. Woods and White. We had a good time; four conversions and four additions to the church.

The first Sunday in August I opened up at New Hope, where I did not meet with as great success as at the former places, but hope it was as bread cast upon the waters, to be gathered up many days hence. There were three conversions; no additions to the church.

I still have four meetings to hold, but am helping Bro. Carlisle this week at Blackland, after which I will return to my own field of labor.

Your brother in Christ,

M. L. Tucker.

Kossuth Circuit.

Dear Dr. Boswell: Under the leadership of our beloved pastor, Rev. L. W. Cain, Kossuth circuit is fast coming to the front, and if every vow that has been made in the last month is fulfilled, she will be able at Conference to make the best report in her history.

Brother Cain is a new man here, being a late transfer from the Northwest Texas Conference; but he is not a new hand as a worker in his Master's vineyard. His people all love him.

On the third Sunday in July he commenced a meeting at Wesley's Chapel, which resulted in ten professions and a general revival in the church. On the fourth Sunday he began at Bethel; held eight days, and seventeen souls accepted Christ as their Savior, and the whole community was revived. On the first Sunday in August he began at Rienzi, a place that had the name of being hard, and at the beginning the prospects looked gloomy, but on the third day the light began to break in; the first cottage prayer meeting was held, and three souls were saved. The meeting lasted eight days. Twenty-four precious souls professed faith in God, everybody got happy, and it was said to be the best meeting ever held at Rienzi. I have been a member here for twenty-seven years, and I never saw anything to exceed it.

In both of these two last meetings Brother Cain was assisted by Brother M. C. Choffey, who was licensed at our last District Conference. He preaches well, and is a fine worker, and won the love of all with whom he came in contact. May God bless him in the great work to which he has been called!

The three meetings resulted in fifty-one professions (never converted before) and forty reclamations; twenty-one joined the church, with more to follow, and most anyone was ready to talk and pray in public, or lead a meeting.

At the close of the meeting at Rienzi we organized an Epworth League with thirty-six members, making the fourth and largest League in the circuit, all having been organized this year, and the fifth one will be organized soon; then we will have a good, live League and a wide-awake school at every appointment.

Brother Cain, guided by the Holy Spirit, is doing a great work. God grant that his people may give him a handsome support, and the good Lord give him souls for his hire.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We have just closed a ten days' meeting at Hopewell, which resulted in great good. Both church and community were revived. The presiding elder was with us three days. His presence and preaching added greatly to our good. Bro. D. W. Pilley, a local deacon, did the principal preaching during the last day of the meeting. The Lord was with us in power. The work is on the upgrade all round, and no man has better people than can be found here. Pray for the work.

May the Lord abundantly bless the Advocate and its readers!

Yours for Christ.

Bienville, La.

Dear Editor: We have held one protracted meeting on this circuit, with quite a success. We baptized seven children, twenty-three persons were converted, and the church was greatly revived. We report no members, as we were rained out the last service, and did not open the doors of the church. We sold quite a number of Bibles and other good books, including three Advocates. Rev. A. J. Notestine was the power in the ministry that led to this success. And we, as pastor and people, extend hearty thanks to our presiding elder for his faithful work among us.

Rev. B. H. Sheppard will be our help in a meeting at this place, embracing the fifth Sunday in this month. All people on this circuit are invited to attend.

I have sold three Advocates since our District Conference, which makes fourteen I have sold on this circuit this year, and, by the help of God, six more must be sold before Conference.

We have two Sunday-schools, three prayer meetings and nineteen family altars on this circuit, of which we are glad to report, and thank God for their good.

Our collections are good so far, and we hope to report in full at Conference.

A very successful singing-school is being taught at this place by a Mr. Brown, a professor in vocal music. The pastor and his wife make two scholars.

Remember this work in your devotions to God.

Rose Hill, Miss.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We closed a very fine meeting at Rose Hill on Friday, Aug. 8. We had a great victory for our Lord at this place. The people say this was the best meeting held at Rose Hill in twenty years. Rev. P. D. Hardin, of Heidelberg, who helped us in the meeting, is a strong preacher, and God answered by fire. Sin found no quarters, especially the blind-tiger. Quite a number of middle-aged men and women, who had been members of the church for years, were convicted of sin, came to the altar, and found mercy. They went home, erected family altars, and now whole families are happy in the Lord. About thirty-five conversions, twenty-five or thirty reclamations, twenty-three additions to the church on profession of faith. To God be all the praise.

We open fire on the devil's host at Pleasant Grove to-morrow, at 11 A. M. We are expecting Bro. Corley to assist. Pray for us, that we may have another victory for our Lord.

Your brother,

J. H. Foreman.

The Commoner
(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and New Orleans Christian Advocate together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1902.

Some preachers are good at exhortation, but weak in expounding and elucidating doctrine. Because of this, they conclude that they are poor preachers, and become greatly discouraged. There is no reason for discouragement. If the object is to do good by saving souls, and success follows the exhortation, the preacher has nothing more to ask. He should thank God and take courage. The sacred historian did not characterize John the Baptist as a St. Paul, but he does say that, besides pointing out the Christ, and reproving and denouncing the sins of the times, "many other things in his exhortation preached he unto the people." Just now we stand in need of good exhorters quite as much as good preachers.

The age limit, or "dead-line," in the ministry is not definitely fixed. In some cases it is reached about as soon as a man is a fraction beyond middle life. In other cases it is not reached until the body is literally worn out. The issue does not depend so much on the strength of the intellect as it does on industry and application. Many preachers of good minds and education are laid by early because they have ceased to apply themselves. We know a man beyond sixty who is as fresh and vigorous as a man of thirty. It is said by those to whom he ministers, that "The older he gets, the better he gets." That should be the rule, not the exception.

Professors of religion have no assurance that they can go anywhere they please, and get away with unspotted garments. A young woman, going with a party to explore a coal mine, appeared dressed in a dainty, white gown. Her friends remonstrated, but, turning to the old guide, she asked, "Can't I wear a white dress down into the mine?" "Yes'm," returned the old man. "There's nothin' to keep you from wearin' a white frock down there, but there'll be considerable to keep you from wearin' one back." Young Christians ought to remember that when they are tempted to go to questionable places.

Do good while you can, and to those who are able to appreciate your kindness. To keep an alabaster box of precious ointment in hand, waiting to pour it on the head of some dead friend, will prove useless, and a waste. It will do a dead friend no good. There are thousands of worthy souls working under disadvantages for the uplift of humanity. They are discouraged, and need help. Go out and empty your precious ointment on the head of one of these. It will hearten the soul, and lighten the burdens of life.

CHURCH MEMBERSHIP.

No privilege connected with life is so exalted as the privilege of communion with saints. No obligation is so serious, or imposes so much, as the obligations assumed when a man unites with the church. Standing at the threshold, professing a desire to flee from the wrath to come, and to be saved from his sins, he solemnly vows before God and the congregation to believe all the articles of the Christian faith. This is comparatively easy, even though he may not have been blessed with early religious instruction, for he has a general idea of the infallibility of Holy Scripture, and takes it for granted that the articles of faith are founded on the Word. He also agrees to be subject to the discipline of the church, to attend upon its ordinances, and to support its institutions. This anyone can do, and we doubt not many make the promise without any very definite knowledge of what these things are, but they are conscientious, and expect to give themselves to the task of learning. But this is not all.

The church member promises to renounce the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of the world, with all covetous desires of the same, and the carnal desires of the flesh, so that he will not follow or be led by them. This is the most serious obligation to be taken. It is the hardest to assume, and the hardest to keep, because the things here required to be renounced are the things which minister to the pleasure of the natural man. Influenced and backed by the devil, these things get such a hold upon the individual that it is like plucking out a right eye, or cutting off a right hand or right foot, to get rid of them. They are the things of sin, the element in which men are born, and in which they live. It is like destroying self to throw them off and get away from them. Considered in this light, we get an idea of the meaning of our Lord's command, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself." We also get an idea of St. Paul's words, "I am crucified with Christ." "The old man is crucified with his deeds."

But as hard as the work is, if there be in the young convert the root of the matter, and the least appreciation of his position as a disciple of Christ, together with a disposition to know and to do, under the instructions of a faithful pastor, he will use the means of grace, and soon learn to put the enemy under his feet, and how to resist the temptations of the world. One or two attempts to lead a Christian life, and at the same time live according to the old way, will satisfy any converted soul that an utter breach between himself and the world is essential. And, knowing that Satan is his enemy, he must renounce him, and bid him begone. All this indicates the necessity for faithful pastoral oversight and instruction.

Not only the duties, but the privileges of church membership, should be impressed. We fear this privilege is not always properly esteemed. On the contrary, we are impressed with the idea that a few people deem it a condescension to belong to the church. They think they are honoring the church by giving them their name and influence. In this it is possible to be honestly mistaken. When they come to know fully what the church is, what it stands for, and what it does for its loyal and loving members, they will change their minds. There is no privilege this side of heaven so great. Those who come into it, and are lively members, are the children of God, and entitled to all the blessings that such a relation confers. The child of God claims the divine protection—it is his privilege. "God is known in her palaces as a refuge." "Our feet shall stand in thy gates, O Jerusalem." The Psalmist esteemed the church above all his blessings. He said, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord." "A day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness." "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth: if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy."

This revival season, when so many converts are coming into the fold, is a good time for our pastors to impress these truths upon their minds and hearts.

STAGGERING FIGURES.

The brewers and distillers of this country have about four hundred and fifty millions of dollars invested in the making of beer and alcoholic liquors. On this investment they realize a profit of about two hundred millions of dollars. These are big amounts to be handled, and give those who handle them a vast deal of influence, especially with the Government—City, State, and National. Because of this enormous investment, and consequent influence, there are those who think the task of suppressing the liquor traffic through prohibitive legislation is hopeless. Those who think so look at the matter only from the liquor man's point of view. Their look is wholly one-sided.

There is another and a broader view. The liquor business is to be considered in its bearings on morals and society at large. The American people so look at it, and the great majority of them are in favor of restrictive measures. There is not a State or municipality in the country that does not seek to regulate the traffic where it is allowed at all. Some prohibit it altogether. If it was a money-making business without elements detrimental to morals and to peace, the business would neither be prohibited nor regulated. And whenever the people come face to face with the question: Shall we abolish the saloon, or lose our morals and ruin our homes? there will be no hesitancy. It will be settled in short order. The money power of the brewers and distillers will not save them.

And then we must consider that over against the money power of the liquor men is the money power of the millions of people engaged in lines of legitimate and unrestricted trade. The money invested in liquor making is but a fraction of the capital of the country. For example, compare one class of men with the liquor makers — the farmers. They alone have nearly five times as much capital invested in lands and farming stock and utensils as brewers and distillers have in their deadly business. The latter have $450,000,000 invested, while the farmers have about $2,500,000,000. The product of the liquor business for one year is valued at $450,000,000. The product of the farms for the present year in the three items of grain, wheat, corn, and oats, according to the Government's estimate, amounts to 3,862,000,000 of bushels, valued at $2,000,000,000, or about 4½ times the value of the liquor output. This calculation, it will be seen, while it takes into account the value of the farms of the whole country, does not include the cotton, sugar and rice of the South, nor the hog and beef, or dairy and poultry, business of the country. Put the value of all these together, and include the worth of gardens and orchards, and it will be seen that the value of the liquor business is but a fraction of the country's assets.

The above figures are absolutely staggering. They are almost inconceivable. They clearly show that the farmers alone control many times more money than is invested and made in liquor. Add to the farmers the many thousands of manufacturers and tradesmen engaged in legitimate business, and it will be seen that the money power is not with the brewers and distillers. And when it is considered that the farmers and tradesmen outnumber liquor men by the million, and that among them is included all the good men and women of the country, it will also be seen that money and influence are not wholly on the side of the liquor interests.

But the task before the temperance people is no little one. The enemy is strong, and strongly intrenched. The Government protects and encourages the liquor trade because it adds immensely to the revenue. The dealers, from the richest distiller down to the poorest retailer, engage in it because of the profit, which is the strongest of incentives. Above all, it is upheld by the millions who drink, because they love the taste and effects of liquor. Our hardest fight is to be made against the love of drink. If we can persuade the people to let liquor alone, the money power of the brewers and distillers will not stand in the way.

AS IN POLITICS, SO IN RELIGION.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean says, "No attempt to build up a labor party or a manufacturers' party or a capitalists' party or a poor man's or a farmers' party has ever been successful." As in politics, so in religion. A church, which answers to party in politics, can not be built up, and made to absorb all other organizations, on one idea. Every effort of that kind so far has been a failure.

There sits an old man in Rome who supposes that he occupies "the chair of St. Peter," and declares himself the vicar of Christ. He assumes universal rulership, temporal and spiritual. The Holy Roman Church, by divine authority, is the universal church, and for that reason all men everywhere are warned at their peril, not to disregard its claims. This church is constantly claiming to be the "Mother Church," and, with this plea, seeks to ingratiate itself into the favor of men. The Roman Catholic Church, once the mistress of the world, is not as strong to-day as it was one hundred years ago.

There is another organization whose advocates repudiate the Pope and his pretentions, but assume quite as much as the most arrogant Romanist. They declare themselves the direct successors of the apostles, with authority from the Lord Jesus, and on this assumption, according to their statement, they have been two thousand years trying to build the church. With what success, let the figures tell.

Other good men, with the very best intention, tell us that the Lord Jesus organized the church about the time he preached the Sermon on the Mount, and somewhere near the place. They plead a "thus saith the Lord" for well nigh everything they do and say in connection with the church. Among other things, they tell us the Lord commanded disciples to be immersed. They constantly preach immersion, and on this one thing mainly depend to build the church. But, admitting that they have existed from the day of the Sermon on the Mount, we are obliged to say they have not so much to show as the result of their labors than the Church of England, or the Church of Rome—not by many millions.

Our immersionist brethren, believing as they do, are fully justified in declaring their faith. It is all right. We do not object. The Roman Catholics and other High Churchmen have the same privilege. But none of these kingdoms will ever be able to "break in pieces and destroy all other kingdoms." The church of God will prevail. It will spread from sea to sea, and from the rivers to the ends of the earth, but no one denomination will ever be able to make all others pronounce its shibboleth. There is but one all-conquering truth—Christ and him crucified. All can preach that, and all who preach it receive the Master's blessing.

HERESY NO HINDRANCE.

It seems to be accepted, even among some Methodists, that "it makes no difference what a man believes, if he is sincere." Heresy is no hindrance. A man may believe and teach what he pleases, provided back of the teaching is a clean life. In one of the leading periodicals of the M. E. Church, a regular correspondent not long since derided and condemned the Methodists who condemn heresy. "The reprimand was occasioned by the action of the Nominating Committee of the English Wesleyan Conference in refusing to nominate Dr. Agar Beet for another term of six years to a chair in Richmond Theological College, because he taught the doctrine of conditional immortality, and the uncertainty of future eternal punishment, which action many Methodists unqualifiedly endorsed. We called attention to this in a short editorial a few weeks ago. We looked forward with some interest to the action of the Conference. In the general body, made up of laymen and ministers, Dr. Beet was defeated by a small plurality vote, but in the ministerial Conference, where action was final, he was re-elected by a vote of 328 to 235. This vote, however, is not to be construed as an endorsement of Dr. Beet's teachings. He keeps his place in the Conference, and goes back to his chair handicapped. The committee having the matter in charge recommended that "in view of the dread solemnity and admitted mystery of the subject, and the necessity of allowing some freedom of opinion on the subject, and out of regard to the fidelity of Dr. Beet to the general body of their doctrine, recommended that the Conference take no further action on the matter on condition that Dr. Beet did not teach in their pulpits the doctrines taught in his books." This recommendation was adopted almost unanimously. With this precedent, of course, the next man who utters a heresy will go free, provided he is faithful to "the general body of doctrine." And so on. Thus it is possible for Methodist preachers to deny every vital doctrine of the church, only no one man can be allowed to deny them all. This seems to be the logic of the English Wesleyans.

THE RELIGIOUS BALLAD.

When some of our church choirs are not listening to a solo, they are trying to entertain the audience with religious ballads or serenade melodies, set to ragt-ime music. But even this kind of music does not satisfy—at least, does not always come up to the demands of up-to-date song leaders. In one of the fashionable churches of New York, a few weeks since, a young lady got ahead of all competitors, and fairly took her hearers by storm, by coming to the front and whistling a favorite operatic air. She was so uproariously encored that at the close of the service she was compelled to respond, which she did with another whistle. Now, all this operatic music, and all this trifling with sacred things in the house of God, we do not believe for one moment is in demand by congregations of Christians. It is nothing more than pandering to the taste of outsiders, a few of whom, perhaps, are thus drawn to the church. The Baptist Standard, speaking of such songs, and another class designated as "Holy City songs," says: "They, with their caramel poetry and their chocolate-cream music, have about as little to do with spirituality and worship as the rag-time with which they share the favor of the multitude. That the sort of sentimental thrill which they arouse in some minds has next to nothing in common with the genuine religious emotions is evident from the fact that the most famous song of this class is popular (so it is said) in the vaudeville theaters, roof gardens, and music halls. Never before was there available for church choirs of all grades of skill so much church music of dignity and musical worth—settings by great modern composers of psalms and sentences and famous hymns. Why, then, descend to the shallow prettiness of serenade melodies and triple time?"

The Union Publishing House.

Arrangements for the union of publishing interests in China between our church and the M. E. Church have been completed. Directors for the Joint Board of Control have been appointed, and Dr. Homer Eaton, of the M. E. Church, and Mr. D. M. Smith, of our church, have been authorized to purchase all the machinery necessary. The building is ready and work will commence about the first of January, or before. Two Business Managers will be selected. Our man, Rev. R. P. Wilson, is already on the ground, and will doubtless be confirmed in the place by the joint directors. This, of course, foreshadows the organic union of the two Methodisms in China. And we are all asked to say, So mote it be. Time will tell.

PERSONAL.

Rev. E. C. Bott, of Port Vincent, is in a happy frame of mind, having just moved into a new parsonage, with pleasant surroundings. He is getting along nicely in his work.

Dr. C. W. Carter, presiding elder of the Crowley district, spent Sunday last in the city, and worshiped with the brethren of Carondelet Street Church. He was on his return from Asheville, N. C.

Rev. H. C. Brown, of Terry, Miss., is in the city waiting at the bedside of his wife, who is in the Touro Infirmary. She has been dangerously ill, but at present is resting well, and Brother Brown has hope of her recovery.

Rev. T. H. McClendon, pastor at Franklinton, spent two or three days in the city this week, including Sunday. He preached Sunday evening at the Parker Memorial Church. His work has recently been blessed with a great revival.

We acknowledge the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Norman to the marriage of their daughter, Hattie Etta, to Mr. Nicson Walker, Wednesday evening, Sept. 10, 1902, at eight p. m., at Baldwyn, Miss. May the blessings of our Heavenly Father rest upon the happy couple!

Prof. W. T. Foster, who has charge of the Lexington (Miss.) Training-school, is doing a fine work in the way of educating boys and girls. He has a competent corps of assistants, and his patrons and pupils speak in the highest terms of their services. The readers of the ADVOCATE whose sons and daughters are not yet ready for college would do well to correspond with Prof. Foster.

Rev. A. F. Watkins, D. D., of the Mississippi Conference, has been elected General Agent of the Endowment Fund for Superannuates. He was elected by the General Board of Trustees on August 27. The collection of such fund was authorized by the last General Conference. We congratulate the trustees in securing such a man as Dr. Watkins. His work is one of great responsibility, but he is fully competent. He will receive a welcome throughout the whole church.

Sam Jones Camp Ground Again.

We insert this week two more communications about the Sam Jones Camp Ground. This we did not expect to do, but Brother Adams' communication is official, simply giving notice of what he had done, and of Bishop Key's endorsement of his action. The communication of Brother Webb is inserted as a matter of right. All the brethren officially connected with this business have now been heard. This is sufficient.

A Statement.

In the ADVOCATE, of Aug. 21, there appeared a brief article, signed by Jno. F. Cassels, in which my veracity is called in question. This I can not allow to go unnoticed. I wish simply to make a statement concerning the conversation between Mr. Cassels and myself. The ADVOCATE owes me this much, I am quite sure.

Early in this year my pastor, Rev. W. G. Forsyth, requested me to see Mr. Cassels, and find out where the old Quarterly Conference records were. I saw Mr. Cassels, and inquired about the records. He told me that he did not have them, and that he did not know where they were. About the twentieth of July Rev. T. W. Adams and Rev. W. G. Forsyth were told that Mr. Cassels had the old records, and that the association would produce them in court when they needed them. The presiding elder then directed me to go to Mr. Cassels and demand the records in his name. When I went to Mr. Cassels, I first requested him to give me a list of the trustees of the association. He said that he would furnish a list of the trustees if we would not take the matter into court. In this connection Mr. Cassels said something about the records. I immediately demanded the records, which he said he had in his possession. I told him that my demand was in the name of the presiding elder of the Natchez district. He replied, "And you demand a list of the trustees?" I replied, "No; I simply request a list of the trustees, but I do demand that you turn over to me the Quarterly Conference records." He said that he would not do so unless there was an order from the Sam Jones Camp Ground Association. I remonstrated with him, telling him that they had no right to hold the records which belonged to the church. I told him that I was recording steward, and had a right to the books. He then said that he would turn the records over to me. The next week he promised to bring them to me the first time he came to town. He has been in town a number of times since then, but has never brought me the records yet. He did not promise to bring them at any particular day. He promised to bring them the first time he came to town.

I gave Bro Adams the information which appeared in his article, to which Mr. Cassels referred when he wrote.

W. Y. WEBB

Gloster, Miss., Aug. 27, 1902.

A Statement.

On the eleventh day of this month (August) I received a communication from Bishop H. C. Morrison, notifying me that he had disconnected Sam Jones Camp Ground from the Gloster charge. Upon receiving this notification, I attached Sam Jones Camp Ground to the Gloster charge at once, and notified Rev. W. G. Forsyth, the pastor of the Gloster charge, of my action, and directed him to deal with it as a part of his pastoral charge. I claim to be the official representative of Bishop Key in the Natchez district, as presiding elder of the district, and, as such, had the right to exercise, in his absence, all episcopal functions except ordaining. I acted on the twelfth day of August. On the day following I wrote to Bishop Key, sending him a copy of Bishop Morrison's communication to me, and notified him that I had acted immediately upon receiving it by attaching Sam Jones Camp Ground to Gloster. I wrote him at considerable length, giving him the salient facts in the case, and reasons for my prompt action, and asked for his approval. On yesterday I received a postal card from the Bishop, saying, "I approve your action in the camp ground matter, attaching it to Gloster." I hope this will settle the jurisdiction question.

An Announcement to Christian Advocate Readers.

Every reader of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE who is ailing, or in poor health or has some friend or relative that is sick, should be interested in the offer on page 5, headed, "Personal to Subscribers," made by the Theo. Noel Company, of Chicago, Ills. This company is the proprietor of the famous Vitæ Ore, a natural mineral medicine, which they offer to send out on thirty days' trial to every ailing person who requests it, and will promise to use it carefully according to directions. Many readers of this paper have already used this medicine, and can testify to its merits; but those who have not, should not fail to avail themselves of the exceedingly liberal offer made by the Theo. Noel Company. The company is reliable, have what they claim, and will do as they promise.

Quicker Time to St. Louis.

INAUGURATION OF DINING-CAR SERVICE A LA CARTE ON MOBILE AND OHIO R. R.

Commencing Sunday, Aug. 31, the Mobile and Ohio will shorten its time between New Orleans and St. Louis, via Meridian.

The "St. Louis Flyer," leaving New Orleans at 9:10 A. M., will arrive in St. Louis Union Station the following morning at 7:36, making the run in 22 hours and 26 minutes.

The "St. Louis Special" will make the same time as heretofore, leaving at 7:30 P. M., and arriving in St. Louis Union Station the following evening at 7:04, carrying through sleeping car to St. Louis without change. Both of these trains make connections with the leading railroads for points North, East and West, without change of depot.

Sunday, Aug. 31, will also be the inauguration of dining car service a la carte on the Mobile and Ohio. All meals will be served in these cars, doing away with the inconvenience of eating stations, and doing away with the ancient custom of eating in haste. Passengers will pay for what they order, and will not be compelled to take a whole meal in order to get a cup of coffee. These dining-cars are of the very latest pattern, no expense having been spared to make them the handsomest in the land. Electric lights and electric fans, run by current generated by brakes of the car while in motion; surplus power being stored to supply current when cars are stopped. Decorations including palms, etc., are excellent. Large windows, giving patrons much rested view of scenery while enjoying their repast. The cuisine will excel that of the the Mobile and Ohio's famous eating-house at Artesia, which gained the reputation of giving the finest service in the world for the money. They will be stocked with the very best that the market affords, which will be served at a nominal cost to patrons it being the intention of the management that these cars shall be an advertisement, and not a money making medium. These cars will serve all meals on North and South bound trains.

Situation Wanted.

A lady of experience desires to secure a private school. One in New Orleans preferred, but will accept one outside the city if terms are agreeable. Address, Miss S. B., care of CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, 512 Camp street, New Orleans.

Very many of our subscribers are behind in payment, and the time of many more is just expiring. Please send what is due. If you can not send the whole, send part. We need the money. Please do not wait another week

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Quite a number of our subscribers have sent in their renewals and asked for a new Discipline. About one-third of the number will not receive the book for the reason they do not comply with the terms of our offer. If you are one of those who are disappointed, we ask that you turn to our offer and read it carefully. You will, doubtless, find that you failed to pay up to date and to send $2 for a year's subscription in advance from the date of your remittance.

Notices.

To date, 24 charges have paid for foreign missions, $1 071 90; domestic missions, 35 charges have paid $750.20. Some of these charges are as poor as any in the Conference. What these have done, others could have done, and we could have had for foreign missions, $6,500, and for domestic missions, $3,000. It is just three months to Conference. We must do our best.

THE

Shenandoah Normal College

Reliance, Virginia.

This Old and Well Established School enjoys an enviable reputation among its contemporaries. The success of its many graduates and students in the different vocations of life bears practical testimony to the merits of its work.

Departments: Preparatory, consisting of the Common School branches, etc. Teachers' Normal; English; Scientific; Philosophic; Classic; Commercial; Shorthand; Typewriting; Telegraphy; Music, Instrumental and Vocal, including Voice Culture, etc. If you do not find what you want in the above list, write us and we shall promptly tell you just what we can do for you. We offer a wide range of subjects, and can usually satisfy every demand.

Expenses: Tuition, including all studies but Instrumental Music, $1 00 per week. Board, Furnished Room and Light, $2.00 per week. Steam Heat, Winter Term, $4.00; Spring Term, $2.00. Tuition, Instrumental Music, two lessons a week, $10.00 per term; one lesson a week, $5.00 per term. Absolutely no extras for any study in any department.

Location: Reliance is an ideal College community, with beautiful, as well as wholesome environments. No saloons, no doubtful attractions to entice the student away from his work, or to induce him to waste his money. It is a cultured Christian community, furnishing the very best of influences for rectitude and morality. We look after the morals as well as the intellects of our students.

Buildings and Improvements: The College building is a large three-story structure designed especially for the purpose. There are separate dormitories for young woman and young men. The ladies' rooms are carpeted. The dining-room, library, chapel, and recitation-rooms, on the first floor, have recently been papered, which adds very much to their beauty.

Business Education: Our Commercial Department is one of the best in the State. The fallacy of the claim made by some Commercial Colleges, that a Business Department in a literary school can not be made a success, is fully demonstrated by the results of our work. This success is secured by placing this department under a special supervising principal, who is peculiarly equipped for the work, and who gives his personal attention to it.

A LETTER TO OUR READERS.

NEW HAVEN, Addison Co., Vt.
Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—About a year ago I was suffering from what I supposed was rheumatism. I became so bad that I could hardly get on my feet from a sitting position. I run down in weight from one hundred and ninety-five to a hundred and forty-five pounds. I tried different kinds of medicine, but received little or no help. I saw Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root highly recommended for kidney trouble, but I never had any idea that my kidneys were effected. I thonght I would try a fifty-cent bottle of Swamp-Root and see what the effect would be. I commenced taking it according to directions and in a few days I saw that it was helping me. I used the fifty-cent bottle and then bought two more dollar bottles, and they completely cured me. I have got back to my original weight, one hundred and ninety-five pounds, and I am a thorough advocate of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

Very Truly,
WM. M. PARTCH.

A Hainanese Baby.

This particnlar Hainanese baby is a boy, so he has a real name; but, as he is the last baby in the family, they call him Ma Voe, which means "The Tail."

When Ma Voe was born his parents were so glad he was a boy, for Hainanese parents do not like girl babies very much, but they sent word to their neighbors that this was a girl baby. It seemed very strange to tell such a falsehood, but they did this because they were afraid the gods would come and take him away by sickness. Thus they tried to deceive their gods. They did not know that there is but one true God, and that he sees and knows everything and can not be deceived.

The neighbors came to see the littlefellow, butnotone good word did they say about him. Most of them said he was very ugly. They did not mean this, bnt they wanted the gods to hear them say he was ugly, so they wonld not want to take him away. And, further to deceive the spirit, they pierced one of little Ma Voe's ears and hung an ear-ring in it. Surely, they said, now the gods will believe this is a girl baby and will leave him alone.

When he was twelve days old a man came and shaved the fine, fnzzy hair off his head, and he always wore a cap after that.

When he was a month old his parents gave a feast and selected a name for him, and worshiped the idols. He was dressed up very fine that day with silver anklets and bracelets, and a little yellow silk cap with a great many ornaments on it. Some were silver dragons and some were bright-colored silk "pom-poms." There were little mirrors around the border of his cap, and long silk cords with bells and carved figures attached dangled down to his neck. People brought him a great many presents, too, and his bamboo basket cradle was hung from the rafters above.

His mother could not feed him as most babies are fed, so she boiled rice very soft and gave him the rice water and soft rice to eat. She also made some flax-seed tea for him, and then he had sugar to eat, too. When he was four months old he ate fish and sweet potatoes. Before very long he was allowed to have pork and fried cakes and a great many things which American mothers would not think of giving to their babies for fear it would kill them, and I think it would; but little Ma Voe is still growing. When he was sick his mother lighted some incense sticks and burned the little body in different places, thinking thus to please the idols, who would then take away the sickness.

Just so little Ma Voe's life and the lives of all Hainancse babies are controlled by idolatry and superstition. We hope that by the time they are grown up they will have heard about Jesus and will have learned to serve the true God.—Mrs. C. H. Newton, in Over Sea and Land.

The Water Lily—An Indian Legend.

One evening an old chief sat at the door of his wigwam smoking a pipe. A crowd of little Indian boys and girls gathered about him and begged for a story. This is what he told them:

Once all the people were happy. There was no sickness or war. The white man had not come. There was plenty of game in the forest. There was plenty of fruit on the trees. The earth was covered with a carpet of flowers. There were birds of more beautiful plumage than now. The red man loved the stars. For he believed that in them the good people lived who had been taken home by the Great Spirit. One night they saw a star that shone brighter than all the others. Night after night, as they watched it, it came nearer and nenr. At last it rested on the top of a tree like a beautiful bird.

One morning it spoke to a young warrior of the tribe, and said: "Young brave! I have looked down upon our people for a long time. I have grown to love them and their beautiful land, with its flowers and birds and rivers. I have left my two sisters, the Morning and Evening Stars, in the sky, and have come to live with you forever.

"Ask your wise men what form I shall take, and where I shall live to be most loved." The star was asked to choose for herself. "I know where I shall live," she said, joyfully; "in the lap of the water, where I can see the gliding canoe. Then I can kiss the naked feet of the little children as they play on the bank of the stream." With these words she flew down to the water, where she saw herself reflected.

Children, when you see the water lily, take it in your hands and hold it to the skies that it may see its sisters in heaven.—Nature Study.

A Little African Animal.

"Wonldn't you think yours was a long tongue if it was as long as your body?" asks Olive Thorne Miller, who knows so much about animals of all kinds. "Well, odd as it seems, there is a little fellow that lives in Africa, with just such a tongne, and you can not imagine how useful it is to him. You see, he is a dignified, slow-moving little creature, and he lives on insects and sneh lively game. He could never catch them, and might starve to death, if it were not that he can dart out, quick as a flash, a tongue fully as long as his body. The end of the droll weapon is sticky, and holds fast any unfortunate insect that it touches.

"The little animal of which I speak is the chameleon, and his tongue isn't the only droll thing about him. His eyes are very curious. To begin with, they are very large and round, and stick out like big beads on the side of his head; and the funniest thing is that he can turn them different ways, so as to see all round him. He can turn one up and the other down, or he can turn one forward and the other backward, and thus see everywhere. It must be a very small fly which can escape these sharp eyes."

We all know of his ability to change his color; and another writer tells us that the chameleon, when agitated or in a hurry, sometimes breaks or casts off his long tail. This seems to cause no physical pain, but the lizard is evidently ashamed of his awkward appearance afterwards, and hides himself in corners. As he uses his tail as a sort of spring by which to leap, the loss of it makes a good deal of difference to the little creatnre.

The chameleons make very gentle and interesting pets. They will run over one's hands, and watch eagerly for one to catch flies for them. They love sunshine and fresh air, and will swallow in the latter occasionally in great gulps, expanding a sort of pouch under the neek by the process. Although gentle when kindly treated, they will show anger if teased, opening their mouth in a ludicrous way, and assuming what they evidently think is a threatening attitude.—Morning Star.

Queen Alexandra and the Horses.

The coronation of Great Britain's king has led to the exploitation of all sorts of anecdotes. All of these which relate to Queen Alexandra indicate her lovable disposition. Leslie's Weekly tells the following as illustrative not only of her kind heart, but of her practical common sense:

"It was through her thoughtfulness that notices have been posted in many London omnibuses requesting passengers not to require the complete stoppage of the vehicle more often than is absolutely necessary, and thus to relieve the horses as much as possible of the tremendous strain of restarting.

"Her Majesty has now turned her thonghts to the cab horses of London, and has had sent from her native country to London some specimens of a light stand which is commonly used in Copenhagen for supporting the horse bags of horses so that they may take their casual feed in greater comfort than is possible when the bag is suspended from their heads. These little trest e tables are extremely light and easily folded and stowed away under the seat of the cab when not in use."—Exchange.

How Flies Brush Their Coats.

Willie, flushed and happy, had just come in from the barn, where he had been playing hide and seek, an exchange relates.

"I guess my little boy needs to find a brush," said mother, looking up from her work. For there were clinging to his pretty sailor suit bits of dry grass and seeds from the mows, and some were playing peck a-boo in the little fellow's hair.

"O mother, can't I wait? I'm just too tired now."

"If flies had been playing hide-and seek, they wouldn't allow a speck of dust to stay on their heads; they'd brush it off," casually remarked Aunt Nan.

"Oh, they have them, and use them," laughed Aunt Nan.

"Hair brushes?" questioned Willie; and his face took on a perplexed look.

"Yes; and with them they always keep themselves very clean. Have you never seen a fly rub his delicate front legs over his head?"

"Lots and lots of times," replied Willie, quickly.

"Well," resumed Aunt Nan, "there are a great many hairs on the underside of a fly's feet and legs, and these form tiny hair brushes. When any dust gets on a fly's head, he brushes it off at once; and then he rubs his legs together, as you have probably noticed. This is so that no dust may cling to the little brushes."

"Hurrah, Mr. Fly!" exclaimed Willie; "I guess you needn't think you're the only one who can use a brush, even if the other fellow doesn't carry his brushes round on his feet!"

Away he ran; and, when he came back, mother said her little boy looked neat enough to be kissed.—Sunday-School Visitor.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

MAJOR JOHN MARSHALL BILLUPS.

Major John Marshall Billups was born in Ogiethorpe county, Ga., Jan. 24, 1824, and died in Columbus, Miss., Aug. 11, 1902. He was the oldest son of Col. T. C. Billups. His father moved to Mississippi in 1834, when his son was only ten years of age, but as soon as this son was grown, he returned to Georgia and lived in the city of Athens a number of years. In 1846 he married Miss Sarah Phinizy, with whom he lived happily until death claimed her in the dark days of 1864. Several years after his marriage he returned to Mississippi, and engaged in the mercantile and planting business, and in 1858 he came to Columbus, where he lived forty-four years. A few years after the war he married Mrs. Christopher Mott, of Holly Springs, Miss., who, with several children, survive him. He was major under General Adams, and the cause of the Confederacy never had a warmer friend or a more loyal officer. When a young man he was soundly converted, and joined the Methodist Church under the ministry of Joseph S. Key, now one of the Bishops of the church. Soon after Major Billups' arrival in Columbus he was elected steward, and for more than thirty years he was president of the Board of Stewards. His solid piety and good business sense eminently fitted him for this responsible position. He was assistant superintendent of the Sunday-school for some time, and was one of its most faithful and efficient teachers for many years. In presenting the principal points of his character the writer mentions:

First. His courtliness of manner. He was always the polished gentleman and the thoughtful friend. Though he was high-born and wealthy, he was gentle in nature and kind to everybody.

Second. His domestic life was beautiful. His heart was in his home, and when old age crept upon him he still toiled for the benefit of those he loved so well. Hospitality in that home was open and free, and he greeted and welcomed every stranger. To this home the married children always returned to receive the parental blessing, for love reigned supreme. Family prayer was never forgotten, and the reverential spirit of the father impressed every member of the family.

Third. His devotion to his church was remarkable. His time, money, influence and thought were given without stint to the church. He was always in his place when the hour of service arrived, and being quite deaf for several years, he would move his chair immediately in front of the pulpit, that he might catch every word. His last public act was to go to church on Sunday morning, and from that service he went home to die.

Fourth. His love for his Master was unbounded. His religious experience was clear and comforting, and for these fifty years he walked with God. Though he had many duties—he was president of a bank, was manager of a large estate besides his own—he never wavered in his loyalty to his Lord. A few nights before he passed to his reward he said to his daughter he must say his prayers. She persuaded him not to kneel by his bed, as he was so weak, but, kneeling on a pillow, he prayed his last audible prayer, that God might bless his loved ones and give him a "glorious dawn." On Monday afternoon he bowed his head and whispered, "Jesus," and his spirit slipped away to its home in the skies. We buried him from the church he loved so well, and a great throng of people crowded into the building to do honor to his memory. The gallery was packed with colored people, who came from his farms to weep over the death of "Marse John," their best friend. We bid him farewell, but not forever, for we shall see him again. T. W. LEWIS.
